Peconi Freed On Car Lot Bylaw Charge

Find Used Car Lot Was Operating Before Bylaw Passed

A charge against Nick Peconi, Lansdowne St., of operating a used car lot in the city without a licence was dismissed in police court today.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, KC, held that Peconi had been operating the used car lot from May, 1950. The bylaw was passed in August, 1950 and the subsection under which Peconi was charged was passed in December.

Peconi applied for a licence in September and received a letter in October stating that he had been refused a licence. The only evidence presented in court as to why the licence was refused implied that the used car lot was in a zone set aside by the Town Planning Board for use as a residential area.

Can't Refuse Licence

Magistrate Philp, quoting a case from a higher court, held that, the council "shall not refuse a licence only because of location if the business is established when the bylaw comes into force."

The magistrate said the court could not go into whether or not the council had any other reason for refusing the licence than that mentioned in court.

In the trial held Feb. 1, Peconi testified that he had started operating a used car lot in May 1950. He said before he received a letter of refusal from the city council, he was phoned by City Clerk E. A. Outram telling him of the council's refusal.

Asked Why

When he asked the city clerk why he was refused, he was told that part of the city had been zoned for residential purposes.

Peconi said there were many other businesses being conducted in the neighborhood.

Wilfrid F. Huycke, KC, prosecuting for the city and Alex. L. Elliott, KC, defending Peconi, presented written arguments and judgment was reserved until today.

$1,000 Fire Guts North End Home

Damage estimated at $1,000 was the result of a fire which burned the interior and roof of a two-room frame dwelling belonging to Clifford Woodcock, 1 Chesterfield St., Sunday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodcock were away when the fire started. Sonny Monahan, 21-year-old nephew of Woodstock spotted the flames from his nearby home and turned in the alarm at 7:09 p.m.

After firemen put out the flames only the shell of the building remained. A defective chimney is believed to have caused the fire.

Leonard Clancey Dairyman Dies In Otonabee

Leonard Joseph Clancey, a widely known dairy farmer of Otonabee township, died at his home on lot 19, concession 13, early this morning. He was 77.

Mr. Clancey was engaged in the dairy business for 25 years. In the late stage of it he built a pasteurizing and bottling plant on Park St. south, near Lake St., but incipient illness forced him to sell the building.

Last of a family of six boys and two girls, Mr. Clancey was born in Downeyville, son of Patrick Clancey and his wife, Elizabeth Murphy. He received his education at Downeyville and Lindsay Collegiate Institute. He was well known in both Victoria and Peterborough counties.

Farmed In Ennismore

Mr. Clancey farmed nine years in Ennismore, prior to moving to Otonabee 44 years ago. He was an industrious farmer with a large herd of Holstein cattle and took a pride in the quality of his milk products. He was a member of the Peterborough Exhibition Board, and was a director of its dairy cattle section.

Surviving members of his family are his wife, who was Ellen O'Connor, ten sons and one daughter: Edward of Detroit, Mich.; Peter and Mark of Battle Creek, Mich.; Elmer of Rochester; Stephen of the R.C.E., Ottawa; and Joseph and Michael of Peterborough; Fergus, William and Ambrose of Otonabee; and Mrs. Harry (Bernadine) Rutherford of Otonabee, and 25 grandchildren.

Mr. Clancey had suffered a long and severe illness. He was a member of the Church of Our Lady of the Assumption, of its Altar Society and Sacred Heart League.

The funeral will be Wednesday from his late home on the 6th line of Otonabee at 9.40 a.m. to the Church of the Assumption, where requiem mass will be celebrated at 10 a.m. Burial will be at St. Peter's cemetery.

The Clancey home is about one mile and a half south of Downer's Corners.

Car Lurches Ahead Driver Suffers Injury

Thrown forward as his car lurched ahead as it started on a hill Saturday night, Peter Nicholson, 748 Water St., hit his head on the windshield, breaking the glass and cutting his right hand.

Nicholson and his wife had come from a dance and found that their car parked on Murray St. wouldn't start. He let it coast down the hill toward Aylmer St.

Nicholson let out the clutch pedal and the car lurched ahead throwing him forward.

Constables John Morrow and Jack Wilson investigated.

United Church Moderator Visits City Churches

"For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life," St. John 3:16. This was the text used by the Right Rev. C. M. Nicholson, Moderator of the United Church of Canada, in his sermon to a capacity congregation in George Street United Church Sunday night.

"God's revelation and infinite promise is in this text," contended Dr. Nicholson. It is "the essence of the Christian gospel. In this verse is the whole basis of the gospel and God's work with regard to man and the world."

The moderator explained that the primary revelation of these words is of the nature of God—God is love. Love is the essential nature of his being. God can't help but love and his actions are dominated eternally by love.

A Necessary Ingredient

"Love is the primary and necessary ingredient to life," stated Dr. Nicholson. "God created man in an act of divine love and as a result, love is necessary if we are to grow. There is no racial or moral discrimination in God's love and thus there should be no discrimination in man's love."

He went on to explain that in the phrase, "He gave His only begotten Son," is found the fundamental truth that love always expresses itself in action—in giving. Out of this gift of love came the promise that we will have everlasting life. It is the New Testament understanding of the consumation of God's purpose.

Not New Stage Of Life

"The Kingdom of God is within us," Dr. Nicholson asserted. "It is not a new stage of life, but may be experienced here on earth. It is an emancipation from sin, life and the world through trust in God. With it man experiences the peace, joy, hope and freedom of everlasting love."

Answer Provided

The Moderator concluded his sermon by explaining that the answer to everlasting life is contained in the text, whosover believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

"This belief can not be merely an idea in your mind," Dr. Nicholson contended. "There must be an immersion of this idea in the stream of life. To believe is to take the idea and join it to action. Live by it and there you will understand it."

Dr. Nicholson was introduced by the Rev. M. J. Aiken of St. Andrew's United Church and chairman of the Peterborough Presbytery. The service was conducted by the Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church.

Special music was provided by the combined choirs of Mark Street, Knox, St. Andrew's and George St. United churches under the leadership of Charles Allen and Harry Northrop. The following anthems were sung: "Glorious Is Thy Name", Mozart; "O Lord Most Holy", Cesar Frank, soloist, Mrs. James Goldie; "The Hallelujah Chorus" from Handel's Messiah.

Car Badly Wrecked Turns Over In Ditch

Skidding on a patch of ice as he was passing another car on Otonabee St., near Short St. about midnight Saturday night, Elwood S. Foster, 646 George St., rolled his car over in the ditch but escaped serious inury.

The car was badly damaged and one fence post on the south side was broken off. Foster received a small cut on his right ear. Two passengers in the car were unhurt.

Foster said he was driving west and started to pass a car ahead of him when he hit a patch of ice. He pulled his car to the left to avoid car he was passing, when the rear of his car slewed around on the ice and his car rolled over, coming up on its four wheels against the fence.

Glass was broken in the right rear door, a bumper was broken, both right fenders were crumpled and the undercarriage was pulled away from the frame which was twisted.

Constables John Morrow and Jack Wilson investigated.

Sunday's High Is 47 Degrees

Sunday, which turned out to be a warm-up for the Easter parade was warmer by 36 degrees than February 25, 1950. Weatherman James Harrison reported today that Sunday's high was 47 degrees above zero.

Mr. Harrison went on to point out that at no time did Sunday's weather attempt to match the chill a year ago. Lowest was 30, 19 degrees above the high of a year ago, and 34 degrees above the low of four below.

One city man reported what was to him the first sure sign of spring—a skunk killed by a car on the sixth line of Otonabee.

Out west, Winnipeg had its warmest February 24 in history. On Saturday night, the low was 32.6 above, and on Sunday, the temperature reached 36 above and was accompanied by a continuous drizzle.

At Saskatoon, blinding blizzard stranded 25 cars on Sunday and the people trapped by the snow were rescued by an RCAF panel truck and transport. One of those rescued was a baby in an incubator.

NORTH MONAGHAN ASSESSOR

Henry Batten is the new assessor of North Monaghan township. He succeeds Garnet Shields who is now Otonabee assessor. Mr. Batten is the present North Monaghan tax collector and a trustee in School Area No. 2.

3 DP's' Home In Dummer Lost In Fire

Overheated Pipes Blamed For Fire In 10-Room House

NORWOOD, Feb. 26 — (ENS)—Damage estimated at more than $5,000 was the result of fire Saturday afternoon which completely demolished a 10-room farmhouse in Dummer township, six miles north of Norwood. The cause of the fire was believed to be overheated stove pipes.

Residents in the house, Mr. and Mrs. Antons Antonsikaunicks and their 17-year-old son, Romualds escaped uninjured except for a badly burned left hand suffered by Mrs. Antonsikaunicks. The farm and buildings are owned by Ed. Hutton who is employed by Fred Hull at Stony Lake.

Norwood Firemen Called.

Flames were discovered by the Antonsikaunicks family about 3.30 in the afternoon. Romualds rushed over to the neighbouring farmhouse owned by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Andrews, who phoned in the alarm to the Norwood fire brigade and also called neighbours for help.

The fire brigade arrived approximtely ½ hour later, but were unable to save the house. Half of the furniture was saved.

Mrs. Antonsikaunicks spent the night at the Andrews' home and the two men stayed at the scene of the fire to make sure that fire did not break out again and threaten the barn.

Contents Not Insured.

The house was covered by insurance, but the contents were not.

Mr. and Mrs. Antonsikaunicks and their son have resided on this farm since April, 1950. They arrived in Canada from Latvia in December, 1948.

At present, the family are living in a second house on the Andrews' farm. Sunday, a collection of money was taken in St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church which amounted to enough to provide clothing and a week's food for the burnt-out family.

This afternoon, a furniture collection is being carried on by neighbours and friends and plans have been made for further collection of money.

The family also lost all their immigration papers in the fire.

In recent years he had been in charge of the parish of Coronation in the Edmonton area.

Find Stolen Car In Clonsilla Ditch

A car found in the ditch on Clonsilla Ave. Saturday afternoon was reported stolen Sunday by the owner, J. W. Campbell, Neptheline Mines.

Constables Harold Andrew and Sherman Keliele found the car in the north ditch near Western Ave. There was no driver in sight.

Marks on the highway and the shoulder showed that the car had skidded partly sideways when the driver was apparently unable to make the turn as he travelled west.

About $100 damage was done to the hood, radiator, bumper, grill and left running board.

The next afternoon Campbell came into the police station and reported that his car had been stolen from the market square. He said he had parked the car there and had taken a ride to Toronto with a friend. He returned Sunday afternoon by bus to find his car gone. It had not been locked.

Atom Worker Active Red —U.K. Paper

Vanish Scientist Said Fanatic; Missing Six Months

LONDON, Feb. 26 (AP)—The Daily Express charges today that Britain's missing atomic scientist, Bruno Pontecorvo, was "an active, fanatical Communist throughout the seven years he served in the British-Canadian atom project."

He "deceived his fellow-scientists" completely, the Express says of his work at Britain's Harwell atomic centre and at Chalk River, Ont., the Canadian atom project.

The ministry of supply, which has charge of Britain's atomic program, declined comment. Last fall, George Strauss, minister of supply, told parliament that Pontecorvo had passed several security checks.

Last Seen

Pontecorvo, his wife and three sons were last seen in Helsinki, Finland on Sept. 2, 1950, ostensibly while on a vacation trip to his native Italy.

The Express story today said threats by Soviet agents forced him to go to Russia, where he now is presumed to be.

If Pontecorvo was an ardent Communist while he worked at Canada's Chalk River atomic project, he did an excellent job of hiding the fact, according to Canadian scientists who worked with him.

They recall Pontecorvo as a man who showed no outward interest in politics. He seemed, one of them said, completely wrapped up in his work and his family.

He left Canada a couple of years ago after working at Chalk River for some years. He was offered a permanent job in Canada but declined.

Ice Gives Way Under Truck

BEWDLEY, Feb. 26 — The front end of a truck went through the ice of Rice Lake on Sunday, about a mile from Bewdley.

Driver of the truck, Pete Metcalfe and a passenger, Art Cook, both of Bewdley, were driving from Bewdley to Forest Island to do some work when the ice gave way and the front of the truck went down.

Neither was injured, but the truck is still in the grip of the ice, and Metcalfe is waiting for a tow truck from Cobourg to haul the truck out.

An Agency Of The Community Chest

Six Services Given Blind Through City's Chest Fund

"The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is the only organization that can give the necessary services to the 60 blind persons that reside in Peterborough." This statement was made to the Examiner by W. D. McEachren, field secretary for the Canadian Institute for the Blind in an interview today.

Mr. McEachern went on to explain that if the institute does not receive adequate financial support these services to visually handicapped persons will have to be limited and perhaps discontinued.

"The amount of money that we are appealing for through the 1951 Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign represents an amount equal to that which was spent on the blind in this community last year," the field secretary asserted.

Two Main Areas

What is the work of the institute?

There are two main areas in the Institute's work, Mr. McEachern explained. The first area is service to the blind and the second, prevention of blindness.

The field secretary outlined the following six services that are given to the blind in this city by the Institute.

Home Teaching—Instruction in handicrafts and reading of embossed print.

Employment Service—To enable blind to obtain suitable jobs and remain in employment over a long period of time.

Special Consultation and Advice—For pre-school children and parents. This also includes the services of a nursery school specialist who teaches blind children how to play.

Library—Reading material in braille and moontype which is distributed from the Institute's main library. Also available are more than 1,000 recorded editions of books.

Special Privileges—Free radio licences, free bus service in the city, reduced railway fares and white canes.

Recreation — In Peterborough recreation for the blind is conducted in the Louis Braille Society which is attended by the blind and their sighted friends. Two of the main forms of recreation are bowling and card playing. It is hoped that swimming and other more active forms of sports will be introduced in the near future. The services of a trained recreational director are also available.

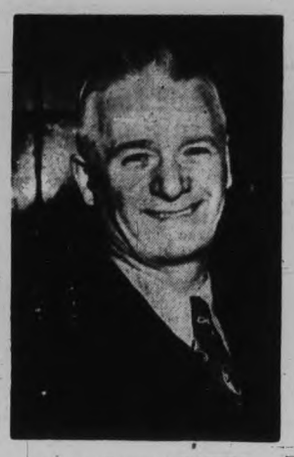
"All these services can be grouped under the general heading of rehabilitation," Mr. McEachern stated. "By rehabilitation we mean the restoration of visually handicapped persons to the greatest physical, mental economic, mental and economic usefulness of which they are able."

Preventative Work

The prevention work done by the Institute includes appointments with eye specialists for both adults and children and the purchase of glasses for those who would otherwise not be able to buy them.

Public education is another of the important phases of the work done by the institute. In this sphere, the needs of the blind are interpreted to the public.

Financial assistance is also given to the blind by the Institute if their income does not meet their needs.



"Through the Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign, the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is asking the people of Peterborough to help it help the blind people of Peterborough to become independent and responsible members of this community," concluded Mr. McEachern.

UNITY FOR PROGRESS

T. P. (Tommy) DAVIES
Past President

T. P. (TOMMY) DAVIES, an employee of Canadian General Electric, Peterborough Works, with 34 years of service and starting his 35th year, is well known and respected by GE Workers and the hundreds of other Peterborough workers and citizens who have met him during his long stay in this city.

Brother Davies is well known to the majority of our 25,000 UE Members in Canada, and has gained their admiration and respect for his able leadership of the working people.

The C. G. E. workers of Peterborough chose Tommy as their Top Leader in November, 1949, when the past leadership attempted to smash our Union.

With the help of the UE leadership, the co-operation and support of the C.G.E. Workers, Tommy lead our Local 524 UE to victory and united the workers together more solidly than ever before.

Brother Davies says: "I must retire from UE Leadership for one year because of ill health. However, I feel I can take a rest this year, and know that our UE Local will be given proper leadership by the honest, capable men and women elected. I have been a member and an officer of UE since its inception in Peterborough. I have found it to be a democratic union run by the members, and a union that fights at all times for the rights of the working people.

"Knowing the needs of the GE Workers and the justness of their 1951 proposals, I call upon all my fellow workers to stand firmly together, reject the Company's attempts to take away our hard won gains and their protective clauses, and to march unitedly with the other 5,000 GE Workers for a real improvement in our living standards."

We, the Executive Members of Local 524 UE, are honored to be chosen to lead our Local Union in the interests of the 3,500 Canadian General Electric workers in Peterborough.

Our UE Local 524 is the second largest UE Local in Canada.

The UE represents 8,000 C.G.E. workers in Canada: 25,000 workers in the electrical industry in Canada: and 300,000 workers on the North American continent.

In addition to our 22 members on the Executive Board, we have 74 Stewards who play a leading role in forming the policy of our Union and correctly putting that policy into action with the assistance and endorsation of the membership.

At all times the leaders of Unions have a great responsibility in carrying out their duties and obligations to the membership.

In addition to the regular responsibility of conducting Union business in the interests of the C.G.E. workers, we have an added responsibility at this time.

Our Union is now in negotiations with the Canadian General Electric Company. These negotiations are carried out on a joint basis between the Company and a UE Union Committee made up of C.G.E. workers from every plant in Canada organized into our Union, the UE.

These negotiations have a particular significance this year to the C.G.E. workers and to the people of this community.

We in C.G.E. have not received an increase in our take-home pay since July, 1948. The sharp rise in the cost of living since that time makes it imperative that we get a substantial wage increase now. We have asked the Company for a general wage increase of 25c per hour and 10c per hour extra for skilled and other day rate workers.

The Company has made counter proposals which, if accepted, would cause hardship to the C.G.E. workers.

These counter proposals offer a 7.5% wage increase which, of course, is unacceptable to our Union.

First of all this proposed wage increase is inadequate and a percentage increase does not give fair treatment to the C.G.E. workers.

The Company proposals also include requests to weaken our present contract and thus take away the basic wage and job protection we have at present.

We pledge ourselves to do everything possible to lead the C.G.E. workers to a speedy satisfactory settlement in these negotiations.

We pledge ourselves to at all times to work in unity with all bona fide trade unions for the maintenance and ad-

We pledge ourselves to at all times work in unity working people,—to improving the standard of living of the C.G.E. workers which, in turn, improves the purchasing power of our community.

Smart Wife Complains Mate Won't Let Her Use Brains

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been married twelve years and have two boys, 11 and 9. I seem to please everybody except my husband, although I spend my life trying to conciliate him. He finds fault with everything I do. He says I am a failure as a wife and the reason is because I don't agree to everything he talks about or reads about. How can a woman who has been trained to stand on her own feet, mentally and morally, and who has managed an office for years turn into a clinging vine? Yet this is what this husband of mine expects. He thinks I should agree with him regardless of what I think even when he asks my opinion. How can I guess at what he wants me to say? I can't even lie properly. Can you please make a suggestion?

E. M. C.

Dorothy Dix

ANSWER: The woman, who from having been a sturdy oak herself upon which others leaned, is suddenly called upon to transfer herself into a clinging vine is certainly in a hot spot. Yet this is one of the problems that multitudes of women have to face.

Could Start Trouble

The situation is full of war in any household. For here is a girl, intelligent, capable in business, taught to think for herself and stand on her own feet and make her own decision. She marries and discovers that her husband does not want an intellectual equal, or a wife with any individuality of her own. He wants a salve-spreader, an incense-burner, a humble disciple who will look up to him as an oracle and gasp with awe and reverence at his every pronuciamento.

What are the wives who are clever themselves going to do about it? Stand up for their rights as individuals? Try to educate their husbands up to a new standard for wives? It can be done. It is being done. And perhaps our granddaughters will have husbands who will regard them as equals.

The easiest way, however, is the old immemorial way of the wife who never lets her husband find out how smart she is; who asks his advice and then goes along and does the way she had determined to do anyway, and who never wearies in exclaiming: "How wonderful!"

DEAR MISS DIX. I have been married more than twenty years and I am less acquainted with my wife now and less able to understand why she does the way she does than the first time I ever saw her. She is, I believe, the hardest working and most sincere woman I ever knew, but she is so devoted to her relatives that she thinks that most of our income should go to their support and that I should be glad to work to give them what they want. We have no children, but we have had lots of experience in raising her family's. Though she sacrificed her own pleasure and neglected her home life for them, none of these relatives appreciate it. It has turned me into a professional grouch and nagger. Should I go on, or use my own judgment? ED C.

ANSWER: In dealing with a case of this kind it is generally better to use your heart than your head. Your judgment will tell you how unfair it is that your wife should enslave you to her family and that the wise thing is not to put up with it any longer, but your love and sympathy will tell you that you cannot leave this poor weak woman to the untender mercies of her predatory relatives. Moreover, no matter how much she aggravates you nor how much she is in the wrong, you love her still and cannot be happy without her.

I do not know of any offence that wives commit against their husbands that is greater than that of sacrificing them to their families. But there is no cure for the wife with the family complex. Her husband just has to come across, or get out, when they want things. She will always sacrifice him to them.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: My wife takes off her wedding ring when she is making cakes or dough in preparing meals and lots of times she puts it in her jewel box and doesn't put it on for a couple of days. Is that the proper thing for her to do? M. H.

ANSWER: Proper and sanitary I should say, but it seems to me merely a matter of convenience. Some women never take off their wedding rings. Others rarely wear them. And one set of wives is just as devoted as the other.

Answer to Previous Puzzle

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Oxtail Flavor Is Superior Very Economical To Buy

By actual weight an oxtail contained only 33 per cent bone after it had ben boiled until tender and boned out.

The same oxtail costs 55 cents. It weighed raw one and one-half pounds. Braised, it served four hungry folks adequately.

What I am building up to is a comparison in price between it and other beef cuts (which you know only too well.)

I think it is quite an economy and its flavor is superior—just as all muscle meat from active muscle parts of the beef carcass are superior in flavor—and an oxtail certainly sees plenty of action.

I have braised oxtail and oxtail soup among today's features, and hope you will bless me for them. The oxtail ragout is new. It is worthy of the careful preparation the recipe outlines, and is a dish to serve to guests on Saturday night—a hearty flavorful dish—with higher rating than week-day dishes.

Braised Oxtails

One large oxtail, 1 cup minced onion, 3 tablespoons fat, 2 cups hot water, or 1 cup water and 1 cup tomatoes, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 1 clove garlic minced as finely as possible, 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon sugar. The joints of the oxtail should be severed. Cut them right through and dredge them in about ¾ cup flour to which you have added 1 tablespoon salt and ½ teaspoon pepper. Saute them in the fat until golden brown on all sides. Add the onion, garlic and other flavorings, stir for 1 or 2 minutes, then add the water or water and tomatoes. Bring to boiling point, reduce heat to simmer, cover and cook about 3½ hours, replenishing liquid if necessary. If desired ½ cup each carrot dice and chopped celery may be added when onions are.

Oxtail Soup

One oxtail divided into joints, is sauteed in 1 tablespoon butter until golden brown. (The one tablespoon butter is sufficient because the fat on the oxtail "tries out" and provides more as the cooking proceeds) Slice into the pan 1 medium-sized onion and saute it until onion is limp. Add 1½ quarts water, 2 cups each finely diced carrot and turnip, ¼ cup barley, 1 tablespoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ of a bay leaf, 1 or 2 cloves, bring to boiling point, cover, reduce heat and simmer 3½ hours. (This may all be done in a pressure cooker when time is reduced to 1 hour.) Fish out the bay leaf and cloves, taste for salt and pepper before serving. This is the soup that is traditionally flavored with ½ cup cooking sherry at the last moment. Sherry flavoring serves the same purpose.

Oxtail Ragout

One-quarter cup butter or margarine, 2 pounds oxtails, 1½ cups water, 18 small or 6 medium onions, 12 small carrots, 1 cup turnip dice, 6 outer stalks celery, one-half pound mushrooms, ½ cup thick part canned tomatoes, 2 teaspoons flour (if you have potato flour use it), ½ bay leaf, salt and pepper to taste, 1 cup frozen or fresh peas or canned, ½ cup fresh, frozen or canned beans, finely chopped parsley. Heat 2 tablespoons of the butter and saute the disjointed oxtail in it in heavy pan to brown; add ½ cup hot water and simmer 1 hour adding more water as needed. In another pan mel remaining butter and saute the vegetables in it for 5 minutes. Sprinkle the flour over, stir, add remaining water, stir until thick. Pour over the oxtail, add salt, pepper and bay leaf and cover and simmer or bake until oxtail is tender. I think baking is best for heat can be very low—about 275 deg. Fahr. If fresh or frozen peas or beans are used they may be added during last 12 minutes of cooking.

Hastings WMS Plans March Quilting Bee

HASTINGS, Feb. 26 —(ENS)— The WMS of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church met at the home of Mrs. J. C. Taylor. The president, Mrs. C. Dodd, opened the meeting with prayer. Mrs. Wm. Whitred read the scripture from the 110th Psalm.

The secretary, Mrs. J. M. Ritchie, was absent through illness.

Plans were made for a sewing and quilting to be held at Mrs. Dodd's home. Mrs. W. S. Fife gave the first chapter of the study book, "Advance in the Mission Work."

A social half hour was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

"BOUND TO RISE!"

Once upon a time, there was a writer
His name was Horatio Alger, Jr.
And, when Father was a boy and Grandfather was not so old, either, books like "Bound to Rise" and "Strive and Succeed" were very popular indeed. Almost all Alger's stories told of a poor boy who saved a rich man from serious injury or worse. And, always, the poor boy became rich himself ...

Today, we are not at all sure this is the best way to get rich. Rich men are few. And most of them seem quite competent at keeping from under the feet of runaway horses or automobiles.
However, all of us confidently feel we are "Bound to Rise." Our desire is to "Strive and Succeed." And we feel one of the best ways to do this is by opening a Savings Account with The Dominion Bank. It is a good thing to read books about how to succeed. It is a better thing to plan your social and business life so that success is certain.
A Savings Account with The Dominion Bank will help you to help your family, your business, and yourself. A Savings Account can ensure your success.
Wherever you visit any Branch of The Dominion Bank, you'll find friendly, courteous and efficient service. Drop in today!

HENDREN—In loving memory of Gordon Albert Hendren, who passed away Feb. 25, 1948.
His weary hours and days of pain,
His troubled nights are past;
And in our aching hearts we knew
He has found sweet rest at last.

MONCRIEF—In loving memory of Earl, who passed away one year ago February 26, 1950.
One year has gone, no one can tell,
The loss of one we loved so well,
Short and sudden was the call,

The blow was great, the shock severe,
We little thought his death so near,
And only those who have loved can tell
The pain of parting without farewell.
—Ever remembered by his wife, Leona and family.

Flu Germs Lay 11 Braves Low

By JOE REICHLER

BRADENTON, Fla., Feb. 26 (AP)—A siege of the flu spread today through the ranks of the Boston Braves, laying low nine ball players, a coach and club doctor.

Manager Billy Southworth, who Sunday was forced to call off the workout despite a brilliantly-sunlit day, said he planned to hold a drill today. In the meantime he was keeping his fingers crossed hoping the epidemic spreads no further.

The players bedded by the flu germ included first baseman Earl Torgeson, catchers Walker Cooper, Del Crandall and Walter Linden and pitchers Norman Roy, Jim Wilson, Bob Chipman, Harry McPherson and Gene Conley. Also laid low are coach Jimmy Brown and trainer Dr. Charles Lacks. None is in serious condition.

The incapacity of three catchers leaves only youthful Paul Burris and Ed St. Claire to handle the work behind the plate.

Richardson Captures Canadian Ski Title

MONT TREMBLANT, Que., Feb. 26 (CP) — Twenty-three-year-old Bob Richardson of Montreal's Nordik Ski Club is the new Canadian combined downhill and slalom champion, but it took an upset performance in the slalom event to turn the trick.

A brilliant run down the treacherous Flying Mile in less than a minute Sunday cinched the slalom championship for Richardson. That, combined with a third place in the downhill on Ryan's Run Saturday, meant enough points for the combined title.

Rhoda Wurtele Eaves of the Montreal Penguin Ski Club captured the women's senior combined, Carolyn Kruger of Montreal took the junior women's combined and Peter Kirky of St. Jovite, Que., took honors in the junior men's combined.

Pleads Guilty To Theft, Put On Probation

Pleading guilty to a charge of stealing two tires, tubes and car wheels Saturday night, Peter Yzereff, 20, Jackson Ave., was laced on one year's suspended sentence in police court today.

Chief Constable Garnet Samis, of Lakefield, testified that Yzereef was practically caught in the act. About 3.30 a.m. the chief was driving in Lakefield with two provincial constables.

They saw Yzereef jacking up his car. He told the policemen he was fixing a flat tire. On checking the chief found two tires with three tires and tubes on them, in the back of Yzereef's car.

They checked the Nick Peconi car wrecking yard beside the road they were on and found a 1932 model car with two wheels off. Track in the snow showed the wheels had been taken off very recently.

Value of the wheels was about $30.

Acting Crown Attorney Walter Howell said the accused had no record and suggested he be placed on suspended sentence.

England Gains One-Run Lead

MELBOURNE, Feb. 26 (Reuters)—England today gained a one-run lead over Australia with four wickets remaining in the first innings of their fifth and final cricket test match.

Australia won the first four tests to clinch the "ashes" and scored 217 in their first innings of the fifth.

At one time today it appeared that England would go into a big lead when the scoreboard showed 171 with only opening batsman, Cyril Washbrook, dismissed.

Then a second-wicket stand of 131 between Reg Simpson and Len Hutton came to an end with Hutton's dismissal.

That was the start of a minor collapse.

Denis Compton helped Simpson past the 200 but Australia's danger pair of fast bowler, Ray Lindwall and Keith Miller, bowled briliantly in the last hour and four wickets fell in quick time.

With no play possible Saturday because of rain, this was the second day's cricket in the six-day match. Australia had spent the whole of Friday to reach 206 for eight wickets.

Lindsay Police Given $250 Boost In Pay

Average wage rates in Lindsay range from 80 cents an hour for unskilled labor to 95 cents for skilled forkmen, as quoted Friday at a meeting of the town council discussing salaries of firemen and policemen. It was said that the Lindsay maximum for policemen was the starting salary in the Peterborough department.

Council gave the policemen an increase of $250 each. They were entitled to a scheduled boost of $100, and the council added another $150.

Three of four permanent firemen get $2050 and the other man $2150 as an effect of an increase of $250 a year.

The permanent men work 72 hours a week, with no holidays off. A Lindsay advertisement for a new fire chief offers a $2,000 salary, which would be less money than the men under him were getting. But, the chief also has the advantage of an apartment with light, heat and water free.

Canada Direct Places Second

TORONTO, Feb. 26 (CP). — Billy Stout, owned by Frank Plaunt of Brantford, and driven by Johnny Chapman scored two clever victories in the sixth and feature race, a classified trot and pace at Dufferin Park Saturday.

In the first heat Billy Stout displaced Peter K. Lee soon after the start to take command. In the stretch drive to the wire he made, was settled down quickly and then held Peter K. Lee safe at the close. Williamsburg was third.

In the second heat, Billy Stout was away with the leaders at the start. He was challenged by Canada Direct in the later stages and in the drive to the wire outgamed him at the finish. Peter K. Lee was third.

Here And There In Sports . . .

By The Canadian Press

Syracuse Nationals of the National Basketball Association said Saturday night they have offered the Buffalo Hockey Club $100,000 for its American Hockey League franchise and the players.

Leo F. Ferris, executive vice-president of the Nats made the bid Friday to Art Chapman, Bison general manager, said Daniel Biasone, Nats president. Biasone said his group intended to shift the franchise to Syracuse, which dropped out of the AHL several years ago.

In Buffalo, Chapman scoffed at the offer as "silly," he said the Bisons represent an investment of about $700,000.

Officials of the Saskatchewan Roughriders Football Club Sunday night announced that Harry (Black Jack) Smith, former University of Southern California lineman and for two years coach of that university's freshman team, will coach Roughies this season.

The officials said also that Glen Dobbs of Tulsa, Okla., who starred with the Los Angeles Dons, will be the quarterback and backfield coach in the club's Western Football Conference.

Smith will replace Fred Grant, who resigned last season when Saskatchewan finished third in the four-team league.

A mighty effort in the final few yards of the stretch swept Sunglow to victory in the $50,000 added Widener handicap at Hialeah Saturday and earned the Brookmeade Stable the richest purse in Florida racing history.

The chestnut colt's final surge carried him past favored Three Rings to a 1½½-length triumph over a field of 16 handicap stars and won $54,100 for Brookmeade, last year's top money winning stable.

The purse brought the four-year-old Sunglow's total winnings to $134,350.

The favored Rough 'N Tumble thundered to win the $100,000 Santa Anita Derby Saturday and signal a threat for coming laurels in the three-year-old division.

The bay colt subdued 10 rivals in the 14th running of the event before a crowd of 41,300 and collected $81,500 net for his owner, Mrs. Frances Genter of Minneapolis.

Leafs Send McCormack Back To Pittsburgh

TORONTO, Feb. 26 (CP) — Johnny McCormack, centreman with Toronto Maple Leafs, will return to Pittsburgh Hornets to skate and play himself into shape, Leaf officials announced last night.

McCormack, sent down to the Leafs' farm club shortly after his marriage a few weeks ago, suffered a shoulder separation Feb. 14—the night he was scheduled to rejoin the Leafs. He has been unable to play since returning to Leafs.

Leaf officials said McCormack would have "a better chance to work himself back into shape" at Pittsburgh.

St. Mike's Split Two Games Over Weekend

By The Canadian Press.

A problem worthy of upper-school mathematics students at St. Michael's College this week is to advise the school's hockey team of its chances of an Ontario Hockey Association Junior A playoff berth.

Eight of the teams in the 10-team group qualify for post-season play. The Collegians are in ninth place, eight points behind Stratford Kroehlers. Both clubs have six games left to play, one against each other.

The Irish missed an opportunity to narrow the gap when they blew a two-goal lead at Oshawa Saturday night and had to settle for an even split in their two weekend games while the Kroehlers were idle.

It took a two-goal effort by Lou Jankowski, the league's scoring leader, but the Generals managed to nip St. Mike's at the wire for a 4-3 victory. The Irish bounced back for a 6-2 victory over Waterloo's last-place Hurricanes Sunday.

The league-leading Barrie Flyers took an uneasy weekend off and watched the opposition creep closer. Windsor Spitfires crept within two points by knocking off Galt Black Hawks 3-1. And Toronto Marlboros scored a double victory to narrow the gap from the top to four points.

Dukes Flatten Gens

The Dukes fattened their scoring averages with a 6-2 triumph at Waterloo Saturday and an 8-1 count against Oshawa at home the following day.

In the dying schedule of the OHA's major group, Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs added four points to their lead by edging the tailend Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 5-4. The Dutchmen are playing out the string, having been ousted from the playoff picture.

Dusty Blair counted two goals for the Monarchs, Tom Fowler, Johnny Ubriaco and Ken Watson also finding the mark. Morris Levesque, Jim Pernfuss, Mickey Roth and Diriny Flanagan scored for the losers.

Windsor's victory over Galt saw most of the scoring action confined to two minutes of the first period, when Eddie Joss fired Windsor's first goal and Erwin Grosse added the other two. Ken Wharram had sunk Galt's lone marker earlier in the frame.

Glen Hall's goaltending and Galt's lack of finish around the nets cost the Hawks the victory, despite a string of Windsor penalties that kept the visitors in difficulties.

Oshawa's high-scoring Jankowski-Alex Delvecchio-Herve Dejordy line apparently left its scoring punch in Oshawa. The trio clicked for all four goals in sinking St. Mike's, Dejordy and Delvecchio each adding one to Jankowski's pair. Murray Costello with two and Bob Sabourin were the Toronto marksmen.

But against Marlboros Sunday, Dejordy's lone tally was insignificant as Ron Lumley fired a pair for the winners and Parker MacDonald, Don Stewart, Don Peart, Eric Nesterenko, Danny Poland and Chuck Lumsden also found the mark.

Church Gaining Strength -Moderator

MILLBROOK, Feb. 26 (ENS)—"If you want to see the difference the church makes in a community compare the people brought up in youth movements of Communist and Fascist countries without religion to those of our land," said Dr. Clarence M. Nicholson, moderator of the United Church of Canada, in his address in St. Andrew's Church, Millbrook, on Sunday morning.

In this country, he said, everyone, whether they were actually church members or not, has been influenced by the church. All over the western world, he said, there has been a strong swing to religion. The church is strong. However, we are living in an age of hate and of cruelty, with war and rumors of war.

St. Andrew's was filled to capacity to hear the moderator, with extra chairs at the front and back of the church. The chancel was banked with daffodils, and there were baskets of daffodils at either end of the altar table.

The Rev. T. G. Hussar, pastor of St. Andrew's, gave the call to worship and the invocation. The responsive psalm was led by the Rev. James Hampson, of Bethany, and the Rev. Walter Patterson, of Grace Presbyterian Church, read the scripture lesson. The Rev. Bernard Heywood, of Bailieboro, offered prayer.

The special music consisted of a soprano solo, "Come Unto Him," from Handel's Messiah, sung by Mrs. G. A. Spicer; a male quartette, "We'll Understand Some Day," by Mosley, sung by Messrs. Gordon Might, Donald McKnight, Homer Ouelette and Melville McDowell; and the anthem "O Light Eternal" by C. Austin Miles.

The decoration of the church for the occasion was directed by Miss Mabel Clarry.

Following the service pictures were taken of the Moderator, clergy, choir and congregation as they left the church.

A luncheon was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. Payne to which the clergy taking part in the service and their wives, the Rev. and Mrs. A. A. Chote, of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, and one elder from each charge and his wife were invited to make the acquaintance of Dr. Nicholson. There were 32 present.

George Burnham, who is in his 50th year on the official board, and Miss Estella Hetherington, who has ben church organist for more than 40 years, represented St. Andrew's.

Hunt For Hat Undignified Commons Told

LONDON —(CP)— A new type of headgear to be known as the "Parliamentary Hat" has been suggested by Col. L. Ropner, Conservative member for Barkston Ash, as a means of speeding up the business of the British House of Commons.

The proposal came when a member sought to raise a point of order during a debate on foreign affairs. Tradition, dating back 166 years, decrees that a member may not speak to a point of order while a division is being taken unless he is seated and wearing a hat.

When proceedings were delayed by a search for appropriate headgear, Col. Ropner asked the Speaker if the rule requiring the use of a hat could not be abolished.

"Hats," he said, "are on the verge of extinction. The hunt for a hat during a division is hard going. Even if the run ends in a kill, the chase is often undignified and sometimes unseemly."

He believed adoption of an official Parliamentary Hat would solve the problem. To roars of laughter he suggested that for the sake of neutrality such colors as red, pink, blue or yellow should be avoided. But once the members agreed on the type of head covering, it should be kept "in close custody" by the sergeant-at-arms for use when required.

The Speaker urged the House to give careful consideration to the proposal before acceding to it.

Need Witnesses For Christ Now Moderator Tells Church

HAVELOCK, Feb. 26 (ENS).—The Rt. Rev. C. M. Nicholson, moderator of the United Church of Canada, spoke on Christian witnessing on Sunday afternoon to a large congregation in Norwood United Church, which included members from Norwood, Havelock, Hastings, Trent River, Warsaw, Cottesloe and Westwood.

Dr. Nicholson based his sermon on Christ's last command to His disciples: "Ye shall be witnesses unto Me both in Jerusalem and in Judea, and in Samaria and unto the uttermost parts of the earth."

To witness for Jesus, he said, it is necessary to know him. Jesus defined the spheres in which His followers were to witness and He began with Jerusalem which means in our homes and where we work. We ought to be Christians where we face the people we know before we dream about service in India. Dr. Nicholson then dealt with witnessing in the community and on through to the uttermost parts of the earth.

Difficult Position

The latter part of the command, he said, makes the position of Christians who do not believe in missionary work, very difficult to account for. He contrasted what it cost in the days of the martyrs to witness to the present saying that it did not take much heroism to sit in a church pew.

Sometimes the best witnessing is not done through preaching because a sermon is soon forgotten, but the witnessing that will be remembered, is not words but the life.

Best of Religion

"The best part of my religion," he said, "I found in the faces of my father and mother. It was all around me and today my Sunday school teacher is speaking to you through me. He admonished parents that there was nothing so important as that their witnessing should be according to the standards of Jesus."

Men are sometimes concerned with something spectacular in the future, Dr. Nicholson said, as the disciples were when they asked Jesus "Wilt Thou at this time restore again the Kingdom to Irsael?" The call of Jesus today says never mind dreams, never mind escaping from the present into the future but "witness for Me," not in the future but now.

The service was conducted by Rev. E. E. Pugsley, who introduced the Moderator. The Rev. M. J. Aiken, chairman of the Peterborough Presbytery offered prayer; the Rev. F. R. Vanderburgh of Havelock read the scripture lesson; the Rev. N. Cole of Hastings led the unison scripture reading.

The choir of 50 voices from the Norwood, Hastings and Havelock churches sang two anthems under the direction of Charles Carter of Havelock with Mrs. J. H. Caskey of Norwood at the organ. Mrs. F. Tredee of Norwood sang the solo in the anthem and B. Warr and B. Mortlock of Westwood sang a duet. The choir entered the church in processional singing "O For a Thousand Tongues to Sing," and retired in recessional singing "Lead On O King Eternal."

Killed Before Trial

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (AP).—Bullets from a speeding auto killed Alfred (Allie) Gordon, 23-year-old former boxer, on the eve of his trial for murder set for today. He was killed as he mounted the steps of his in-laws' home in Coney Island. Out on bail, he was to have gone on trial today for the second-degree murder of longshoreman Joseph Autori. His wife told police that her husband had had premonitions that unidentified enemies were "out to get him."

Blitz Victim Says Hospitals Are "Excellent"

WINNIPEG —(CP)— Mrs. Pat Beckett, whose right leg was amputated below the knee as the result of injuries suffered in air raids in England, says "DVA hospital services in Canada are excellent."

Mrs. Beckett, the mother of a two-year-old son, is being fitted at Deer Lodge Veterans' Hospital here for a new "suction type" artificial leg.

Although she already owns two conventional types of artificial legs, gifts of the British government, she feels the new Canadian type will prove much more comfortable and make it easier for her to get around.

Mrs. Beckett is believed to be one of two civilian mothers in western Canada in receipt of a British disability pension for leg amputation.

Convict Invented New Parts For Guns Used By U.S. Army

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 —(AP)— Most prisons encourage convicts to develop a useful skill. But few would assist a prisoner in making guns.

David Williams was an exception. As a convict on a prison farm near Caledonia, NC, he was allowed to further his interest in guns, to invent new parts and test his weapons.

The result was the "short-stroke piston," a vital part of the United States Army's carbine.

While in prison, Williams also developed the floating-chamber principle used in the Army's .22-calibre training machine-gun and in various sport rifles and pistols.

Respected Inventor

Today, his prison career 20 years behind him, Williams at 50 is a highly-respected inventor of gun parts. He gets royalties from more than 60 patents.

Thirty years ago Williams turned to making "moonshine" whisky during prohibition to support his bride.

One of his stills was raided. Shots were fired and a deputy sheriff was killed. "Frankly," Williams says now, "to this day I do not know who killed the deputy sheriff."

He pleaded guilty to second-degree murder "rather than risk going to the electric chair," and in 1924 was sentenced to 30 years.

After a year, he began drawing gun designs although he never had had any training in mechanical drafting or drawing.

"My drawing board," he recalls, "was my knees and my drawing paper a piece of cardboard."

Thus were born the floating-chamber principle and the "short-stroke piston."

After two years, Williams asked to be allowed to make a gun model. To his surprise, Capt. H. T. Peoples, the prison overseer, said yes.

In 1929 Williams was given a full pardon and 10 years later he went to work for the Winchester Arms Company. There he perfected his contribution to the development of the army carbine.

Says Attack Dangerous

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Feb. 26 (Reuters)—Peter Stambolic, Premier of Serbia, largest of Yugoslavia's six federated Republics, said Sunday "an attack on Yugoslavia would mean greater risk to the attacker than ever before."

Boost Oil Output

LONDON (CP).—Britain's output of refined oil products last year totalled 9,400,000 tons compared with 2,500,000 tons in 1938. New refineries under construction are expected to increase the output to 21,000,000 tons by 1953.

Loan Helping Development Of Ethiopia

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor

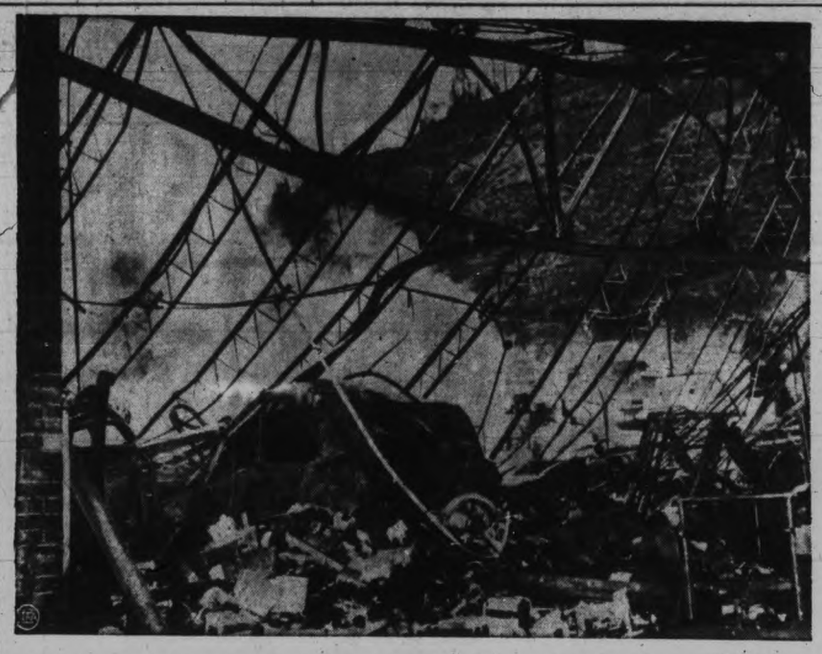
Loans by the International Bank for reconstruction and development give opportunities for glimpses at countries which may be temporarily out of the news, to see how they are getting along.

Among recent loans is one for $1,500,000 to Ethiopia to help her rehabilitate and extend her telephone and telegraph system.

The mountainous country, located in northeast Africa, is about the size of British Columbia, and has a population perhaps a little larger than all of Canada. There now are only about 2,000 telephones in the whole area and only about 100 communities can be reached by telephone or telegraph.

The bank comments:

"The projects contemplated would enable producers to get quicker and wide knowledge of market conditions and would help shippers and traders to keep track of goods moving on the country's roads."



Apparently Ethiopia has been doing well since British troops in the Second World War enabled Emperor Haile Selassie to return to his throne at Addis Ababa, from which he had been driven by the Italian invasion of 1935.

The bank says:

"In the light of current trends it may be expected that the condition of the balance of payments will be such as to enable Ethiopia to service its external debt without difficulty . . ."

Hungary Boosts Army

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 26 (Reuters) — Deputy Premier Matyas Rakosi announced Sunday that Hungary is increasing its army to the limits imposed by the peace treaty because of the worsening international situation. The treaty allows Hungary an army strength of 65,000 and an air force of 90 aircraft with 5,000 personnel. At the end of 1948, there were 50,000 men in the Hungarian army.

Given Protection

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Feb. 26 (AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur charged Sunday that Communist planes from the "privileged sanctuary" of Manchuria have increased their activity against United Nations aircraft. Numerous battles involving up to 60 planes at a time have been fought just south of the Manchurian border, he said in his 14th report to the UN. It covered the period Jan. 16-31.

Anti-Sub Exercises For Micmac Seamen

HALIFAX, Feb. 26— (CP) — The first week of month-long exercises by the destroyer Micmac, to give anti-submarine seamen practical experience and to whip a crew into top condtion, was climaxed during the weekend.

It was part of an exercise that showed confidence of Lt.-Cmdr. Frederick C. Frewer in his Micmac and crew. A party of reporters watched the dropping of depth charges and an "enemy" lurking below the surface and jumped as the "pum-pum-pum" of the Bofors drove of "attacking airplanes."

The exercises were carried out about 14 miles off this war base in an area designated for naval manoeuvres.

Signs New Wage Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (AP)— Eric Johnston probably will sign into effect the 10-per-cent "catch-up" wage formula today or Tuesday "without very extensive changes," government officials said Sunday. It would replace the Jan. 25 general wage freeze. Some concessions to labor's demands for a more liberal pay policy are being made, officials said privately. They emphasized the changes "will not be great."

Air Raid Alert

BALBOA, Canal Zone, Feb. 26 (AP) — Air raid alert sirens sounded in the Panama Canal zone Saturday night after a report had been received of an unidentified plane flying over Gatun near the Atlantic end, a spokesman for the U.S. Caribbean defence command said. The all-clear was sounded 50 minutes later.

Ready To Welcome Twins But Couple Get Quads

BALTIMORE, Feb. 26.—Mrs. Edwards Pappas, looking forward to twins next month, gave birth to quadruplets Saturday. And all she could say was "oooh, three rooms and a bath."

Pappa Pappas, a rugged-looking pipe-fitter, commented:

"So what? We wanted some kids, so now we got 'em."

They were their first.

The hospital said both the mother and the babies—two boys and two girls—were fine. They were placed in incubators immediately after delivery, more as precaution than necessity.

The first baby—a girl weighing four pounds and six ounces—was born at 10:26 a.m. A minute later, a four-pound one-ounce girl was born. Six seconds later, a five-pound-five boy was squalling lustily, and two minutes after him —10:30—came a four-pound eight-ounce brother.

The parents, both 28, live in an upstairs apartment—three rooms and a bath. Pappas said he had planned to move to a new home, "but it's no bigger."

Mrs. John Anderson, in whose house they live, just couldn't get over it.

"When I saw them (the babies) keep coming out of the delivery room," she said, "I wanted to run in and tell her, 'I don't mind baby-sitting for one or two, but let's knock this off."

The Pappas will get plenty of outside help. Mayor Thomas D'Alesandro has started a mayor's squad fund by laying down $100 and accepting all contributions.

The names the Pappas decided on were Patricia Ann, Judith Ann, Richard Charles and Edward Joseph.

SOUTH-END BOY, GARY TENEYCKE, 8, saved William Chamberlain, 27, of Warsaw, from drowning in a waterhole of the Otonabee River near Crawford's Grove on Monday evening. Going for a pail of wash-water, Chamberlain crashed through rotted ice. Gary held him afloat for ten minutes by the hair, called for help, and, while it was on the way, managed to help the man to firm ice. Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Teneycke, is a Grade 2 student at the Grove School. Neither teachers nor fellow pupils knew anything about his heroism at school today until The Examiner called.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Man Goes Through River Ice Boy 8 Hangs On, Saves Life

Eight-year-old Gary Teneycke of Crawford's Grove saved a life Monday night.

About 7:30 he heard a cry from the river behind his home, ran to the bank and saw 27-year-old William Chamberlain struggling in the icy water some distance from the shore.

Gary walked out on the ice and grabbed Chamberlain, a non-swimmer, by the hat, then by the hair. He held on and shouted for 10 minutes until neighbors came and helped him pull the thoroughly chilled man out.

Chamberlain, who boards with Gary's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Teneycke, had gone to the river to get water. He walked out on the ice and it gave way beneath him.

Says He's Lucky

Chamberlain told an Examiner photographer today: "I'm darned lucky. If it had not been for Gary here, you would not be taking pictures of me today."

When he was pulled out, two neighbors, William Cooper and Gordon Innis, rushed Chamberlain to the Teneycke home, dried him and wrapped him in blankets. The man's legs were paralyzed by the cold water.

Cooper and Innis said they heard Gary shouting and ran down to find the pair out on the ice. Gary had helped Chamberlain partly on to the ice.

Boy Surprised

Mrs. Dan Sampson, another neighbor, who saw the latter part of the rescue, said Gary was surprised by what had happened, and didn't have anything to say.

"I don't think he realized what was going on until it was all over," she said.

Chamberlain is a construction worker who has been in the city about six months. He came here from Warsaw.

Gary is in Grade 2 at Grove Public School.

Office Floor Collapses, Seven Injured

14 People Lined Up To Get Licences, Tossed Into Pit

WELLAND, Feb. 27. (CP)—Seven persons were injured here today when the floor of the local auto licence bureau collapsed, catapulting 14 persons into a grease pit below.

The office was a small lean-to, attached to a local garage and had been rented by the auto licence issuer, Samuel Tennant, several years ago.

About 14 persons had crowded into the small office to escape inclement weather.

Ordinarily Outside

Mr. Tennant said that ordinarily the applicants for auto licences formed a line outside the building.

Most seriously injured were Mrs. Robert Chaffey, Crowland, who suffered a bruised shoulder and Mrs. Joseph Rosnuk, Welland, who sustained a gash in her leg. They were treated at the nearby office of Dr. W. W. Snelling. Five other persons received minor cuts and bruises.

Among those who fell into the pit were a mother and her baby. Both escaped injury. All victims of the accident, pulled out by other applicants were covered with grease stains.

Deserve A Raise

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 27. (AP)—The Maid of the Mist Steamboat Company has been granted the right to increase its rates for the first time in 50 years. The company operates two small sightseeing boats in the Niagara River at the foot of the Horseshoe Falls Permission to increase the round trip fare from 75 to 90 cents was given city council Monday night.

Czech Official Clementis Under Arrest

PRAGUE, Feb. 27 (CP).—Vlado Clementis, Czechoslovakia's former foreign minister who has been missing since Jan. 27, today was officially reported under arrest as a spy for the West.

Six other Communist party leaders were charged with defections and expelled either from party ranks or from party office. At least four of them apparently are under arrest.

Their misdeeds were revealed in the official report of the Czech Communist party central committee Feb. 21 which was released today. The report said Clementis had been arrested and thrown out of the Communist party and the National Assembly.

Those accused with Clementis were:

Gustav Husak, chairman of the provincial cabinet of Slovakia, and Laco Novomesky, Slovak education commissioner—both arrested as accomplices of Clementis.

Called Spies

Otto Sling, ousted party political secretary in the Brno region, and Mrs. Marie Svermova, former deputy secretary-general of the party and widow of Communist resistance hero Jan Sverma. Sling was branded an "agent of Anglo American intelligence," Mrs. Svermova as his accomplice. Their arrest had been reported previously.

The announcement outlined these charges against Clementis:

He "aimed to divert Czechoslovakia from the way to socialism, to cut it off from the Soviet Union and to incorporate it into the camp of imperialism and the warmongers with the help of the Marshall Plan."

He had been giving "spy reports to representatives of imperialist states."

He committed sabotage against the party and the government on orders from diplomatic missions of capitalist countries. He confessed that he did this "to help the efforts of the class enemy to overthrow the peoples democratic regime and restore capitalism."

US Regiment Cracks Main Korean Line

UN Forces Advance Cautiously Along Central Front

TOKYO, Feb. 27. (CP)—An American regiment cracked the main Korean Communist defences on the East-Central battlefront today after infantry men in the same sector smashed five fierce Red counter-attacks.

The Reds were being chased into an uncharted mountain wilderness.

"We have broken their main line of resistance," said Col. William R. Quinn, commander of the US 7th Division Regiment that broke through the Reds on the east-west highway from Pangnim to Wonju.

Quinn told AP correspondent Tom Stone that his riflemen and artillerymen were taking a "terrific toll" of the enemy. "Our casualties have been amazingly light," he added.

All along the Central front United Nations forces moved ahead steadily but cautiously.

Hurled Back

The five Korean Red counter-attacks were hurled back by the US 2nd Division on the left flank of the 7th Division in pre-dawn darkness some 15 miles southeast of Hoengsong. The fighting, in a howling wind, lasted more than three hours.

Field dispatches reported it as one of the sharpest actions in the week-old renewal of the United Nations drive to kill, maim or capture Chinese and Korean Reds south of Parallel 38.

The drive — spearheaded by the U.S. 1st Marine Division—apparently has thwarted or delayed a Chinese counter-offensive by four to six armies.

Canadians, as well as units of seven other countries, were reported serving with the Americans along the allied line. It stretches irregularly from the Yellow Sea on the west coast to the east-central front town of Pangnim, an airline distance of 100 miles. Pangnim is 40 air miles inland from the east coast.

Holiday For Regiment

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Feb. 27. (CP)—The 2nd and 3rd Battalions of the Royal Canadian Regiment today celebrated Paardeberg Day, 51st anniversary of the day the regiment accepted the surrender of 4,000 South African Boers at the Battle of Paardeberg. Paardeberg, a signal honor for the regiment, is traditionally a holiday for its troops. Today's program included a paradeless morning, an afternoon of sports, a special dinner and dance.

Dewey Launches New Drive For Power Plan

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 27 (AP)—Governor Thomas E. Dewey's administration launched a new drive today to win federal approval for New York State to develop hydro-electric power in the St. Lawrence River and at Niagara Falls.

The campaign was touched off by Dewey in a special message to the State Legislature in which he:

1. Proposed that the State power authority's jurisdiction, limited now to the St. Lawrence, be expanded to promote public development of power at Niagara Falls.

2. Disclosed that the authority had drafted a bill for introduction in Congress to authorize New York to develop the St. Lawrence power project jointly with Ontario in the event Congress again blocks the combined seaway and power project.

3. Recommended "certain technical amendments (to State law) to make crystal clear the always intended right of the power authority to accept licences from the Federal Power Commission (and) to apportion part of the power to other States."

Asks Support

Dewey also appealed for support of St. Lawrence power development by both parties in the State.

The bill seeking Congressional permission for the New York-Ontario power project would, in effect, by-pass the Federal Power Commission.

Dewey said that the late President Roosevelt, Senator Herbert H. Lehman (Dem. Lib. N.Y.) and President Truman had agreed that the power project should be "paid for, owned and operated by the State of New York."

Revenue Up In 1950, Unexpected

Saunders Discourages Applications For Rate Reductions

TORONTO, Feb. 27. (CP) — The Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario will rebate approximately $3,342,903 to municipalities as a result of increased and unexpected revenue in the last year, Commission Chairman R. H. Saunders announced today.

Speaking to a joint meeting of the Ontario Municipal Electric Association and the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities, Mr. Saunders said that although increased demands brought many problems for Hydro it also brought much unexpected revenue.

A substantial portion of this money would be paid to municipalities — with the exception of nine in Southern Ontario and one in the Thunder Bay district — to assist in rehabilitation and other needed work. He discouraged applications for rate reductions.

Toronto would get a rebate of $743,577, Hamilton $28,091, Windsor $124,686, London $109,522, Peterborough $55,462 and Fort William $32,118.

Other Rebates

Other rebates will be: Port Arthur $26,471; Barrie $13,196; Owen Sound $28,090; Belleville $27,061; Bowmanville $13,028; Brampton $14,678; Brighton $2,926; East York Twp. $37,769; Galt $32,513; Kingston $60,429; Kitchener $82,262; Lindsay $18,741; Niagara Falls $37,490; Ottawa $57,317; Oshawa $83,013; St. Catharines $70,237.

Last year Hydro returned to municipalities $799,276 in rebates.

Mr. Saunders repeated an earlier announcement that it would not be necessary to institute a five-per-cent increase in rates which had been scheduled for last Jan. 1.

He spoke of the program of converting power in the central

Conant Submits His Resignation

TORONTO, Feb. 27 — (CP) — Gordon D. Conant Monday submitted his resignation as senior master of the Ontario Supreme Court to Attorney-General Porter. He said he plans to resume private law practice in Oshawa.

Mr. Conant, Ontario's attorney-general for five years under Premier Mitchell Hepburn and premier for seven months following Mr. Hepburn's resignation in 1942, retired from politics in 1943 because of ill health. He suggested to Mr. Porter that his resignation be effective March 31.

The senior master of the supreme court deals with civil litigation and has almost all the privileges of a judge except final disposition of cases.

Post First Canadian To Eisenhower Staff

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 (CP)—Canada today posted its first army officer to Gen. Eisenhower's staff in what appeared to be a move to prepare plans for the provision of Canadian ground troops for Europe.

The army announced that Maj. Allen L. Brady will be raised to the rank of lieutenant-colonel to serve as a general staff officer with Gen. Eisenhower's staff in Paris.

Duties of the 34-year-old native of France, who served with Canadian artillery and armored units in the last war, were not defined.

Fear Children Steal Poison

LEEDS, England, Feb. 27—(Reuters)—Police today scoured the back streets of this industrial city, telling parents their children might have picked up enough potassium cyanide to wipe out their families.

They found late Monday night that 200 balls weighing 25 pounds of the deadly poison had been taken from a dyeworks, and immediately spread warnings to the city's 500,000 inhabitants.

The BBC broadcast warnings in its news bulletins, police radio cars went through the streets giving a description of the missing poison, and messages were flashed on screens in local movie houses.

Police thought children might have broken into the dye works during the weekend and taken the cyanide, which when mixed with water forms prussic acid. A shed door had been smashed with a crowbar.

Expand Oshawa 4 Times Size

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP) — A bill which will expand the city of Oshawa to more than four times its present size was approved today by the legislature's private bills committee.

T. K. Creighton, representing the city said the bill will permit annexation of the entire south end of East Whitby township.

Since the area includes much farm land, the bill provides that the court of revision can exempt farm lands from special tax rates for local improvements.

Mr. Creighton said there was no opposition to the annexation which, he said, will increase Oshawa's area "at least four times" and add a population of more than 7,000.

Ontario Budget Given March 6

TORONTO, Feb. 27—(CP)—Premier Frost said he will bring down his budget for the coming year a week from today — March 6.

Next week's budget will be the ninth by Mr. Frost, who has been Provincial Treasurer since his party came into power in 1943. Details of the budget are closely guarded. Mr. Frost has yet to disclose a deficit, however.

Surplus in the fiscal year ending last March 31 was $1,004,000—not including bonus grants of $3,000,000 to hospitals. The previous year the surplus totalled more than $20,000,000. The budget a year ago forecast a $166,030 surplus and next week will show how close the province will come to the mark.

Premier Frost has declared himself opposed to entering the field of sales taxation, but his revenues are expected to be bolstered by increasing amounts from the three main income-producing fields—motor licences and gasoline taxes, liquor taxes and corporation taxes. It remains to be seen how large a slice rising costs will take from these.

Disease Of Titoism Sweeps Moscow's Satellite Lands

NEW YORK, Feb. 27. (AP)—The fear that seeps through the cracks of the Iron Curtain is cutting a wide swath in Communist party strength in the Soviet empire. A weapon fashioned by Moscow itself may yet prove one of the most potent forces the West has in fighting the Kremlin. Along with the announcement in Communist-ruled Czechoslovakia that Vlado Clementis has been arrested with others as a plotter, comes the news that the Czech Communists have lopped 170,000 persons from their rolls.

The operation is indicative of the disease sweeping through the subject countries. During the last year or so—by the Communists' own figures — at least 500,000 Communists have felt the sting of Moscow's lash, wielded in fear. The figure may be much higher—1,000,000 or more. None can say for certain.

Only Monday, Communist Hungary admitted it has lopped 190,000 from the party rolls and demoted another 125,000 to the status of candidates—persons not yet considered worthy of being full party members. The reason: many were found to be "in the service of the enemy."

Licence Deadline Extended To March 20

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP). — Highways Minister Doucette today announced a further extension—to midnight, March 20—of the life of 1950 automobile permits and drivers' licences.

The announcement came one day before the previous deadline of midnight Wednesday, and while motorists were forming long lines at issuing offices to get their 1951 licence plates.

Mr. Doucette said the extension was necessary in the interests of the staff, which is short-handed due to outbreaks of colds and influenza. He said it was practically impossible for the staff remaining on the job to handle the last-minute rush.

Back Broken, Crawls For Aid

OMEMEE, Feb. 27 (ENS) — With one arm broken and a vertebra cracked, William J. O'Neill, R.R. 4, Omemee, crawled from his barn to his house Monday to phone his brother for help.

O'Neill was climbing to a mow in his barn when the ladder broke, and he fell across a wagon tongue.

Asked how he got to the house, he said "It had to be done, and I did it." He was taken to Peterborough Civic Hospital. O'Neill is a veteran of World War One.

Takes Two Weeks For Casualty List

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP)—It will probably be two weeks before lists of casualties suffered by the Canadian troops fighting in Korea are made public, a defence headquarters spokesman said Monday.

The spokesman said the lists must first be cleared through Canada's defence mission in Tokyo and cabled to defence headquarters. Once headquarters receives the lists and notifies the next-of-kin, the lists can be made public.

However, he added, this will probably involve a time lag of about two weeks.

In a dispatch from the central front in Korea Monday, Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, reported the casualties first suffered by the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry have been light. Boss reported the casualties were mainly due to cheap Chinese grenades rather than small-arms fire and most of the men will be back in action soon.

Pleven Gov't May Collapse Over Election

PARIS, Feb. 27 — (AP). — Premier Rene Pleven's government is in serious danger and may collapse tonight in a showdown with Parliament on how to conduct the scheduled November elections, informed observers reported.

Extreme pessimism over the life of the Cabinet was expressed in the corridors as the National Assembly met for a series of votes of confidence on proposed election law reform.

The Cabinet has proposed drastic modification of the present proportional representation system in a move to cut the lop-sided Communist membership in the National Assembly. Premier Pleven said the vote on this question would be one of confidence in the three-party middle-of-the-road government.

Some observers say the Assembly might agree to take up the election proposal for discussion, and thus give Pleven his vote of confidence.

But then, these observers said, it was likely Parliament would go on to defeat the actual plan. Though they want to reduce the Communist members, the Socialists, Moderates, and the Roman Catholic movement to Populaire Republicaine have not been able to agree on how to do it.

Army Convoys Moving Food

AUCKLAND, NZ, Feb. 27 — (Reuters). — New Zealand's industrial crisis worsened today as more than 1,000 electricity workers walked out in support of dock workers who went on strike a week ago.

Army convoys poured on to Wellington docks and troops began moving food unloaded by airmen from two coasters earlier.

At Auckland, 60 servicemen began discharging butter from two ships, while hundreds of idle stevedores lined the pavements around the dock area. No incidents were reported.

Other groups who came out in support of the dock men after the introduction of servicemen were coal miners, railway engineers, and abattoir workers.

Wellington butchers have only enough meat for today, and killings will take place only twice a week for priority needs such as hospitals. Shortage of flour has led to fears of a bread famine.

Five Children Die In Blaze

VAL d'OR, Que., Feb. 27 (CP) —Five children were burned to death early today when fire destroyed their parents' home at nearby Sullivan. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Lejeune, and three other children escaped.

The dead are: Willie Lejeune, 15; Robert, 12; Richard, 11; Gloria, 7; and Marie Martha, 6.

The children who escaped are Pearl, 11, twin sister of Richard; Diane, 10, and Ludger, 8.

The first word of the fire came when the three surviving children ran screaming down the main street of Sullivan, a small community in this Northwestern Quebec mining district.

Toronto Official Has Near Miss With Train

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP) — Leslie Saunders, member of Toronto's four-man board of control, had a close call today when a Canadian National Railways passenger train swept past the rear bumper of his automobile after crossing gates were prematurely raised at an east-end level-crossing.

"The first car just made it by the skin of the teeth," said one motorist. This was the car driven by Controller Saunders. "A truck coming close behind just managed to stop in time as the train swept between them."

A CNR official said the incident was under investigation. He added that the gateman is not employed by the CNR but by the Toronto Terminals, a joint organization of the two major railways.

Snow-Blinded Searcher Describes Trek

Scour 300 Miles of Cold No-Man's Land Seeking Missing Trapper

(Editor's Note: William Morris, CP correspondent, dictated this story while recovering from snow-blindness. He was one of five men who sought a missing trapper.)

By WILLIAM MORRIS

BEAVER PASS, B.C., Feb. 27 (CP) — Swirling snows have erased the snowshoe tracks we made in a futile 300-mile struggle through the vast no-man's land of the Swift River watershed.

But none of us will ever forget our odyssey. It started on a mission of mercy and eneded in a battle for our own lives.

All of us, five men in search of a missing trapper, figure we are lucky to be alive.

One member of our party was buried under an avalanche. We dug him out with our bare hands. Another fell into a "bottomless" lake, while the temperature was 10 below zero. We inched over cracking ice to rescue him.

The story starts Feb. 19 at the nearby village of Wingdam, about 270 miles northeast of Vancouver. We left to search for trapper James Skokan, who didn't make his scheduled grub trip. No one had seen him for more than two months.

Five In Group

We loaded up with provisions and medical suplies. The five of us started out—J. Feyer, merchant and prospector; E. Holmes, game warden; A. Jessop, RCMP constable, and an Indian trapper.

We headed around Wingdam mountain, bound for Skokan's nearest line camp, about 30 miles to the north. It was an eight-hour trudge. We found the cabin deserted.

This ended hopes of early success. It meant a thorough search of the watershed. We rested and Wednesday morning we struck out for the wilderness, where snow reached a depth of 15 feet and mountain winds howled continually.

That day Constable Jessop was buried under an avalanche while we threaded through a narrow canyon. He was unharmed but it took two hours to dig him free.

Until the fourth day it was drudgery. Then we became lost in a blizzard. Our compass was out of order. The wind covered our tracks as fast as we made them. Retreat was impossible.

Find Cabin

We sighted wolverine tracks as the storm abated. By some blind instinct we followed them. They led us to a deserted cabin.

There we regained our bearings and the next day we carried on. It was then we crossed the lake. Holmes, leading the group, fell through the "rotten" ice. By this time rescues were routine. We carried him to shore and built a huge bonfire to dry his clothes.

We then gave up hope of finding Skokan and made for home. We stumbled on another of his line camps where we found his sleeping bag and some clothing. A thorough search of the area proved fruitless and we headed home.

Canadians Told Guard Their Rights

Liberal Federation Warned Danger In Ottawa Powers

OTTAWA, Feb. 27. (CP)— Dr. J. A. Corry, professor of political science at Queen's University, said today that Canada will face in the second half of the 20th century the task of protecting individual freedom against the growing powers of the central governing authority.

In a speech prepared for delivery before the National Liberal Federation, he traced the development of Canada during the last 50 years — from a predominantly-Agricultural economy in 1900 to a predominantly-urban industrial power today—and said the country's new status calls inevitably for more of government controls, services and expenditures.

"I reserve judgment on the question of whether it calls for all the government activities we have undertaken," he said, "but it does call for a very wide range of positive government action."

Dr. Corry addressed a luncheon gathering of the three-day annual meeting of the Federation, which determines Liberal party policy. Nearly 300 delegates from the 10 provinces are attending.

Cause Concern

He said the discretionary powers exercised "by our government nowadays in time of peace are wide enough to cause concern." The practical certainty of cold war, if not actual shooting war, meant an increase in those powers.

This gave rise to a need for vigilance because "the wider the powers of government are over a long period, the more government attracts men who like to exercise that range of power."

"While we may feel quite secure in the hands of our rulers today, we can have no such assurance for the future. So, it is vitally important to look to the safeguards of individual freedom."

While Canadians had not decided how far governments should go in organizing their lives, "we do appear to want them to go a long way in providing social security."

But recent events in the United Kingdom had suggested that "it may not be possible for the state to give comprehensive social security to all without exacting compulsory labor in return."

"There may," he suggested, "be menace for individual freedom in this particular trend."

UK Wants To Buy Cheese, Gardiner Says

MONTREAL, Feb. 27—(CP)— Agriculture Minister James G. Gardiner said Monday his series of talks with food officials in the United Kingdon "were friendly and useful" and that Britain was interested in purchasing quantities of Canadian cheese.

Arriving by Trans-Canada Air Lines one day later than he had been expected, Mr. Gardiner said plans were being discussed by Britain to send a delegation to Canada by the end of the dairy year, April 30, to discuss cheese purchases.

No Lack Of Steel For New City Hall

With 95 per cent of the steel work completed at the new city hall, council has no apprehension of delay from governmental restriction on that material. New regulations become effective on March 1, requiring approval of the director of the steel division of the Department of Trade.

For the city's remaining need of steel at the new building, board of works Monday night authorized the formal application for supply of the five per cent steel reported by Marani and Morris, architects, as estimate of deliveries still expected.

KINGSTON, Feb. 27—(CP)— A hockey series which General MacArthur helped start will be renewed Saturday when cadets from the Royal Military College here go to the United States military academy at West Point, N.Y.

The game sites alternate year by year and for this, the 20th meeting, it is the Kingston cadets' turn to travel.

Heavy Casualties

Reuters News Agency reported that bombing and strafing inflicted heavy casualties on about 5,000 Reds entrenched around Yongdugi, 45 miles east of Seoul on the central front in the sector where the Canadians are fighting.

"Throughout the day action centred in the triangle formed by Yongduri, Chipyong and Hoengsong where British and Canadian patrols continued to meet determiney Communist resistance," Reuters said.

In the Chipyong area, a rugged, hilly region, artillery failed to move Communist troops who beat back with riffe and machine-gun fire repeated attempts by Commonwealth troops to take their positions. The Reuters dispatch from Eighth Army headquarters said.

A U.S. Army spokesman said 100,000 Chinese had been shifted into defence positions.

Canadian Bacon Pact Urged By UK Member

LONDON (CP).—Failure to negotiate an agreement with Canada for supplies of bacon in 1951, will have a serious defence implication for Britain, says Colin Thornton-Kemsley, Conservative National Liberal member of parliament for North Angus and Mearnes.

Writing in The London Daily Telegraph, he declares too much reliance is being placed on imports from Denmark and Poland, instead of encouraging Canadian bacon production as part of Britain's "second line of defence." It was a vital factor to be considered in formulating the country's policy of emergency stock-piling.

The government has already announced its intention of building up a strategic reserve of food supplies to the value of about $50,000,000.

Did Their Best

Under the Ottawa agreements, Mr. Thornton-Kemsley said, Canada had been allotted a quota of 2,500,000 hundredweight, or approximately one-fifth of the United Kingdom's bacon requirements. With the inducement of an attractive price and an assured outlet, the Dominion had increased its bacon exports to Britain from a modest 98,000 hundredweight in 1931 to 6,000,000 hundredweight in 1944.

Last year, however, Denmark had shipped more bacon than Britain produced at home and imports from Poland had exceeded those coming from Canada.

"Poland's position is behind the iron curtain and Denmark is strategically and militarily vulnerable," the writer said. "It seems incredible that we should not do all we can to encourage the production of Canadian bacon as a second line of defence."

COBALT, Feb. 27 (CP)—Mining men from this community are meeting government officials in Ottawa today regarding the current price being offered for cobalt.

KINGSTON, Feb. 27 (CP) — One person was injured early today in a highway mishap involving three trucks and an automobile on Highway No. 2 at nearby Cataraqui.

The accident happened when the rear dual wheels of a trailer truck broke off, sending the trailer into the front of an auto moving in the opposite direction. The auto skidded into a parked truck while the transport continued in motion, striking another moving truck before stopping.

Edward Snowden of Kingston, driver of the car, was taken to hospital with face lacerations and a knee injury. The other drivers were not injured.

The transport was on an overnight run from Toronto.

Prices Drop Sharply On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP). — Prices dropped sharply as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today.

Industrials declined from fractions to more than $1. Steels led the way with a wide list of issues lower and papers, utilities, agricultures, liquors, refining oils, banks, textiles and retail stores showed a majority of losses in the groupings. Constructions, foods and manufacturing companies were fairly mixed.

Noranda paced base metals downward with a $2.75 drop to $80. Consolidated Smelters $1, Waite Amulet and Quemont ⅝, International Nickel ½ and Falconbridge and United Keno Hill ⅜.

Senior golds dipped fractions and junior producers showed a wide list of penny losses.

and southwestern sections of the proince from 25 to 60-cycle frequency, saying: "The commission has authorized the immediate construction of certain facilities which will make 60-cycle power available to the various local systems this year."

Keep It Low

Because of the great growth in the power load in the last year it was necessary to keep load-growth on the 25-cycle system as low as possible to avoid costs in later standardization. Hydro was encouraging municipal systems to undertake their own frequency conversion through local customers.

Equipment of 100,000 customers had been altered for 60-cycle power since the frequency conversion program began 16 months ago. Cost to the end of 1950 was $39,941,000. This covered 86,083 customers.

Mr. Saunders said that in 1950 Hydro met the power demands of a rearmament program "the like of which has never been experienced by any other organization in Canada."

New Requirements

He said the Hydro Commission must anticipate an over-all increase in power requirements by next December of 290,079 kilowats, or 388,846 horsepower. Hydro was doing everything possible to meet expected substantial increases in the future and planned to increase its present capacity by 901,000 kilowatts by 1953.

"Looking beyond 1953, we contemplate having some 224,000 additional kilowatts from the Niagara River in 1954 and another 224,000 kilowatts in 1955."

If authority to proceed with the St. Lawrence River power development did not come within the next few months, exhaustive studies would be necessary to plan for 1956 and beyond.

"We shall give you the power. But without the St. Lawrence development, we cannot give you low-cost power in abundance."

Always Purging

Romania by the last count, and this was six months ago, had knocked 192,000 from the party rolls. Bulgaria — these figures were in Pravda several months ago—threw out 29,500. Poland's figure was high—possibly 200,000 or more, and little Albania is always purging.

These figures are mostly out of date now, because the purge is a continuing one. The parties are being reduced to the hard core.

What is the hard core? The Communist parties in the satellite countries are in a dilemma today. Their constant references to the presence of "Titoist spies," "imperialist provocateurs" and American "agents" in their party ranks bespeak a mounting fear.

Who is to be trusted? The infection of Titoism—the adulterant which one day may crumble the cement holding together the new Russian empire—continues to spread even as the fury of the purges mounts.

Apparently as an answer to the problem, Moscow today is introducing the "Young Commissar". This was evident in the admission of 15,000 "young" members into the party in France this month.

House Discusses Dispersal Of Industry

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 (CP)—The Canadian government believes it would be "healthier" for Canada if industry were more widely spread through all parts of the country.

Prime Minister St. Laurent told the Commons Monday that the government explores every angle by which a greater dispersal of industry can be brought about. But he indicated that because his government believes in private enterprise it does not attempt to tell a company where to build plants or where to do business.

"We think it would be healthier for the country if there was the teeming activity in the maritime provinces that would allow us to do away with such things, for instance, as maritime freight subsidies. We think it would be better for the country if that could be brought about, and we do give attention to it. We do endeavor to use such influence as we have to that end."

Mr. St. Laurent spoke on a resolution sponsored by Clarie Gillis (CCF—Cape Breton South). It urged the government to consider a program for the decentralization of industry so as to make possible a more-balanced economy and for protection in the event of war.

Rejects Resolution

While he was in sympathy with the decentralization objective, Mr. St. Laurent rejected the resolution on the grounds that it condemned the government for its past policies.

George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said the government has "tremendous powers" to suggest to industry where it should locate. He said it should try to disperse production so as to employ manpower available in various parts of the country.

In the debate on the decentralization of industry, Mr. St. Laurent said he believes the Quebec government is to be congratulated in getting United States capital interested in the development of the resources of Ungava and Labrador.

He said Mr. Gillis had complained that as a result of the development United States steel makers are moving their plants to the Atlantic coast.

"Well, possibly steel makers here, if they will have courage to do what others have done in developing industries in Canada, will move Canadian steel plants to the Atlantic coast," said Mr. St. Laurent.

Canada And Pakistan Hold Great Responsibilities As Commonwealth Members

Canada and Pakistan are both key nations in the Commonwealth, a Rotary audience was told Monday noon by Mohammed Ali, High Commissioner of Pakistan. Canada is in a unique position, he said. She has a political link with the United Kingdom, and an economic and cultural link with the United States, "one of the world's greatest democracies." Pakistan, for her part, forms a religious liaison between the Commonwealth and the 600,000,000 Moslem peoples in the world, or more than a quarter of the world's population. Moslem countries include Turkey, Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Afghanistan, Trans-Jordan, Levant states, Iran, Iraq and Indonesia.

Indonesia—a country that only recently gained its independence from The Netherlands—is a case in point, Pakistan has close ties with Indonesia, said the High Commissioner. Of a population of 75,000,000 some 70,000,000 are Moslems.

Example To The U.N.

Because of these special conditions "our two countries have much greater responsibilities than others in the Commonwealth."

The Commonwealth of Nations should serve as an example to the UN of how peoples of different religions, colors and cultures can get along together.

"There should be similar happy relations," he said.

Most of the High Commissioner's address consisted of a resume on why the foundation of Pakistan was necessary. He agreed that it might sound strange to Canadians—accustomed to people of diverse races and religion living amicably together under the federal system of government—that Hindus and Moslems could not get along together.

In a country of 400,000,000 people, some 250,000,000 are Hindus and 100,000,000 Moslems. Religion was a major factor in dividing the two.

Believe In One God

The Hindus believe in many gods, the Moslems—like Christians and Jews in one. "Their conception is different in every way," he said.

"The most important difference is a difference in caste. The Hindus do not believe in the equality or brotherhood of man. They believe in the re-incarnation of souls—not salvation but gradual promotion."

The High Commissioner explained that people born in the lowest caste (i.e. the Untouchables) were purposely placed there as compensation for wickedness in a previous life. And the orthodox Hindu doesn't think the Untouchable deserves consideration.

Islam (i.e. what is erroneously called Mohammedanism) says there is but one god.

Brotherhood of Man

"Islam believes in the absolute equality or brotherhood of man; there is no race discrimination; nor is there any color or caste discrimination."

Mohammed is not the Islam god, but a major prophet, said the High Commissioner. Altogether the Moslems have had about 100,000 prophets with Moses and Christ being two of them.

"We Moslems believe in the teachings of both Moses and Christ; in the same way we respect our own prophet, Mohammed."

The Moslem "holy book" is the Koran which contains much of the Bible.

He blamed the lack of compatability on Hindu belief.

"We were not concerned with how other people observe their own religion," he said. "But the Hindu believes everybody else is 'untouchable'. As a Moslem I can't meet a Hindu on equal terms, and I can't go into a Hindu home without 'contaminating it' ".

At Mercy Of Hindus

He said that politically this boiled down to the fact that a Hindu would never vote for a Moslem. And this would put the 100,000,000 Moslems at the mercy of the 250,000,000 Hindus.

A form of proportional representation kept this problem in hand during the British rule in India. But when the sub-continent was granted its independence the Moslems decided to take no chances and demanded to live in a country of their own.

He ascribed the many high posts obtained by the Hindus, while under British rule, to the fact that the British were suspicious of Moslem attempts to overthrow the government. So the British gave their patronage to Hindus.

To pass from British rule to Hindu rule was like jumping from the frying pan into the fire.

"We wanted our own country. After all many countries in Europe have much smaller populations; 100,000,000 people is too many to be classed as a 'minority group' . . . We felt our democratic rights were in jeopardy . . . we did not want to become second class citizens."

At present Pakistan is an autonomous state in the Commonwealth with the King as the titular head of state. There is a governor general, similar to Canada, but he is a Pakistan citizen.

The country's constitution is not yet drawn up so he was unable to say if this constitutional position is likely to be changed.

"The Commonwealth," said the High Commissioner, "is a wonderful example of how people of different religion, color, and creed have come together and worked together for a new world order where peace and prosperity can be assured."

The High Commissioner was introduced by Gordon Monkman and thanked by Major Cyril Everitt of the Salvation Army. Sid Black was in the chair.

ManResponsible Developing Hybrid Lilies

A native of Peterborough, the Rev. E. Rigby, Hamilton, president of the Ontario Horticultural Society, was guest speaker Monday night at a meeting of the Peterobrough Horticultural Society at the YWCA.

Mr. Rigby lectured with the aid of colored slides on lilies. He described and showed with pictures taken of his own garden, the latest work in crossing varieties of the species lilium.

Three Basic Varieties

Working from the thre basic varieties found in nature: the white trumpet lily, the cup-shaped lily and the reflexed lily, he showed how the many new hybrids had been developed.

A species, he explained, was a plant found naturally in the world. Varieties were plants of the same basin shape and characteristics but of different colors often found in different parts of the world. There could be two or more varieties in each species.

Hybrids were derived by artificially crossing one species or variety with another. This was sometimes done in nature by bees but generally man was responsible for hybrids.

Great Srides Made

Mr. Rigby said the greatest improvement in lilies had been made in the past eight years, particularly in the last two years.

The Ontario president said he was the only Peterborough president the society had ever had and when he heard that Peterborough had never had a president of the Ontario society speak here he made a point of coming.

He told the members something of the coming Ontario Horticultural convention in Hamilton a week from Thursday and Friday.

Red Papers Charge Orphanage Neglected

HONG KONG, Feb. 27.—(Reuters). — Pro-Communist newspapers here today accused a Canadian-supported Roman Catholic orphanage in Canton neglecting its children.

Last week the Communist press reported Chinese authorities had ordered the deportation of an Irish matron and a French nurse from the Sacred Heart orphanage in Nanking for alleged neglect.

Not Liquidating Empire UK Tells Malan

LONDON, Feb. 27 (Reuters)—The government Monday replied to accusations by Prime Minister Daniel Malan of South Africa that Britain is gradually liquidating the empire by giving independence to British colonies.

Patrick Gordon-Walker, secretary for Commonwealth relations said in a statement that self-government for colonies is not new—that it had been on record for 20 years.

In a more sharply worded retort, 100 Labor members of parliament—about one-third of the party's strength in the Commons—submitted a motion asking the House of Commons to express its confidence in the government's colonial policy.

It called "on white people everywhere to free themselves from the conception of racial superiority" and to uphold the idea that "all human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights."

Wants Bigger Say

Malan, in an interview with the South African Nationalist newspaper Die Burger following elections in the Gold Coast, first ever in British Africa, demanded last week that the Commonwealth have a bigger say in which colonies should become independent.

(Gordon-Walker, now in Johannesburg, South Africa, protested today that Commonwealth governments had been given "every opportunity to comment" whenever the British government proposed new status for a colony.

Asked what Britain was doing to combat communism among the natives of Africa, Gordon-Walker said, "We are helping them toward self-government.")

UK Trade Mission Goes To Buenos Aires

LONDON, Feb. 27 —(CP)—A British trade mission left today for Buenos Aires in a new bid to break the deadlock in Anglo-Argentine meat negotiations. The price squabble between the two countries has cut Britain's fresh-meat ration to its lowest level.

Meat shipments from Argentina Britain's major supplier, stopped last July after the Labor government refused to pay the price asked by the Argentine. It is believed here the forthcoming talks will result in a general overhaul of the present trade agreement between the two countries.

Missing Prince Drives Home

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 27 (AP)—Prince David Mdivani, the last of the fabulous "marrying Mdivani" brothers, drove home Monday. He had been reported missing since Friday.

Police, who had broadcast an all-points bulletin for the missing prince, said the matter is out of their hands.

Mdivani, 48, indicated he had been away on a short trip.

"I guess I should have told my wife I was not coming home over the week-end," he said. "It is most unfortunate."

His wife, Mrs. Virginia Sinclair Mdivani, adopted daughter of oil-magnate Harry Sinclair, said her husband, a Georgian prince, left their home on a business trip and hadn't been seen since, until Monday.

Marshall Cedar Lakes Park

The public recreational area now being developed at Big and Little Cedar Lakes north of Burleigh Falls is so largely a result of the planning and constant effort through many years of the late Fred Marshall that it and his name are intimately linked. It has been suggested that this link be made official and permanent. Our Afield columnist proposed last Saturday that the reserve be called Marshall Park. Others have made similar suggestions and the Honourable Harold Scott, Peterborough M.L.A. and Minister of Lands and Forests has written us today urging that Mr. Marshall's name be incorporated in the park's name as a memorial to this public-spirited citizen.

* * *

The name Marshall Park or Marshall Cedar Lakes Park will commend itself to all who have had a hand in the forming of the reservation and development of this area as a public pleasure-ground; to all who knew Fred Marshall, and to those who knew him only by reputation and his good works. Peterborough has the opportunity to honour most suitably this fine conservationist who loved the outdoors and his fellow-man and served both with gentle enthusiasm and tireless energy. Marshall Park, his tribute to the city and county, will become the city and district's everlasting tribute to Fred Marshall. A name so suitable needs no special pleading and we feel sure that the responsible officials will unanimously endorse its use.

Not A Pretty Threat

The American Chief of Staff General J. Lawton Collins has said that massed air or sea attacks by the Chinese would bring quick American retaliation. "We'll strike back. We'll hit their land and sea bases if they bring out air or sea forces to attack us." This means that the American bombers and ships would be set loose on Chinese mainland targets, not merely on Korean ones. But the remarkable point of this declaration is that General Collins means that if the Chinese air force and navy dare bomb and shell American installations and troops in Korea, the Americans will hit back in China. Apparently the General believes that it is quite fair for the Americans to bomb and shell everything in sight in Korea (as they have been doing with unabated fury for months), but not for the Chinese. There is a gap in this logic which may not impress the Chinese favourably.

An Age Limit For The Senate?

Almost every year a cry goes up for reform of the Senate. The Examiner is all for it; let us have reform in the Senate by all means; let us even have reform in the Commons, where it is also needed. But let us make sure that what we have is genuine and not merely change. From the present agitation has emerged the suggestion that Senators be required to give up their seats at the age of seventy-five. This seems a wise vision, for at present the Senate tends to be static, and an accelerated rate of movement through that Chamber might be a very good thing.

We cannot, however, see any point in the suggestion that a number of Senators should be appointed by provincial governments. Under the present system men are appointed to the Senate with reference to the part of the country from which they come; to introduce provincial elements into a federal House would merely create confusion.

Much criticism of the Senate comes from people who have not taken the trouble to find out what the Senate does, or how it does it. Its best work is done in its committees, where it saves the country millions of dollars a year on money bills, and endless complications in matters of ill-drawn legislation. Such work receives no publicity. It is a fact also that when the Commons is working hard the Senate is often idle, but it must be remembered that the Senate must wait for work to come to it from the Commons. It is desirable that legislation should originate in the Senate, but that is a thing which few Prime Ministers would tolerate; the gentlemen of the Commons like to have matters closely in their own hands. It is rarely remarked upon that the Senate is clogged with business during the last quarter of a session, when the bills from the Lower House have really begun to move.

Let us reform the Senate. Let us even try the experiment of setting it free, if such a revolutionary move may be countenanced. For if the Senate is unadventurous it is because the Commons cannot bear that any important power should reside elsewhere; if the Senate is dull it is because the Commons resents any light more brilliant than its own fitful gleam. The Senate might well gather outside the doors of the Commons and sing—

You've made me what I am today,
I hope you're satisfied!

Canadian Ships For China

In the Canada 1950 official handbook compiled by the Bureau of Statistics and published by the Department of Trade and Commerce there is a picture which takes on, now, special interest. The photograph shows a new ship being outfitted at Quebec harbour and is intended to whet our pride in Canadian shipbuilding. Under the picture is the explanation: "This ship, one of nine to be built for a Chinese industrial firm at Shanghai, contains over 2,000,000 pounds of aluminum." At a time when Canadian troops are fighting Chinese troops it is interesting to read that Canadian ships built of valuable aluminum are being, or have recently been, sent to a Chinese firm. Perhaps the Canadian shipbuilding firm did not complete all nine. Perhaps the export of them to China has been stopped. And, of course, Shanghai, though now under Communist rule, has an international business section and the Chinese industrial firm may be operating in the interests of the West rather than of Mao.

Almost As Fast As The Sun

A Royal Air Force bomber last Wednesday left Ireland 43 minutes after the noon hour and arrived in Newfoundland, according to the clock, exactly 20 minutes before it had set out, that is, at 23 minutes after the noon hour. This feat of arriving before it had set out results, of course, from the differential in time between Greenwich Mean and Eastern Standard. Nevertheless, the big British jet bomber did almost keep pace with the sun in its westward course. It made the Atlantic crossing (2,100 miles from Belfast to Gander) in four hours and forty minutes. The sun made it in three and a half hours, a speed of 600 miles an hour. Although the British plane has a speed rating of more than 600 miles an hour it had to buck strong headwinds, and so was relatively slower.

It was the fastest Atlantic crossing ever made but that is not the only important point. The flight was made in a regular Air Force bomber. These new high speeds may be too fast for comfort because they make countries too close for comfort. When Belfast is only four and a half hours from Canada, Moscow, by flight over the Arctic, is not much farther.

Contempt of Court, or of Judge?

The Ottawa Journal was recently fined $3,000 for contempt of court by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer of the Ontario Supreme Court. The newspaper had published a report, some phrases of which, the judge felt, might through their implication have affected the jury's decision. We have already commented on the curious situation that the judge who considers that contempt has been shown is the same judge who hears the defendant's explanation and pronounces sentence. He is not, therefore, in contempt cases, an impartial judge, for if he had not considered the defendant guilty he would not have charged him with contempt.

It is the presiding judge who decides when there has been contempt of court, Although it is the court which is being held, or not being held in contempt, the judge is himself the embodiment of the court. To what extent is legal contempt of court "contempt" of the judge as the presiding officer of the court?

If we mistake not, it was Chief Justice McRuer himself who became involved in disagreement with a brother Justice in a Toronto court last year. Justice McRuer had decided to take a court at which the other Justice was already prepared to preside. The lawyers, defendants and other persons necessary to the court were all assembled while the two Justices had their private disagreement about who would preside. The disagreement resulted in cancelling the court for several days, apparently since the two learned gentlemen could not reconcile their differences. But in this instance there was no contempt of court, because of course, there was no judge seated in the ready and waiting courtroom to say whether or not there had been contempt of court, and, if there had been, by whom and to what degree? If any person necessary to the case, other than the judge, had failed to turn up in the courtroom, that person might conceivably have been guilty of contempt of court.

This tends to lend weight to our suggestion that "contempt of court" is in fact, if not in law, contempt of the judge. In the Toronto instance there was no contempt of court because there was no court because there was no judge.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Eight men and one woman swam in ice-water in the Baltic as a Russian election stunt. Good preparation for the cold war.

Among other increases in the cost of living, we read that the price of obstetrical service has gone up. The stork, it appears, is adding a little to its bill.

The Rajputs Die Hard

by RAWLE KNOX

THROUGH the arched gateway, set in the head of the rocky pass, the valley of Jaipur breaks richly into view. It might be the promised land. All the way from Delhi, all the way the Mogul armies used to march in their hopeful quests against the Rajput kings, there has been little but rock and parched dustland, with castles of every age and design, still tenacious in their ruin, clinging to every other hilltop.

* * *

BUT Jaipur valley is green with the rabi crop (winter crop) soon to be harvested, and the city's rough turrets and delicate tracery stand as they did when Jai Singh inspired his sensuous capital three hundred years ago. It is all mockery and delight: the high lamp-lit windows from which the ladies may see without being seen; the white horse, the elephant and the brass band, leading a bedecked bridegroom to his wedding; and a red-shrouded palanquin, moving through the dark on the shoulders of four tightly red-trousered bearers, carrying some palace noblewoman off on an evening assignment.

* * *

THERE is mediaevalism in Rajasthan that is other than purely picturesque. Your wife, for instance, is still a negotiable instrument, to be pawned or mortgaged at will. And the Dharmath Department, or "bureau of religion", which is trying to clean up the brothels in many of the State's 30,000 temples, distributes annually £4,500 worth of feed to sacred ants and pigeons.

* * *

NOT even the most impetuous nationalist expected the penstroke of independence to destroy Rajput feudalism. The maharajas of Rajasthan still live in their glistening palaces, though in terms of book-keeping they are now no more than gilded state pensioners; and while they are there the humble citizen still bows low, hands clasped in salute, when the maharaja passes in his latest leviathan of an automobile. Only occasionally, very occasionally, does a Gandhi-cap (India Congress supporter) cycle by, with head erect in conscious democratic righteousness.

* * *

JAIPUR is the capital of Rajasthan, that bold amalgamation of sixteen princely states, large and small, that had previously lived in the fairyland independence permitted them by British India. Under the new India Constitution, Rajasthan is a "Part B" state. It is administered by a Rajpramukh, or governor, a member of the old princely order, who acts on the advice of a senior civil servant of the Central Government; there is also a Cabinet, composed of selected representatives of public opinion, and this can initiate legislation subject to the Rajpramukh's approval.

* * *

THE Rajpramukh of Rajasthan is the Maharaja of Jaipur, a handsome man in his thirty-ninth year, a brilliant polo player. You know when he arrives at a party, even in democracy-conscious Delhi, by the awed whisper that rustles round the room: "He only drinks champagne!" Those who know him well say he is shrewd. He would certainly need a level head. Living in the white extravagance of the Rambagh Palace with one Maharani, while another occupies a section of the thousand-roomed City Palace, he has a hard task to slide into the grey background of democracy.

* * *

A HUNDRED and fifty miles away, in a fort that rises hundreds of feet in brick red arrogance above the barren plain, lives the Maharaja of Jodhpur. Plastered on the fort's high gateways are the handprints of Shakti, goddess of power; in all its history the bastion never fell in battle. "And," says the Maharaja, a fleshy, long-haired young man with plenty of spirit, "while I am here it will never see the Congress flag flying overhead."

The maharaja's hobby is manufacturing small arms. He shows you over workshops in the fort with pride, complaining the while about the suspiciousness of a Government that puts difficulties in the way of his turning out Sten guns.

The nobles of Jodhpur have a word for the Maharaja of Jaipur: it is "quisling." Jodhpur boasts that it is the premier Rajput fighting state, and does not forget that it battled with Jaipur when that state joined the Moguls, nor that Jaipur supported the British during the Mutiny. (Indian Mutiny of 1857.) All Jodhpur thinks that Jodhpur should be the capital of Rajasthan.

* * *

THE inter-state enmity persists, and not only among the blue-blooded. The Congress Party of Rajasthan has had precisely the same troubles, and just now there is no Cabinet in Jaipur because none can agree who should be in it. For the moment the position of Chief Minister is filled by Mr. Venkatachar, a comfortable Madrasi with long experience of the Indian Civil Service; his real job is adviser to the Maharaja.

* * *

"INTEGRATION, that's the battle." He sighs. "No one seems able to forget that he comes from Udaipur or Alwar, Bharatpur or Tonk. And then the Jagirdars won't believe that the old days of squeezing the peasant and living rich have gone for good. I have to talk to them like an uncle. When I start explaining the dangers of Communism to them, they usually come round."

* * *

IT is well that Mr. Venkatachar is a patient man. In the capitals, now empty shells, of fifteen Rajput states, they are blind to the advantages of a united Rajasthan. Their dignified high courts, their sumptuous guest houses are now used for sheltering refugees. Only Jaipur thrives under the white dust of stonemasons and builders. "It will take ten years," says Mr. Venkatachar. "Then maybe people will realize that the schemes we are starting, the big irrigation dams, the afforestation, the abolition of jagirdars, (Jagirdar: Holder of a jagir—a grant of local public revenues to "a person with power to collect and enjoy it and to administer the government of the district.") could never have been undertaken without integration. But it's going to be a difficult ten years."

Letters To The Editor

MUSICIANS EXPRESS APPRECIATION

Sir: At the regular monthy meeting of the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association, on Monday, February 12th, it was recommended that a letter be forwarded to the Peterborough Examiner to express the appreciation and thanks of this organization, for this season's broadcast of the Piano Series by one of its members, Mrs. Agnes Logan Green.

It may also be of interest to you to know that Mrs. Green's associates arranged their program, at this meeting, so as to include this broadcast, from Station CHEX, which in the ordinary course they would have heard in their homes.

On behalf of the Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Registered Music Teachers' Association, I would like to thank the Peterborough Examiner for presenting Mrs. Agnes Logan Green in this Broadcast Series, this season.

Yours sincerely,
GLADYS HOLMAN

GARBAGE DAY

Sir:

Like a City mediaeval
Now looking most evil,
Since garbage and rubbish
Is scattered around.

The sight is not pretty!
The curse of a City.
The dog packs are roaming
And nosing around.

Polluted and reeking a Meal they are seeking
From garbage ill covered
In alley and street.

Shame of it. Pain of it.
City mediaeval.
With its uncovered garbage
Rotten and evil.

FRED HORN

CANADIAN WHEAT FOR INDIA

Sir: I was pleased to read the following few lines in the news from Ottawa, Feb. 21 (CP): "Canada today announced her intentions of providing free wheat for India's hungry millions and other aid for Pakistan. . . . A gift of 2,000,000 tons of wheat to India now is being considered by the United States . . . ." (Examiner).

In my humble opinion nothing so takes the wind out of the Kremlin sails, as such examples of decency and human brotherhood among the free countries?

As you know a lot better than I do, down here on the farm, it is in the nature of things in this 'Vale of Tears' that there will be crop failures somewhere in the world's fields every year. When the United Nations organization was initiated (alas, only a few months ahead of the building of the notorious Iron Curtain!) I well remember the exhilarating thoughts and aims, concerning the ability of the co-operating nations to win the age-old battle against hunger. At the other side of this nutritional measure of security, I thought I saw the possibility of another victory, i.e., in the endless struggle between the farmer and the occasional, unpredictable, regional 'surpluses', which used to ruin him in earlier years.

Has this bright, dream faded, Mr. Editor? Sometimes I think it was too good to last; but items like the above renew my faith that we are still, as F.D.R., used to phrase it, "On Our Way"? It is good to see a decision at policy-making levels, to begin to use food as the matchless weapon every small boy knows it is.

JUNIOR FARMER

LOCAL OPERATION OF RAILROAD?

Sir: The local men who are fighting the cause of retention of the Peterborough-Port Hope line are deserving of credit for their foresight and efforts.

In this, I fear, they will not succeed. They are dealing with the mighty and stubborn C.N.R. system.

The C.N. figures they will not bother trying to develop the potential passenger business that could be diverted down that line. They apparently think they could make more money by routing goods from lakeshore towns in a roundabout fashion to Peterborough via Belleville or Toronto—at an extra charge of course.

This struggle for retention of rail service is similar to that experienced by several United States communities.

These communities were served by branch lines of mighty railroads too. The branches were not paying so the big bosses wanted to abandon them — couldn't figure out how to make them pay.

Well, interested business men and councils got together in an effort to save their services and decided to take over themselves.

The result—the lines that the big railroads looked down their noses at were made very profitable outfits through improved services and clear-cut understanding of local needs.

This may be the only way to save this line, because I do not think the C.N.R. has any intention of experimenting with improved service on it.

If the C.N. finally gets permission to abandon I would certainly like to see interested business men or groups take over its operation—the same as other places have done.

Yours truly,
KEEP THIS RAILROAD.

IMMIGRATION—WHAT FOR?

Sir: Orchids and a citation to "Canadian who has served." Citation reads: For superlative judgement and a true report of a critical danger which is now facing Canadians and our economy, above and (well) beyond his (and our) call of duty.

"Canadian who has served" is still serving when he writes like that. He is the voice of countless thousands of Canadians, who are saying and thinking the very same things.

Did immigration authorities fully investigate the needs of Canada before they launched the present immigration program?

Did they give a thought to where and how they would house all of these people?

Did they realize that Canadians are just as skilled in their work as the English or any other nation and more often to a far greater degree?

The authorities excuse for their immigration policy is primarily, one of defence. Well, this is how it will work out—the immigrant will have the skilled job, while "Canadian who has served", will do the defending (with a gun).

England is fine, just where it is, leave it there.

Signed,
CANADA FIRST, LAST AND ALWAYS.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

O Lord my God, I cried unto thee, and thou hast healed me. (Ps. 30: 2.)

* * *

And it came to pass, that, when Jesus was returned, the people gladly received him: for they were all waiting for him. (Luke 8: 40.)

* * *

Then he called his twelve disciples together, and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure diseases. And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick. . . . And they departed, and went through the towns, preaching the gospel, and healing everywhere. (Luke 9: 1, 2, 6.)

* * *

After these things the Lord appointed other seventy also, and sent them two and two before his face into every city and place, whither he himself would come. Therefore said he unto them, The harvest truly is great, but the labourers are few: pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he would send forth labourers into his harvest. . . .

And into whatsoever city ye enter, and they receive you, eat such things as are set before you: and heal the sick that are therein, and say unto them, The kingdom of God is come nigh unto you. . . .

And the seventy returned again with joy, saying, Lord, even the devils are subject unto us through thy name. (Luke 10: 1, 2, 8, 9, 17.)

British Press Grumbles Still Over Navy Appointment

LONDON, Feb. 27 (AP) — Despite explanations from Prime Minister Attlee, Britain's press still grumbled today over the opposed appointment of an American admiral to command the combined North Atlantic navy.

Attlee told the House of Commons Monday that, though American Admiral William N. Fechteler was nominated for supreme command in the North Atlantic, a Briton would be his deputy commander in Eastern Atlantic waters.

Conceding that "logic and strategy have dictated this arrangement," the Liberal News Chronicle said a "British psychological reaction against it" now must be met.

The independent Times termed Fechteler's appointment "this disagreeing kind of maladroitness." It called for a "working partnership, not a maze of blueprints."

Have Best Experience

From the Conservative side, the Daily Telegraph said the United States would provide the largest naval force but British sailors would contribute "unrivalled experience of naval operations in the Atlantic."

"Where the practical pros and cons are so evenly balanced there still remains, in national pride, one great imponderable to swing the scales decisively," the Telegraph said.

The Conservative Daily Mail complained that the British people were hearing of such "vastly important" Atlantic pact decisions "almost by accident." They should be "better informed and better treated, too."

The pro-Labor Daily Herald demanded that judgment be reserved until the naval set-up could be viewed as a whole. "Instead," the paper added, "effort is mdae to work up the greatest degree of emotion. Wild and nonsensical assertions are made about giving away the British fleet and surrendering control in areas vital to our life."

Narrow-Mindedness

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Feb. 27 (Reuters).—Education Minister Jozeph Revai Monday night launched an attack on "leftist narrowmindedness" in Hungary and admitted that politically-primed school children aren't as bright as they could be. Hungarian education had been transformed in three years by the introduction of Marxism and Leninism at all school grades, he said in a report to the second congress of the Workers' Communist Party as its secretary-general.

Actress Flees

SALSBURG, Austria, Feb. 27 (AP).—Katalin Karady, the Hungarian Rita Hayworth, said Monday she fled through the iron curtain because "life became unbearable for me any more in Hungary." The green-eyed, red-haired actress made her escape from Hungary into Austria last Tuesday. Her trip took her from Budapest through minefields, barbed wire and the Soviet zone of Austria to safety in the American zone of this country.

Study Resolution To Revise Indian Act

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 (CP)—Members of the House of Commons will discuss today a resolution to a bill that will revise the Indian Act and give Canada's original citizens more to say in the handling of their own affairs. A similar bill was introduced last year but was withdrawn to give Indians an opportunity to study the proposed changes and make recommendations.

Mr. Gillis' resolution was one of several debated during a day devoted to proposals of private members. The resolutions touched on such things as federal union of Atlantic pact powers, deduction of union dues for income-tax purposes and changes to the Bank Act.

External Affairs Minister Pearson said the Canadian government supports the principle of a federal union of the free world. But the government believes that any effort to bring about a federation of the free countries at this time would lead to confusion, misunderstanding and possibly, disunity. Federation was something that would have to develop gradually.

Withdraws Motion

He spoke on a resolution of Alistair Stewart (CCF—Winnipeg North) urging the government to support a convention to discuss the possibility of federal union of Atlantic pact countries. Mr. Stewart withdrew the resolution after Mr. Pearson said he hoped the matter would not be put to a vote in case there might be misinterpretation of any division of opinion.

Members voted 84 to 56 against a resolution of Stanley Knowles (CCF—Winnipeg North Centre) urging that union dues and similar fees be allowed as deductions for income-tax purposes. Mr. Knowles said the deductions should cover all fees necessary to earning the taxpayer's livelihood.

Debate was adjourned on a resolution of R. E. Anderson (L—Norfolk) aimed at giving financial protection to farmers delivering produce to plants for processing. Legislation would provide that, in the event of a failure of a processing plant after farmers had delivered crops to it, farmers would be placed among preferred creditors.

Gets 20 Years

TEL AVIV, Israel, Feb. 27 (AP) —The newspaper Maariv said Monday Marcel Pohne, correspondent of the Jewish Telegraph Agency in Romania, has been sentenced to 20 years at hard labor there by a military tribunal. Pohne was arrested 10 months ago with Leonard Kirschen, Associated Press correspondent in Bucharest. The trial was conducted behind closed doors. The fate of Kirschen, also accused of delivering espionage information to the U.S., remains unknown.

Free Radio Time Requests Will Be Closely Watched

QUEBEC, Feb. 27 — (CP). — Requests from organizations for free time for radio broadcasts are being closely scrutinized by the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, it was disclosed today.

A report to the annual meeting of the association, in session here, said the number of organizations endorsed for free time has been considerably reduced. It was read by T. J. Allard, general manager of the association, whose membership includes most privately-owned radio stations in Canada.

Mr. Allard said requests for free time come from legitimate, charitable or benevolent organizations. They also come from organizations which have special interests or which are basically commercial.

In the case of charitable organizations, the association now requires provision of considerable information dealing with the amounts, if any, spent in advertising; the names of the sponsors or directors; purposes of funds collected and administrative costs.

"If the information satisfies our requirements, we will endorse such an organization to those of our member stations who may wish to grant free time or a special rate on time," said Mr. Allard.

Increasingly Watchful.

"The number of such organizations endorsed by your association has been considerably reduced. We shall be increasingly vigilant on this point.

"No organization will be endorsed for your attention if it spends money in other advertising media; and tries to get free radio time or devote an unfairly-low percentage of that budget to radio time."

Mr Allard said that it appears there are organizations whose existence is based on attempts to get free radio time for "outfits who are pleading a special interest or who are actually commercial organizations."

The association asked that all requests for free time, or special rate, other than those at the purely-local level, be referred to it for investigation.

Hints Assistance

BELGRADE, Feb. 27 (Reuters) —France told Prime Minister Tito Monday she is studying "with the most serious attention" the rearming of Bulgaria, Romania and Hungary, whose frontiers border on Yugoslavia. A French embassy communique said Ambassador Philippe Baudet promised Tito that if the danger threatening Yugoslavia became imminent, France would immediately examine all the possible consequences within the framework of her international engagements.

Rush And Knight Tangle Again

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP)—A flare-up between Allan J. Rush and Chief Constable A. E. Knight Monday featured London Police Commission discussion of the wage scale proposed for 1951 by the London Police Association.

Mayor Rush charged that the department is "top-heavy with higher ranks" and advocated doing away with the ranks of chief inspector.

At present there are two — Chief Inspector (of detectives) Charles Knight and Chief Inspector Finlay Carroll, head of the uniform division.

"I can't go for that chief inspectorship on a small force like this," Mayor Rush declared. 'Take away that "chief," he said of Charles Knight. "Let it be identification officer and assistant identification officer as it used to be."

Chief Knight's answer was swift: "I don't intend to sit here and let this department be disrupted by anyone. When that is done I won't be here."

Eagles Wind Up Schedule Downing Belleville, 16-11

The local Eagles downed Belleville Redmen 16-11 here last night to wind up their OHA "B" schedule before a small crowd of fans. These teams are slated to meet now in group semi-finals, as Eagles finished in third spot in the standing, behind the Petes and Nylons, while Belleville ended in fourth position.

The tilt was a fast, wide-open one with the emphasis all on the attack in every chukker. Eagles had a 6-5 margin in the first period and outscored the visitors 5-2 to carry an 11-7 edege into the third. But they were only able to outscore Belleville 5-4 in the final heat. Goalie Cook received a bad cut from a deflected puck off Milne's stick in the third and had to retire, Vern Goyer finishing up in the Quinte net. Andy Milne later wrenched his leg in a fall into the boards and had to retire. Belleville drew three of the five penalties in clean play.

Scored Four

Bill Crowley counted four goals for the winner, as Rochetta and Greenlaw had three each, Milne getting two, and singles going to Stewart, Lalonde, Hill and Coombs. Milne aided on three, Rochetta, Hill and Burns two each, and Coombs, Greenlaw, D. Mortimer, Lalonde, Stewart and Montgomery one apiece. For the losers, Mulvihill shone with a five-goal effort, Goyer getting two, as one each were notched by McDonald, Green, Moher and Day. Four assists went to Wardhaugh, two apiece being gained by Goyer, McDonald and Moher, as Jones, Schmidt and Mulvihill each helped once.

The Eagles started it off like a parade, sinking four without a return in the first seven minutes of play. Belleville got their ice legs then and started to battle back and made it a fight right down to the finish. At times it resembled a basketball game with lo[ng] flips up ahead and quick s[hots] on the cage, each side dom[inat]ed for a time and then pushed ba[ck] on the defensive. Ross Nicholls made a lot of nice saves despite the score, and so did the Quinte twine-guardians.

The Belleville regular goalie, Irvine, is still out with an injury, Cook getting permission to replace him. Dootch Vitarelli of the Eagles was also sidelined in this game with an injury. The same squads are due to open their playoffs on Friday. Teams:

Belleville: Goal, Cook; defence, Schmidt and Bastedo; centre, Wardhaugh; wings, Green and Mulvihill; alternates, Goyer, Jones, Moher, Day, Free, McDonald, Schreider and Semark.

Eagles: Goal, Nicholls; defence, Lalonde and Munroe; centre, Rochetta; wings, Crowley and Coombs; alternates, Hill, Greenlaw, Stewart, Milne, D. Mortimer, Burns, and Montgomery.

Referee, L. Heffering; linesman, P. Nigh.

Cobourg Drops Two To Utica

COBOURG, Feb. 27—Cobourg, tired after their stirring five-game series with Port Hope, were guests of the Utica, N.Y. hockey club in that city over the week-end. They received poor hospitality in the matter of games won since the U.S. team swept the two-game series, 10-3 and 9-3.

A crowd of 1,800 fans watched the Canadians lose the first game on Saturday night and over 2,000 gathered for Sunday afternoon's tilt.

Buck Legrow, Port Hope scoring ace, was added to the Cobourg lineup for the two-game series.

Cobourg are waiting to take on Bowmanville in the Lakeshore League final. Bowmanville will use Port Hope as a home base because there is no artificial plant in the Rubbertown rink.

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 (AP). — District Attorney Frank S. Hogan Monday night announced the arrest of another former Long Island University basketball player, the ninth player to be seized in the growing basketball bribe scandal.

Hogan identified him as Nathan (Natie) Miller, 25, of Brooklyn, who was graduated from LIU in 1948.

Besides the nine basketball players and former players, two others have been arrested within the last nine days charged with giving or taking bribes to fix collegiate basketball games played in Madison Square Garden.

Four of the other eight players or former players are from LIU. They are accused of accepting bribes to fix games during the last two seasons.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Following their neat efforts of erasing three Oshawa minor puck squads from first-round OMHA playdowns, the local teams are champing at the bits. Ready for the next series, which should open here on Thursday eve. Our bantam entry, the McGillis Eaglets (coached by Jack Byers), take on Belleville next; and so do the juvenile Oddfellows, piloted by Johnny Godfrey. The midget Marines, under Al Watkins, face the Kingston Royals in their second round. These lads represent the cream of the crop in the well-handled PMHA the past season, and they ought to go quite a piece yet in provincial playdowns.

* * * * * *

This from ex-Capt George Carver of the Quinte sheet: "Well, kiddies, there's apparently a lot of out-and-out optimists up around Peterborough wearing countenances of scarlet since the doughty Nylons, their ancient enemies from Kingston, have dethroned the haughty Eagles. Even Marse Perdue, the old smoothie, was highly confident the Petes-Eagles duo would celebrate the schedule, ending with a home series. Tsk, tsk, and he an ex-regimental quarter bloke!" Well, sir, captain, aren't you doing a little second-guessing at this late date? One can always call the winner after the race, you know. And you'll hear more of this, suh.

Playoff Time Arrives

With the windup of the schedule, 'tis playoff time once more in senior "B" ranks. Yes, it's still senior "B" until the top two teams have played off. The winner then steps up to a senior "A" ranking and goes into Allan Cup playdowns in the province, while of the semi-finals betwixt the clubs which finished third and fourth, the loser remains in senior "B" group finals, taking on the survivor Both best-of-five series, the group finals probably being four-in-seven. Depending on how much time is left. Top two teams are slated to open playoffs here Wednesday, with the group semi-finals set to go here on Friday in the opener. Then, it's every other night in alternate towns, barring Sundays.

* * * * * *

The schedule closed last night with Nylons winning a 10-3 four-point game o'er Queen's, and Eagles downing Belleville 16-11 in a wide-open tilt resembling basketball at times. Certainly fast and clean, and plenty of goals. Mulvihill scored five for the Redmen as Wardhaugh aided on four. Vern Goyer took over the net-minding job in the third when Goalie Cook came a cropper (the old Quinte cage jinx working) and had to retire. Andy Milne got a banged-up knee late in the fray, too, and we hope he's okay for Friday. Crowley and Rochetta were the main snipers for the Magee men, but nearly everyone got in on the act ere the end.

It's Nylons And Petes

So, it's Kingston Nylons vs. the Petes here tomorrow night to open their best-of-five series. While Belleville opens their series with Eagles here on Friday. Both these games should pack in the cash customers as it's playoff time and one team in each series will find the season finished right shortly. Hence, they'll really shoot the works. Nylons might pull a bit of an upset and down the Petes right here as those big bashers like the smaller surface when playing a fast team. But they'll have to be good to do it. It means some ace hockey from here on in before spring officially arrives.

Final senior "B" standing is in tonight. A close look will show where Queen's played one game less than the other senior squads. We checked our standing through Frank Buckland late last week with OHA convener Lorne Cook of Kingston. But Lorne phoned us last night and said he must have made a mistake as Queen's had one more loss, and had played the same number of games as the others. But whatever became of that game Nylons protested on Queen's early in the season—the one that was never replayed? How come Nylons and Queen's are shown as having 34 games in? Apparently, Nylons counted their protest a win without awaiting the formality of a replay, if necessary. Actually, they've played but 33 official games and are a point back of Eagles yet. Rather than wait for another Nylons-Queen's replay to complete the schedule (with Nylons likely winning, anyway), Eagles probably will let it go, but they do not intend to let anyone in Kingston think they don't know the score up this way.

Kimberley Dynamiters bolstered Canada's hockey status abroad when they defeated England 3-0 in the world amateur championships at London 14 years ago today. Kimberley went on to win the title with a 2-1 overtime victory over Switzerland.

St. Pete's Edged By Dels In Cage Contest

DelaSalle jerked out a 34-28 basketball victory over the senior St. Peter's boys last evening at the Collegiate to grab second place in their Catholic Athletic Conference standing. St. Pete's, fighting for a playoff birth, have to come through against St. Jerome's of Kitchener here Wednesday night—at eight in the Collegiate—as the schedule runs out shortly.

This game Monday was speedy and close, with St. Peter's coming on strong at the finish, but time ran out on Fred Allore's gamesters. The visitors, especially Quinn and Condon, proved speedy and accurate opportunists, but it was a nip-and-tuck tussle from whistle to whistle. St. Peter's led 3-1 in the low-scoring first quarter, but the visitors had a 10-6 margin at the half and built it up to an 18-9 lead going into the scrappy final frame.

Led The Way

Quinn and Condon led the DelaSalle hoopsters in the scoring department with 11 points apiece, Baxter also being effective with seven. Sabol got three and Malodnski two to complete the sniping. Jones and O'Neill were the pick of the Peterborough Saints, the former accounting for 11 points, and O'Neill for five. Cavanagh clicked for three, O'Leary, Legrow, Richardson and Cupoli having two each, and Galvin sinking a free toss. Teams:

DelaSalle: Quinn, Orland, Malodnski, Deverenette, Fior, Baxter, O'Leary, Sabol, Condon.

St. Peter's: Jones, O'Neill, Cavanagh, O'Leary, Richardson, Galvin, Legrow, Cupoli, Holme, Armstrong, Simmons.

Jankowski Edges Ken Laufman

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP). — Lou Jankowski, sharp-shooting winger for Oshawa Generals, held a one-point margin over centre Ken Laufman of Guelph Biltmores today in the individual point-scoring race in the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior A division.

Statistics released by the OHA covering games of Sunday, Feb. 25, showed Jankowski far ahead in goals scored with 54. Laufman led the way in assists with 64. In total points, Jankowski had 103 to Laufman's 102. Jankowski's linemate, Alex Delvecchio, was third with 100 points.

Glen Hall, netminder for Windsor Spitfires, monopolized goal-tending honors. He had the most shutouts, six, and was tied with Toronto Marlboros' Don Lockhart for the best goals-against average 2.94.

In the four-team major loop, Billy Flick of Kitchener-Waterloo's last-place Flying Dutchmen held a three-point lead over teammate Mickey Roth with 54 points to Roth's 51. Flick headed the league's goal-scorers with 24 and was tied with Roth for the most assists, 30.

Phil Hughes of the front-running Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs topped the goalies with a 3.29 average. No goaltender had more than one shutout.

Central Victorious

Central defeated Queen Mary 3-1 in a fast, clean School Hockey League clash at the arena yesterday. Brooks scored twice and Gardner once for the winners, with Butler having one assist. Brown got the losers' lone goal. It was 1-0 for Central in the first, but they got two more to one for the losers in the second. Queen Mary fought hard in the third but couldn't tally. Teams:

Central: Gardner, Patterson, Brooks, MacInnes, Butler, Craymer, Williams, Tranter, Gray, Brown, Matthews, Martyn.

Queen Mary: Deck, Brady, Brown, Deal, Dafoe, Morgan, Putnam, Boyce, Horton, Schweir, Atkinson, Friar, Dobbin.

Referee: E. Druery.

CITY CARPETBALL

There are no further league games this season. Besides the games scheduled for the week of February 26 there are games not reported: Firemen No. 9 vs Legion No. 3; St. George's No. 10 vs LOL No. 2, and Legion No. 3 vs St. Luke's No. 1; also Legion No. 5 vs St. Luke's No. 1.

At Legion Hall, Quakers met SOE. The first game was tied at 4-all in the 7th frame and the Sons collected one in the next frame, but that was all for them as the Ful-O-Pep team grabbed the last four ends and the game 16-5. The second was the Sons and they won it going away 17-5; also the edge in average 22 to 21.

The game played between Legion No 5 and Firemen at the Fire Hall was a battle between the opposing leads and seconds for the first ball on the "kitty" in each end and the Fire-Fighters were successful in the first game by an 11-5 score. The second was also a nip-and-tuck affair but a 5-end by the Smoke-Eaters gave them the edge to take a 15-13 game.

The Glens were at home against Legion No. 7 and two good games resulted. The first was tied twice but the Big Bens gradually forged ahead by scoring extra balls on different ends and although the Glens struck back with a big four, they lost out 8-13. The second game saw the Glens in the lead three times, the last time in the 11th frame and thrice the Big Bens tied it up and that is the way it finished at 13-all.

A postponed game was played at the LOL, St. George's being host to Quakers No. 4. The first game was the Southenders all the way and they won it by a 15-6 score. The second was a closer game and a 4-end scored by the Ful-O-Pep team was sufficient for them to emerge victors by a 12-8 score.

The game between Legion No. 5 and St. Luke's was split but there are no scores at hand.

In the doubles elimination contest, Harrison and Whitehead won over Palmer and Leether in two straight by scores of 8-2 and 7-6. Cummings and Lundy were eliminated in two straight by Bromley and Ralston 4-15 and 4-9.

D. Pilling and P. Schweirs fought hard against Read and Garrette. They lost the first game 8-5, came back and took the second 12-4 but were eliminated 16-5 in the third. Nichols and Gimblett Sr. won the first game 12-4 from Robinson and McPhee. But the latter team came back to take a close 7-6 victory to make a third game necessary. And they continued winning by taking the final 7-5 thus eliminating Nichols and Gimblett in three good games.

Gracie's Memorial Doubles for Wednesday, February 28 at the Legion Hall: Rusaw and Douglas vs McLean and Hopgood at 7:30 p.m. to complete the second round. And the first game of the third round is between Read and Garrett vs Wilson and Nice at 7:30 on the same night.

The completion of the third round will be played March 7 at 7:30 p.m. when the winner between Rusaw and Douglas vs McLean and Hopgood will play Harrison and Whitehead, also Bromley and Ralston vs Robinson and McPhee.

The semi-final round of the President's Cup playdowns between LOL No. 2 vs St. George's No. 10 has not been played. Don't forget to turn in those cups and shields to the secretary at once.

The Happy Day Minstrel show sponsored by this league will be shown at the Collegiate April 3 and 4. Tickets will be handled by A. Pilling and will be ou shortly.

W. Wilson is still at Malton and is progressing after his operation

Everyone Wins But Detroit, Wings Still Lead

MONTREAL, Feb. 27 (CP). — Every team won a game in the National Hockey League last week except the league-leading Detroit Red Wings. But that didn't make a bit of difference to the Wings, who got two points on ties to stay three up on Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Wings have 80 points from 34 wins, 12 losses and 12 ties while Leafs, who won one and tied one last week, have 32 wins, 12 losses and 13 ties for 77 points.

Boston Bruins broke their third-place tie with New York Rangers by a win, loss and two ties, one more than Rangers, who played only three games. Bruins now have 53 points, one up on Rangers.

League statistics released today show Montreal two points behind Rangers and Chicago mired in the cellar with but 36 points. They won one and lost one last week, as did Canadiens.

Howe Keeps Lead

Detroit's Gordie Howe still is leading the individual scoring race with 69 points, garnered from 31 goals and 38 assists. But Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Montreal has jumped back to the second slot he held so long earlier in the year.

Richard's three goals and two assists for the week brought him up from fourth place to a two-way tie with Detroit's Sid Abel. Both have 53 points but Richard's 36 goals are tops in that department.

None of the netminders improved their shutout position, Detroit's Terry Sawchuk remaining in front with seven. Toronto's Turk Broda and Al Rollins still have the best combined average, 2:03.

Toronto's Gus Mortson and Maple Leafs still head the list of penalty-servers, Mortson with 130 minutes and Toronto with 711.

30 Amateur Skiers Try Out For Olympics

BANFF, Alta., Feb. 27 (CP).—Approximately 30 of Canada's top amateur skiers will invade this Rocky Mountain resort March 15-30 for ski trials which will decide the members of the 1952 Canadian Olympic squad.

For the first week of the gruelling tests, downhill and slalom stars will practice their art on the steep slopes of nearby Mount Norquay, scene of several Canadian championship meets and the only North American tournament ever held in Canada.

The second week has been tentatively set for the time trials. On those days Olympic prospects will compete in races against time for berths on the squad.

Seven officials of the Canadian Amateur Ski Association will be on hand. Records of individual performances will be kept to enable the Olympic committee to make its final selections for the team.

Demarco Has 93 Points

NEW YORK, Feb. 27 (CP).—Ab Demarco of Buffalo Bisons picked up another five points last week, giving him 93 points for a nine-point scoring lead in the American Hockey League. The veteran centre, who has 32 goals and 61 assists, has led the scoring parade through most of the season. Team-mate Grant Warwick is second with 84 points, while Freddie Glover of Indianapolis continues to lead in goals scored, adding five for 41. Demarco's 61 assists give him the play-making lead.

Snow, snow.. the gang's all here

Snow usually brings lusty cheers from the children. For them, it's a signal of happy hours ahead, filled with fun and sport.

But grown-ups, with a walk or driveway to shovel, don't always burst into "Bravo" when they look upon a heavy snowfall.

Shovelling snow can be healthful exercise—if you are in good physical shape. Don't go at it too grimly. Take it easy—rest often—let the children help, too. If the fall is too heavy or you are beyond the snow-shovelling age, better turn the job over to a husky youngster.

Sees Hastings County Important Iron Producer

TORONTO, Feb. 27—(CP)—Northern Ontario iron ore development at Steep Rock and hope of low-grade iron ore production in central Ontario's Hastings county, give the province "trump cards" in iron production, the Legislature was told Monday.

Mines Minister Gemmell, in a report to the House during the Throne Seepch debate, predicted Ontario will be producing 10,000,000 tons of iron ore a year "within a short time."

Expanding production of all metals, now at the rate of more than $330,000,000 a year, would soon double the cumulative total of $6,000,000,000 in the first half of the century, the Minister said.

Mr. Gemmell, member for Sudbury, dropped his optimism only when dealing with the gold mining industry, caught between fixed prices and rising costs.

"I fervently hope that the near future will bring good news from the standpoint of the price of the yellow metal," he said.

The Legislature today continues the Throne Speech debate, which is expected to end Friday with votes on two opposition amendments to the reply to the speech from the Throne—a C.C.F. motion of censure and a Liberal motion of non-confidence.

Raps Normal Schools

The Legislature also heard Agnes Macphail (CCF-York East) criticize the province's Normal Schools, and heard appeals from both sides of the House for additional steel production.

Miss Macphail, herself a teacher before entering a long parliamentary career in 1921, attacked the province's Normal Schools in general and the Toronto Normal School in particular.

She declared that the Toronto school, converted from an old public school, was "a disgrace to the province of Ontario and unworthy of the teaching profession." Other normal schools were bad, but it was the worst.

Labor Minister Daley said that steel shortages delaying the proposed new office of the Workmen's Compensation Board meant that improvements in payments of compensation would have to be delayed until next January 1.

Amendments to the Workmen's Compensation Act, under consideration by the Legislature, would increase the board's work 30 per cent. Present office facilities had stymied the board.

Miss Macphail referred to the report of the Hope Royal Commission on Education, which cost $600,000 and was tabled in the Legislature at the beginning of the session.

"If the $600,000 spent on the Hope report were spent on a Normal School, at least we would have the school," she said. "As it is, we have got a 15-pound book."

Much Too Crowded

The veteran CCF member said the enrolment of the Toronto Normal School, originally 125, had grown to 480 student teachers. Only half could use the auditorium at one time. Gymnasium groups had to change clothing in one hall, one highly-qualified professor had to set up his desk in another hall because of space shortage.

Miss Mahphail also urged that the province's Minister of Education hold only the one Cabinet post. "Ontario has been cursed with part-time Ministers of Education," she said.

(Outside the Legislature, R. A. Johnston, principal of Toronto Normal School, said overcrowding was the school's chief problem, but added that he hoped a new school would be built within a few years to remedy the situation.)

The Highways Minister, in his address, said that little could be done about the problem of gold mines until an international agreement could be reached on a world price. This was "not much consolation," however, to communities like Kirkland Lake, Timmins, Red Lake, and Geraldton.

Discover Iron Body

An airborne survey with a magnetometer in Hastings County, north of Belleville, had shown existence of a low-grade magnetic ore body, and United States companies had confirmed the find with drillings.

"There is more than a possibility that Eastern Ontario will become an important producer of iron ore in the not-too-distant future," Mr. Gemmell said. By early fall plans for construction of an ore mill might be announced.

Major expansion was also planned in the high-grade iron ore field at Steep Rock, west of Fort William, and in the Michipicoten area along the north shore of Lake Superior north-west of Sault Ste. Marie.

300,000 Jobless But Figure Below 1950

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 (CP).—Unemployment in Canada increased by more than 18,000 in a two-week period, the Labor Department announced Monday.

At Feb. 1 there were 300,000 persons registered for unemployment at National Employment Service offices. This compared with a total of 281,900 at Jan. 18.

Despite the increase, the situation was better than at the beginning of February, 1950, with more than 75,000 fewer registered unemployed.

Several factors were responsible for the improvement. There has been greater activity in the pulpwood and lumber industries. Military contracts stepped up employment in the manufacture of aircraft and parts, rubber, textile and leather products, armaments, chemicals and aluminum.

Construction activity and expansion in some manufacturing industries also contributed substantially to the lower level of employment.

In Ontario, job-hunters increased from 66,800 to 68,300, though the department said the number of persons at work also increased.

THESE QUADRUPLETS were born to 28-year-old Mrs. Harriet Papas, of Baltimore, Md. Edward Papas, 28, did his last name proud in becoming father of the two boys; held by nurse Laverne Resch, and the two girls held by nurse Mary Hillgren.

AUTHORIZE CARRIER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 27 (AP)—Congress Monday authorize construction of a 60,000-ton aircraft carrier capable of launching long-range planes carrying atomic bombs. The huge new carrier will cost $212,000,000.

Ex-Burlesque Girl, Wife To Reduce For BBC Fans

LONDON, Feb. 27 (AP). — A former burlesque girl grown chubby and a housewife with a similar plight will start melting away for the benefit of their waistlines and British television viewers today.

They'll go on a special diet, 1,000 calories a day, and every two weeks will appear on television to show their progress. The viewers will be able to judge for themselves as the pair stand before photographic cutouts made at the previous showing.

In three months, the former burlesque girl, Averil Ames, hopes to trim down her present 196 pounds to 136. The housewife, Mrs Charlotte Black, 49, wants to weigh in at 140 instead of her present 186.

The British Broadcasting Corporation thinks the three-month stunt should attract about 1,000,000 new women viewers. The BBC also expects a few fasculine eyes to look in as the experiment progresses and the subjects acquire more sightly waistlines.

The diet involves no exercise. It just limits dieters to 1,000 calories a day from a special list of foods.

Miss Ames, now a musical comedy actress, blames her present figure on Italian food. In an eight-month tour of Italy, she said, she gained 56 pounds.

Mrs. Black, a housewife and mother of four, offered no reason for the shape she's in.

PORT ARTHUR, Feb. 27 (CP)—The Thunder Bay Nursery is the first forest nursery in Ontario to produce a planting stock of black spruce—probably the most desirable tree for pulp production—the Land Department reported Monday. Inequalities In Nations MoreObvious

Claims Communism Not To Blame For Trouble In Asia

Communism is not to blame for the sore spot on today's world that is southeast Asia, Mohammed Ali, Pakistan's high commissioner to Canada, said Monday night.

The high commissioner was speaking to members and guests of the Peterborough branch of the United Nations Association at a meeting in the public library auditorium.

He said that the fault should be laid to the economic situation in Asia—the poverty and starvation that are rife there. Communism had only taken advantage of it.

Balancing Of Inequalities

The solution to world peace, he said, was the balancing of the inequalities of the world. Transportation had cut the size of the world and brought the troubles of the world to more people. The inequalities were made more obvious now.

North America said the high commissioner, has made immense material progress in the past century. Its spiritual progress had lagged behind. He suggested an equalization by sharing the western world's material progress with the east, and cited the example of Canada's offering $25,000,000 to the Colombo plan for aid to southeast Asia.

Problems Of Pakistan

He spoke of the problems of Pakistan itself—a nation divided in two with seven languages. The provincial languages are Pushtu, Bengali, Baluch, Punjabi, and Sindi. The national language is Urdu, a combination of the language of the sub-continent of India, and the official language of the government and the courts is English.

The two divisions are the northwestern part of the old country of India, and two-thirds of the province of Bengal.

He said that because of religious differences, it was impossible for Hindus and Moslems to be conationals. There are 250,000,000 Hindus in India and about 100,000,000 Moslems. Most of the Moslems (80,600,000 of them) are in Pakistan, and most of the Hindus are in India.

Moslems believe in the religion of Islam a monotheistic religion which believes in God. Hindus follow a polytheistic religion, similar in pattern to the early religions of Greece and Rome with their many gods.

Moreover, Moslems believe in the equality of men, and Hindus are split into four main castes. The lower class is composed of "untouchables" and the upper three classes mingle but do not intermarry. Moslems, Christians, and other "religious minorities" in today's India are regarded as untouchables.

New Problems Faced

With the partition of India, new problems faced the people of both Pakistan and the new India.

Most of the raw materials are located in Pakistan he said, and most of the factories in India. Pakistan has had to spend millions of dollars building up her industries, although she is basically a rural nation.

The high commissioner touched briefly on the problems of Kashmir, now occupied half by India and half by Pakistan. Kashmir, he said, has a population mainly composed of Moslems but has a Hindu ruler, and the decision of what to do with Kashmir now rests with the United Nations.

The high commissioner was introduced by the Rev. A. A. Mathews and thanked by Norman Crook. Chairman for the meeting was Charles Hurst, president of the UN Association's branch in Peterborough.

Yuzwa Appeal Before Court

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP) —An appeal against a manslaughter sentence of six years was launched in Ontario Court of Appeal Monday by William Yuzwa of Hamilton.

Yuzwa was convicted of manslaughter last November in connection with the stabbing death of William Loucks in a mainstreet fracas at Lindsay, Nov. 19, 1949.

The appeal, which is continuing, marks the third time the case has come before the courts. The defence is basing its appeal on what it terms "serious discrepancies" in evidence of Crown witnesses.

Yuzwa was arrested at gunpoint by a posse of police on the outskirts of Peterborough a short time after the slaying. Three bystanders were also knifed during the fracas, none fatally.

Yuzwa was charged with murder, but at the first trial in February, 1950, the jury failed to reach a verdict and a new trial was ordered. Last November, he was acquitted on the murder charge, but convicted on the lesser manslaughter charge and sentenced to six years in prison.

Rescuer Refuses Cash Award For Saving 8-Year-Old Boy

For saving the life of little Billie Pearson, 8, of Buckhorn last Dec. 15, Presbyterian lay preacher Sam Wood was the recipient a few days ago of a cash award, suggested by fellow villagers, from a large brewing company. "I thanked them for it by letter," said Mr. Wood, "but returned the money since it was against my Christian principles."

Reviewing the incident, Mr. Wood said he was driving along the Buckhorn bridge as four boys were coming along it from school. They split up to let him pass, and Billie disappeared over the edge into the deep water.

Waited On Pier

Mr. Wood slammed on his brakes and jumped out and found the little chap floating among the ice cakes, apparently buoyed up by his winter clothing. He jumped in and drew the boy to a sunken pier and told the other lads to run for help.

Mr. Wood was in the water for a long time supporting Billie when he saw a rope descending from above.

"I could see the hand of the Lord on it," Mr. Wood said, as his neighbour Burritt Calvert arrived on the rescue scene to help. Passing trucker Charles Binnington of Lakefield, also lent his assistance and hauled out Mr. Wood and Billie Pearson.

Sarah Jane Pringle, 138 Park St., widow of Isaac Pringle, died Monday at the age of 94. She is survived by four children, nine grandchildren, 17 great-grandchildren and five great-great-grandchildren.

She had been ill for some time.

Mrs. Pringle leaves one son, Clayton G. Pringle, and a daughter, Edith, of Peterborough; two daughters, Mrs. James Victor, Mrs. Adis Griffen, both of Toronto, and one sister, Mrs. Thomas Vance of Picton.

Little Theatre Withdraws Play

KINGSTON, Feb. 27 (CP)—Dr. William Angus, chairman of the regional committee for the 12th annual Eastern Ontario Regional Drama Festival to be held at Queen's University March 19 to 21, announced today two of the plays originally entered in the festival have been withdrawn.

They are Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night", which was entered by the Peterborough Little Theatre, and Susan Glaspell's "Suppressed Desires," entered by the Queen's Drama Guild.

The festival program will be made up of four full-length plays, and a single one-acter.

NEW SIDEWALKS

Added to the bottom of the list of concrete sidewalks to be laid are both sides of Romaine St. between High St. and Ford Ave. "It will likely be done this year," said City Engineer Chalmers at the board of works meeting Monday night.

Big Rush On To Get Car Licenses

No Order Received By City Police Setting Deadline

Deadline fear gripped approximately 200 car owners and drivers today who queued up at the Motor License Issuers' office before the doors opened at 9.

By 9:30 a.m. the line extended from the second floor office down the stairs and along George St. for half a block.

Toronto papers and radio stations had announced that Queen's Park had set February 27 as the deadline for obtaining 1951 driver's licenses and ownership permits.

"Just another typical case of the annual procrastination of car owners," Jim Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce, commented. "Not only were there queues yesterday and today, but I have had 12 phone calls and letters already from frantic people who want special attention and give all kinds of excuses from heart attacks to strokes for not coming to the office."

No Word Received

The ironic twist to the whole situation is that neither the local issuer's office, Chief Thompson nor Provincial Sergeant Price Morris have received any official word from Queen's Park giving today as a deadline date.

In answer to any complaints that arise because of the inconveniences caused by the queues, Mr. Fraser explains that the issuer's office has been open with a staff of five since January 2.

The present jam is being handled by an efficiency routine that can take care of every customer in exactly three minutes.

Poorly Filled Out

"The greatest holdups are caused by people not having their licenses correctly filled out," Mr. Fraser stated.

Incidently the official deadline after a few preview scares is usually set in mid-March.

A. A. Richardson Buried In City

The funeral service of Angus A. Richardson, 59, former project manager of the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission's Des Joachims development on the Ottawa River was held in Toronto on Monday with burial in Little Lake cemetery, Peterborough, in the afternoon.

Recently appointed general superintendent of Hydro's new Niagara project he was associated with construction organizations building large power developments. In 1940 he joined the Hydro engineering staff and his major projects with hydro, apart from Des Joachims, were at Barrett Chute and Stewartville on the Madawaska River.

Graduated in 1915

Mr. Richardson was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Alex Richardson of Peterborough. He received his early education here and graduated from University of Toronto in 1915. He served with the engineers in the First Great War and on his return was connected with the Peterborough Utilities Commission, later joining the construction firm of Morrow and Beatty. He was a member of Royal Arthur Lodge AF & AM, Corinthian Chapter, RAM, and Moore Preceptory, Knights Templar. He was also a member of the Shrine.

Death came after a short illness in Toronto on Friday, the day after the last of the eight units at Des Joachims went into production.

More than 20 cars of friends, relatives and associates came through with the funeral procession from Toronto. Here it was met by other relatives, boyhood friends and members of the Masonic order. The burial service was conducted by Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church.

He attended primary and secondary schools in Toronto and entered Trinity College in 1939 He graduated with his B.A. in 1942 and L.Th. (Licentiate of Theology) in 1944, and he was ordained by the late Archbishop Owen in 1945.

During his academic years he was student-in-charge of St. Bede's mission, Toronto; and Kinmount, Irondale, Burnt River, Washago, Cooper's Falls and Hamlet.

Senator Gives Maples For UK Seaside Town

The planting of 100 maple trees the gift of Senator Rupert Davies of Canada, is mentioned in plans for the beautification of Broadstairs, seaside resort town on the Kentish coast. This is reported in the British "Festival Year" issue for February of Coming Events in Britain.

Broadstairs is close to the place on the coast of Southern England where the Danes first landed in 449.

Coming Events in Britain is a highly interesting periodical of the events of this festival year of 1951 in the Motherland. Its pictures of scenes in Britain are replete with attractions for the great program that has been prepared for visitors from early spring to late fall up and down the country.

THREE GIRLS ESCAPE

Police are searching for three girls who escaped Monday from a school for delinquent girls at Cobourg. The three, aged 14, 15 and 16, were all wearing brown dresses and short wine coats. Homes of the girls are in Belleville, Fort Erie and Hamilton.

Bd. Of Works Paving Plan For Year Total $123,786; To Let Contracts For Work

Romaine St. From Park To George St., Dropped From 1949 Plans, Now Included, May Rouse Opposition

New detail of the 1951 paving program amounted to $123,786 in the estimates to the board of works Monday night from City Engineer Chalmers. That sum does not cover the other streets carried over from the uncompleted contract of Bennett Paving Company in 1950. The board authorized preparation of a construction bylaw and also the publication of the council's intention to proceed with the letting of tenders for this work. Romaine St. from Park St. to George St., was added to the present plan in a motion by Aldermen Miller and Graham.

Ald. E. C. Braund withheld his approving vote. "I don't think we need that part of Romaine St. this year," he said. "That's what adds to the estimates and the tax rate."

Rekindling Opposition

It was intimated that some of the property owners on Romaine St. west of Park St. were rekindling their opposition to the paving job past their frontage. They managed to have their street scratched from the work sheet in 1949. The Romaine St. objection, as then expressed, was to the method of paying pavement cost on what is known as the local improvement plan.

Briefly, they objected to any frontage levy method, contending that paving costs should be distributed among all ratepayers as a general charge.

There was some Monaghan Road opposition on that ground, too, last year when protests were heard here by the Ontario Municipal Board, but the comment of the presiding representative of the Board was that such an attitude could not be permitted to hold up civic progress.

At the board of works meeting Monday mention was made of rumors from Romaine St., just as they have been reported reaching other spots in town.

It was after the previous opposition on Romaine St. was mentioned that its strip east of Park St. to George St. was proposed for paving.

Surfaces of both are said to be pocked and needing a new top or extensive repair.

Paving Details

Some of the detail from the Chalmers report to the council follows:

Park Hill Road pavement, 36 feet wide from Reid to Bethune St., and 28 ft. from Bethune to Aylmer St., city corporation to assume 55% of the cost; estimate $33,159.71; or $5.39 a foot.

Corporation's part of the cost: $15,378.61, plus the cost of flankage, intersections and drainage structure $10,834.46, amounting to $26,213.07; to be paid for out of the city's general funds over ten years at $3,112.31.

Reference to the general fund is simply that the debenture charges would ordinarily come from that source.

Romaine St., from Park St. to Monaghan Road: 31.5 ft. strip; estimated cost $41,764.90; estimated cost per foot frontage $5.34; corporation's part of the cost: $18,091.62 plus flankages etc. $7,505.41; amounting to $25,597.03; annual payment by the corporation $3,039.16.

Aylmer St., from Townsend St. to CPR, a small stretch: $3,531.62; charge to corporation $2,185.36; in an annual charge of $259.47 for ten years. This is a 36-foot wide strip

Townsend St., from George St. to Aylmer St.: 55 per cent of cost assumed by the treasury; total total $22,153.70; city part $14,906.07 on the basis of $1,769.81 annually for ten years.

Stewart St. from Perry to Park St.: total $12,315.01; a 34½ ft. strip; cost $12,315.01; city assumes 52.75 per cent of cost; amount to be paid by corporation $7,905.63. There has been comment in council that the residents of that short stretch of Stewart St.—it is usually known as Stewart Place—might find that they were paving the street for the parking benefit of the employees of Raybestos Company.

Weller St. from Monaghan Road to Manorhill Road, a 30-foot strip; 44 per cent to be borne by the corporation. City Engineer Chalmers said the wider the paving strip the larger the treasury part of the cost. Total $33,017.29; corporation charge $21,740.19 at $2,581.24 a year for ten years.

Mr. Chalmers has not yet had an opportunity of preparing an estimate of the cost of the work on Romaine St. east of Park St.

Ald. J. E. Gillespie presided, and the other members present were: Mayor Swanston, Aldermen Burrows, Young, Anglesey, Braund, Rehill, Graham, Miller.

Union Rejects GE Offer As 'Inadequate'

A rejection of the CGE's contract offer was registered Monday night at an "emergency" membership meeting called by Local 524, United Electrical Workers. The wage and other contract proposals were inadequate, the membership decided.

To confirm this, a referendum vote will be conducted by the union later this week.

The company had offered the workers a 7.5 per cent wage increase, plus a cost of living bonus based on a one-cent rise for every 1.3 point increase in the index. Also a three-year contract with an automatic three-cent raise at each anniversary date.

Asked 25 Cents

The UE asked the company for a general increase of 25 cents an hour, with an extra 10 cents for day rate and other skilled workers; a 40-hour week with no loss of take-home pay; and, among other things, a health and welfare plan totally paid for by the company.

This rejection followed a two-point recommendation from the Joint UE-GE Conference Board.

1. That the wage offer of 7.5 per cent was not enough to even meet the rising cost of living since the last increase. A percentage increase hits the lowest paid worker the hardest.

2. That the company's contract proposals would take away the workers' protection. It would deny girls a guaranteed rate; wipe out protection on piece-work jobs for both girls and men; produce speedups with ultimate dismissal if a quota wasn't reached, and force workers to do any job regardless of their occupational classficiation, skill, trade, or code number.

C. S. Jackson, Canadian UE president, was a principal speaker. President-elect George Wallace was in the chair.

Similar UE membership meetings will be held tonight in Toronto and in Montreal Wednesday night.

An Agency of Community Chest Fund

Social Work Of The Salvation Army

The Peterborough Salvation Army spent a total of $1,723.56 in social work during the past year over and above what was given to the corps by the 1950 Red Cross and Community Chest Campaign Fund. The aditional money spent was raised through donations of the corps itself.

This information was given to The Examiner by Major C. G. Everitt of the Salvation Army in an interview today.

Work Kept Separate

"Our social work covers a lot of territory," the Salvation Army officer explained. "However, there is a common misunderstanding that I would like to clear up. The social work done by the army is totally separate from our evangelical work. This is particularly true in finances."

In an outline of the social work, Major Everitt stated that the biggest money outlay was incurred in providing meals, groceries, fuel, clothing and beds for families and transients who otherwise would have to go without.

This type of aid is also given to delinquent boys and girls and aged persons who are in need.

21 Unemployed Placed

Unemployed persons are interviewed in regard to obtaining positions. During the past year 39 were interviewed and 21 were placed in positions.

"Another important aspect of our work," Major Everitt asserted, "is the temporary assistance we give to immigrants in the city until they can get settled. This often includes financial aid as well as food, clothing and temporary shelter."

A great deal of work with boys and girls is done by the Salvation Army in the city. During 1950 there was a total attendance of 8,502 at character building and educational groups. Membership in the army is not prerequisite for attendance at these classes, Major Everitt emphatically stated.

Counselling services and recreational and educational facilities are put at the disposal of these youngsters who meet both at the temple on Simcoe St. and the temple in Byersville.

Help Unmarried Mothers

"Assistance is given to unmarried mothers who come to us for aid," Major Everitt explained. "This help takes the form of counselling, medical care and hospitalization. Last year 14 girls were helped by the army in this way."

Broken homes are visited by the Salvation Army to see if reestablishment is possible. During 1950 15 such homes were visited and 14 re-established.

A Salvation Army officer attends police court every day and gives whatever aid he can to prisoners. This work, too, often involves financial assistance.

"This kind of work requires money," concluded Major Everitt. The only way we can raise the amount needed is through the Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign. In order to carry on our social work we will have to be financially supported by the public through the fund."

Last year the Salvation Army received $5,200 from the Community Fund.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Walter Keller, Dominion Football Association secretary, announced that Fulham, famous English League soccer club, will sail for Canada May 15 on the Empress of Scotland.

Other teams likely to tour this country if arrangements can be made are Glasgow Celtic, Third Lanark, the Uruguyan World Cup eleven, the Swedish champions Aik and the Hungarian Roma, a group of Hungarian expatriates playing together in Rome, Italy.

The Fulham club is scheduled to play two matches against other touring teams. The games will likely be played in Vancouver.

Art Hurst, right winger and defenceman with Waterloo Dutchmen, will join the Ontario Hockey Association major Toronto Marlboros this week, Kitchener-Waterloo club officials said Monday.

Hurst is being taken up by Marlies as a replacement for centre Bobby Hassard, signed to a National Hockey League contract with Toronto Maple Leafs a few days ago.

At Detroit, heavyweight Ezzard Charles showed plenty of power as he boxed five rounds in preparation for his title fight with Joe Walcott here March 7.

Walcott is due to start training here today.

The American-owned Big Dipper has been installed the favorite for the Two Thousand Guineas and the English Derby—two of Britain's five flat race classics.

Mrs. Josephine Brice's big chestnut colt by Signal Light-Huntress was rated the best two-year-old on British tracks last season.

Bookmakers currently will not bet more than 9-to-4 against him winning the Two Thousand Guineas scheduled for Newmarket May 2. For the Derby, to be run at Epsom Downs May 30, the odds against Big Dipper are 6-to-1—one point ahead of Frenchman Marcel Boussac's Nyangal.

Former heavyweight champion Joe Louis huddled with international Boxing Club officials at Chicago Monday, but all concerned kept mum on a reported champion Ezzard Charles-Louis title rematch April 11 at Chicago Stadium.

Louis had just returned from his San Francisco triumph over Andy Walker, the fourth straight win by the Brown Bomber in his "comeback" campaign.

Louis said he had talked Monday by long distance telephone with IBC president Jim Norris at Miami, Fla., but just to say "hello."

The winner of the 15-round Charlie Fusari-Johnny Bratton battle at the Chicago Stadium March 14 will be recognized as welterweight champion of the world by the National Boxing Association, with certain reservations.

Trades Council Expels Two Toronto Unions

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP)—The Toronto Building Trades Council (AFL) Monday night expelled two unions—Hoisting Engineers and Iron Workers—for working on a job placed on the council's blacklist.

An injunction has prevented members of the Building Council from picketing a Rootes Motor Company construction project, but affiliated unions have refused to permit their men to work on the job. The dispute arose out of a jurisdictional fight between the Construction Workers' Union (CCL), whose members are employed on the project, and the Carpenters' Union (AFL).

Jerry Sayeau, business agent for the Hoisting Engineers, said his union's members had continued to work on the project because they had contracts with the firm erecting the superstructure.

Name Weaver To Handle Beauty Contest

BURLINGTON, Ont., Feb. 27—(CP)—S. Radcliffe Weaver, centre of a controversy here last year over handling of the Miss Canada pageant, will be in charge of the contest again this year it was announced Monday night.

Lenore Slaughter, director of the sponsored Miss America contest, announced at a press conference here Monday night that her organization had re-appointed Mr. Weaver to head the Canadian contest. Winner of the Canadian show represents Canada at the Miss America beauty pageant at Atlantic City.

Mr. Weaver, in charge of the Canadian contest for the last four years, was criticized last year when he appointed a board of judges to select the Canadian winner on a mail-order basis. The winner, Margaret Bradford, of Windsor and London, was selected by means of photographs and letters submitted by contestants to the judges.

At that time, Mr. Weaver said financial limitations had made it impossible to hold a public pageant to select a Miss Canada from among regional contest winners as had been done in previous years.

England's Day In Test Match

MELBOURNE, Feb. 27 (Reuters)—Today was England's day in the fifth and final test cricket match against Australia.

The visitors gained a first-innings lead of 103 and then got rid of four of Australia's best batsmen for 129 at close of play.

That left Australia 26 runs ahead with six wickets in hand and England with her second innings to come. In the first innings England scored 320 in reply to the home team's 217.

England's innings was featured by a lively 156 not out by Reg Simpson. He was aided nobly by bowler Ray Tattersall, who took part in a 10th-wicket stand of 74 runs in 55 minutes.

Only a fighting stand by captain Lindsay Hassett and Grame Hole—all-rounder appearing in his first Test—gave Australia the lead late in the day. When Hole joined his captain four wickets had gone for 89—the first two with only six on the board.

Alex Bedser and captain Freddie Brown continued as England's standout bowlers.

Overcrowded Britain To Get First Nose Count In 20 Years

By DON SCHWIND

LONDON, Feb. 27 (AP)—Overcrowded Britain, recently termed "probably the most vulnerable target in the world"in an atomic war, will have its first nose count in 20 years, starting April 8.

Defence, housing and emigration men will have a special interest in the total, which unofficial estimates indicate may top 51,000,000.

Also watching will be Commonwealth authorities—especially in Australia and Canada—who long have had a welcome mat out for British skilled labor and technical men.

Sixty - thousand enumerators will take the census, first official count since 1931. By chance, the Republic of Ireland will take its own the same day, so figures for the entire British Isles—including the Channel Islands and remote Scottish islets—will be on hand simultaneously.

The figure for England, Wales, Scotland and Northern Ireland in an unofficial estimate two years ago was 50,519,000, despite the tide of migration to the dominions and colonies.

Those figures showed that England and Wales—manufacturing and mining heart of British industrial life—averaged 759 persons to the square mile. France had 194 and the United States only 49.

Britain's population has been expanding steadily since the first census in 1801. That count, which took in all of Ireland, was 16,345,646. The 1931 count listed 44,790,485. The Republic of Ireland, then called the Irish Free State, wasn't included.

The 1951 census will cost British taxpayers about £1,125,000 ($3,150,000) but officials think its worth it.

They want some light on, for instance:

How many Britons speak no English? The 1931 enumerators found that 6,700 spoke only Gaelic.

How many have piped water, fixed bathtubs, and "other arrangements?"

Fete-Ful Months Of US Calendar Springtime Tonic

By NORMAN MICHIE

NEW YORK —(CP)— Advice for the jaded citizen who feels that week follows week in the same old dreary rut:

That thing on the wall isn't a calendar—it's an almost-constant round of holidays and special occasions.

If you don't believe it, take a look at a sprightly little brochure issued by the United States Department of Commerce. Between its soft-paper covers the prosaic march of days and months becomes a kaleidoscope of kudos to includes Humane Sunday (May 6) and Be-Kind-To-Animals week (May 6-12). Expectant Fathers' Day (June 16) falls on the eve of Father's Day. National Wine Week (Oct. 13-20) precedes World Temperance Sunday by seven days; the intervening period is both Cleaner-Air Week and United Nations' Week.

National Thrift Week (Jan. 17-23) is also Large-(Economy?) Size Week; and National sew-and-save Week (Feb. 17-24) is closely followed by National Save-Your-Vision Week (Mar. 4-10).

Those Food Weeks

Foods get their share of the honors, with peanut week, kraut and frankfurter week, pancake day, honey-for-breakfast week, pickle week, iced-tea time, cherry pie time, cheese festival, cranberry week, apple week, and everything from the first day of winter to the Idaho potato.

Almost every day of the year is a special observance for some group, interest or sentiment. The Commerce Department, in its foreward to "special days, weeks and months in 1951," admits that the origin of some of them is a mystery.

Mysterious, too, is the way some of them overlap or follow one another.

National Laugh Week

April Fool's Day, for instance, falls during National Laugh Week, which coincides with National Leave-Us-Alone Week. Let's-Go-Fishing Month (May) Idaho potato and onion week only a few.

Sports, clothing, diseases, inventors, historical occasions, the seasons, patriotic birthdays, commercial endeavors, and, of course, religious observances, all come in for special notice.

And from April 22-28 the US celebrates a Good-Will Week with Canada.

No Pay-Tax Week

A notable omission in these times of rising living costs and high national budgets, is national pay-your taxes week, which would be followed, naturally, by national give-me-ten-'til-Tuesday week.

A couple of questions come to mind after a quick trip through the fete-ful year:

How does a newcomer know what he's celebrating on Nov. 4, when Roger Williams Day and Will Rogers Day coincide?

Who's the joker that allowed April 25-May 5 to be both Boys' and Girls' Week and National Baby Week?

And what has organized celebration got against July 5-11, July 21, Aug. 8-11 and Aug. 13—the only dates in the year that are plain old ordinary dates?

Amputee Veteran Does Normal Job

MONTREAL (CP)—Bill Sparrow of suburban Verdun says he "began to live again" when he went to work recently for the first time in nine years.

The 36-year-old army veteran, who suffered severe spinal injuries and a leg amputation during the Second World War, took his place on the assembly line of a typewriter manufacturing company, his first civilian job since he joined the army.

Getting the job, he said, was the last step in the long and tedious road back to normal since his jeep had blown up in Germany in 1945.

Learned To Walk

The first step was to learn to walk again. After several operations, he started to sit up in his hospital bed and then used a wheelchair to get around. Then came crutches and finally he trained himself to walk with only a cane.

The people of his home town gave him a specially-equipped motorcar last autumn after a subscription campaign, and Sparrow thanked them by saying "It's just as though you gave me back my two legs."

At the plant where he works, a special elevator has been placed at his disposal.

Sparrow is married and the father of an eight-year-old son, Bill.

A name to endure
Manitoba

Waves pounding on its shore sounded to the Cree Indians like a manito beating a drum. From their belief that a manito . . . a spirit . . . dwelt there, the Indians called the lake Manitoba . . . later to become the enduring name of the former Red River Colony.

A spirit, too, has guided Manitoba since the early days of the fur traders . . . the spirit of progress. Canoe and sturdy York boat were once the only means of transport. Today Winnipeg is the key centre of two great transcontinental railroads, over which are carried the grain of the prairies and the products of the East. In the same spirit of progress, Manitoba is rapidly developing her own expanding industries.

From small beginnings Manitoba has grown steadily to become one of Canada's leading provinces, but prosperous though she is, Manitoba is also preparing for her future . . . and the future of Canada.

Sees Return Of Moustache To Popularity

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 27 (AP)—The return of the moustache to popularity was predicted today by Makeup King Max Factor, Jr.

"The moustache is bound to increase in public esteem," observed Factor, "because it can't get any lower. Take a look at some of the film stars who have shaved theirs off—Tyrone Power, Robert Taylor, Errol Flynn.

"Movie stars lead the fashions but they also follow. And when the public says it does not like moustaches, they are shaved off."

But Factor, an expert on male as well as female beauty, feels a reaction setting in. He attributes this to United States' mobilization.

Remember the War

"Remember the moustache crop in 1943 and 1944?" he cited. "Men got away from their mothers and wives and sweethearts and fulfilled long-held desires to grow moustaches. But nearly all of the men were forced by the women to shave them off on the return from the wars."

"Soldiers in today's army will have even more motive for growing them. Most of them are boys in their 'teens or early 20s. Like all boys, they want to look older."

Moustaches need as much care and thought as a garden hedge, Factor said. For those with ambitions of growing one (a moustache, not a hedge), he offered these words of advice:

Don't try to grow a Ronald Colman moustache on an Oliver Hardy face. In fact, don't grow anything on an Oliver Hardy face. It would only do what it does for Hardy—get laughs.

The Ronald Colman moustache clipped but not too military, offers the best model for the average face.

Shimmy Queen Tries Comeback

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Feb. 27—(AP). — Gilda Gray, the shimmy queen of the roaring twenties, hit the comeback trail Monday night in a packed side-street cafe, sharing the stage with two young strip-teasers.

With tears in her eyes and her face slightly drawn after three years of illness, the Polish-born entertainer opened with "When You Wore a Tulip," the song she first sang as a professional in 1915 at Litza's Cafe here.

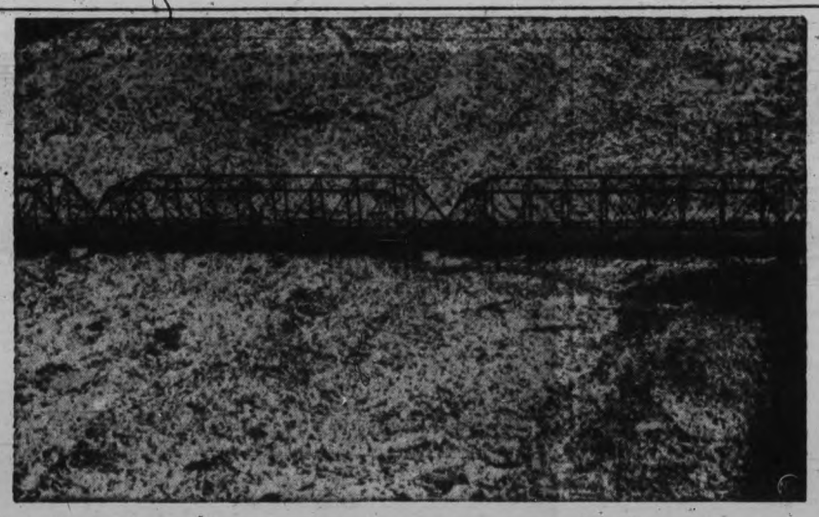
Gilda wiggled, shook, bounced, and whirled her torso as she warbled, just as she did in her heyday as an international star when her earnings were said to have reached more than $6,000,000.

The queen of the shimmy, who insists she is only 49, claims she is not destitute, but admits she needs money to keep three lawyers working for her in her $1,000,000 suit against Columbia Pictures for its release in 1946 of the film "Gilda" which she claims was based on her life.

Crippled Lad Enjoys Ottawa

OTTAWA, Feb. 27 (CP) — It was a full day for a shy, six-year-old on crutches—Dennis Gibbons of Welland. .

He attended a big banquet in Ottawa's swankiest hotel, the Chateau Laurier.



He sat at the head table with some 30 big names in government and service club circles.

Dennis was given a ticket of admission to the press gallery of the House of Commons.

Finally, Health Minister Marton bought some of his seals.

Hennis, as "Timmy of 1951," exemplifies some 500 crippled children of Ontario.

These were the first Easter seals sold in this year's campaign the only public appeal made by the Ontario Society for Crippled Children.

Replacing of Window Panes Simple Task

By MR. FIX

For some reason or other, which may be related to snowballs, chunks of ice or excess juvenile activity brought on by cold weather, a lot of windows seem to get broken in the wintertime.

The casualty rate on window glass is high in spring and fall, too, due to an understandable lack of caution in junior's baseball and football activity, but in winter the sudden rush of cold air through a broken window dictates immediate action.

You can take the necessary action yourself (leaving junior's punishment until later) with very little exertion. All you needs is a ruler, a medium-sized wood chisel, putty, a putty knife and, of course, a piece of glass.

Remove Broken Glass

First thing to do is remove all the broken glass, wearing gloves to protect your fingers so you can go back to the nice warm fire and the canasta game without stopping for first aid. If some little splinters of glass still stick to the window frame, you can scrape them away with the chisel when you remove the old putty and the glazier's points.

Then measure all four sides of the window opening carefully. Deduct no more than an eighth of an inch all around to allow for irregularities and expansion, write down the figures and take them to your hardware store.

You can cut the glass yourself if you want to (and have some around the house to cut). If you known how, you probably don't need the advice of Mr. Fix. Your hardware dealer can do it better and quicker, and if he breaks the glass while he's cutting it, it's his loss and not yours.

Secure Glazier's Points

While you're at the store, get some glazier's points (No. 1 or 2 size will do nicely) and some fresh putty if you haven't any at home.

When you get back to the glassless window, put the new glass some place where you won't step on it. Apply a liberal coat of linseed oil in the grooves where the glass fits (the technical term for the grooves is rabbets) so that putty won't soak into the wood and dry out. Then spread a thin layer of putty in the grooves.

Press the new glass into the putty until the putty oozes up around the edges, making a tight seal, and then press in the glazier's points with the flat side of the chisel. Now roll your new putty into strips the size of a pencil, press it into place along the edges of the glass, and smooth it with the putty knife into a neat, even bevel.

Before you putty, you can mix the putty with the same color paint that's already on the frames. It will save a lot of tedious work with a sash brush later on. If you put the putty on plain, wait at least a week for it to harden before painting.

150 View Spring Stock 1st Night Of Open House

The guests were invited to be the models—of any outfit that pleased their taste, when Black's Ladies Wear opened their week-long open house Monday evening.

Nearly 150 ladies and some men took advantage of the opportunity to inspect and try on from the spring stock of this firm. The newest purchases were on display and will be augmented with further arrivals during the week.

Among fashion highlights featured were the push-up sleeves on the new jackets and coats. A stand-out model was a new short-length jacket in brown and white check. Another a grey fur fabric cape jacket. Some of the popular gabardine coats showed the new stand-up collars, were in smart new colors and had becoming hats to match them.

Top-rater among the spring suits is a four-piece ensemble with the reversible vestee making many combinations possible.

Attention perhaps centred on the charming and gay print dresses. Most of them were of nylon, that fabric that has so many nice advantages. Several models of polka dot crepe looked very spring-like too.

A highlight among the "better" dresses was a two-piece dress of fashionable mauve crepe showing the new pouff hemline in the jacket. This proved very becoming when tried on.

However, the hit of the showing was the wedding dress, an entirely new design which was acclaimed at the Dress Manufacturers' Guild fall showing. The dress itself is of rayon net over taffeta, a plain, strapless fitted bodice, with very full skirt. For the wedding day is donned a jacket of lace with ruffle collar and ruffle trimmed long sleeves on which there is a gathered peplum that falls away in the front and extends into a graceful train. Bridesmaids' dresses to go with it were shown in pastel blue and green. These had short lace peplums and the bare top is covered with tiny sleeve-jackets.

Each evening of the showing there will be eight to ten valuable prizes given by the management. The winners on Monday were Mrs. James McParlan, Mrs. O. Sugden, Mrs. F. J. Parsons, Mrs. L. Craig, Miss Noreen Clements, Mrs. S. Howden, Mr. Marcelle Bodson, Mrs. O. Burns.

Refreshments are being served to all guests each evening.

Traces History of Theatre

Mrs. E. McWilliam, vice-president of Alpha Theta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi Sorority, conducted the business meeting Monday evening in the YWCA Green Room, owing to absence of president Mrs. B. C. Rolfe. It was decided the March meetings will be on the 12th at the YWCA and on the 19th at the home of Mrs. B. Duder, the latter meeting to be jointly with Exemplar Chapter. "The Theatre" was the topic chosen by Mrs. Duder, speaker for the evening. She outlined the various forms of drama, pantomime, and comedy, tracing their history from ancient Grecian and Roman theatre through the middle ages and early English theatre to the modern theatre of today. Mrs. Duder illustrated her talk with pictures of the different types of theatres in which plays have been presented through the centuries. She was introduced by Mrs. McWilliam and thanked by Mrs. E. Martin. Coffee was served after the meeting by Mrs. H. Goodwin and Miss Mary Clifford.

TUNA FISH RAREBIT makes a Lenten treat.—Evaporated milk fortifies creamed fish on toast with extra proteins, vitamins and calcium!

Fish And Vegetables Used In Lenten Lunch Dishes

So many people think that a meal without meat is like bread without butter. But there are many very appetizing and equally nutritious dishes that can be made with foods of animal origin—cheese, milk, eggs and fish.

Evaporated milk is particularly usemul for Lenten meals. It combines well with fish and vegetables and contains valuable proteins and protective vitamins. Too, it adds a rich flavor and smooth consistency to creamed foods.

A main dish that is sure to be popular is Tuna Fish Rarebit made with evaporated milk, butter and cheese. Served with glasses of cool milk and a fruit dessert it makes a perfectly balanced meal.

For an alternative, try a satisfying vegetable chowder, enriched with evaporated milk for added protein.

Tuna Fish Rarebit

(Serve 6)

1 can (7 oz.) flaked tuna fish.
4 tablespoons flour.
4 tablespoons butter
1 cup evaporated milk
1 cup water.
1 cup grated cheese.
⅛ teaspoon pener.
½ teaspoon salt.
½ teaspoon Worcestershi sauce.
6 broiled mushrooms.
6 slices toast.

Break up the tuna fish with a fork. Melt butter, stir in flour and when well mixed, add evaporated milk and water. Stir constantly until sauce is thickened and smooth. Add seasonings and cheese and cook over a low heat until cheese melts. Add tuna fish and heat over hot water while making the toast. Heap the hot mixture on slices of toast and garnish with a whole broiled mushroom.

Another nourishing luncheon dish:

Luncheon Chowder

(Serves 4 to 6)

¼ cup butter.
1 cup diced celery.
1 cup diced carrots
2 tablespoons grated onion.
1½ cups cooked or canned whole kernel corn.
1 cup water.
2 tablespoons chooped parsley.
1 teaspoon salt.
Few grains pepper.
1 teaspoon sugar.
2 cups evaporated milk.
1½ cups water.
1 cup cooked or canned peas.
½ cup grated Canadian cheese.

Melt butter, add celery, carrots, onion, corn, salt, pepper and sugar. Cook over low heat for 5 minutes. Add 1 cup water, cover and simmer for one hour. Add milk, remaining water (1½ cups) and peas; heat. Add parsley. Sprinkle with cheese.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Sauces For Fish Take Time And Care

"I went to cooking classes at night school for two years, hoping all of the time that I would learn to make sauces for fish like the French do—and maybe crepe suzetes. What I really learned was how to poach an egg and make whole wheat berad."

That is the gripe of Molly O. whom I knew in my youth and who recently moved back from Montreal into my very own neighborhood.

. . . and what I have dished up for you today is at Molly O.'s request. The crepe suzettes will turn up here some time in the future.

The mustard in the Mackerel with Mustard Sauce is not necessarily French. The whole treatment of the dish is typically French though. It takes care and time, Molly O., to create the perfect meals at which French chefs excel.

Slow down for once and deliberately follow each step in this recipe. That epicure husband of yours will discern the difference. If you keep your fish cooking at this level he will welcome Lent.

Mackerel (or any fillet) with Mustard Sauce

Have the fishman remove head and tail and bones of whole fish and put them in your parcel. Add 2 cups water to the head and tail and bones and simmer for ½ hour, covered. Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 1 chopped onion and 1 finely chopped clove of garlic, one-half cup soft breadcrumbs and cook in the butter until soft and soaked but not browned. Season with salt and pepper, add 2 tablespoons chopped parsley and stuff fish with this.

Arrange the stuffed fish on a flat baking dish. Melt 2 tablespoons butter in pan and add ½ cup of the fish stock (obtained from boiling bones etc.) and a little salt and pepper and 1 tablespoon lemon juice or vinegar. Pour this over the fish. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 25 minutes. Examine to see that it is done at the centre of the thickest part, if it is a big fish. Lift fish out onto hot serving platter and keep hot. Melt 2 tablespoons butter over low heat; add 2 tablespoons flour, 1 tablespoon French mustard, and dash of salt, cayenne and tabasco sauce. Boil up with the strained liquid from the fish pan and about ½ cup light cream. Stir until it boils. Add 2 tablespoons old cheese grated and cook over boiling water 5 minutes. If desired you may add bit by bit 1 or 2 more tablespoons butter. Pour this very hot sauce over the fish and serve at once sprinkled with chopped parsley.

French Fried Fish

One cup sifted bread flour, 1 egg, 1 cup whole milk, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1½ teaspoons salt; fish fillets. In a large bowl put the first five ingredients. Beat with rotary beater until batter is perfectly smooth. Dry the fish filelts well and after the batter has stood for about 15 minutes dip the fillets in it, let surplus batter drain off, and fry in deep fat at 350 deg. Fahr. until brown and crisp. Serve as soon as possible with

✧ ✧ ✧

Sauce for French Fried Fish (or Shrimps or Oysters): 1 cup chili sauce, ½ cup catsup, ¼ cup prepared horseradish and 2 teaspoons Worcestershire Sauce.

If desired you may substitute ¼ cup of the chili sauce with 2 tablespoons lemon juice, and a little tabasco sauce may be added. This is a good all-purpose sauce for fish.

FUNNY BUSINESS -- By Hershberger

"What's the difference? You burn the toast every morning, don't you?"

DOROTHY DIX

Too Many People Expect Too Much from Marriage

DEAR MISSS DIX: The great trouble with marriage is that both men and women expect too much of it. I saw that clearly thirty-eight years ago when I was a young man, and I said to myself: "If one is, in general, a little better off all along the line when married than when single, then marriage is a success. I will expect no more of it than that." Result: Never the slightest disappointment or letdown. Expecting too much of marriage is comparable to having a play, a book, or a person overpraised beforehand. Disappointment is a mathematical certainty. Those who expect too much forget that dreams never come true. W. T. I.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Right you are, Mr. W. T. I. The main trouble with marriage is that both men and women expect the impossible of it, and when their expecations are not realized, and their venture does not pay 100 per cent in happiness they consider it a failure and refuse to recognize that after all they are getting a fair dividend in comfort and ease and helpfulness on their investment.

Nothing Is Perfect

It is a strange thing that marriage is the only thing in the world in which people expect to get absolute perfection. In everything else they are prepared to find defects and to accept them philosophically. They know they can take no journey without having to put up with inconveniences and adapt themselves to travel conditions. They know that when they enter into a partnership they will have to adjust themselves to the peculiarities and prejudices of the party of the other part. They know that there are losses and worries and disappointments in every undertaking. They know that you have to take people "as is" and make the best of them.

But they expect to make the matrimonial voyage under sunny skies and with favoring winds and with never a cloud to mar it. They expect their domestic partners to always yes-yes them and never consider that they have a right to any say-so in the firm, or to any share in the profits except what they choose to give. They expect marriage to give them nothing but happiness and prosperity and are never prepared for the trials and tribulations and sickness and bills and sacrifices it brings. And they expect those they marry to change into just the kind of people they wish them to be instead of what they are.

So it is no wonder that so many people are disappointed in marriage. They are looking for miracles and miracles never happen.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: Should a couple deny themselves children because of their financial situation when they want them more than anything else in the world and the waiting seems so long? My husband and I are 22 and we have been married nearly two years. We have nothing saved up and are paying on our furniture, but we expect to be out of debt by the end of this year. My husband hates bing in debt and thinks we should wait until we are even with the world before we have a child. Is it always better to wait until you can afford a baby?

MOTHERLESS WIFE

ANSWER: Evidently you have a mother complex that amounts to an obsession, so I should say be a sport and take a chance on the baby. Lots of us were born into families that couldn't afford us, yet somehow some way, we got fed and clothed and educated and given our chance in the world.

It can be done. It has been done millions of times. And if it imposed heavy burdens and called for many sacrifices on our parents' part, they never complained. And sometimes they have got their reward and the child that shouldn't have been born according to any dictate of prduence, grew up into a man or woman who was a blessing to the world and an honor to the father and mother who took a chance on it.

If we waited until we could guarantee the future and be sure that everything would be safe, we should never do anything at all, much less bring chialdren into a world that is full of uncertainty. No man knows what a day may bring forth. Everything may go to pot, but on the other hand, we are just as likely to have good luck as bad. You pay your money and you take your choice, and who shall say that a baby is not worth all its costs?

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: At what age is a girl considered an old maid and at what age is a man considered an old bachelor?

THREE OLD MAIDS

ANSWER: These terms are virtually obsolete. Men and women are spoken of as young or old, but they are not put into any particular class because they are not married. The nearest definition that I can give is to say that a woman is an old maid when she gives up hope of marrying, and a man is an old bachelor when he determines not to marry, and these states of mind may be arrived at at any age.

Dinner Honors Ontario Women

TORONTO, Feb. 27 — (CP).— Ontario women serving in public capacities were guests of honor Monday night at a dinner sponsored by five international women's service clubs.

Mrs. Ellen Fairclough, only woman member of the House of Commons and one of the guests of honor, told the gathering that Canadian communities need the energy of women with a purpose.

"They need us in every phase of community and home life to train our children and to preserve a heritage," said Mrs. Fairclough, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Hamilton West.

Despite the increasing number of welfare tasks being taken over by the various levels of government and by service clubs, women can play an important part by giving a personal touch to such work, she said.

Just Some Bombs...

MUROC, Calif., Feb. 27 (AP) —Night flashes high in the sky over this area were disclosed today to have been photo-flash bombs of as much as 1,000,000,000 candlepower. Spokesmen at Edwards air force base here said the illuminating bombs could be seen as far as 300 miles away under ideal conditions. They are dropped in multiple series at altitudes ranging up to 30,000 feet.

Norwood Driver Unquestionably Drunk; 7 Days

"I would unquestionably find this man guilty of drunk driving on the facts," Magistrate W. R. Philp K.C., said in police court today when he sentenced William R. Andrews, Norwood, to seven days in jail.

Provincial Constable James Healey testified that he and Constable Russell Pollard arrested Andrews on Highway 7 at the Indian River turn about three a.m. Feb. 18. He said that driving along the highway toward Peterborough about seven miles west of Norwood, he saw car tracks in the fresh falling snow on the highway.

Wrong Way to Norwood

The tracks travelled from side to side on the highway. About a mile along, the police cruiser caught up to Andrews' car and followed it about a mile. It was weaving from the north to the south side of the highway all the way, around curves and over hills.

They stopped the accused and Constable Pollard asked him "Where are you going?"

Andrews replied "Norwood." He was then driving west toward Peterborough. Constable Healey testified he then asked Andrews where Norwood was. Andrews mumbled something and then pointed up the highway toward Peterborough.

The constables asked Andrews to walk in a straight line to the police cruiser. He staggered from side to side as much as four to six feet. Constable Pollard said Andrews had his hands in his pockets and so he asked him to take his hands out of his pockets and walk toward his own car. He still staggered.

Trevor E. Clarke, defending Andrews asked Constable Pollard: "'Where are you going" could quite easily have been mistaken from for 'where are you from', couldn't it?"

The constable said he thought there was no possibility of his questioned being misinterpreted.

Slept After Supper

Andrews said in his own defence that the afternoon of the day before, he had had "a few pints of beer" with his father and Gordon Murphy between 3:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m. After supper, he and Murphy slept until about 9:30 p.m.

They had a pint of beer and left to visit Jack Andrews, a brother of the accused. But Jack Andrews wasn't home and after waiting for him about one hour, they went to a restaurant and had a sandwich and a coffee. Returning to his brother's, they sat about and each drank one pint of beer.

About 2:00 p.m. Andrews drove Murphy home and then set out for Peterborough to stay the weekend with another brother. On the way he stopped at Leslie Gallagher's service station and bought $2 worth of gas after waking up Gallagher.

When he was stopped by the police, he thought they asked him where he was from. He told them Norwood. Then Constable Pollard said to him "No you're not, you're going to Peterborough."

He tried to explain the misunderstanding, but they asked him to walk to the police cruiser. He said he had his hands in his pockets and his head down because of the snow falling and the shining headlights of the cruiser.

"I wouldn't say I was staggering," he stated. "I wasn't drunk," he said. Murphy, his brother Jack, and Gallagher corroborated his evidence in so far as they knew it.

Breadman Slips On Ice Suffers Concussion

A Campbellford breadman, Donald Keir, 42, slipped on a patch of ice and landed in Peterborough Civic Hospital Monday with a concussion and a fractured left collar bone.

He was reported today to be resting comfortably.

He was putting some bread in the rear of the delivery truck when he slipped on a patch of ice, and fell.

NEEDS IRRIGATION

Because of scanty rainfall the province of West Punjab in India depends on irrigation canals for its harvests.

BOLSTERED BY A SUPPLY OF HEAVY MATERIAL and the use of battle-tested troops, the Allied drive, dubbed "Operation Killer" on the Wonju front in Korea, has made substantial progress, despite muddy terrain. Here can be seen troops, guns and other U.N. equipment moving along the main highway as the offensive got under way.

United Church Warned WatchSmugness

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP)—The Rev. R. C. Chalmers, professor of Systematic Theology at St. Andrew's College, Saskatoon, warns the United Church of Canada that "We must beware of becoming a respectable middle class group, smug and complacent in our outlook."

In a report to be presented Wednesday at the annual meeting of the church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service, Dr. Chalmers said:

"As a church, we are in duty bound to administer to all classes. We must avoid being socially parochial. We must not be afraid to offend the genteel by venturing forth on new paths of Evangelism or promoting some new line of Christian Social Endeavour."

Dr. Chalmers' report was made public today along with others by the Rev. W. G. Berry, associate secretary of the board, and the Rev. Dr. Hugh Dobson, retiring associate secretary.

Mr. Berry, suggesting that the United Church seriously consider its practical Evangelistic effort, said: "I am convinced that the genius of the United Church is more for that type of quiet, sincere personal approach than it is for the larger and perhaps more publicized type of appeal, even though both have their place within our church."

Dr. Dobson, in his final report to the board, said there is no "saving health" in Canada or through the United Nations without the gospel of God.

Brockville Man Stole Car

William Ross Gallaher, Brockville, pleaded guilty in Police Court Monday to a charge of stealing a car owned by Michael Caravaggie from the Davis garage on Charlotte Street February 3. He was remanded for sentence to Friday.

Alien J. Durant, Toronto, also charged with theft of the car, chose trial by a higher court. The preliminary hearing was set for Friday.

Detective-Sergeant John Stevenson testified that after the car was stolen, the Peterborough Police Department sent out a circular notifying other departments of the theft.

February 8, the department here was notified by the Port Hope police that Gallaher had been arrested while in the town with the car. Durant and a Gladys Lang were in the car with him.

Gallaher told the Port Hope police he had just picked up the two as he was driving from Ottawa and they released the man and woman. Gallaher at first said he had stolen the car in Toronto as well as a set of plates to put on the car.

When suestioned by Detective-Sergeant W. A. Clarke, Gallaher admitted he had stolen the car from Peterborough.

Detective Stevenson said the 1947 model car, worth about $1,600, had had the motor burned out by Gallaher.

Final Project 326 Houses Built Cost To City $97,300

The land and municipal services for the 326 houses comprising the two final projects completed here by Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation cost the city $194,600.60. Of that amount the Ontario government assumed one half, or $97,300.30 as shown in a statement received at the board of works Monday night.

Of that contribution toward housing costs, the government had previously paid $60,407.24, leaving $36,893.06 now payable.

City Clerk Outram recalled that the city bought the properties required for those two blocks of houses, one of 226, and the last an additional 100 units, all of which have been occupied since their completion. The city also provided streets and sewers and sidewalks. Central Mortgage assumed the immediate costs, and thereby advanced to the city the sum of $186,311.51. Add to that the $97,300.30 aid from the government, and the funds obtained from those two sources amounted to $283,611.81.

Against that substantial sum, the city expended $194,660.60, leaving a debt of $89,011.21 to Central Mortgage and Housing.

Payments Over 10 Years

Payment by the city of that indebtedness to Central Mortgage is being spread over 10 years. The annual amount payable by the city is deducted from the annual taxes which Central Mortgage has to pay the city on the 326 houses. Actually, there is none of the Provincial Government's money flowing directly into the city treasury except through that agreed policy of settlement with Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

It may be recalled that in its offer of new housing aid, the Government promised to bear one-half the cost of land and services up to a total of $600 a lot.

There were two housing projects, 226 in the major undertaking plus a final round number of 100. At one stage of discussion it was proposed that they be considered as being separate, but the Council decided to bulk the two together. The result was that the cost per lot of the one was more than the unit cost on the other, but the average for the 326 was $596.93, and the Government paid half that amount.

By lumping the two projects into one, Mr. Outram remarked, the Council effected a saving on the whole of approximately $4,000 more than if they had been considered separately.

That is just a detail of the financing of the concluding engagement with Central Mortgage. More recently, the corporation suggested that the outstanding debt against the city be cleared off, but the Council decided to retain the annual payment method of amortization, already explained. Just to repeat, this yearly amount of reduction of the $89,011.21 due Central Mortgage is simply taken by them out of the annual tax total on the houses levied by the city.

Break-in Try Foiled By Police

An attempt was made Monday night to break into the Riverside Inn on River Rd., but it was apparently interrupted by police.

Constable Dennis Traynor reported that in the early hours of the morning, he was checking property in the south end. He saw the light out in front of the inn and went to check the door.

When he went to the back of the building he saw that an outer door had been forced and there was an imprint of a foot on the wall beside the door. Apparently someone had attempted to pull the door open by bracing himself against the wall.

As Constable Traynor was looking at the door he heard a noise in a field behind him and turned around to see a man running away.

With two other constables, he checked the area, but found no sign of the would-be thief.

Two Legislatures Debate Public Ownership Merits

By The Canadian Press

The question of public ownership occupied two of the six provincial legislatures sitting Monday.

The Alberta Legislature heard provincial C.C.F. leader Elmer E. Roper criticize the Social Credit government for not placing rural electrification under public ownership, while in the British Columbia legislature a member suggested the government sell the publicly - owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

At Victoria, H. J. Welch (CLN—Comox) suggested sale of the government-owned P.G.E., which runs from Squamish, at the head of Howe Sound, to Quesnel, in the interior of the Cariboo district.

Mr. Welch also said the financial structure of the line should be revamped with the debt written off and charged to colonization.

"It has been suggested by railway experts that if the road were completed into Vancouver and north to Prince George it would have a ready sale at a price of approximately $65,000,000," said Mr. Welch.

Only Nibbling

Mr. Roper, entering the debate in reply to the Throne Speech at Edmonton, charged that the Alberta government was only nibbling at the problem of rural electrification when it should be far ahead because of Alberta's unlimited coal and natural gas resources. He urged the government to acquire control of Alberta's power resources and set up a provincial power system.

Health and education problems occupied sittings of the two remaining western legislatures.

Arnold W. Loehr (L—Humboldt) proposed in the Saskatchewan Legislature that patients admitted to the province's hospitals be required to make some payment in addition to their annual hospitalization tax paid under the hospital services plan. Until that was done, he said, current overcrowding would not be remedied.

Education Problems

At Winnipeg, Errick F. Willis, Progressive Conservative opposition leader, suggested federal aid to education, higher salaries for teachers and government assistance in capital construction costs were needed in Manitoba. He made the proposals during examination of the education department's estimated $6,643,152 expenditures for 1951-52.

On Canada's Atlantic seaboard, the Nova Scotia legislature heard J. W. Macdonald (L—Pictou East) urge further consideration of the province's farming and mining industries. He urged the government to give greater attention to the sheep raising industry and to a program of research for production of oil from coal.

E. W. Urquhart (L—Richmond) told the legislature that an agreement had been signed between the government and Booth Fisheries Canadian Limited for the building of a cold storage plant in his constituency. This, he said, would be a boon to fishermen, backbone of hte riding's economy.

18 People Doomed To Die Volunteer As Guinea Pigs

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Feb. 27—(AP) — Eighteen persons, who doctors say are doomed to die, were selected today as volunteer guinea pigs in a research experiment which may produce a cure for the fatal disease, muscular dystrophy.

The research is being conducted by the B'nai Brith's Leo N. Levi Memorial Hospital at Hot Springs, Ark.

J. A. Robinson, chairman of the budget and finance department of B'nai B'rith, national Jewish welfare organization, said the volunteers were chosen from among 300 applicants from all over the country.

Their plight is the same as that of New York's four Godfrey brothers and the six Baird brothers of Philadelphia.

The muscles slowly waste away. The body becomes flabby. The victim eventually is crippled. With his resistance lowered, he becomes easy prey for other diseases.

Robinson said hundreds of letters began pouring into his office after publication of stories about the Godfreys and Bairds.

"They all wanted help," Robinson related, "and the job of selection was a tough one."

Robinson outlined the research program this way:

Doctors know that diseases such as muscular dystrophy and multiple sclerosis are caused by functional deficiencies. Blood chemistry shows what those deficiencies are. The problem is to produce in the laboratory a substnace which will replace what the body lacks.

"We think we have it," Robinson said.

The formula already has been patented, he added, and plans are in the works to have it produced commercially. He said a description will be published in medical journals April 1.

The formula is completely under the control of B'nai B'rith. The hospital, Robinson said, is non-profit.

Adjudicator Praises Festival Play

MONTREAL, Feb. 27 —(CP)— The five-day Western Quebec Regional Drama Festival got under way here Monday night, and adjudicator Robert G. Newton summed up a three-act farce by Les Compagnons De St. Laurent by saying: "it was very clearly done and the characters were well contrasted."

Les Compagnons, a French-speaking theatre group from Montreal, received four curtain calls from an enthusiastic audience for their performance of Andre Obey's "Les Gueux Au Paradis" (The Beggars at the Gates of Heaven).

Mr. Newton thought the play not so much of a farce as life on a somewhat - exaggerated plane but the piece was "well played. The change of scenery was very good."

The play, an adaption from the Flemish by contemporary playwright Obey, revolves around two bon vivant Flemish heroes, supposed to have been killed when struck by an automobile.

Mend Their Ways

They visit the lower regions, are taken to the heavenly kingdom and then find out, after encountering a number of personalities, that they were not killed at all. However, they decide to mend their ways and live exemplary lives.

The title roles are played by Guy Hoffman as Boule, proprietor of "The Fertile Cow" inn, and Yves Letourneau, Boule's companion, Rietje. Mr. Newton found Boule "lived the part. He loved life. He was very, very good." Rietje was "very well characterized and there was much colos in his movements." Majority of other roles were described as "very well played."

The festival continues tonight with the McGill Arena wing's presentation of "Naked," an Italian play by Luigi Pirandello.

In all, six companies, three English - speaking and three French - speaking, will stage presentations.

Record Wage Year

DETROIT, Feb. 27.—(AP) — General Motors paid a record $1,809,218,043 last year in wages and salaries. This compared with $1,440,690,450 in 1949. Announcing this prior to distribution of its 1950 annual report, the corporation said it was due largely to a greater number of employees on GM's payrolls working steadily and with substantial amounts of overtime.

Iron Out Mineral Problems At Convention

By FORBES RHUDE,
Canadian Press Business Editor.

Speeding up of production of strategic metals and minerals will be a major concern at a joint gathering in Toronto March 4-7 of the Prospectors and Developers Association and the Geological Association of Canada.

Uranium, iron, oil, asbestos, base metals and gold will be principal subjects of discussion. There will be a "special message to prospectors of war metals" from F. V. C. Hewett, recently-appointed director of non-ferrous metals, Ottawa, while George Prudham, Federal Minister of Mines, will speak on "the Federal government and the mining industry."

A feature on the program will be a description, with slides, of a 3,000-year-old gold mine, now re-opened in Egypt and showing evidence of expert prospecting 1,000 years before the Christian era.

Still on the subject of mining, the Ontario Mining Association has issued a well-illustrated 48-page booklet called "The Tools Our Miners Use." One of its objects is to show how production, markets and the people employed in many different industries depend on one another's progress. It is a successor to previous publications, "The Miner at Home" and "The Miner at Work" and it outlines a half-century's improvements in techniques in recovering mineral wealth.

Production Inadequate

The current analysis of business conditions by the Canadian Credit Men's Trust Association says general business activity during the year will undoubtedly be maintained at a high level. And it has this to say about production:

"Prior to the war, production was no problem and the available supply of goods and services exceeded the effective demand. In recent years the contrary has been the case, as evidenced by the continuous rise in the price level.

"While our productive capacity has increased substantially, it has not kept pace with the distribution of purchasing power. The diversion of manpower, materials, machinery and money to preparedness will intensify the problem. Controls are at best but a temporary solution and they would in no way increase production, rather the reverse."

Gives Health Report On 3 Cabinet Men

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP). — A health report on three Ontario cabinet ministers was made by Premier Frost in the Legislature Monday. All have been laid low by influenza.

Municipal Affairs Minister Dunbar has been quite ill, the Premier said, but is progressing. Highways Minister Doucett, out for more than a week, is doing well and is expected to be back in action by mid-week. George Challies, Minister Without Portfolio and vice-chairman of the Liquor Control Board, is a recent victim of a mild form of flu.

Wool Is Grand Bonanza To The New Zealand Farmer

By J. C. GRAHAM

AUCKLAND, N.Z. — (CP) — The amazing spurt in wool prices this season has produced some remarkable anomalies in New Zealand farming practice.

Since the wool crop has turned to gold newspapers are recording many sidelights. At present there are more than 15 sheep to every person in New Zealand, and the proportion will rise higher if wool prices stay at their present level.

Farmers now are getting more for "crutchings," the poorer lines that once could hardly be given away, than they got only one or two seasons ago for the finest fleece wools.

Gather Wool Scraps

Small boys are occasionally making $60 or more a week by sale of wool scraps, collected from fences, trees and scrapings of wool trucks.

One wool sale in Auckland this year realized more than the total amount from all sales last year, and last year's sales had set a record. All sales in Auckland alone this year have totalled about $37,000,000 with more to come.

Wool farmers however have one-third of their receipts "frozen" by the government at an anti-inflation measure, to be freed at some future time.

One result of the boom is a decline in receipts of lambs at stockyards. Farmers are keeping them as long as possible to grow more wool. More farmers are also expected to change over from dairy farming to sheep breeding if present prices continue.

VLA Conference In Belleville

BELLEVILLE, Feb. 27. (CP)—Food is an important weapon of war and Canada's food-production potential can help win much-needed friends in other countries, Brig. T. J. Rutherford of Ottawa, director of the Veterans Land Act, said Monday.

He spoke at the opening of a VLA "Good Earth" conference attended by 50 officials, here to learn how they can help war veterans achieve success on their farms and small holdings. The supervisors came from the eastern Ontario region which takes in the central part of the province as far west as Oakville. There are some 7,500 veterans settled in the district, 5,000 as part-time farmers on small holdings and another 2,500 as full-time farmers. Public investment on their behalf is more than $42,000,000.

The soil is the best bank into which to put money now, said Brig. Rutherford as he outlined the VLA development program for this year. It stresses the fundamentals of agriculture and particularly grassland programs.

He proposed reorganization of farm life to make it more attractive to young people.

Western Wins Drama Honors

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 27 (CP)—The University of Western Ontario came up with another winning performance tonight to earn top honors in the Inter-Varsity Drama Festival.

Production of Eugene O'Neil's "The Rope" was awarded first place in the seven college drama competition by adjudicator William Hutt, of Toronto.

Western retains the London Free Press Trophy, won last year at Kingston, which goes to the festival's best production.

Western also shared top acting honors at the festival when Walter Massey was chosen as the leading male actor for his part in "The Rope." Jane Catterson of Bishop's College was awarded leading female honors for her part in "Poets for Lunch."

The play parade began early Monday afternoon with Carleton, MacDonald, Queen's and Bishop's taking part. Mr. Hutt, in his afternoon adjudication, said he found all four plays interesting.

Mr. Hutt filled in as adjudicator for the festival after Donald Davis of Peterborough, who was originally scheduled to be adjudicator, became ill Sunday.

10% Of Special Force Discharged MP's Told

OTTAWA, Feb. 27—(CP)—The Defence Department disclosed Monday that 1,006 members of the army's special force—roughly 10 per cent of its manpower total—have been discharged.

The last figure for the total strength of the force was about 10,300 men. It was recruited during a few weeks last August to back Canada's international obligations.

Those discharged included 1,003 other ranks and three officers. The figures were tabled in the Commons.

CHAMPLAIN PORTRAIT — This artist's conception of Samuel de Champlain, founder of Quebec and first governor of New France, is still thought popularly to represent the famed 17th-century explorer. It was drawn by Ducornet in France 100 years ago and somehow passed as the real picture of Champlain. It appears in several historical and school books. Although historians have proved there is no known authentic portrait of Champlain, many paintings and busts have been made from it.

Historian Claims Champlain Wrote Trip He Didn't Make

By RICHARD DAIGNAULT

QUEBEC, Feb. 27 (CP)—Champlain, 17th century explorer who founded Quebec in 1608, and who through his writings is one of the well-known figures in American history, may have written about a trip he never made.

This and other disconcerting suggestions were presented recently by author Jean Bruchesi to a handful of historians and archivists who read "Les Cahiers Des Dix"—a Quebec historial review.

Historian Bruchesi in a paper entitled 'Champlain a-t-il menti?' (did Champlain lie?) comes to the conclusion that the famed explorer indulged in boasting—if not worse—when he wrote his "Brief Discours." It is the account of an expedition Champlain says he led to the West Indies for the king of Spain in 1599.

Mr. Bruchesi's report has come as a shock to Quebec scholars who regard "the father of New France" as a man of high moral qualities. The Jesuit "Relations", says that when Champlain died "there was a new arrival in heaven."

Pure Invention

Mr. Bruchesi recalls that Champlain's birth date is uncertain (1567 or 1570); his parents indicated only by his marriage certificate; there is no certainty into what religion he was baptized; Champlain's popularly - known portrait is pure invention.

Though it does not touch on it, the article reminded Quebecers that Champlain's place of burial here is unknown.

The work questioned by Mr. Bruchesi is a small holograph volume illustrated with Champlain's own paintings found 100 years ago in the private archives of a citizen at Dieppe, France. It now is in the John Carter-Brown Library, Providence, R.I.

The questioned work by Champlain, Mr. Buchesi says, was minutely scrutinized by historians in search of material on Champlain's youth.

Finds No Trace

Mr. Bruchesi, following up the doubtful elements in the hope of establishing definitely Champlain's origins, could find no trace in historical records of some persons, one of them an "uncle" of Champlain, mentioned in the book.

It has been established that the real captain of the ship which Champlain claims to have commanded was a seafarer named Guillermo Eleno.

But, Mr. Bruchesi writes, Champlain himself tells of a Guillaume Elaine who gave him documents in Spain in 1601.

Mr. Bruchesi's conclusion is that Elaine and Eleno are the same person, and it was from him that Champlain obtained the information for his account of the voyage to the West Indies.

This deduction, Mr. Bruchesi concludes, "explains the contradictions, indeed the 'lies' discovered in the 'Brief Discours.'"

Winnie's Candy Stops Debate

LONDON (CP) — A solemn debate on Britain's new defence program was interrupted by one of those soft candies known in Britain as ju-jubes.

Hugh Gaitskell, chancellor of the exchequer, stopped a speech he was making in the House of Commons. Laughing back-benchers had directed his attention to Conservative Leader Winston Churchill.

The wartime prime minister was clapping his hands against his chest as if trying to find something he had lost. He had tried to pop a lozenge in his mouth and missed.

Churchill rose to reassure Gaitskell: "I was only looking for a ju-jube."

"Sorry, can't help you," said the chancellor. "I left mine outside."

32 Officers To Tour Army Installations

TORONTO, Feb. 27 (CP). — Thirty-two senior officers of the three Canadian services, the RAF and the United States Air Force left Monday by air on a two-week tour of army installations in Western Canada and Alaska.

The tour, a part of their training course at the RCAF staff college here, will take them to Rivers, Man., Edmonton, Whitehorse, Y.T., and points in Alaska and the Canadian Arctic.

McCallum Declares CNE Offer Old Rumor

TORONTO, Feb, 27 — (CP) — Mayor Hiram McCallum Monday night described as "an old rumor" a report he has ben offered the job of general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition.

The mayor said he was offered the post a year ago but added that there was "no possibility" that he would retire as mayor to take it on this year. His term of office expires next December.

Korean Casualties For 10 Countries Now Total 2,813

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Feb. 28—(AP)—Figures available today show that 10 countries fighting beside American and South Korean troops have suffered 2,813 casualties. This is about one-twelfth of the approximately 35,322 men they have sent to the Korean war. The United States has suffered 49,191 casualties. Gen. Omar Bradley, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, said this week that the U.S. has sent over 250,000 ground troops to Korea.

Three other countries with men in Korea—Belgium, Luxembourg, and Thailand — had no casualty figures.

Turkey, whose 5,000-man brigade has won international renown for its daring, had the highest total—948 casualties—but France suffered the worst in percentage. A third of the 1,122-man French contingent—374 men—are casualties.

Give Breakdown

A breakdown, compiled from a survey of UN deglegations with troops in Korea, follows:

Australia: 1,000 men serving; 48 killed, 209 wounded, six missing, 2 prisoners of war. Total 265. These figures are as of Feb. 18.

Canada: No official figures available since Canadian troops went into action only last Wednesday. Press reports show three dead and three wounded of the 2,600-man force.

France: 1,122 men, 44 killed, 201 wounded, three missing, 126 out of action through illness or accident for a total of 374. Figures as of Feb. 17.

Greece: 1,000 men in Korea; 20 killed; 45 wounded, one missing. Total 66. Figures as of Feb. 18.

Netherlands: 700 men in Korea and 600 reinforcements en route; 24 killed, two missing, 76 wounded. Total 102. A spokesman said unofficial figures are 135 casualties, but confirmation of this had not been received.

New Zealand: About 500 men; two killed, one drowned at sea, one died of illness, three wounded. Total seven as of Feb. 21.

Philippines: 1,200 men in Korea. 150 casualties not broken down into categories.

Turkey: 5,000 serving; 298 killed, 200 missing, 450 wounded. Total 948. These figures were before the last UN offensive.

United Kingdom: 22,000 serving; 145 killed, 442 wounded, 244 missing, 61 prisoners. Total 892. These figures were read in the House of Commons Feb. 21.

Union of South Africa: 200 men in Korea; one dead, two missing. Figures as of Feb. 27.

Pleven Offers Resignation Second Time

PARIS, Feb. 28 (AP)—Premier Rene Pleven went to Elysee Palace tonight to offer his resignation to President Vincent Auriol.

Pleven acted after the Lower House of Parliament appeared hopelessly deadlocked over what kind of changes to make in the French election laws.

Pleven tried similarly to resign Tuesday night but Auriol refused to accept.

The premier acted after a hurried cabinet meeting called after the assembly spurned a single ballot system of voting for next fall's scheduled general election.

The Lower House of the National Assembly turned down the single-ballot system by a vote of 311 to 295. This was a proposal supported by the Catholic Mouvement Republicain Populaire (MRP), one of the three major parties in the Pleven Coalition. The MRP has insisted upon elections on one day only, with no runoffs the following week such as in the 1946 elections.

Before the Lower House vote, the Socialists made a surprise switch, and announced it favored the single ballot proposition — but only to ovoid a Cabinet crisis at this time.

Pleven offered his resignation Tuesday night because, although he had won a victory in a vote on confidence on whether the election issue should be debated, the margin was so slim as to leave him badly weakened. President Vincent Auriol, a Socialist, refused to accept the resignation and told Pleven to try again today to patch up the Cabinet differences.

The MRP abstained in Tuesday's vote. Without the Catholic Party's 150 deputies, the tally for the government was only 243 to 216. Without MRP support the government falls far short of winning a decisive majority—311 votes — of the Assembly's total membership. Legally, the margin won Tuesday could have kept Pleven in office, but the vote was considered a moral defeat.

Suspend Chief At Welland

WELLAND, Feb. 28 (CP) — Mayor Dave Thomas of Welland said Tuesday that Police Chief Tom Gee has been under suspension since Monday "for a reason that may be given tomorrow after a special police commission meeting."

Magistrate George Street, a member of the commission, said the meeting "will discuss the position" of Chief Gee.

The chief was not in his office Tuesday.

In Toronto, Commissioner W. H. Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police said Inspector Charles Wood of the provincial police has made an investigation into the Welland police situation.

Blarney Stone Owner Dies In Ireland

BLARNEY CASTLE, County Cork, Ireland, Feb. 28 (AP)— Sir George Oliver Colthurst, fox-hunting owner of the famous Blarney Stone, died today at 68.

He owned more than 30,000 acres of real estate, including the castle where he lived.

The Blarney Stone, which is supposed to confer the gift of eloquence on anyone who kisses it, is built into one of the castle's 120-foot towers. It is reached by climbing to the top of the tower and hanging head downward.

The castle was built in 1446. Origin of the legend about the stone is unknown, but it has been worn smooth by hundreds of thousands of kisses through the years.

Aid Starving Koreans

TOKYO, Feb. 28 (Reuters)— A shipment of rice and medical supplies left here today for two small islands off the North Korean coast where 30,000 southern refugees are slowly starving to death on a diet of roots.

The refugees fled to the offshore islands from Inchon and the Seoul area ahead of Chinese troops. A South Korean naval liaison officer reported that starvation and disease has already killed many. Hundreds of others are in a critical condition.

FIELD CONTROL—Patricias in Korea now in active combat show two soldiers controlling mortar fire by inter-company radio. Pte. Frank Cox of Peterborough, holds the set while CSM. Glen Laird of Calgary calls the shots.

Fire Lighting Tests Show London Times Burns Nicely

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(CP).—A series of letters to the editor about the combustibility of The Times, London, has started something like a trans-Atlantic fire-lighting contest, but pseudo-scientists' tests in New York indicate little difference between "The Thunderer" and its dignified American counterpart, The New York Times, as kindling.

It all started last week when a subscriber wrote The Times in London complaining that the newspaper was useless for fire lighting. He threatened that he would "without compunction" subscribe to another newspaper.

Immediately other readers sprang to the defence of "The Thunderer." One of them, Lady Balfour of Burleigh, wrote that "The Times burns beautifully, and by its very quality can be made to form a hard core which replaces and saves wood."

The New York Times, which reported on the controversy, decided to make comparisons and published the results today in tongue-in-cheek fashion.

Samuel Phelps, a New York Times watchman, made the tests in the press room Tuesday night. The New York newspaper reported that the London paper appeared to burn as fast as the American one and quoted Watchman Phelps' sage opinion that either paper might be used to start a fire of any desired size.

Phelps carried the tests even farther using the Communist Daily Worker, and the Times said:

"An additional test with newsprint of the New York Daily Worker, sometimes regarded as an inflammatory paper, revealed no significant difference in burning quality."

BEVIN BACK ON JOB

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP). — Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin, ill for more than a month, will get back into harness Thursday. Bevin, who will be 70 March 9, is returning to London after a week's convalescence at the seaside resort of Eastbourne.

Russians Help In Czech Purge

GENEVA, Feb. 28 (AP)—Czech refugee circles here today reported the presence in Prague of two Russian politburo members during the last three weeks of arrests and purges in Czechoslovakia's ruling Communist party.

Quoting underground sources in their homeland, the refugees said L. P. Beria, Soviet secret police head, had visited the Czechoslovakia state police school at Kolodeje castle near Prague Feb. 12, during the questioning there of former foreign minister Vlado Clementis.

Arrest of Cementis and four other top Czechoslovakian Communists was announced in Prague Tuesday. They were charged with a "Titoist" plot to kill Communist President Klement Gottwald and seize control of the country and its Communist party.

The refugee sources also reported that Georgi M. Malenkov, another high-ranking member of the Soviet politburo, at a meeting in Prague Feb. 20 of the Czech Comunist party's central committee, sharply criticized "insufficient" Czech exports to the Soviet Union as well as security measures within the satellite country.

Canada Expected To Assume Operational Naval Control

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Canada is expected to assume operational naval control over a large area of the North Atlantic in any new war.

But Ottawa has agreed that over-all control of the North Atlantic, including the Canadian area and Canadian ships, should come under one man, American Admiral W. M. Fechteler.

This is a new concept to the larger Atlantic Pact concept that defence of the whole North Atlantic area—land and sea—is one job. It has caused turmoil and friction in London, spearheaded by Winston Churchill's charges against the Labor government of failing to uphold the "Britannia Rules the Waves" tradition.

There has been no similar disturbance here, although Ottawa has been watching the London developments with interest because Canada's position is not unlike that of Britain. But there appears to be a prevailing feeling, at least in naval circles, that even if it means some sacrifice of national sovereignty it is wise to have defence of the Atlantic under a single man.

If war comes, Russia's concentration of submarines, more numerous and deadly than Hitler's U-boats, is bound to make the North Atlantic even a worse battleground than in the last war. For that reason, Canada now is building a 100-ship anti-sub navy.

The core of the London dispute appears to be that the new system of command gives to an American the power, at least in theory, to take British ships away from defence of the British Isles and place them elsewhere for strategic reasons. The same situation applies to Canada.

The picture, as shaping up now after prolonged but not final discussions among the pact powers, is that a Canadian admiral at Halifax will be given operational control over a great sweep of the Atlantic. That means any Allied ships coming into that area would come under his direction.

Court Dismisses Yuzwa Appeal

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP)—Ontario Court of Appeal Tuesday dismissed the appeal of William Yuzwa of Hamilton against a six-year sentence for manslaughter in the knife-slaying of William John Loucks, 36, of Lindsay, who died on Lindsay's main street after a wild street fight Nov. 18, 1949.

In its ruling, the Appeal Court described the sentence as "very light" and said it had no reason to doubt the findings of the jury that convicted Yuzwa.

The appeal marked the third time the case had come before the courts. The defence based its appeal on what it termed "serious discrepancies" in evidence of crown witnesses.

U.S. Will Take Over Biggest Italian Base

ROME, Feb. 28 (AP). — The United States probably will take over the biggest air base in Italy and one of the strongest naval bases in Italian waters as part of the Atlantic Pact co-ordination of defences, it was learned today.

Both American and Italian military sources declined to give the specific locations, but it is presumed here the air base will be at Foggia, near the heel of the Italian boot, and the naval base at the little fortress island of Maddalena off the northern tip of Sardinia.

Residents Flee Burning Bldg.

TORONTO, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Five persons were rescued today and occupants of 49 apartment suites fled when a two-alarm fire swept through the Vaughan Gardens apartments in suburban York township. One fireman was injured.

Screaming, hysterical women fled through the smoke-filled corridors after the fire broke out at noon and raced through the four-storey building on Vaughan Road, just northwest of the city limits. City firemen responded to a township appeal.

Four persons were carried down ladders and a semi-invalid was carried out by firemen. Charles Patching of the township fire department was burned about the face by a back flash fom the flames.

At 2.20 p.m. EST the blaze was still raging.

Residents said six-year-old Laird Neville aroused many to their peril by running through the hallways shouting "Fire!" Fire Chief Ernie Woods of York township said all residents escaped safely.

Seize Vital Highway From Reds

North Korean Corps Badly Mauled Commander Believes

TOKYO, Feb. 28. — (CP). — Two tough American divisions today seized control of the Communists' main east-west supply highway on the central Korean front after smashing Communist defences around Pangnim.

The 2nd and 7th Divisions commanded an eight-mile stretch of the road from Pangnim to Hoengsong, 28 miles to the west. The 7th division pushed into muddy, unmapped mountains after the fleeing Reds.

It was the major ground action on the rugged central front early Wednesday. South Korean amphibious forces were active on both east and west coasts. On the western front, a U.S. patrol entered Seoul and then withdrew to allied lines south of the Han River.

The major objective of the powerful American punch on the eastern sector of the central front was to kill Reds, the goal since the limited offensive began Jan. 25.

Vital To Reds

But the real estate won by the 7th was vital to the Communists. The Pangnim-Hoengsong road is part of the highway which cuts across the Korean peninsula from Kangnung on the east coast to Seoul, rubbled old republic capital near the west coast.

Maj.-Gen. Claude B. Ferenbaugh, commander of the 7th division, said the main defences of the North Korean 3rd Corps had been broken. He said the corps' losses "must be pretty close to half of them."

But the pursuing infantrymen were faced with a tough job in running down the Korean Red remnants. A division regimental commander said the region is uncharted. Its mountains are some of the craggiest in Korea.

To the west, the Chinese and Korean Reds were preparing for a stiff battle. From Hoengsong to the outskirts of Red-held Seoul they were busy throwing up defences.

RCAF Officer On Ike's Staff

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP). — Wing Cmdr. Garnet F. Jacobsen of Winnipeg and Ottawa, has been assigned to Gen. Eisenhower's staff in Paris, air force headquarters announced today.

The 34-year-old Wing Commander will leave Montreal Friday by air for his new post on the operations and planning staff.

His appointment followed closely the appointment of the first army officer to the supreme Atlantic headquarters. Maj. Allen L. Brady, 34-year-old native of France, Tuesday was raised to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel to serve as a general staff officer with Gen. Eisenhower's staff.

A bomber navigator during the Second World War, Wing Cmdr. Jacobsen flew with No. 218 RAF squadron and No. 75 New Zealand squadron, completing a tour of operations over Europe and winning the Distinguished Flying Cross.

After completing his operational flying, he served as navigation officer for No. 3 bomber group until repatriated to Canada in 1943.

Recover 20 Capsules Of Poison Out Of 200

LEEDS, England, Feb. 28 — (Reuters)—Police here have detained four boys betwen 13 and 16 years old accused of stealing 200 capsules of potassium cyanide —enough poison to wipe out thousands of this city's 500,000 population.

Today, 48 hours after the deadly capsules were stolen, police have recovered only 20 of the 200.

Loudspeaker trucks, radio announcements and movie-house warnings are being used in an effort to trace the 180 missing capsules.

Baronet Evicted

STONEHAVEN, Scotland, Feb. 28 — (Reuters) — Sir John Stuart Knill, 64-year-old Baronet, will have to leave his single rented room in a Scottish castle and seek lodgings elsewhere, a Judge ruled today. With him will go his wife, his three children, his chinchilla rabbits, his litters of Spaniel puppies, his cat and his box of mice. The kilted Baronet, reduced to such poverty that his wife, Lady Knill, went to work in a flax mill, rented the room in Lauriston Castle for £1 a week. Landlady Ida Meldrum, who owns three floors of the castle, alleged the rent had not been paid since last March.

Peron Arrests 550 Newspaper Non-Strikers

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 28 (AP) —Jailing of 550 non-striking newspaper workers after the riot-slaying of one of their number Tuesday night halted a determined attempt to get the strike-stilled presses of the independent newspaper La Prensa rolling again.

The non-striking reporters and printers had defied pistol-firing ruffians to enter the plant and resume publication of the newspaper, chief critic of President Juan D. Peron. In the melee, Roberto Nunez, a newsprint hoister, was killed and 15 other non-strikers were injured.

But before the paper could appear, police hauled the non-strikers out and carted them to jail after Police Judge Roberto Durrieu ordered their detention, ostensibly to investigate Nunez' death.

La Prensa, largest newspaper in the Spanish-speaking world, has been shut down since Jan. 26. The closure was forced by the government-backed News Vendors Union, which boycotted the paper, and by a sympathy strike of the government-supported printers' union.

Too Independent

La Prensa's editorial independence—which raised the ire of the government most recently during a strike on the government-owned railways — is acknowledged the compelling factor behind the dispute.

Among those arrested were two American employees of Time and Life magazines — Correspondent Frank Shea and Photographer Leonard MacComb. They had been taking pictures of the street fighting and in the newspaper plant. Police officials said they were being held for questioning.

Before the arrival of the United States consul-general to inquire into Shea's arrest, AP correspondent Robert Allen was ordered to leave the precinct headquarters.

Robot Speed Cop

TORONTO, Feb. 28—(CP)—A robot speed cop is going to make its appearance in Toronto. The civic works committee approved purchase of the radar device yesterday for city traffic engineer Robert Burton. He said is wasn't for speed law enforcement—just for a study on the speed at which traffic moves. The device automatically records on tape the speed at which vehicles pass it.

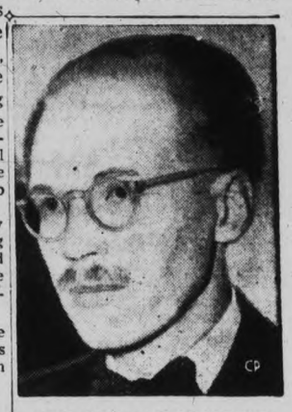
CP Reporter Says Canadians, Artillery Inflict Heavy Slaughter On Chinese, Find Many Bodies Around Enemy Dugouts



WITH THE COMMONWEALTH BRIGADE IN KOREA, Feb. 28.—Canadian troops today stormed over two vital hills in the mountainous country northeast of Chipyong. The hills, important strong points in the Chinese Communist defence system, flanked vital hill 614 which was captured in bitter fighting by Australian troops Tuesday. As a result of the Australia - Canadian advance, the Commonwealth brigade tonight held a commanding ridge line within striking distance of the main Chinese lateral supply route in the western central sector—a line which the Chinese have been fighting desperately to protect.

With the Australians firmly dug in on Hill 614 overlooking the Chinese positions, the Red defences crumbled before the Canadians, who had what amounted to a walkover victory.

Air Force planes scorched the two hills with Napalm bombs ahead of the advancing Canadian troops.

Unwilling Lad Sent To Dentist, Doesn't Go Driver Finds Him Lunchless Aboard Bus

Wayne Wannan, 7, didn't want to go to the dentist. He didn't.

He was sent from Grove Public School to the school dentist at South Central School shortly after nine a.m. Tuesday. He failed to turn up to keep his appointment.

He didn't return home for lunch. In the middle of the afternoon he was still missing. Police thought he might have gone to a movie, but a brother said he had no money, only a couple of bus tickets.

About four p.m. a bus driver stopped his bus on George St. and asked Constable Douglas Farthing whether the boy had been found. The officer said he was still missing.

"I think I have him right here," the bus driver said.

Constable Farthing took the boy off the bus and to the police station. He had the right boy, but Wayne didn't talk much.

He would only tell police his name and that he was hungry. Wayne lives at 660 Little St.

Strange Ship Alerts Chinese Air Force

TAIPEI, Formosa, Feb. 28 (AP) —The Chinese Nationalist Air Force went on an alert today when an unidentified aircraft carrier was sighted 20 miles off Formosa's east coast. But tonight the vessel was identified as British.

The identification was made by British authorities here after an inquiry to the Royal Navy at Hong Kong. The ship was not named.

A Defence Ministry spokesman earlier said the carrier was believed to be British but the alert would be continued until its identity was definitely established.

Say Legendary Gold Mine May Have Taken 30th Life

VANCOUVER, Feb. 28—(CP) A legendary gold mine, reputedly the cause of 29 deaths in the last 60 years, may have claimed its 30th victim.

Police Tuesday began a search for Alfred Gaspard, a 60-year-old prospector who has not been seen since he set out seven months ago to discover the "Lost Creek" mine in the mountainous upper reaches of the Pitt River, 45 miles north of Vancouver.

The mine is said to have been found originaly by an Indian named Slumach, who appeared in New Westminster, B.C., in 1890, with a fortune in gold. He made several trips to the mine, returning each time with another load of gold.

Slumach died on the gallows at New Westminster in 1892 after confessing to the murder of eight Indian women. He told police he took a woman to the mine with him on each trip, and killed each of them to keep its location secret.

Twenty men are said to have vanished into the mountain country in search of Slumach's mine. None returned. One American is said to have died shortly after coming back with a tale of hardship and disaster and a packload of $10,000 in gold.

RCMP began an aerial search for Gaspard last November, but bad weather turned them back. An RCMP constable and an Indian guide began a ground search Tuesday.

Gaspard was flown into the headwaters of Pitt Lake last July. Two weeks later, a plane dropped him 500 pounds of food—enough to last a bush-wise prospector about five months.

For three days prospectors watched him work his way into the rugged country. Then he disappeared.

Gun Battle Ends Hunt For Lunatic

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 28 (AP) — A gun battle on an isolated frozen lake north of the Arctic Circle Tuesday ended a hunt for an escapee from an insane asylum. He is believed to have killed two Norwegian Air Force officers.

The officers had been hunting the man identified by authorities as Torbjoern Hansen, 25, one of 10 inmates who escaped from an institution in Narvik in Northern Norway early this year.

Ski patrols found the bullet-riddled bodies Tuesday. Hansen was captured after an exchange of shots and taken into Swedish custody. Police said a detailed description of the killing of the fliers was found in a diary carried by Hansen.

New Suit Helps Cut Bank Loot

Manager Hesitates To Lie On Floor Two Bandits Flee

PICKERING, Feb. 28. — A hesitant bank manager in a new suit Tuesday kept the loot down to about $2,200 when two armed men held up the Bank of Commerce branch here just before three o'clock.

The two men walked into the bank at 7 minutes to three, and told the teller, Mrs. Muriel Scott, 22: "This is it." Each waved a black revolver and ordered the staff to lie on the floor.

Neil R. Shortreed, the manager, hesitated. He pleaded that he was wearing a new suit, and didn't want to lie on the floor and dirty it. The two young gunmen sympathized with him, and finally compromised by letting him kneel.

After the men had scooped money from a cash drawer into a cloth bag and a paper shopping bag, they tried to persuade Mr. Shortreed to open the vault. The kneeling manager hesitated again. He fussed with his new suit, now dusty at the knees. The bandits finally scooted out the door.

"I just stalled around until they finally got jittery and ran," said Mr. Shortreed. He said he had tried to use the foot button burglar alarm but it didn't work.

Stolen From Leaside

The car used in the holdup, reported stolen from Leaside earlier in the day, was found just before dark by a farmer on the seventh concession of Pickering township. Driven into a bog between Brougham and Claremont, the vehicle was towed out by Wilf Hunt, Pickering garageman, who was forced by the bandits to lie on the floor of the bank during the robbery.

Chief Lockhart Trinnell said provincial police fingerprint experts went to work immediately. He said a paper bag used by the pair was found on the seat.

While the robbery was in progress Wilf Hunt, walked in. The place seemed deserted, he said, but suddenly a head showed over the counter top, followed by an arm waving a gun. Hunt was ordered to the floor at gunpoint. He tossed about $2,000 in cheques into a corner as he flattened, and they lay there until the bandits had left.

A few seconds later Harvey Bath walked in. He saw Hunt on the floor, but no one else.

"What's the matter, Wilf, are you sick?" he asked.

Just then a gunman stepped out from behind the door and Bath also was ordered to lie down, just before the robbers headed out the bank's front door.

ACRES OF CARS—Shortage of box-cars in the Windsor, Ont., area has forced automobile manufacturers to store new cars in factory lots. With a production of about 1,100 vehicles a day, dealers have been flying drivers in from all parts of the country to deliver the cars. An increase in the number of box-cars is expected to ease the situation, but meanwhile this photo of cars awaiting shipment from Ford Motor Company of Canada is reproduced all over the city.

Objections have been raised to a proposal that the old building be demolished to make way for a bigger and more modern structure.

The trustees said they spent more than $400,000 in 1948-49 to renovate it.

25th Brigade Winds Up Work

FORT LEWIS, Wash., Feb. 28 (CP).—The 25th Canadian Brigade will wind up its training for Korean action with a one-day, full-scale exercise at this American camp a week from today.

(In Ottawa, the Army said Brig. John M. Rockingham, brigade commander, will conclude day-and-night conferences with headquarters and take off for Fort Lewis by air Thursday. The Fort Lewis announcement was taken in Ottawa to indicate the brigade's departure is more than a week off.)

Next week's exercise is phase three of exercise "Ignes Bellum" or "Fire War." The other two phases saw company and battalion formations in mock action under exploding live ammunition.

Brig. Rockingham has planned a tactical situation which will call for all arms in the brigade group to prove their ability to manoeuvre. Realism will be injected with the field regiment of artillery firing their guns and the crackle of machine guns and small arms fire from the infantry adding to the effect.

No Casualties

There were no Canadian casualties. Canadian soldiers on the hill positions said the Chinese had carried away their own dead before they withdrew.

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer, said in a front-line dispatch Tuesday night that the Canadians' action plus artillery fire and air strikes had inflicted a slaughter on the Chinese during two days of fighting. Boss said some reports indicated as many as 700 Reds had been slain but he quoted skeptical Canadian officers as saying they would wait until the positions were taken to verify this.

The Chinese had buried some of their dead by today.

The Canadian commanding officer, Lt. Col. J. R. (Big Jim) Stone of Salmon Arm, B.C., said: "There was a lot of blood and guts around their dugouts."

Canadian troops investigating filled-in trenches left by the Chinese unearthed 46 Chinese bodies.

As the Chinese pulled back they blocked the narrow mountain passes by setting off dynamite charges, choking the narrow trails with fallen earth and tree trunks which they booby-trapped with hand grenades.

Engineers set to work to clear the roads and "delouse" the booby traps.

He said decision to hold the convention here was made in Ottawa Tuesday at executive meetings of the federation.

The exact date of the convention has not yet been set.

CrawfordGordon Appointed To Defence Post

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP).—Officials disclosed today that Crawford Gordon, Toronto industrialist, will be appointed production co-ordinator in the new department of defence under Trade Minister Howe.

Mr. Gordon, native of Winnipeg, is president of the English Electric Company of Canada and executive vice-president and director of the John Inglis Company.

In his new appointment, he will be virtually in charge of about half of the new department, dealing with all aspects and problems of getting defence items produced quickly and efficiently, once they are ordered.

W. D. Low, head of the Canadian Commercial Corporation, the government's purchasing agents, likely will head another segment of the new department dealing with defence purchasing co-ordination.

These two men will be under the direction of Max Mackenzie, Deputy Minister of Trade, who also will become deputy minister of the new department.

Mr. Gordon's division will be subdivided into specialized fields, dealing with such defence needs as aircraft, chemicals and vehicles.

Joe Russell of Ottawa will head the aircraft branch and J. R. Donald of Montreal will head the chemicals branch. An appointment for the vehicles section is still under consideration.

Urges Protest On Liquor Ads

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP)—The Rev. Hugh Dobson of Vancouver today urged magazine and newspaper subscribers to protest against liquor advertising and promotion.

In a report to the annual meeting of the United Church of Canada's Board of Evangelism and Social Service, which he presented as retiring associate secretary of the board, he also said:

"People should be on guard against selling their souls, their families and their national stamina to the advertisers and promoters of narcotic drugs and gambling devices.

"The more drunk, the more drinkers; the more alcoholics, the more crime and accidents—nevertheless the more revenue."

He asserted that marriage ceremonies should not be a "money-maker for any church, nor for the clergy, nor for merchants nor for state registrars."

"Marriages, baptisms and funerals should be simple and not too expensive. People should not be denied marriage status because they do not wish to take Christian vows."

Find Prices Steadied On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, Feb. 28 —(CP)— Prices steadied at their lower levels as the session progressed on the Toronto stock exchange today.

They opened in continuation of Tuesday's sharp drop and declined until noon when signs of moderate support appeared. Base metals made the best comeback as they became mixed after declining over a broad front in the morning.

In industrials losses ranged from fractions to $2. Retail stores and agricultures were higher and refining oils were mixed.

Consolidated Smelters was the big loser in base metals as it came back from a $3 drop to a loss of $2.50. Noranda was down 75 cents. Higher were Waite Amulet, Steep Rock, Golden Manitou, East Sullivan and Falconbridge.

Western oil declines ranged from pennies to 35 cents.

Senior golds drifted downward with small losses. Junior producers eased pennies.

Sees Big Change In Rural Communities

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP)—The Christian church is no longer the rallying centre of the rural community, a rural pastor today told the annual meeting of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada.

"Instead of looking to the church for leadership as people once did, they now look to highly-secularized commercial interests," said the Rev. Robert Christie of Ponoka, Alta.

"All they have to do is climb into their late-model cars, drive off post-haste to the larger centres, and buy what pleasures they want. And they have the wherewithall to do it. Thus the neighborly community spirit has fallen sadly into disrepair in many rural areas."

Plan WI Anniversary Banquet On March 22

MILLBROOK, Feb. 28 (ENS)— The Lady Lions met at the home of the president, Mrs. Percy Hamilton on Monday night. Plans were made for the banquet for the 50th anniversary of the Women's Institute to be held in the town hall, the building in which it was organized 50 years ago.

The Lady Lions are catering for the banquet, which is to be held March 22. The three group leaders, Mrs. C. Brackenridge, Mrs. Stewart Snelgrove and Mrs. Ron Palmer will be in charge of the dinner.

The president reported that she and the secretary, Mrs. Howard Lancashire, had presented Mrs. H. Perkin with a cup and saucer on behalf of the Lady Lions, before Mrs. Perkin left for her new home in Penetanguishene.

The Lady Lions are serving refreshments for the dance sponsored by the men's club in March 15.

Supper hostesses were Mrs Homer Ouellette, Mrs. M. McDowell, Mrs. William O'Brien and Mrs. Kenneth Pinnington.

Search Made Of Open Water

Three firemen and a policeman this morning searched Little Lake and the stretch of open water south of the lake for about two hours on the chance that they might find the body of Leonard C. Brown, 71, who disappeared from his home at 188 Dalhousie St., Jan. 4.

Captain Frank Shearer and firemen Edward Hinds and Edward Close searched all the open water from a boat. They were not dragging. They looked through the pile-up of ice at the south end of the open water below Point St. Charles but without success.

Constable Andre Dalton of the police force searched the shore in the area.

The missing man was last reported seen on the railway bridge which crosses the Otonabee near Dalhousie St.

No one yet knows what happened to him.

Civil Defence Plans Irk Ontario Leaders

TORONTO, Feb. 28 —(CP)— Leaders of the three major political groups in the Ontario legislature are not satisfied with Federal government handling of civil defence.

Views of the party chieftains were expressed Tuesday during an impromptu debate which grew out of a report by Provincial Secretary Welsh on last Friday's Federal-provincial conference in Ottawa on civil defence.

Premier Frost said his government is "mystified" about Ottawa's civil defence policy. 'Surely we have a right to ask for a clarification of the Federal government's position," he said.

E. B. Jolliffe, CCF leader, said the proposals Mr. Welsh told about would result in a "half-baked program."

Farquhar Oliver, Liberal House leader, said all parties in the legislature would back the government in asking for clarification of the federal policy. "Maybe the Federal government feels that vast expenditures aren't necessary," he said. "If that is so, then they should tell us."

Extra Equipment

Mr. Welsh said the Federal government had agreed to provide extra fire equipment at cost, stock-pile necessary medical supplies and pay the cost of billeting evacuated persons in an air raid.

However, Mr. Welsh said, Ottawa had given no assurance on compensation for injuries of civil defence trainees, took no responsibility for stock-piling food, buying training equipment and heavy rescue equipment or contributing to salaries of full-time provincial and municipal defence personnel.

The Federal government was keeping certain radio wave lengths open for civil defence purposes but had not decided on their final use. It had worked out no plan for converting trucks and buses to ambulances and would not pay subsidies for building air raid shelters.

Issue Debentures To Pay For School Site

Adopting the report of its accommodation committee, the Board of Education Tuesday night decided to tell the city council it would need the rest of the Hughes property for the new collegiate it intends to build.

Chairman G. Wilson Craw said the board had originally decided that 14 acres would be needed for the collegiate site. Since then the city has decided to take a strip of the land along the north side.

Although exact measurements have not been made, City Engineer E. A. Chalmers believes that a strip of land about 200 feet wide will be left at the west end of the property.

"I think we would be very foolish to leave a 200-foot strip . . . and not know what's going to move in there," commented W. B. Gordon.

The price has yet to be decided by a court because the city and owner Tom Hughes have not been able to decide on an amount. Although the board does not yet know how much the land will cost, it decided to ask the city council to issue five-year debentures to pay for it when the price has been set.

Pay Increases In OPP Cut Resignations

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—Resignations of younger members of the Ontario Provincial Police force, which a few months ago reached serious proportions, have declined with a recent increase in pay, plus a cost-of-living bonus, and an assurance of further pay raise after April 1, the beginning of the next provincial financial year.

"Many younger constables found it difficult to make ends meet and resigned to take more lucrative positions, usually at similar employment," Attorney-General Porter said Tuesday. "The resignations have declined now, however, with an increase in income a few months ago."

Commissioner William Stringer stated that the number of resignations during a period of a few months late last year had reached a serious volume. Almost all, he said, had been tendered by younger constables who had been taken on the force at the lowest category and because of that were on the lower pay level. In December, however, an increase had been obtained for this group which, with the addition of a cost-of-living bonus, had provided a "pretty good increase."

"However, cost of living has advanced steadily so another increase will come through with the beginning of the province's next fiscal year," he said.

Most of the men who resigned, Mr. Stringer said, went to jobs with industrial police forces such as automobile manufacturers or mining firms. A few had accepted higher-paying jobs with municipal forces.

Ask Ban Lifted

BONN, Germany, Feb. 28 (AP) —A West German Parliamentary Committee Tuesday asked that the Allies lift their post-war ban on glider flying. Who Pays The Piper Calls The Tune

The appointment of an American admiral to command the naval efforts of the Atlantic Treaty nations has aroused general resentment in Britain. The British could put up with an American general in supreme command during the war. They have accepted with enthusiasm the return of General Eisenhower to command Atlantic Treaty armies in Europe. But when Royal Navy officers are passed over and Admiral William M. G. Fechteler is named chief of allied navies, five centuries of British history are affronted—five if Henry VII is considered to have been the founder of the Royal Navy, ten centuries if Alfred the Great was the founder. As the late Prime Minister Ramsay McDonald said of the Royal Navy at the opening of the Naval Disarmament Conference twenty years ago, "It is us". Characteristically, the great British sea-dog, bull-dog Mr. Churchill led the outraged chorus. Typically, even Labour members joined the cry.

* * *

The appointment of an American to high command is not a reflection on the qualities of the Royal Navy and the capabilities of British admirals; it is a direct reflection of American power. Britannia no longer rules the waves, and the United States has the power to waive the rules of world naval tradition.

* * *

The United States has not only now the biggest naval forces afloat. It is the bull-dog of the West in all phases of armament. Although the British defence effort, as now revised, will be larger than that of all the other Atlantic Treaty Nations combined (excepting the U.S.A.), the new American schedule for defence spending is eight times as large as the British. The American outlay for military purposes in the three years 1950-53 will be five times the British annual national income. Under her present program the United States will become within the next two-and-a-half years stronger than all the rest of the world, friendly, neutral and hostile. American aid to her allies in this one year will be larger than the British Budget.

* * *

Who pays the piper calls the tune. The United States is top-dog, even top sea-dog. Money alone has not shifted the ballast on the seas. The Americans have the ships, they have the guns, and they have the men. More significantly, they have the basic stuff which keeps navies afloat: the coal, the oil, the steel and the industrial machine. The question of who will command is not a matter of who has the better ships, the better gunnery, the better experience and even the better officers and ratings. In secondary, and perhaps really directive command, the best ships and admirals will be used, but the supreme figure at the head, the man appointed out of regard for international political power and the rights of the national taxpayers must be, despite British protests, an American.

Stalin St., Peterborough

Although the gesture might be interpreted by narrow-souled outsiders as Peterborough appeasement of Russia, to re-name one of our principal streets "Stalin Street" might not be altogether without virtue. It would be an assertion of our independence of American propaganda, a gesture of good-will in this querrulous world, and who knows but that the Kremlin might thereby be encouraged to change its tune about Canada? Only last week Stalin linked Canada's fair name with the United States as a capitalistic, imperialistic warmonger.

If our capital Ottawa were to acquire a Stalin Street, that might be considered grandiloquently insincere, or sheer grovelling. If Montreal were to name a street after the Russian leader, too many people would be pronouncing it in a sinister French way—not Shtalin Shtrasse, but something like Rue Staline, which Mr. S. might rue. If Toronto were to change its King Street to Stalin St. it might make Uncle Joe blush with shame to be so closely linked with capitalistic royalty at Bay. Anyway, he would not appreciate the idiomatic English of "Stalin at Bay". No. Peterborough, it seems to us, is right if not ripe to make the grand gesture. It having come from the heart of Ontario and Canada, the Kremlin could not help but be touched by the grass-root token of good will which the name-change could portend.

As for us folk here in Peterborough—well, Stalin Street could be made out of our Charlotte St. It runs right into George, and King St. is the next street south of Charlotte, so our new Stalin Street could not become too mighty important. Anyway the change would not mean a thing in local parlance.

Riverside Park was officially named "James Stevenson Park" more than twenty years ago, but nobody called it that, so not so long ago the Council surreptitiously put through another motion, renaming the park Riverside. Has the Filtration Plant park ever got itself into the local vocabulary as Moore Park? No. It is still the Filtration Plant grounds, even though ever since the grounds have been laid out they have been officially named after W. H. Moore. For that matter, will Clonsilla Avenue ever get itself called anything but "Charlotte Street, the Highway End"? Why, there are some people who still call it, and Highway 28 to Port Hope, The Gravel Road.

All of which is to prove how harmless to Peterborough a Stalin Street would be. And what resounding results there might be! Think of the notoriety Peterborough would get, especially from the American press. It would put Peterborough on the map more thumpingly than the Trans-Canada. Think, too, of the reverberations in Russia. Stalin might even reciprocate by reverting Leningrad to Petrograd or right back to St. Petersburg, in gratitude to Peterborough, Ont.

Some critics might sourly think the Peterborough gesture ill-timed, but we could always pretend that we are naming it in honour of Uncle Joe Stalin, leader of our gallant wartime allies, and not for that terrible person who presides over the Horrible Twelve in the Kremlin. We would be a little late with our tribute, of course, but wasn't the French provincial town of Mentone a little late when it unveiled a statue to Queen Victoria only in the spring of 1939?

Ottawa Money For Education

Last week in Parliament everybody expressed himself as being in favour of bigger and better education for Canadian youth. Specifically, the discussion rose out of a debate on federal aid to education. Opposition Leader, Mr. Drew thought that the Government should take the lead in expanding Ottawa financial assistance towards more and better (et cetera) education. Ottawa is, of course, already a heavy supporter of various branches of educational activity. It contributes more than $35,000,000 annually to provincial programs. But the kind of aid some people were talking of on Parliament Hill would run into billions.

We are in favour of more financial assistance federally, particularly at university level, for at that level education is out of the hands of Provinces and infants; even the provincial University of Toronto prides itself on being national in scope. But we are not entirely in favour of Ottawa's stepping into elementary and secondary school fields. The B.N.A. Acts specifically sets education down as a Provincial matter. If Ottawa were to contribute, and the provinces to accept, billions from federal coffers, Ottawa would have the right of and the provinces would have to expect Federal scrutiny of the provincial school systems and Federal supervision over the ways Ottawa money was spent.

Our contemporary the Kingston Whig-Standard, remarks with lofty detachment, and we consider its point of view reasonably taken, that:

> The initiative for expanded Federal aid for education should come from the Provinces. In a field in which their jurisdiction is exclusive—with the exception of the armed forces and other strictly Federal capacities—they should be the ones to formulate any proposals for expanding Federal assistance. We think Provincial governments generally realize this, and realize also that application for such expansion would almost certainly lead to loss of exclusive power, for we have yet to hear a sustained campaign by any Provincial government for a large expansion of Federal assistance for general education. The issue, we think, is one which must be resolved carefully and with deliberation, over a period of years, rather than to attempt to deal with it by any blanket legislation purporting to contain a financial panacea for all national educational ills.

That, we think, clinches the matter fairly, for the time being at least.

ON THE MARGIN

Amusing the Booboisie

THE GREAT AUDIENCE, by Gilbert Seldes (Macmillan).

THIS book is a careful, reasonable, hopeful consideration of three of the most popular entertainments of our day—movies, television, and radio—as they appear in the U.S.A. Mr. Gilbert Seldes, who has devoted thirty years to criticism and understanding of what he calls "the lively arts", is just the man to write such a book. And because he is known to make every possible allowance for shortcomings in popular entertainment, it is interesting to find that he regards the present state of movies, television and radio so gravely. If Seldes thinks they are in a bad way, they must be diseased indeed.

To the movies he devotes a full hundred pages. His story is the familiar one: the movie audience is not growing, it is shrinking, and most people cease to be keen moviegoers after twenty-five—that is to say, when a moderate maturity settles upon them. The movies are not fare for mature people; they are made for adolescents, and so they conform to a code which is partly the work of the movie producers themselves, and partly the outcome of religious pressure groups and boycotts, and thus they are conditioned by rules which are of moral, rather than of artistic, genesis. The result is the sort of movie we get from Hollywood.

The adolescent outlook and the church outlook have warped the movies so badly that there is no problem which they dare to treat in an adult fashion. Particularly is it true that they dare not deal with mature love, or suggest consummated sexual passion. What is the result? Mr. Seldes says that it is the movie of violence, in which the brutal thrill of fights, killings and disasters is made to serve for the more healthy thrill of sex treated in an adult fashion.

WRITING of television and radio Mr. Seldes makes the point that they are not primarily entertainment, but advertisement, and that they suffer from the faults of bad advertising. It is the legitimate object of the advertiser to persuade; radio and television seek to bludgeon the public into acceptance of their wares by repeated, hypnotic assertions, so linked with highly charged emotional entertainment (soap operas) or phoney good fellowship (comic programs) that people who are easily open to suggestion (most people) cannot distinguish between a serious attitude toward life and a particular soap, or hundred per cent. American fun and a particular brand of coffee.

If the movies are adolescent, radio and television are moronic. To deal otherwise than superficially with a matter of any importance is quite unthinkable for them. And yet, in the persons of commentators and gossips, they can exercise tremendous power and do untold harm. And it must be said that they make available not only some of the worst muck known to history, but much of the finest music.

CONSIDERING these three forms of entertainment together, Mr. Seldes brings up a point which has sometimes occurred to the present writer; the mockery of the scholar, the learned man, or the man of superior intellect or information in movies, television and radio, is a deplorable thing on a continent where there is much lip-service to popular education. The professor who learns about the realities of life from the bobby-soxer; the schoolteacher who is a butt of her 'teen-age pupils; the scientist or artist who, given a chance, proves himself as vulgar as if he had never passed out of Grade Eight—these are common figures of popular entertainment. This is not the triumph of the Common Man, but what Mr. Seldes calls the triumph of the ape. A society in which learning is mocked, and in which intelligent people are driven to take refuge in cliques, is not a healthy society.

Mr. Seldes, though grave, is hopeful. The reasons for his hopefulness occupy the latter pages of his book. His analysis of the cheapness and dangerousness of the type of entertainment already mentioned is merciless, but he thinks that something can be done. And the first thing to be done, obviously, is to demand that the entertainment world show some respect for the intelligence and integrity of the audiences they serve. R. D.

THE VISITORS' BOOK, compiled by Harry Ballam & Roy Lewis (Clarke, Irwin).

THIS entertaining book is a compilation of opinions on the people of England, culled from the writings of travellers since 1498. It is a charming and fascinating book, and I do not think that it could have been prepared, quite like this, in any country but England. Many of the opinions expressed are unfavourable, and the English notoriously do not care what other people think of them. And—this may be a clever plan on the part of the compilers—the opinions all serve to cancel one another out. The geniality of Stephen Leacock and the suspicious acerbity of Edmund Wilson tell us more about the writers themselves than about the people of England. And when one Frenchman says that English women are cold in sexual matters, and another Frenchman says that they are pushovers, we can only conclude that Frenchmen differ in their methods. The book is good reading, and leaves us with a feeling that nobody's opinion about the English is as good as our own, and that we must take them as we find them.

FAMOUS AND INFAMOUS CASES, by Sir Patrick Hastings (British Book Service).

THIS is a light and attractive book of essays on some of the great law-cases of English history, written by a famous barrister. The trials of Katherine of Aragon, of Anne Boleyn, of Charles I, and many others, are seen through the eyes of a great lawyer who has examined the recorded evidence in each case, and delivers a modern opinion. This is no book, by the way, for anyone who believes that British justice is of a special purity; some of those early trials were conducted in a manner which might provoke the envy of Moscow today; gross injustice, faked evidence, intimidation of witnesses and prisoners—it is a grim record.

The book is cheerily and delightfully written. Sir Patrick indulges in some wild generalizing, and some startling unfairness on his own account. But this book is obviously a holiday for a man who is not in court and not upon oath, and it is in that spirit that we enjoy it. R. D.

Shakespeare And Shaw In British Festival

THIS year, the South Bank of London's River Thames, not far from the site of the Globe theatre where Elizabethan audiences once applauded the plays of a dramatist named Shakespeare, will be the focal point of the Festival of Britain. It will be the scene of a spectacular exhibition keynoting the Festival's theme—Britain's varied contributions to world civilization.

It is fitting that Shakespeare should top the bill of this year's theatre season in the country of his birth. Perhaps the greatest dramatist of all time, his achievement overshadows that of any other British genius in the arts. In an eventful programme for theatregoers, his plays will receive special attention.

The summer bill at London's Old Vic Theatre includes Henry V, Twelfth Night, and The Merry Wives Of Windsor. Shakespeare's contemporary, Ben Jonson, will be represented by Bartholomew Fair. In addition, Sir Laurence Olivier and Vivien Leigh will star in Antony And Cleopatra at the St. James's Theatre while Alec Guinness will play Hamlet at the New Theatre.

Two open air productions of Shakespeare are scheduled: Romeo And Juliet, which will be presented by the London Mask Theatre on an Elizabethan stage in front of the blitzed ruins of St. Anne's Church, Soho, London, and A Midsummer Night's Dream, staged in Regent's Park by the Bankside Players.

Meanwhile, Peter Brook will direct A Winter's Tale, starring John Gielgud (currently playing in Fry's The Lady's Not For Burning on Broadway) and Diana Wynyard. Outside London, at Shakespeare's birthplace in Stratford-on-Avon, the Memorial Theatre will again hold its annual season which this year includes Richard II, Henry IV, Henry V and The Tempest. The plays will be directed by Anthony Quayle, and and the company includes Michael Redgrave and Heather Stannard.

George Bernard Shaw will be represented by the Old Vic's production of Captain Brassbound's Conversion and at the St. James's Theatre where Sir Laurenee Olivier and Vivien Leigh star in Caesar And Cleopatra. John Clements is also scheduled to play in Man And Superman.

At the Edinburgh Festival, Tyrone Guthrie's adaptation of the Renaissance Ane Satyre Of The Thrie Estaites will again by produced while the York Cycle Of Mystery Plays, forty-eight short religious plays first performed in the 14th century will be performed against the background of St Mary's Abbey, York.

These are only a few of the many theatrical events which will take place in Britain this summer. In London alone, some 40 theatres will play to packed houses. Productions range from South Pacific to School For Scandal and there is something for everyone's taste.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now when Jesus had heard that John was cast into prison, he departed into Galilee . . . From that time Jesus began to preach, and to say, Repent: for the kingdom of heaven is at hand. . . And his fame went throughout all Syria: and they brought unto him all sick people that were taken with divers diseases and torments, and those which were possessed with devils, and those which were lunatick, and those that had the palsy; and he healed them. (Matt. 4:12,17,24.)

✧ ✧ ✧

There was a man of the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a ruler of the Jews: the same came to Jesus by night, and said unto him, Rabbi, we know that thou art a teacher come from God: for no man can do these miracles that thou doest, except God be with him. (John 3:1,2.)

✧ ✧ ✧

And he began again to teach by the sea side: and there was gathered unto him a great multitude, so that he entered into a ship, and sat in the sea; and the whole multitude was by the sea on the land. . . And he said, Whereunto shall we liken the kingdom of God? or with what comparison shall we compare it? It is like a grain of mustard seed, which, when it is sown in the earth, is less than all the seeds that be in the earth: but when it is sown, it groweth up, and becometh greater than all herbs, and shooteth out great branches; so that the fowls of the air may lodge under the shadow of it.

And with many such parables spake he the word unto them, as they were able to hear it. But without a parable spake he not unto them: and when they were alone, he expounded all things to his disciples. (Mark 4:1,30-34.)

Letter To The Editor

WORDS OF APPRECIATION

Sir: Quite often copies of your paper come my way. So often on reading your editorial page I've intended voicing my appreciation. I like the world cartoons you reprint. The Bible Message, as is, without any explanation or comment is excellent. In the paper before me (Feb. 20) is the editorial "Peterborough Not On The List"; it's too bad so many papers scream the worst, instead of giving a brighter thought to things.

I've always liked Peterborough the few times I've been there, it's a clean progressive appearing city.

Thanks for your paper.

Sincerely,
(MRS.) LILY PITNEY.

Lines For An Inconstant Cutie

(According to a report from America "girls can now change the colour of their eyes by a set of contact lenses which cost $1,000 a pair.")

Drink to me only with thine eyes
And I will pledge with mine,
Although I note with some surprise
The way in which they shine.
Still am I subject to their gaze,
This heart they still can fluster,
But do not their disturbing rays
Now wear a different luster?

Although my heart is ever true
I note with some dismay
That eyes which yesterday were blue,
Blow me, are brown today!
Yet surely grey was once their grace
(Though not a cold and steely 'un);
Where am I? Can it be I face
An optical chameleon?

Drink to me only with thine eyes,
But may I mention, minx,
That I am not among the guys
Who like to mix their drinks?
Come grey or green, come blue or brown
And you shall find me ready,
But could you kindly settle down
And stick to something steady?

O plump outright for one set hue
And keep that hue a fixture!
Lest later there should come on view
A more appalling mixture.
If you persist I fear there may
Be stranger contrasts seen —
One eye may yet be bluey-grey,
T'other a browny-green.

Village Signs

(Windsor Star)

Surrey is one of the most beautiful parts of England, and its natural beauty is enhanced by the care people take of their flower gardens and other parts of their property. Now a move is being sponsored by various interested organizations to further brighten up the scene. They are offering prizes for the most suitable village signs.

That is something that could be done in Ontario also. Most roadside signs are unsightly, are a nuisance, often spoiling the view. They should be banned. But directional signs, and those identifying towns and villages, are necessary.

Most all of these are plain and perfunctory. It would be more pleasant for motorists, and more useful to the towns and villages, if neat, distinctive and attractive signs were posted. It would add variety and beauty to the approaches to these communities—and to cities also.

Hands Dripped Blood Witness Says

SUDBURY, Feb. 28 (CP). — A Supreme Court jury was told Tuesday that the hands of Adelard (Eddie) Latour, 30, dripped with blood when he came upstairs from a basement apartment where the body of 23-year-old Mrs. Cecile Rainville was found a few minutes later.

The testimony was given by Mrs. K. Nechay, owner of the house in which Mrs. Rainville was stabbed. She testified at Latour's trial, the second in a year on a charge of murdering the young woman, his cousin by marriage.

Mrs. Nechay said she was preparing breakfast upstairs for her son the day of the slaying, Sept. 12, 1949, when she heard someone go down to the basement. She said she recognized the person as Latour from the manner of walking.

There was a wild commotion in the basement apartment, she said, but the door was locked and she couldn't get in to find out what happened.

Mrs. Nechay said that a short time later Latour came upstairs with blood on his shirt and hands. She said the blood dripped from Latour's hands along the stairs and hallway as he left the house.

Reported Fracas

Latour was arrested after he walked into a city police station and reported that he had been involved in a fight with a displaced person. He had a deep laceration on his right hand.

Tried on the same charge a year ago, Latour was convicted and Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly sentenced him to be hanged. He spent 225 days in a death cell here before the Ontario Supreme Court quashed the verdict and ordered a new trial on the grounds that Mr. Justice Kelly had misdirected the jury.

The trial which opened Tuesday before Mr. Justice A. M. Lebel heard 10 witnesses. It will continue today.

More Red Troops

HONG KONG, Feb. 28 (Reuters)—Communist China has stationed 30,000 more troops in her coastal region near Hong Kong, usually-reliable British sources said. The Communists now have more than 100,000 troops in the triangular area between Canton, Hong Kong and Swatow, they said. British sources expressed belief the main purpose of the concentration of Communist troops is to cover the ground—which had been thinly held—in the event of an attempted Nationalist landing.

Selwyn Friends Fete Family Leaving Village

SELWYN, Feb. 28 (ENS).—Mr. and Mrs. Michael Maloney and family were surprised Saturday evening when the School Section of No. 9 Smith gathered at the church hall to honor them before they leave the community.

Mr. and Mrs. Maloney thanked everyone for their kindness to them.

The Maloneys are moving soon to their new home near Keene.

Switch Commanders

LONDON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Britain's top commanders in Germany and the Far East swapped jobs Tuesday. A war office announcement said Lt.-Gen. Sir Charles Keightley, commander-in-chief, British army of the Rhine, will supplant Gen. Sir John Harding, commander-in-chief, Far East land forces, who will take over the German post. No reasons were given for the switch.

Supplied With Arms

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Feb. 28 (Reuters)—Prime Minister Joseph Pholien told the Chamber of Deputies Tuesday that "the United States has undertaken to supply us free of charge with heavy arms to a value at least equal to our own effort." He added: "Canada has contributed by supplying us with arms and equipment for one division."

Pickets Rap Gestapo Practice

WHITBY, Feb. 28 (CP)—Escorting by police of Natlie Knitting Mills employees through picket lines of Local 1005, Textile Workers' Union, Tuesday was labelled "outright Gestapo tactics" by union organizers Sid Emmerson and John Whitehead.

The union called a strike Monday when the company refused to grant a conciliation board's recommendation that a closed shop request be granted. The company granted a pay boost of eight cents an hour to make the starting rate 50 cents an hour. The union is demanding 73 cents an hour, the prevailing rate in Toronto mills.

Constables allowed a dozen employees to enter the plant past the union's picket line, on orders from Police Chief Ron Love. They also ordered the removal of a picket tent from civic property across from the plant.

Asks Speedy Settlement

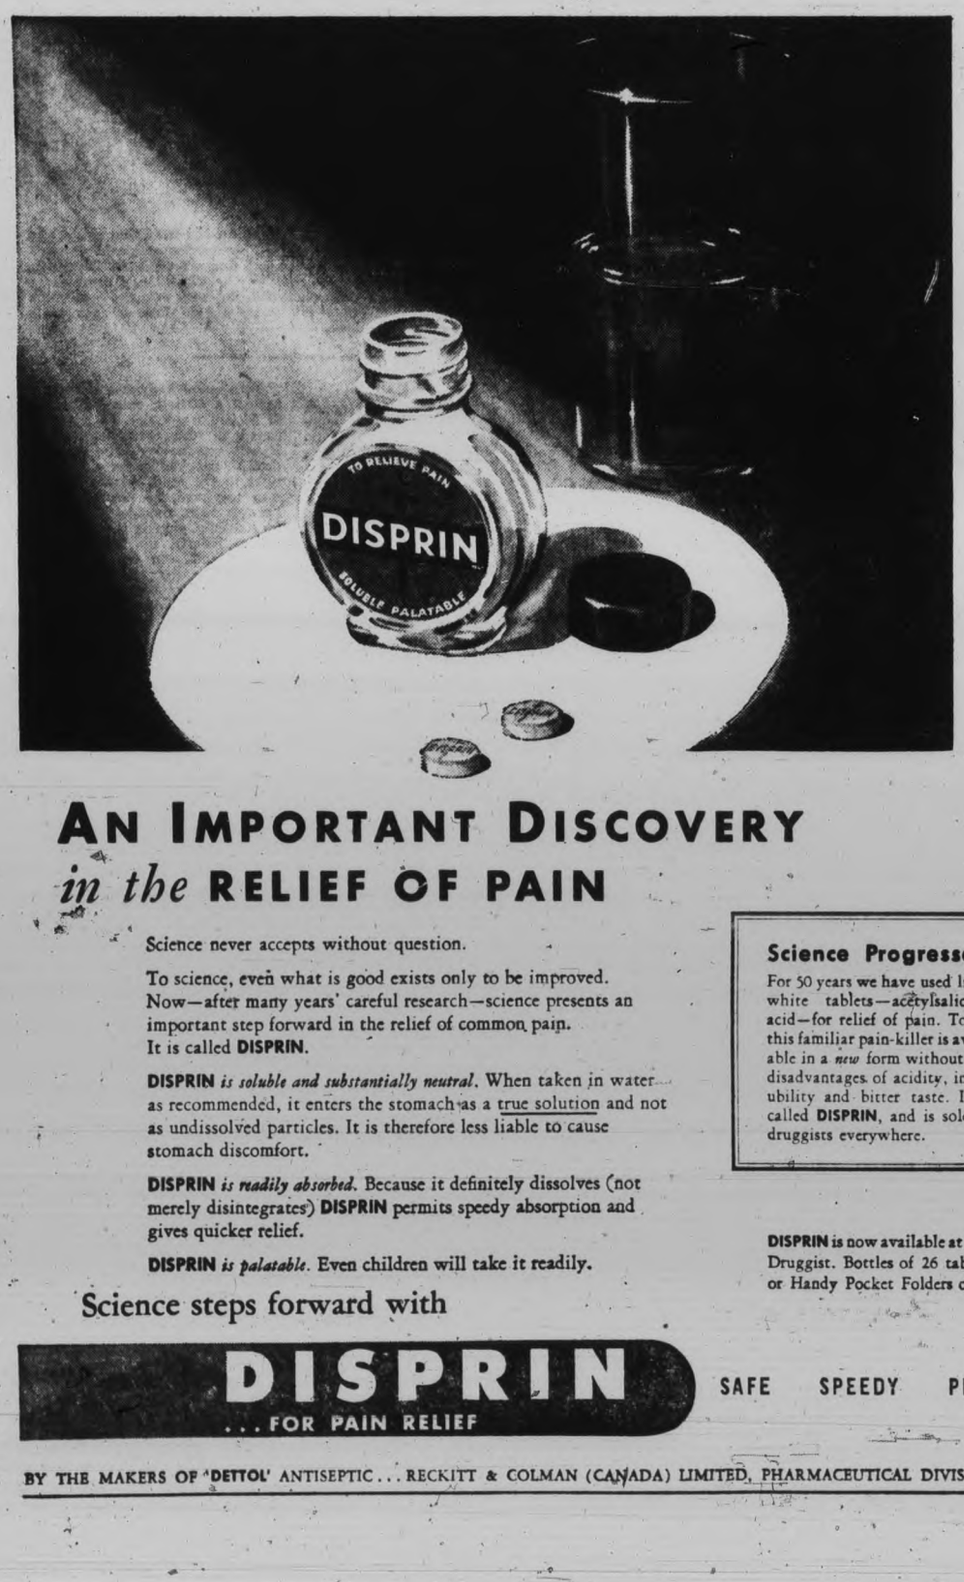
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—President Truman told John Foster Dulles Tuesday to press for speedy Japanese peace settlement, which Dulles said would help avert a new war in the Pacific. Dulles reported personally to Truman at the White House on the results of nearly five weeks talks with Japanese and other leaders in the far Pacific, a White House statement said.

Threatened To Make Scene In Church

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP)—Harvey Beecroft, 29-year-old Toronto architect, said Tuesday that Mrs. Margaret Avery threatened to enter his father's church in Wingham, Ont., on a Sunday morning and make a "great scene" about their relationship.

The testimony was presented before an assize court jury hearing Mrs. Avery's breach of promise suit against Beecroft.

Testifying in his own defence, Beecroft said Mrs. Avery wanted to hold him and the only way she thought she could do this was by threatening to hurt his parents.



"It was just threat after threat," he said.

Earlier the 31-year-old English divorcee had sworn that she accepted Beecroft's fraternity pin "in lieu of an engagement ring" while they were staying in Chicago. This was denied by Beecroft.

AN IMPORTANT DISCOVERY
in the RELIEF OF PAIN

Science never accepts without question.

To science, even what is good exists only to be improved. Now—after many years' careful research—science presents an important step forward in the relief of common pain. It is called DISPRIN.

DISPRIN is soluble and substantially neutral. When taken in water as recommended, it enters the stomach as a true solution and not as undissolved particles. It is therefore less liable to cause stomach discomfort.

DISPRIN is readily absorbed. Because it definitely dissolves (not merely disintegrates) DISPRIN permits speedy absorption and gives quicker relief.

DISPRIN is palatable. Even children will take it readily.

Science Progresses.
For 50 years we have used little white tablets—acetylsalicylic acid—for relief of pain. Today this familiar pain-killer is available in a new form without the disadvantages of acidity, insolubility and bitter taste. It is called DISPRIN, and is sold at druggists everywhere.

DISPRIN is now available at your Druggist. Bottles of 26 tablets or Handy Pocket Folders of 8.

Links Go One Up In Series Beating Kin In Overtime

Lindsay Arena was the scene of a great struggle last night as upwards of 1,400 rabid Scugog hockey fans saw Bun Kingdon's IOOF juniors rise to superlative heights to defeat Kinsmen 7-6, in overtime. It was the vital third game of a best-of-five semi-final series for group honors and the win gives Oddfellows a 2-1 edge with the important fourth game at Civic Arena Saturday night.

Army Armstrong fired the tying goal for Links in the final minutes of the torrid third frame after Kinsmen had rallied strongly with a tremendous late drive to almost snatch the verdict on goals by Dymart, Powell, and Corley to wipe out a 4-2 rival edge. Armstrong, who played a fine game, whistled in a Doris pass low through a sea of legs at 19:07.

Got The Winner

Bob Wyatt whipped Bill Stewart's rebound past McGuire from close in early in the extra session as Links' fine condition stood them in good stead and they outplayed their game but weary opponents. Dean Wasson broke away from his own end near the finish to make it seven and Doug Vasey fired his team's final tally on a solo effort as time ran out.

Play opened fast and, though both teams gave their best, neither was able to dent their rival's fine defensive armor. Red Wasson pulled some mighty saves in this opener as Kin forwards fought to obtain an early lead but to no avail. McGuire too made some brilliant saves. But despite three penalties to the Kingdon band, they held off every rival thrust.

Scored Two

Oddfellows scored twice late in the hectic second frame after spotting the Scugog boys a marker early when a Link player passed one to a mate that accidentally glanced behind Wasson off a sk Not unnerved, the Links w l steadily and at 18:14 the west line clicked on a beautiful criss-cross passing attack that ended when the reliable Dean drove Wyatt's pass home from just outside the crease. Lefty Doris broke the tie seconds later as he back-handed a short low one past McGuire from a wild scramble as play flew up and down at a terrific clip. It was playoff hockey at its best.

Despite the excitement of the early stages, the third frame proved most sensational and wide-open as players went all out and the lid flew off. Kinsmen possibly held an edge in the latter half though the visitors outscored them 2-1 in the first half as West and Douglas tallied on lightning thrusts with Morrow, Doris and Wasson setting the plays to offset Green's early goal from Karrys and give the Kingdon squad a double edge at 4-2. But the the Mitchell battlers came strong only to be set back by the stick of Armstrong.

There were 16 penalties in all including majors to Clapper and Corley for scrapping during the overtime and a misconduct to Morrow in the third as play roughened up considerably particularly in the latter stages with six in the hectic overtime. But it was a clean game basically and there were no injuries. Oddfellows shone to a man in a masterful showing with Red Wasson playing one of his best games and the defence as a whole very effective. West led with two markers with Wyatt, Douglas, Doris, Dean Wasson and Armstrong each scoring once and all assisting once except Army. Morrow and Stewart each drew an assist.

Arn Dugan Tops In Scoring With 67 Points

After leading the local senior "A" lacrossers—and, in fact, the whole OLA senior group—last summer, Arn Dugan topped the Petes' OHA senior "B" snipers this winter with 67 points. Playing in all 34 games of the schedule, the blond forward flipped in 31 pucks and had 36 assists to average two points a game in a fine showing. Chum Fryia, another 34-game man, finished strong to get the runner-up spot with 58 points, with Freddy Garvey third with 51 points, two ahead of Junior West.

Gus Leonard and Jake Wade were running high, too, but lost their chance through injuries late in the season. Honey Tompkins, playing as a defenceman half the season, still clicked for 41 points in 29 efforts. Some of the Petes' snipers fattened their averages at the expense of the weaker Queen's and Ganaroque crews, but other local high scorers were consistent marksmen throughout the long schedule. Following is the complete list:

LAMP-LIGHTER — Arn Dugan is a high scorer in both senior lacrosse and hockey, leading the OLA last summer, and now finishing up the OHA senior "B" schedule with 67 points to easily lead the other Petes' scorers over the season.

The Rules Committee of the Canadian Rugby Union adopted the forward pass at a meeting in Toronto 20 years ago today. The move followed years of discussion on the question and led to opening up of the Canadian game and import of many United States players in following years.

A jam-packed arena here tonight should greet the Kingston Nylons and the Petes as they open their best-of-five playoff series. For the right to enter Allan Cup playdowns, the loser going into senior "B' group finals. This first one is highly important and no doubt the bashing Nylons — with a fine goalie and one ace punch line — will shoot the works to soften up the speedy Petes and grab it. But we like the Petes' chances on home ice. It is sure to be a sizzling scrap every minute between two smart squads, and fans want to be on deck in good time for the best seats. Return is in Kingston Friday, and then back here Monday.

Eagles open at home against Belleville on Friday in their best-of-five group semi-finals. They've scored more goals than any team in the schedule, counting 251 as Petes got 239, Nylons 186 and Belleville 150. But Petes had less scored on 'em, 146 to 178 on Eagles, 210 on Nylons and 280 on Belleville, that team having had trouble through injuries to goalies. There's still a chance of Petes and Eagles meeting in group finals, but of course Petes don't think so—they plan to rub out Kingston and go after the Allan Cup. If Nylons should oust 'em, and Eagles could erase Belleville, the local clubs might meet once more.

Dugan Is Top Sniper

Scoring marks for the Petes in their 34 scheduled games are in tonight. We'll have the Eagles' list in shortly — we know Bill Crowley is tops there with 67 points. Arn Dugan led the Jopling crew with 31 goals and 36 assists for 67 points in a fine showing, after leading the OLA last summer. Chum Fryia is next with 58 and Freddy Garvey third with 51. Junior West counted 49 points, while Jake Wade with 45 and Gus Leonard with 43 would have done better but for enforced absences due to injuries. Honey Tompkins, mostly as a defenceman, did real well in compiling 41. Mason, Floyd, Jack Mortimer and Collins are others coming along good toward the finish.

But let's squeeze in a lacrosse item here. The OLA senior "A" Petes have signed Harry Whipper to play, and he will be full-time coach also for the Peterborough Minor Lacrosse Association. A job held previously by Jack Foote and Jerry Fitzgerald. The classy and husky 20-year-old McGill student played two seasons senior with St. Kitts, coming up from junior there, and was most impressive in all games. He can really travel and knows the game well, besides being a very nice chap personally. Whipper will be a big help to the Petes and to the minors — our congrats to Prexy Bob Peirson and Manager Pup Curtin in getting him. They also have Goalie Moon Wootton and Curly Mason, and aren't quite finished bolstering yet.

His Ludship Triumphs

There's a lot of flu flying around Toronto—elsewhere, too—and it affected the pro mat card here last eve. Atkins and Kurgis are abed so George Scott subbed for Sonny in the prelim, a draw with Kaye Bell, while Big Ben Morgan met Lord Athol Layton in the main bout. Lee Henning and Timothy Geohagen drew in the semi-final, too. The main go was taken amid cheers by his ludship who lost the first fall but came back to clean Ben's clock twice in a row. He had the speed, reach, judo and was quicker at grabbing grips. But the bearded mountaineer from down south was by no means afraid of his nibs. Threw hard punches at him and pulled a lot of rough stuff all through. It was quite a battle and the ring withstood the 750-pound strain.

* * * * * *

Only the game fish swim upstream—and the IOOF-ers are plenty game. They took Lindsay Kin 7-6 on the frozen pond up Scugogville way last eve to grab a 2-1 edge in their best-of-five OHA junior "B" group semi-finals, the big fourth (and maybe last) fray being here this Saturday night. That was the important one last night in the other guy's rink, and if they keep up that fighting drive they'll be meeting Oshawa Bees in group finals—since Oshawa have a 2-0 game lead now over Belleville Rockets. A crowd of 1400 (including Eddie Shore) saw Bun Kingdon's battlers win it in overtime after Army Armstrong sewed it up with less than a minute to go on a pass from Lefty Doris. Then Bob Wyatt got the winner from Bill Stewart, with Dean Wasson getting another later to offset a late Lindsay tally. A dandy duel, with Oddfellows showing better condition at the wind-up.

Savoie Garners TKO Over Solly Cantor

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP). — Armand Savoie of Montreal won a technical knockout victory over Solly Cantor Tuesday night when a six-stitch nose cut prevented the Toronto lightweight from appearing for the ninth round of their scheduled 10-rounder.

Cantor, who will be out of action for six weeks, claimed the cut was caused when he collided with Savoie's head in the eighth round. Savoie was ahead on points at the time and appeared headed for certain victory against the fancy boxing but light punching Cantor.

Savoie said he inflicted the damage with a left-hand jab as Cantor walked in on him. Cantor also hurt a finger of his left hand in the opening round. He said it handicapped him thereafter.

Savoie and his trainer, Pete Audette, said they intend to claim the vacant Canadian lightweight championship as a result of Tuesday night's victory.

Marines Take First One Over Kingston

Peterborough Marines downed Kingston Royals 9-4 in Kingston last night to open their goals-to-count OMHA midget "A" playdown series, the second round, as Marines previously eliminated Oshawa. Coach Al Watkins' classy crew will bring a five-goal lead nome for the return playoff at eight o'clock this Thursday night in Civic Arena.

Despite the loss of Corbett — who should be back Thursday — the Outboards turned in a fine showing, having more speed and much better combination than their rivals. It turned out to be a rough tilt, with the 17 penalties pretty well evenly divided. Marines kicked at the watery ice (which was completely dry after the game when public skating started) and also wanted two referees. However, the homesters insisted on one referee and a linesman.

An Early Lead

Marines struck hard at the start for a 5-1 margin in the first frame on goals by Byrne, McGrath, Ball, Turner and Frizzelle, as Kearns assisted on three and Gardner on one. McAllister notched the homesters' marker from Burns. Kingston got the only goal of the hard-checking middle heat, Walton hitting the hemp. Arneill tallied twice in the third for Royals, but McGillen, McGrath, Gardner and Kearns all scored for Marines, Turner aiding on two, with Ball, McGillen and McDougall getting an assist each. The whole team shone from goalie Delahaye out, with Gary Kearns and Jim McGrath having four scoring points apiece.

March 14—Semi-finals.

Layton Downs Ben Morgan In Main Bout Of Mat Card

Lord Athol Layton had a little too much for Big Ben Morgan in the main mat bout at the Brock Arena last night, winning the deciding fall to earn the crowd's plaudits. Tim Geohagen and Lee Henning went to a semi-final draw, while the prelim also ended that way between Kaye Bell and George Scott. Both Fred Atkins and Sonny Kurgis were under the weather with the flu and required replacements.

The final fall came in seven minutes when Layton forced Ben to submit with his dreaded "octopus" hold—a reverse double leglock with the pressure on his opponent's back as he lies face downward. They were in and out of the ring and slugging hard in this round, a surprisingly fast one for such big men, the bearded Ben—wearing long tights—scaling 305—while Layton hit the beam at 258. Ben nearly got him with a flying spread after a slugfest, but Athol rolled over to apply his noted grip, as the fans cheered.

Layton had taken the second and equalizing fall in 14 minutes with a reverse body scissors and shoulder stand, gained when he was thrown into the ropes but bounced back to down the surprised and beefy mountaineer. At the start of the round, Athol looked better with his reach, speed, and quick application of grips—besides using a bit of judo at times. But the rugged Morgan kept plowing in with rough stuff and threw a bunch of hard punches, as well as using the choke-hold plenty to make it a pretty even and hard tussle. The fall proved popular with the customers.

They were peeved when Big Ben won the opening fall in 16 minutes with a broad jump after slugging Layton to the floor. His huge weight flattened his ludship for sure, and be even kicked him after the gong. Ben started right away roughing it, and he gave Athol quite a going-over for a space, knowing a raft of mat villainy, but Layton battled back and had the crowd with him, as he tore in fast and used his extra reach to advantage, fighting cleanly all the way. The referee had a tough time trying to keep order with Morgan and was always counting on him to force Ben to break his illegal holds.

While Lee Henning scaled 252 to Tim Geohagen's 228, the Dublin muscle-man pretty well held his own in the semi-final draw. He took a real beating in the old Henning softening-up style, but Timothy came right back for more. He had more speed and a powerful pair of shoulders and hands to help offset the trickery of Lee. It included foreign substances, eye rasps, hair-pulling, chokes, knees, fists, and everything else. Tim got in some punishment with a hammerlock, and the referee twice was on the bottom of the pile-ups. Tim was willing and right in there scrapping away against the tricky and bigger Henning at the finish of a fine fight.

There was plenty of mat work shown in the even prelim, the boys spending minutes at a stretch working grappling grips while both were down on the canvas. It proved interesting as a change from the more open tactics usually seen, with less real wrestling as a result. Each in turn had an advantage, Kaye roughting it up a bit but the bout being fairly clean throughout. Bell tossed Scott into the ropes and as he rebounded lashed him a right to the pantry and George was down, but he wriggled free. Actually they were only in a standing position a few minutes of the first 25, but they were on their feet and slugging in the final part of the bout.

WALCOTT CHECKS IN

Jersey Joe Walcott, one-time dock walloper, checked in at Detroit Tuesday, his heart again set on the elusive glory—and solid gold—of the world's heavyweight boxing crown.

The apparently-ageless Negro, who came out of obscurity in 1947 to challenge then champion Joe Louis, fights Ezzard Charles, current titleholder, here March 7.

He already has dropped one 15-round decision to Charles—June 22, 1949.

"I'm in far better shape for Charles this time," he said.

CANADIAN SPORTS PARADE

TURK BRODA'S impromptu announcement last week that this might possibly be his last season in the NHL has lent a nostalgic note to this year's hockey season. It seems a very long time since the old Turk took over the nets from George Hainsworth 'way back in 1936. Fifteen years of goaltending has had its effect on Broda—for he is now the best 'chips down' competitor in the game. His career will go down in the records as the success story of a failure.

'Turkey Egg'

Never good enough on skates to play either forward or defence, Turk Broda found himself relegated to the nets on his very first hockey team at the David Livingstone Public School in Brandon, Manitoba. He was a plump kid, slow but earnest. With his freckled face, the nickname "Turkey-Egg" adorned his entrance into sport. Consequently shortened to "Turk", the name stuck to the Polish-Canadian from that far day to this.

Lacking the polished finesse of a Vezina or a Durnan, Turk Broda has nevertheless displayed unparallelled showmanship throughout his career, fighting to stay in the League. Through his constant, underdog efforts he attained the heights of goalkeeping performance. The Pagliacci of Hockey—we'll be sorry to see him retire.

'Flyweight' Hewitt

Almost thirty years ago, a certain 103-pound flyweight boxer was the scourge of these parts on the College Circuit. Though Foster Hewitt is famed today as the "Voice of Hockey", few persons remember that he was the undisputed Intercollegiate Champion in 1921-22. Unable to increase his weight above his maximum of 103-pounds, the pugnacious Mister Hewitt took on all comers up to 120-pounds—and flattened them one by one! Throughout his boxing career he was never stopped down and never lost a fight.

Starting at the old Model School in Toronto, Hewitt carried his leather fists to Upper Canada College and eventually to the University of Toronto. Pitted against fighters from O.A.C. and R.M.C. he left a trail of victories behind him. He triumphed (for his College) against the battlers of West Point and Annapolis and in 1922 had visions of competing in the Olympic Games of 1924.

Then he fought a battle at Varsity against a student named Shaeffer of McGill University. In the first round of the three-round bout Hewitt was having little trouble, until he caught Shaeffer a stinging right to the head. As the McGill man staggered, he lurched under Foster's right shoulder and came up suddenly, ripping the arm ligaments. Hewitt, his arm useless, finished and won the fight—but his boxing career and his chance at the Olympics were gone forever.

Since then, Foster Hewitt has emerged as one of the heavyweights of Canada's hockey world. Strange are the workings of fate.

'Slugger' Sinclair

Speaking of fate—we should record a titanic boxing battle between Hewitt (when he attended Upper Canada) and the 1917 pride and joy of Riverdale Collegiate, Toronto—Gordon Sinclair. The early fight between the two broadcasters (to be) undoubtedly represented Sinclair's first "starry" journey as a travelling reporter. He certainly used his nose for news of coming events, that night.

Stepping into a flurry of leather lefts and rights from Hewitt, Gord Sinclair found himself in trouble. He fought back, but he could hardly stand against the determined onrush of Hewitt. With the encouraging roars of the Riverdale collegians following his every fall, Sinclair delivered a number of blows but he couldn't stem the tide.

Late in the second round Hewitt caught Sinclair with a left hook sending him loose-footed to the canvas. Always the opportunist, Sinclair must have remembered that blow (we think) for in later life he even titled his well-known books, "Footloose . . . etc."

To further the coincidence, Gordon Sinclair to this day, does his best writing flat on his back on canvas. He feels at home in a hammock.

Teams Wishing For Change In NHL Schedule

By KEN KELLY
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

Now if only that National Hockey League schedule could be juggled a bit. That's the way Boston Bruins must be thinking these days, the dying ones of the regular season.

The reason for all this mental gyration can be seen with a good look at the schedule of remaiinng games. Bruins have 12 more to play. So have New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens. The Bruins have eight of those games at home and only four on the road, while Canadiens have only six at the Forum and Rangers seven at Madison Square Garden.

But just the same Bruins can't be happy about it all. A closer liok at the schedule shows that the Bruins play four of their 12 remaining games against Toronto Maple Leafs and two against Detroit Red Wings. They have only beaten Leafs once this season and Wings only twice.

Rangers have two left against Detroit and three against Toronto and only two of these at home. Canadiens have three against Wings and two against Leafs, with three of them on home ice.

Won't Find Cinch

So when Bruins play host to Detroit tonight, the odds are that they won't find it a cinch to get a firm hold on third place by beating Wings. And with only a point separating them from Rangers, that's not good, particularly when you consider that Rangers meet the hungry but hopeless Chicago Black Hawks the following night.

Of course, the picture is not much better for Canadiens, at least in the immediate future. They make another try at Toronto the same night Rangers meet Boston, with their only advantage likely to be the fact that they are playing at home.

Canadiens aren't really counting on getting many points in their five remaining games with Detroit and Toronto. Looking over his schedule, Coach Dick Irvin did a little speculating out loud.

"If we can grab eight points in those six games against Boston and Rangers, we will make it," he said. Irvin figured 62 points will be needed for the fourth and last playoff spot. He saw Bruins taking third with 65 and Conadiens fourth.

Frenzied UK Fans Crush Ribs In Ticket Rush

BRISTOL, England, Feb. 28 — (Reuters)—Men, women and children had ribs crushed and arms broken Tuesday as 100,000 frenzied football fans stormed the ticket booths for a top-flight championship game.

Mounted and foot police trying to keep order were jammed hopelessly in the crush. Only 27,000 tickets were on sale.

Six women and three men were taken to hospital with fractured ribs. Two children's arms were broken and three received crushed ribs.

The match, a sixth-round replay between the long-shot Bristol Rovers and Newcastle United, is scheduled for today.

Travel Department Avoids Exploitation Of Wildlife Resources

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—(CP).—Travel and Publicity Minister Cecile told the Ontario Legislature Tuesday that his department is against the exploitation of wildlife and fish resources. "We do not now merchandise our fish and wildlife resources as tourist attractions," Mr. Cecile said. "We do not advertise that a visitor can come t oOntario and take his limit of fish or game."

Mr. Cecile also urged that store schedules should be arranged so that stores would not be closed during the tourist season. Closed stores during the week lost the province millions of dollars in trade and goodwill.

Ontario could expect a normally-good tourist year this year, the minister said. The industry would suffer from any outbreak of war, but he had a "strong feeling of optimism" for the tourist industry.

Raps Forestry Policy

Four other members took part in Tuesday's budget speech debate: Charles W. Cox (L-Fort William), T. D. Thomas (CCF-Ontario), J. G. Brown (L-Waterloo North), and George Parry (PC-Kent West).

Mr. Cox charged that government forestry policies are leading to "economic suicide."

The Liberal administration of Mitchell F. Hepburn, he said, had allowed export of pulpwood after 1936 because of wide unemployment in northern Ontario. Continuation of this export under present circumstances was "a curse."

He denied that the Progressive Conservative government had effectively limited pulpwood exports. It still allowed export of a semi - manufactured pulpwood which merely reduced the wood's bulk for easier shipping.

"Since 1943, or shortly after this government took over office, there has been exported from crown lands in Ontario 3,427,734 cords of unmanufactured pulpwood, or almost double the amount in any other similar period in Canada's history," he said.

"If this quantity of wood could be processed in Canada, it would supply paper mills capable of maintaining approximately 1,000 persons for at least 74 years."

Charges Stupidity

Agreements between the province and outside companies, Mr. Cox charged, indicated "either collusion, political corruption or utter stupidity."

Other provinces were opposed to exploiting raw forest materials, he said. Ontario exported five or six times more manufactured pulpwood than all other provinces combined.

Mr. Thomas criticized the government's housing policies, and said that no houses had yet been built under last year's housing legislation.

Canada's high infant mortality rate could be traced to overcrowded homes. "Adequate food and housing is the best defence against subversive influences," he said.

Urges Review

Mr. Thomas urged a review of provincial grants for municipal fire and police services, and said that since equalized assessment would take years to be completed, the provincial and federal governments should assume the cost of education.

Mr. Brown urged periodic re-examination of all car drivers to reduce fatal accidents on the highways. Under the present system, he said, drivers could get automatic renewal of licences as long as they had not broken highway traffic laws.

He urged a province- wide system of training in driving, similar to a course being given in Kitchener high schools.

New Indian Charter Bill Reintroduced To House Of Commons

OTTAWA, Feb. 28.—(CP).—A Government bill aimed at providing a new charter for the 135,000 descendants of Canada's original Indian settlers was reintroduced Tuesday in the Commons. The bill was almost identical with one proposed at the spring session of 1950 and then withdrawn to permit Indian bands and others to study the suggested changes. In the words of Citizenship Minister Harris, the bill contained "improvements" in some sections, but little new from the 1950 version.

He indicated that some amendments may be made before the legislation finally passes Parliament. He will meet today with 18 representatives of Indian bands and organizations from all parts of Canada to discuss the legislation. The private talks may continue until the end of the week.

It will mark the first time that a minister of the crown has powwowed with representatives of Indians on legislation that is to affect them. The existing Indian Act has not been revised since the 1880's.

The revision proposed by the 124-clause bill, given first reading by the Commons, is the result of several years of work. A parliamentary committee studied Indian affairs in 1946, 1947 and 1948 and many recommendations are contained in the legislation.

Get Greater Control

The new act would grant Indians greater control over their own affairs. Mr. Harris told the Commons it would provide "ample authority" for giving Indians self-government in their band affairs.

It would empower the federal government to give band council some authority over their funds, though the government would retain control because it provides the money.

Provision is made for extending the franchise to Indians, either individually or in bands, if they voluntarily apply to the minister of citizenship for enfranchisement. An enfranchised Indian will automatically lose his rights as an Indian. He will not be entitled to live on the reserve, to exemptions from taxation, or to benefits enjoyed by Indians under long-standing treaties.

There would be some relaxation in the stiff regulations against Indians drinking liquor. The new act would permit the sale of intoxicants to Indians for consumption in a public place. However, this section would not be proclaimed until it was requested by the government of a particular province.

Education Provision

Provision would be made for federal-provincial agreements to deal with the education of Indian children in association with other children.

A section important to western Indians would authorize the minister of citizenship to permit Indians to dispose of grain and livestock holdings without supervision by the department. Under existing legislation Indians cannot dispose of holdings without the consent of the department.

A private member's bill that would vary the dates for celebrating Victoria Day and Dominion Day advanced one more stage in the House.

Under the bill, sponsored by J. L. MacDougall (L—Vancouver-Burrard), Victoria Day and Dominion Day would always be celebrated on Mondays rather than on whatever dates May 24 and July 1 happen to fall.

The bill was reported out of committee and now awaits third and final reading in the Commons. If it is adopted by the Commons it will go to the Senate for consideration.

Approved In Principle

Members gave aproval in principle to an incorporation bill for Trans-Canada Pipe Lines, Ltd., after hearing that the company plans to transport natural gas from Alberta to Montreal by an all-Canadian route.

John Decore (L—Vegreville), sponsoring second reading of the Trans-Canada bill, said the proposed line would cost $250,000,000 and would have 2,200 miles of main line and 900 miles of spur and connecting lines.

It would touch at Swift Current, Moose Jaw and Regina, in Saskatchewan; Brandon, Souris, Portage La Prairie and Winnipeg in Manitoba; Kenora, Sudbury, Fort William, Port Arthur, Toronto, London, Galt, Kitchener, Kingston, Port Colborne, Brockville, Prescott, Cornwall, Smiths Falls and Ottawa in Ontario, with a line from Ottawa to Hull, Que.

Mr. Decore emphasized that no gas could be carried now, pointing to a recent ruling of the Alberta Petroleum and Natural Gas Conservation Board that none is to be released outside Alberta until the province's proven reserves are larger.

The House declined to act on a private member's bill aimed at outlawing the Communist party.

Members showed no disposition to debate the bill after its passage had been urged by Wilfrid Lacroix (L—Quebec - Montmorency), and the government obtained an adjournment of the debate to let Justice Minister Garson explain its attitude later.

Ontario Facing Steam Power

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP)—Unless the power resources of the St. Lawrence river are developed, "Ontario may be obliged to place increasing dependency upon the production of electricity from steam power," Transport Minister Chevrier said in a speech prepared for delivery Tuesday night.

In the absence of Mr. Chevrier, who is ill, William M. Benidickson, Liberal-Labor member of parliament for Kenora-Rainy River, read the speech to the joint annual meeting of the Association of Municipal Electrical Utilities and the Ontario Municipal Electric Association.

If it were necessary to use much steam power, Ontario industry would be placed at a "competitive disadvantage" with Quebec and possibly British Columbia, the minister's speech said.

The St. Lawrence, from which Ontario would share an estimated production of 2,200,000 horsepower with New York state, was one of two main undeveloped sources of hydro power in the province.

Make Award $28,449 James Pluard

Orchestra Leader Found To Blame In Car Accident

Herbert James Pluard, 34, of Downer's Corners, who may never be able to work again because of crippling injuries received last April in a car accident Tuesday night was awarded $28,449.81 damages.

The award was made by Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson in a Supreme Court action at the Peterborough county assizes. A jury cleared Pluard of any blame and found Graydon Sheldon, orchestra leader, 100 per cent negligent.

Freak Accident

Pluard, father of three children, was the victim of a freak accident. He was standing in front of his stalled car on Highway 7, east, when it was struck in the rear by Sheldon's car on April 1, 1950. His own car was knocked forward and it in turn knocked him down and seriously injured him.

He is a one-time acting foreman at the Peterborough Utilities, but since the accident he has been unable to work. And according to the medical evidence of Drs. J. M. O'Brien and S. Y. Walsh he is permanently disabled.

Pluard testified that because of injuries to his knees he is unable to stand for any length of time. He received a skull injury that still gives him headaches; a broken nose that affects his breathing; a blow in the stomach that has led to a bowel disorder.

He was in hospital for two months.

The jury reached their verdict after deliberating for two hours. The trial, which lasted for four days, was actually two trials in one.

Pluard was the plaintiff in the first and Sheldon defendant with a counter suit; in the other Mr. and Mrs. David Quinlan, Bethune St., and Earl G. Mitchell, Lindsay, were plaintiffs and Pluard defendant.

Passengers in the Car

Mrs. Quinlan, 37-year-old pianist in Sheldon's band, and Mitchell, a drummer in the band, were both passengers in Sheldon's car. Both were injured in the collision and Mitchell's drum was damaged. Mr. Quinlan's interest in the action was his out-of-pocket expenses in hiring household help because of his wife's injuries.

Because the evidence would be the same in the two actions all parties agreed to the one trial. Eight witnesses were called by A. W. S. Greer, K.C., representing Sheldon and party, and six were called by Alex Elliott, K.C., representing Pluard.

Sheldon's damages were assessed at $842, Mitchell's at $55, Mrs. Quinlan's at $100, and Mr. Quinlan's, nil. Sheldon's counter-suit and the Quinlan-Mitchell action were dismissed by Mr. Justice Ferguson.

Engine Stopped

Pluard said he was driving his car along Highway 7, shortly after 7 p.m. April 1. He reached a slight grade, two miles east of Peterborough and near the Brookside pavilion, when his sputtering engine gave out.

He pulled the car up and parked it by the side of the highway, with the two right wheels well onto the shoulder of the highway and the two left just on the paved surface.

He gave it a shove forward but it was wedged in a snowbank and wouldn't budge further, so he put it in gear and walked around in front to flag down some passing motorist going into Peterborough.

It was dark, a wet snow was falling, and he estimated visibility at 25 yards.

Pluard said he left his lights on.

Sheldon's car, containing five passengers, then came along the highway, also going east. The party were on their way to Belleville for a band engagement.

Blinded by Headlight

Apparently Sheldon did not see Pluard's car until too late. In the witness box Sheldon said he was temporarily blinded by the headlights of an oncoming car, and when he did see the Pluard vehicle it was impossible to turn out left because of the oncoming traffic. So he applied his brakes but crashed into the rear of the stalled car.

Pluard was knocked down and injured by his own stalled car which was propelled forward by the force of the impact.

The Sheldon party said they didn't see any lights on Pluard's car.

The jury in their written finding of negligence on Sheldon's part, said he was driving too fast.

"Sheldon was not paying strict attention to his driving or he would have observed the Pluard car in sufficient time to have avoided the collision; the evidence shows the Pluard car was lighted as required by the Highway Traffic Act."

And the jury concluded: "The evidence fails to reveal sufficient attempt on the part of Sheldon to avoid the collision."

FOUR ONTARIO ENGINEERS were given scrolls Tuesday at a ceremony in Toronto and told they would have Hydro projects named after them in recognition of their work. They are: J. Clark Keith of Windsor; E. V. Buchanan of London; R. H. Martindale of Sudbury and ROSS L. DOBBIN of PETERBOROUGH. The scrolls were presented by Robert H. Saunders, Chairman of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission. Mr. Dobbin (Left) receives his scroll from Mr. Saunders and second vice chairman, W. Ross Strike, K.C.

Ross Dobbin One Of Four To Receive Honor Scrolls

Presentation of framed scrolls to four outstanding Canadian engineers after whom important Hydro projects have been named featured today's joint session of the AMEUOMEA convention at the Royal York Hotel.

Hydro Chairman Robert H. Saunders and Second Vice-Chairman W. Ross Strike, KC, made the presentations to Ross L. Dobbin, Peterborough; J. Clark Keith, Windsor; E. V. Buchanan, London; R. H. Martindale, Sudbury.

In naming stations and large projects after Ontario engineers, the Commission is following its policy of recognizing service rendered by outstanding Canadian engineers.

Stations which have been renamed after these men are the J. Clark Keith Generating Station, Windsor, formerly known as the Windsor Steam Generating Station; the E. V. Buchanan Frequency-Changer and Transformer Station, formerly known as the Westminster Transformer Station; the R. H. Martindale Frequency-Changer and Transformer Station, formerly the Sudbury Transformer Station; and the Ross L. Dobbin Transformer Station, formerly the Peterborough Transformer Station.

Other Hydro stations named after outstanding Ontario citizens are the former Queenston-Chippawa Station and the new Niagara project, named after Sir Adam Beck; the Richard L. Hearn Steam Generating Station, Toronto; the Otto Holden Generating Station, La Cave; the A. W. Manby Transformer Station, Kipling; and George W. Rayner Generating Station, formerly known as Tunnel.

Add More Land To School Site

A decision to ask the city council to issue 20 year debentures for $65,000 to build a second storey on Grove School on Erskine Ave., was reached by the Board of Education Tuesday night.

The board plans to build four new rooms on the now-existing four room school to take care of the swelling population in the south-west section of the city.

The money for the building will be needed by June, said the board.

The board reached its decision after listening to a report of the Accommodation Committee. Chairman of the committee, G. Wilson Craw included in the report a request that the city extend a sewer to the school.

The school would be too large, said Mr. Craw, to be served properly without a connection into the city's sewer system.

Frank Jobbitt of the Accommodation Committee also told the board that the committee thought it would be necessary to buy another acre of land immediately east of the Grove School site for more playground space.

He said Joseph Bell, owner of the property, had been approached and agreed to sell an acre for $1,000 to the board.

Prompted by W. B. Gordon, who said the price was a very reasonable one for that district just starting to open up, the board decided to buy the land.

Must Pay Shot Want To Live Canadian Way

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Feb. 28.—(CP).—On the eve of his departure for Montgomeryshire, North Wales, where he will serve as high sheriff for a one-year term, Senator W. Rupert Davies, of Kingston, in an interview Tuesday night left a two-fold message for Canadians.

He urged them to continue their individual and collective contributions to world peace, and also answered criticisms aimed at the Canadian Senate.

Senator Davies, who with Mrs. Davies will sail today aboard the liner Empress of France, said he felt the attitude of Parliament "is that Canada must do her part in the international situation . . . And it is most encouraging to see the unanimity of thought. Canada is not only doing her part but also paying her full share.

Now was the time for Canadians to work toward preventing a third world war. "If we want to live the free way of Canadian life, then we must be prepared to pay for this great privilege."

Referring to criticism of the Senate, "some of which has been stirred up within the Senate itself," Senator Davies said that the Senate "is doing, and has been doing, an excellent job for Canada."

During his term as high sheriff, the Senator's duties will include administration of justice in Montgomeryshire. He was born at Welshpool, Montgomeryshire, and has maintained an estate there since 1932.

PENNY-A-DAY DRIVE

Results of the third day of the Penny-a-Day Drive now being conducted in the schools of the city on behalf of the Red Cross and Community Chest Fund amounted to $84.24. The total to date is $231.36.

Police court lasted just long enough this morning for the magistrate to adjourn three cases. One was the case in which Borden Harron, Alphonse Spencer and Leonard Vyse were charged with keeping a common gaming house at 680 Little St. This case will be resumed Monday when the three men will enter their defence.

TARPAPER BURNS

In 1950 VON Nurses Made 6,580 Visits

Nursing service for all regardless of financial situation, is a summary of the contribution that the Victorian Order of Nurses makes to Peterborough. This statement and accompanying facts and figures to back it up were reported to The Examiner by Miss Mary Ross, nurse-in-charge of the Peterborough Branch of the Victorian Order of Nurses in an interview Tuesday.

"In this city our main work is part-time nursing service in the home on a visiting basis," Miss Ross explained. In 1950, VON nurses made a total of 6,580 visits to sick people in their homes. Of these 2,459 were made to cancer patients and to the chronically ill and 1,192 visits to the acutely ill group including such illnesses as pneumonia, tuberculosis and heart conditions.

Reduces Cost

Miss Ross went on to outline the direct advantages that arise from these home nursing visits. Primarily this type of service reduces the cost for the individual who might otherwise have to procure the services of a full-time nurse.

Crowded hospital conditions can be alleviated when VON nurses give nursing care to patients that might otherwise require hospitalization. Patients are also released from the hospital earlier with the understanding that continued care will be given by the VON. In this way hospital beds are provided for more emergency cases.

Financially the community benefits if the paient is an indigent, because VON services are comparatively much cheaper than hospital expenses.

In some cases patients are more contented at home than in the hospital and as a result recovery is often hastened.

Maternity Education

"The second important part of our work," Miss Ross explained, "is our maternity and educational service. Of the total visits made in 1950, 41 per cent, 2,700 visits, were made to mothers and babies and included visits to expectant mothers.

This service included pre-natal care for mothers and one visit per week to mother and baby after birth until the baby is six weeks old. An educational program is carried on in these visits. Questions are answered and demonstrations given and also general health supervision is carried on.

This educational program is also a part of the general nursing service of the VON. The nurses often instruct members of a patient's household in practical home nursing.

Board of Directors

"The organization and administration of the VON often needs explaining," Miss Ross commented. Although the VON is a national organization with headquarters in Ottawa, each branch has its own board of directors which direct the local branch. The money raised locally is always spent locally.

Outlining the financial situation of the Peterborough Branch of the VON, Miss Ross stated that in 1950 only 27.8 per cent of the visits were paid for in full. No payment was made in 53.6 per cent of the visits and 10.9 per cent were paid in part.

"It is because of the large percentage of our visits to indigent patients that the VON must make an appeal for funds through the Red Cross and Community Chest Fund Campaign," Miss Ross explained. "The amount that we have requested has been based on our needs as shown by our 1950 financial report. We have kept our actual anticipated expenses to the minimum."

Last year the VON received $5,400 from the Community Fund.

City To Show Deficit Of $139,074

Defeat Of Bylaw Changes Surplus $8,942 Into Deficit

As a consequence of the defeat by the ratepayers of the $300,000 Civic Hospital bylaw at the municipal elections in December, the financial statement of the city council for 1950 will show a deficit of $139,074.16.

Otherwise, the council would have been in the position of reporting an operating surplus of $8,942.76.

For the funding of the deficit of $139,974.16 which includes final capital costs in the completion of the new hospital, the council has adopted the expedient of spreading payment over a period of five years in equal annual instalments.

Studied by Committee

Those are the plain facts presented to the finance committee of the council at its budget session Tuesday night by City Auditor Edward Humpage. And in the bulk liability that has to be funded, the policy of liquidation of the outstanding hospital obligation is a repercussion of the refusal of the ratepayers to approve the debenture by-law which would have authorized the borrowing of the required amount, and paying it off in the ordinary way over a period of 20 years.

The expedient of the bank loan in a special account to be wiped out in five years, the council had to receive the permission of the Ontario Municipal Board.

This recourse will be recommended to the council for adoption at its meeting next Monday night.

Rejection of the hospital bylaw, left unpaid certain accounts, contractual, furnishings and so on which had to be met. If the bylaw had carried, the money would have been borrowed by the issue of debentures repayable in 20 annual instalments.

Must Pay Debts

As Mr. Humpage remarked in reviewing the circumstances to the Examiner, the municipality had to pay its hospital debts, the last outstanding elements of cost in its construction and equipment together with some work which had been begun on the grounds.

"The council was faced with the question of where the money was to come from," Mr. Humpage said. Their only alternative was in the course that has now been initiated. It just isn't conceivable that the council of this year would dump the entire amount of $139,074.16 into the budgetary expenditures that are now being studied.

The first interest rate quoted was four per cent, but a deputation from the council obtained a three per cent rate by their visit to the head office of the Bank of Montreal.

The next step was to consult the Ontario Municipal Board. Issuing of debentures was not within consideration because the ratepayers had already turned down that method of financing. The board could not go against the will of the qualified property owners.

Five-Year Loan

But the Council did obtain permission to arrange a bank loan on a five-year repayment basis.

"The board allows the Council to get a special bank loan to complete the hospital financing, and to place in the current budgets one-fifth of that amount for the next five years," Mr. Humpage said.

Mayor Swanston had informed the Council of this plan, but could not make it public until the approval of the Municipal Board came through. That was several days ago.

Mr. Humpage said the unpaid accounts to hospital contractors, plus certain equipment accounts, amounted to $190,876.76. There was also an outstanding account to the Council of $22,140.16 and $8,000 allowance to Eastwood Construction Co., in consideration for some delays which had impeded progress of the work.

The total was $221,016.92. Subtract the $73,000 received from the sale of the old Nicholls Hospital property, and the net liability was approximately $148,876.

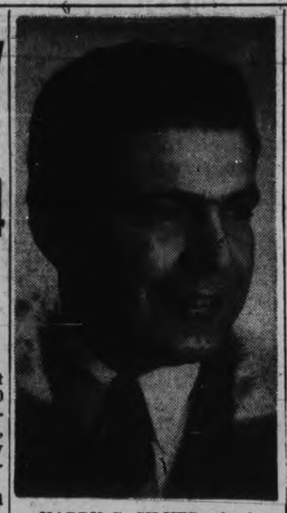
This sum was further reduced by the council current surplus of $8,942.76 from its 1950 administration of the city's ordinary affairs.

More Work

It may be suggested that the council sought approval of too large amount at $300,000, as cited in the bylaw. But the sale of the asset property was not then in prospect. Furthermore, it was explained and may have been generally understood that further work had to be done on the hospital grounds, and the council wished to include that expenditure in the overhead cost instead of charging it until completed, probably over a period of some years, in the appropriations of the board of works and parks committee.

In the practice of the council, a certain credit may be referred to the ratepayers as in a round sum of $300,000, but it is always understood that the actual issue of debentures will be only for the amount of money required.

The item of $22,140 "owed the city from 1949", mentioned above was for road building and sewer construction that was done by the board of works, and probably some lesser items for the first steps in landscaping.



The council's attitude was that these items of expenditure were properly chargeable to the hospital completion, and not to the accounts of the several committees of the council which did the work.

Landscaping To Do

"There is still considerable landscaping to be done," Mr. Humpage said. "The only course of paying for it by the new financing method is as current levy against the council committees, such as parks. That means it must be provided for in the annual budgeting until such ground work is finished."

The net result of the decision of the ratepayers by their balloting on the hospital bylaw in December is "that we have to pay for in five years the amount the council intended to spread over 20 years," Mr. Humpage said.

And, it is from the ratepayer that the council receives its orders in such substantial funding.

$873,800 Education Bill Approved By Board Means Two-Mill Increase

Education Rate Estimated at 16.2; Grants of $185,000 Expected From Province For Schools

The Board of Education Tuesday night approved this year's $873,800 budget for Peterborough's Collegiate and Public schools. This will mean an education mill rate of 16.12 mills for taxpayers—an increase of two mills over 1950. In paying their taxes, citizens will raise $567,487. The rest will come largely from the province. The finance committee expects to get $116,031 from the province for the Public schools; $31,020 for the Collegiate academic side and $38,090 for the vocational part of the Collegiate.

The money the board expects to receive for the collegiate is $18,826 less than last year. This is because of a per capita assessment clause in the method of granting money to collegiates. Peterborough is this year in a lower grant class. There has been an increase in the city's per capita assessment.

"Increases in salaries of $400 to our employees and greatly increased costs for everything the board has to buy, have this year largely increased our estimated expenditure," said G. Wilson Craw, chairman of the finance committee, in his report to the board.

However, said Mr. Craw, "the cost of education in Peterborough has not increased in the past 20 years to the same extent as it has in other municipal departments."

Referring to figures recently quoted by Mayor Max J. Swanston, Mr. Craw said 1950 when increase in the fire department compared to 1930 costs showed an of 359 per cent; in the police department 384 per cent; in the health department, 657 per cent; and in the board of works 294 per cent. Education costs to the ratepayer have increased 67 per cent.

The share of the tax rate that the Board of Education has taken to run its schools had remained relatively constant over the last 11 years, said Mr. Craw.

A table showed that except for 1936, the percentage of the tax bill taken for public schools in 1950 was the lowest it has been since 1939. In 1950 public schools used up 20.7 per cent of the tax rate. In 1946 the schools took 19.7 per cent. The highest percentage was 26.4 taken in 1944.

The percentage taken for the collegiate and vocational school was at its lowest in 1950—7.9 per cent. Its share went as high as 15.2 per cent. That was in 1941.

"It is a mistake," concluded Mr. Craw, "to infer that the increases in the tax rate have been largely due to the cost of education.

This year public school supporters wil be asked to supply $415,232, which will mean a mill rate of 12.15, an increase of 1.9 mills above the 1950 figure.

For the Collegiate, $152,255 will be required, to be raised by a mill rate of 3.97 for all taxpayers, an increase of one-tenth of a mill over last year.

The total tax rate will be 16.12 mils for supporters of the public schools and collegiate, an increase of two mills over 1950.

The board will be paying $399,000 in salaries to the Public school teachers this year. Last year's bill was $335,595. The increase was caused by the raise given teachers and the fact that seven extra teachers and two supply teachers are expected to be taken on.

Salaries to the Collegiate academic teachers will amount to $106,000, compared with $92,625 last year. Vocational teachers' salaries will amount to $94,500, against $82,974 in 1950.

Other expenditures will be: retirement allowances, $3,995; salaries of officers and stenographers, $18,120; telephones and telegrams, $1,900; liability insurance, $3,330; fire insurance, $6,200; caretakers, $64,000; fuel, $23,400; maintenance wages, $23,400; repairs, $17,500, and furniture, $3,600.

The supervision committee which looks after most of the supplies will require $22,790; the health committee, $21,000; and advisory vocational committee, $26,090.

Millions Lost By Stores On Closing Day

Hon. Louis Cecile, Ontario minister of travel and publicity, when speaking in the Legislature on Tuesday said that retail merchants should change their store hours in order to provide better service for the American tourists, Harry Green, president of the Peterborough Business Men's Association said today. "I am one of the few members of our association who advocates the closing of retail stores on Saturday afternoons, especially in summer, instead of Wednesdays. But the majority of merchants have decided on Wednesday, and that is it."

Mr. Green, a retail hardware merchant in close touch with summer resort and tourist business, said that Saturday afternoon shopping in Peterborough was negligible, and that the secondary proposal of closing all day Monday was not a workable solution to serving the public satisfactorily.

Tourists Complain

Mr. Cecile in his address said that many tourists had complained that on the days they planned to shop—and spend valuable American dollars—they had found all merchants had closed down.

He added: "We are losing millions of dollars in trade each year, to say nothing of good will. It is my sincere hope that merchants' associations, boards of trade and chambers of commerce will address themselves to this problem before another busy season rolls around."

It was suggested by the minister also that the province do more to put historical sites to work to earn American dollars than the merchandising of fish and wildlife resources as tourist lure.

Doesn't Recall Seeing Wine Belmont Man Fined $22.90

Joseph Hill, Belmont township, was found guilty Tuesday in police court of having a bottle of wine in his car and was fined $15 and $7.90 costs.

Constable Bay Bell of Havelock testified that about midnight of Feb. 5, Hill drove up in front of the police station in Havelock and came into the police station.

When the constable attempted to arrest Hill for being drunk, they scuffled and finally Hill ran out of the station and disappeared.

Constable Bell searched Hill's car and found a part bottle of wine between the two front seats. He said the contents smelled like wine.

Hill took the witness stand and said "I say the officer's wrong. He never saw me drive the car up there."

Pointing to the bottle of wine, he said "I don't recall seeing that."

He said the policeman had testified in a previous case that he did not see Hill drive the car, but thought he was driving it.

Turning to Magistrate W. R. Philp Hill asked, "Are you positive it's wine."

Not Wine Drinker

"Don't ask me. What do you think of it. Smell it," the magistrate said. Hill smelled the bottle mouth and commented "I'm not a wine drinker myself."

Acting crown attorney Walter Howell asked, "Who drove the car up to the station?"

"He don't care to have his name mentioned," Hill replied.

"You're in the witness box and you have to tell us," said Mr. Howell.

"Harry Newton," Hill stated.

Hill said there were several other men in the car during the day and he thought the bottle might have slipped out of the pocket of one of them and dropped between the seats without his knowing it.

Magistrate Philp called the police officer back to the box and asked, "Did you see two people in the car?"

"No," constable Bell said. "Hill had both hands on the wheel and the motor was running." He said he walked out to the car and talked to Hill a few minutes and then Hill got out of the car and followed him into the police station.

When the magistrate announced the amount of the fine, Hill asked if he could have until pay day to pay the fine. The magistrate said it would have to be paid that day. Hill then pulled the money from his pocket, paid his fine and left.

Find Hollywood Ignores Player Flops

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 28 (AP)—In its constant worship of success, Hollywood usually ignores the sagas of those who don't succeed. Here then are some stories that may jog a few memories:

Lee Bonnell came to Hollywood in 1939 with a big hullabaloo. He and a promising young girl were winners of the "Gateway to Hollywood" contest conducted by Jesse Lasky. He won an RKO contract and played in 12 pictures in three years, including the lead in a film with Lucille Ball.

After three years in the Coast Guard during the war, he returned to his RKO contract. But he got lost in the shuffle. After doing two pictures in the period of a year, he was dropped.

He tried free-lancing for a year with scant success. "Then I realized that in the event my wife wasn't working, our kids would starve," he says. "So I turned to something more stable—the insurance business." There he found success, selling close to $1,000,000 worth of policies last year.

And the girl who won the "Gateway to Hollywood" contest? She's Mrs. Bonnell, also known as Gale Storm.

Girl Writer

Ann Marie Vanell wanted to write. Specifically, she wanted to write for the movies. Like many another budding young writer, she soon learned the frustration of trying to peddle scripts to the studios.

But unlike the others, she didn't give up. She had an inheritance and she used it to buy space in a Los Angeles paper. Every Thursday morning on the amusement page, the paper's readers saw a collection of her reminiscences and ideas for film stories.

The series began months ago and are still appearing. The ads have probably cost her between $4,000 and $5,000 so far. And the results?

"I've had a lot of nibbles but so far I haven't gotten up to the pay window," she admits. But she isn't discouraged and may still continue the ads.

New Move To Stem Inflation May Contract Investments

By HAROLD MORRISON

OTTAWA, Feb. 28—(CP)—A joint federal and industrial move to stem inflation may contract Canada's greatest capital investment program.

Trade officials say that one reason for inflation is the whopping $4,259,000,000 that government and business planned to invest during 1951. This compares with $3,766,000,000 put into new machines, buildings, roads and machine tools in 1950.

Officials say that probably more than half the $500,000,000 increase is due to price boosts and the remainder to volume expansion. At the same time the huge investment program is exerting pressure on demand for goods and pushing prices into higher brackets. If it could be slowed, it might stunt price advances.

Steps in this direction include the federal government order banning the use of steel without government permission on a wide range of commercial construction, and a decision to shelve plans for non-essential public works.

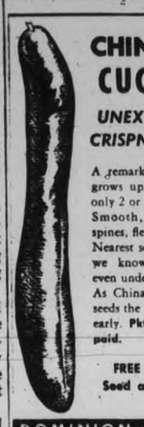
Taxation Step

A step-up in corporation taxation and increased credit curbs may emerge from Finance Minister Abbott's budget, expected in April. This, too, could tend to discourage new investment. In addition, banks have discouraged long-term borrowing for capital development in line with thinking by the Bank of Canada that Canada, generally, is flinging prudence aside in borrowing policies.

What impact these moves will have on investment won't be known until the Trade Department completes its next survey in June. Meanwhile, here's the picture as the department sees it now:

All private enterprise expected to step up investment to $3,086,000,000, an 11-per cent increase over $2,772,000,000 in 1950.

All governments, including the federal, intend boosting investment to $1,173,000,000 from $994,000,000 last year.



In business, only primary and construction industries indicate a slackening off with investment prospects dipping to $658,000,000 from $668,000,000.

Manufacturing industries expect to spend $716,000,000, up 38 per cent from $519,000,000; utilities, $892,000,000, up 20 per cent from $774,000,000; trade, finance and commercial services, $377,000,000 from $372,000,000.

Churches, hospital, schools and universities indicate a 20-per cent expansion to $270,000,000 from $210,000,000.

Nearly 8,000,000 children in Britain were immunized against diphtheria between 1941 and 1948.

Quebec Woman Has Her 107th Birthday

BEEBE, Que., Feb. 28—(CP)—There's no party planned for today—the 107th birthday of Mrs. Emma Moir, the eastern township's oldest resident.

A birthday has always been an occasion for a gathering of friends and relatives of Mrs. Moir, but the "grand old lady" of the townships has been confined to her home in recent weeks and does not feel up to the excitement of greeting a crowd.

She is still in remarkable health, however, and continues her knitting which is her favorite pastime.

Charge Man 60 With Murder

SAULT STE. MARIE, Feb. 28 (CP) — Anthony Maki, 60, was charged with murder late Tuesday in the razor-slashing death of James Cox, 65, at the Algoma district old people's home in suburban Tarentorus township.

Maki was taken to hospital with cuts about the head and face. At first his condition was described as critical but doctors said later he will probably live.

Cox died in his room at the Davey home for the aged a few minutes after he staggered from the dining room holding his hands to his bleeding throat. To the other residents he gasped:

"Get the police."

The others found Maki bleeding from cuts, his coat slashed and a bloodstained razor in his hand.

UK Expects Doleful Report On Chicken Deal In Africa

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, Feb. 28 — (CP) — Parliament may expect a doleful report admitting that there isn't much to crow about in Britain's £1,000,000 chicken run in West Africa.

If political forecasts are correct, the government will acknowledge that the two-year-old plan to produce 20,000,000 eggs and 1,000,000 pounds of dressed poultry on a selected site in Gambia has so far yielded only about 39,000 eggs and 4,350 chickens.

Conservative critics, already clucking like angry hens, say the Gambia plan will have to be drastically changed or abandoned altogether. Government sources reply that any such decisions must await the report of an investigating committee which returned from Africa last weekend.

The chicken plan is under the Colonial Development Corporation. Sources sympathetic with its aims stress that the Gambia project is just one of 50-odd development plans sponsored by the corporation at a cost of more than £30,000,000. Some of the other schemes are said to be progressing much more favorably.

"As usual, it's only the failures that attract any attention," a corporation spokesman said.

If Gambia proves to be as big a flop as predicted, the timing will be unfortunate. British planners are still stunned by the failure of their plan to grow peanuts in Africa. This cost about £36,000,000, produced scarcely any peanuts.

In the case of the peanut plan, everything seemed to conspire against the sponsors, including the worst drought in Tanganyika's history. The experience seems to have been much the same in Gambia.

U.S. Pushes Defence

NEW YORK, Feb. 28 (AP) — Defence Secretary George C. Marshall said Tuesday the armed forces of the United States are "well under way" with preparations for the forbidding future." These preparations, he added, are for trouble in "any direction and any degree." Marshall spoke at an induction ceremony for New York City Civil Defence Volunteers.

Britons Enjoy Canadian Bacon

LONDON (CP)—Bacon imported from Canada and Denmark is so good it puts British bacon in the shade, a food ministry official says.

Dr. Alex Calder, director of pig supplies for the ministry, told the farmers' club that the cry, "We don't want English bacon" is heard all too often in the distributive trade.

"The public wants lean bacon and will continue to discriminate against fat bacon or bacon which is course and stringy through having come from heavy, old pigs," shaid Dr. Calder.

The deficiencies of bacon produced at home were emphasized by high-quality Canadian and Danish imports.

Vicar's Speculation Pays Off For Church

CUDHAM, Kent, England (CP) To raise money for church funds, the Rev. H. J. Burgess enacted the parable of the talents from the Bible.

The vicar handed out five shillings (about 80 cents) capital to 29 parishioners, who set to work painting, cooking, sewing and various home handicrafts.

Then he called a "day of reckoning." For a speculation of £7 5s. (about $21.80) Mr. Burgess received a "jackpot" of nearly £60.

"There's more to come," he said.

Not Single Convert

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP)—The Rev. J. R. Mutchmor, secretary of the Board of Evangelism and Social Service of the United Church of Canada, said Tuesday that 756 pastoral charges did not report a single convert to Christianity in 1949. "There was a similar report in 1948 and it is doubtful if 1950 will show much improvement," Dr. Mutchmor said.

Senate Reform Wins Support

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP)—Senators from two extreme ends of Canada spoke on reform in the Senate Tuesday night and both agreed there might be room for change—to a varying degree.

Senator J. H. King (L—British Columbia), a former Senate speaker and, at 78, one of the deans of the Upper Chamber, said he would not opose an age limit for Senators. However, the right of Senate appointments should be retained by the federal government, though the provinces might be permitted to make nominations.

He opposed any special Senate committee to study reform as suggested in a motion by Senator Wishart Robertson, government leader.

Senator J. J. Kinley (L—Nova Scotia), 69, argued against an age limit and said the 14 of 102 Senators more than 75 years of age was "not very much excess baggage to carry, if it is excess baggage." He also was against any suggestions for an elected Senate which, he said, would throw the constitution out of balance. At present Senators are appointed by the government of the day for life.

Orders Formula

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28 (AP)—Economic stabilizer Eric Johnston Tuesday night ordered the 10-per-cent "catch-up" wage formula into effect at once and asked the wage stabilization board to approve promptly seven amendments further liberalizing the wage ceiling. The formula, designed to replace the present wage freeze, provides that pay increases shall be limited to 10 per cent above, the levels of Jan. 15, 1950.

Subway Cost Up

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP) — Estimated cost of Toronto's subway structure—exclusive of the trains to run in it—has risen to $39,750,000, it was revealed Tuesday. This amount is greater by $10,000,000 than the original 1944 estimates. The Toronto Transportation Commission reported that $14,870,410 has been spent on the project to date.

Haircuts Up

HAMILTON, Feb. 28 (CP) — Haircuts in Hamilton are to go up 10 cents. This was the decision of a mass meeting of barbers held here Tuesday night. The prices agreed to by the meeting to be effective March 5, are: Adults haircuts 85 cents; brushcuts $1.00; children's haircuts 50 cents; shaves 60 cents.

Wrecks Machines

SIMCOE — (CP) — Three slot machines took a beating here, but not from customers. Police smashed three machines seized last November by officers of the anti-gambling squad. At the time of confiscation the machines were in a store-room, out of use.

Food Producers Need Fair Prices—Gardiner

ST. ANNE DE BELLEVUE, Que., Feb. 28 (CP).—Agriculture Minister Gardiner said Tuesday that Canadian food producers have two primary objectives—to produce enough food for our own people and to sell at a sufficiently high price to encourage them to keep on producing.

Mr. Gardiner spoke at Macdonald College here and formally opened the fourth Macdonald College Royal—a students' show designed to help teach them something of the art of showmanship as well as demonstrate to the public how the college assists Canadian agriculture in the solution of its problems.

Mr. Gardiner, who Monday returned from England where he discussed possible food contracts between Britain and Canada, said the agricultural picture has changed greatly during the 38 years in which he has been associated with the government.

There is less to sell today because Canadians were consuming more than ever before. There was practically no difficulty, with the exception of cheese, in selling all the dairy production in Canada.

Little Trouble

There was no difficulty in disposing of beef and pork products and little difficulty in disposing of crops except in the case of potatoes and apples.

One reason it was difficult to sell the potato surplus was because the United States had subsidized too high production in that country.

There is always difficulty in disposing of butter surplus because of the high production cost.

New Zealand butter, which Mr. Gardiner said the government did not want to see brought into Canada, was laid down at Halifax at a cost of 40.4 cents a pound.

The floor price in Canada was 53 cents. Canadian farmers could not compete with New Zealand butter. The butter dealers were selling the imported butter at 56½ cents a pound.

Must Be High

"The market price in this country must be comparatively high" said the minister.

He mentioned his experiences in getting home from Britain.

He said his plane was not able to land in Iceland because of the amount of snow there and returned to Scotland. After a delay there another route, via the Azores, was attempted and this time the plane got through.

On the way to Ste. Anne de Bellevue from Montreal—the automobile broke down.

NOT A WORRY—In spite of the case of dynamite on his head, Spr. Pat Powell of Windsor, Ont., seems to be more interested in what's going on beyond camera range. Spr. Powell is a member of the Royal Canadian Engineers attached to the P.P.C.L.I. in Korea. The dynamite is used principally for blasting dugouts in the rocky terrain.

Black's Open House Proves Novel Idea

For the first time, Black's of Peterborough are staging "Open House" all this week at their store from 8 to 10 p.m. A new idea was hit upon to invite the public to inspect all the new styles in ladies' and men's apparel which will be popular for this spring and summer. Admission to Black's "Open House" is by invitation only, and these invitations are available free of charge. By the end of this week, well over 1,500 people will have visited Black's "Open House."

The full staff and management of Black's are on hand each evening, to help show the many visitors the new styles in ladies' coats, dresses, suits, and suits and accessories for spring. One of the outstanding features is the new ladies' 4-piece suit, designed for 10 complete changes. This new suit has ten news-making ways in which it can be worn—add 'em, subtract 'em, divide 'em, mix 'em and match 'em. The suit is made up in both gabardines and houndstooth materials and consists of a two-piece suit with matching or contrasting vest and a matching or contrasting skirt—four pieces in all, and an outstanding exclusive feature.

One of the highlights of the "Open House" was the display of wedding gowns and bridal gowns on the second floor. The wedding gown is made in an individual strapless style, with an imported french lace top and a nylon net bottom, and has a one-piece all-laced jacket and train finished with a scalloped edging. The jacket and train are made of imported French lace. The big feature about this wedding gown is that the gown itself can later by worn as an attractive strapless evening gown—quite an attractive and practical feature. The bridal gowns are made up in new pastel green and blue shades, designed on a strapless style with an all-imported French laced top and a nylon net bottom. The jacket is made in a long sleeve shawl type neckline, covering the shoulders and has an open back, and is made entirely of French imported lace.

Attractively new styles in rich, gay spring shades are to be seen in Black's dresses, coats, suits, shortie coats, skirts and slacks, and accessories throughout the store. A gay, cheerful and friendly atmosphere prevails through the evening with the playing of recorded music, and also during the evening, eight pairs of nylon hose are drawn for. Refreshments are served on the second floor, and also several attractive displays are set up on the second floor for this special event. With the splendid response, the "Open House" idea has been receiving, Black's hope to make this an annual event.

One of the main purposes of Black's "Open House" is to give each visitor an opportunity to try on as many items as they wish, and to see all the new styles on themselves.

Ex-Servicewomen Commence Christmas Project

Ex-servicewomen of the Elizabeth Smellie Branch 452 of the Canadian Legion started Monday to work on their 1951 Christmas project when Comrade Edna Rule distributed wool to the members, asking them to knit as many children's socks, gloves, scarves, etc., as they could during the months ahead.

President Irma Allen was in charge of the regular monthly meeting. A most complete report on the VON annual meeting was read by Comrade Grace Simpson who represented the branch at this meeting. Comrades Alice Morin and Dorothy Grady reported on the YWCA annual meeting, giving a brief outline of the work of the "Y" and of the talk by Mrs. J. R. M. Wilson "On Being An Effective Person."

Many members were also present at "Operation Preparedness," sponsored by the Legion.

A pep talk on membership was given by chairman of the membership committee Comrade C. Simpson. Plans for a bake sale on Easter Saturday, March 24, were announced by the Ways and Means chairman, Comrade Helen McFarlane, who also thanked members for their splendid efforts at the Valentine sale of candy, February 10th. Comrade Waters, chairman of the welfare committee, reported she had attended welfare meetings at Branch 52 and had been able to give assistance in several cases.

Members unanimously voted a donation of $5 to be sent to the Children's Home. Plans were discussed by the entertainment chairman, Dorothy Grady, for a "Refresher" night on civil defence to be held at the next monthly meeting. Members who had had previous experience in first aid, firefighting, etc., were to be asked to give short talks on these topics with the idea of stimulating interest in this all-important work.

Two very interesting films were shown at the conclusion of the meeting, one a coloured film showing many well known landmarks along the St. Lawrence. The other was a most timely animated film entitled "Brotherhood." Following the films, refreshments were served.

Civilian Blood Givings Largest But Below Need

Mrs. F. E. Hooper on Tuesday afternoon conducted the first meeting of Peterborough Branch of the Red Cross Society since being elected president, and new secretary Mrs. G. C. Tollington was in her place for this meeting.

New members of the Board who were present and received welcome were Mrs. F. J. Overend, Mrs. J. Stewart, Mr. B. Payne and Mr. A. R. Jones.

Largest civilian blood donor receipts were recorded in January but the demand is still far above the supply. At Civic Hospital 103 donations were received and at St. Joseph's Hospital 95, Mrs. Chas. Ray reported.

A report from Mrs. W. A. Hinds swimming and water safety program convener, showed there is gratifying response in registration for the Red Cross Water Safety course. Those accepted will take the course at the YWCA March 26 to 29.

Mrs. S. O. Shields reported 38 in her home nursing class which is to finish the end of March.

All gatche beds are out on loan at present but other loan cupboard articles are in supply Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell reported.

Mr. D. A. Loomis reported on relief given to soldier's and civilians during January.

Mrs. R. H. Turner spoke briefly of the death of Dr. Routley, a national figure in Red Cross and showed how he had assisted the local branch.

The late Mr. Fred Marshall, of Peterborough was remembered by the Society for his work with the blood donor committee throughout the war years when he provided transportation for donors to the Brock St. clinic.

A Red Cross banner is to be provided by the society for the Saturday parade in aid of the Red Cross and Community Fund.

It was voted to continue the day and time of meetings as before.

Fashion Flashes

There's plenty of black and white in resort clothes—in fact, this color-scheme is a stand-out. Black linen, with huge white window-pane checks, is an impressive fabric for a simple little dress with square neckline and tiny cap sleeves.

✧ ✧ ✧

Important for spring will be softly-handled town suits in lovely pastel tweeds. Colors include pale pink, pale blue, pale lavender and very pale beige. Some shades are mixed with white or off-white for a subtle effect.

✧ ✧ ✧

Get ready for new prints, vastly different from the old flower standbys. Streaks of navy on a white ground create an interesting print that gives the impression of being a pleated fabric, especially so when it is side-swept into diagonal lines and released in a side-flare.

✧ ✧ ✧

Crisp fabrics, such as silk taffeta, are very much in the limelight for Spring. Navy blue taffeta for a fitted coat. Full of skirt and slim through the bodice, it is worn over a matching sheath dress with lace top.

✧ ✧ ✧

It's fun to invest in a black silk jersey sheath—sleeveless, deep of neck, and with a halter top—and then dress it up with stoles, overskirts and various tops and blousettes. Makes for a wide variety of changes at a modest outlay.

✧ ✧ ✧

The trumpet sounds like the big line just now, so much so that it is being used for slips. Nylon satin is used for a trumpet-line slip, with lace godets and lace trimming for the camisole top.

✧ ✧ ✧

Look to the lining in new coats—now, as well as for ensembles that will mark the spring season. Fine wool fleece coats are sporting lovely linings of striped tie silk. For spring, the suit with jacket lined to match a print silk blouse is being cited.

✧ ✧ ✧

More than one fore-sighted customer has been known to cull good numbers from winter resort collections to wear later on. Such choices often include simple little frocks in novelty fabrics and prints. Ribbed cotton satin, known as pique satin, is this year's novelty fabric; it is made up into easy-to-wear little dresses in various colors.

✧ ✧ ✧

Mothers-to-be find that maternity departments have some of the prettiest clothes in the store, which is as it should be. A charming little frock is of black tissue faille, its deep neckline marked by a draped, stone-studded starched white lace collar. The full-front skirt has a zipper adjustment at either side.

✧ ✧ ✧

A CHECK of the advance spring color card shows the importance of the whole mauve range, from pale lilac to deep violet. Also coming along — for dressmaker suits and ensembles, as well as hats—is royal blue. A royal blue wool suit, lined with black Persian lamb, was a sell-out recently at smart stores throughout the country.

✧ ✧ ✧

Never ending in its appeal is the topper. Season after season, and year after year, it goes on being a constant favorite. Checked plaid tweed for a cape-like topper, the arm slits protruding like cuffs, and the pointed collar framing the chin. A taffeta lining picks up the darker tone in the check.

✧ ✧ ✧

It takes several components to make the fabric of some of the new swim suits. For instance, we saw a strapless, one-piece suit that looked like a handknit in a shell pattern, but was actually made of fabric that included wool, rubber, nylon and cotton.

✧ ✧ ✧

A WEALTH of detail marks many gloves imported for spring. A simple, navy blue kid glove has white polka dots in graduated sizes sprinkled all over. For dress-up there's a classic shortie in black net over red tafeta.

✧ ✧ ✧

NO MORE is a dress just a dress; it has to have its own jacket or bolero—or, best of all just now, its own stole. Smart gals are prettying up yesterday's dress with stoles; not difficult, since the stores are full of stoles and they are easy to make, too.

✧ ✧ ✧

JUST LIKE the stole, the apron or apron overskirt can be an integral part of the dress, or can be purchased separately to give any dress an extra touch of style and newness. Gold-plated lace make a sumptuous dirndl apron that can be worn open in back or front. It would make a black velvet or wool jersey sheath dress into something pretty special.

CGIT Doings

GRACE CHURCH

First meeting of the newly-formed CGIT group at Grace United Church Monday evening was opened with an increase in registration to 27, there being four girls on hand who had not previously enrolled. Mrs. B. Sherry and Mrs. W. H. Gerow were on hand to take charge of CGIT and Explorers' groups.

All joined in an opening sing song, followed with prayer and a worship period.

Scripture selections from Exodus and Matthew on which the purpose of CGIT is based were read by Mrs. Gerow. Mrs. Sherry then gave a brief history of CGIT, discussed the purpose and had the girls repeat it several times.

The girls over 12 then met together and elected officers for their CGIT group. President is Marlene Constable; vice-president, Joan Guthrie; secretary, Lois Corner; treasurer, Beverley Ireland; press secrtary and pianist, Carol Sage.

It was arranged that the president and one member will attend the Girls' Council meeting Monday. The group is to turn out en masse for the Easter meeting at the church. One-tenth of a week's earnings is to be set aside for collection. A sewing project is to start next week.

A plan which is to operate for both groups is that on birthday anniversaries the girl will contribute an amount of money equal to her age. The leader has promised to make a birthday cake for each occasion.

Explorers elected Sandra Dawson as president; Marjorie Sherry, vice-president; Sylvia Adams, secretary; Nona Sanders, treasurer; press secretary, Lynda Heard; refreshments convener, Sylvia Darley and Diana Elliott.

The evening concluded with games.

DOROTHY DIX

Self-centred Girl Result Of Parents Poor Training

DEAR MISS DIX: Why don't parents realize the harm they do a child by bringing it up to be utterly selfish and self-centred? I am one of those cursed by a lovng mother who reared me to believe that I was the most important thing in the world and that the whole universe revolved around me.

Dorothy Dix

All my life I have been encouraged to talk of myself, my plans, my clothes, my thoughts, my books, my everything, and now that I am grown I find that I cannot adjust mself to a world in which I am not only not the whole thing but am nothing. I know whats' the matter with me and I am trying my darndest to undo my mother's twenty years' work of inflating my ego, but it is a hard job and I doubt I will ever be really successful.

ALICE.

ANSWER: You are right, Alice, in thinking that the greatest misfortune that can possibly befall a child is to have a mother who brings it up to be selfish and self-centred. No other one thing she could possibly do could so unfit it for life, and if she hated her child instead of loved it she could do it no greater wrong.

To begin with, she dooms her child to certain unhappiness, for no selfish person is ever satisfied or content. He never gets all he wants. Then the selfish and self-centered are always lonely. They have no friends. They are shut up within themselves and nobody takes the trouble to try to break through their shell. They have lived for themselves alone and so when their time comes to be old or poor or heartbroken they are left alone in their sorrow.

Can't Take It

The selfish and self-centered never know how to take the misfortunes of life. They have been taught to feel that they are immune from the troubles that are the portion of the balance of humanity. Their mothers have made them weaklings who lack the strength and courage to fight the battle of life.

Selfishness absolutely unfits any one for marriage. It is the selfish husbands and wives who are determined to have their own way about everything, who try to take all and give nothing in return, who think only of their own happiness and not of their maters', and eventually land in the divorce court.

Nothing is truer than that it is more blessed to give than to receive. Only the unselfish who strive to make others happy are happy themselves.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am engaged to a boy of whom my parents disapprove, and we are going to get married without their consent. He says that when we are married he will positively refuse to have anything to do with my family; that they have run over him enough and that he will never enter their house. But he will not object to them coming to ours, though he will never see them when they do, and that I can go to visit them as much as I please. I wonder if a marriage under these conditions can prove successful. Should I forget my family and think only of him?

LORRAINE.

ANSWER: You can't forget your family. No matter how devoted you are to your husband, there will always be this older love of the mother who bore you, the father who cherished you and the sisters and brothers with whom you grew up. They are a part of your being, so interwoven with your life that you cannot separate them from it.

This is what makes it so unfortunate when children marry against their parents' wishes and what makes it so vital that fathers and mothers should not oppose their sons' and daughters' choice of mates unless there is some drastic reason for doing so. Of course, there is nearly always a reconciliation after the marriage, but there is always a bar between the parents and the unwelcome son-in-law or daughter-in-law who never forget or forgive that they were not wanted in the family.

I cannot advise you to give up the man you love because your parents object to him, for they may have no good reason for not liking him. Parents are often unreasonable and prejudiced in their opinion. Their biased views should not be allowed to wreck the happiness of two people who love each other. You have to live with your husband and you have a right to pick him out, but I hope he will be broadminded enough and love you enough to make a truce with your family for your sake.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: My wife is unfaithful to me. Gets drunk and makes public exhibitions of herself. For the sake of the children do you think I should stand for it?

DOCTOR TED.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: No. I think the children should be removed as quickly as possible from such a corrupting influence.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Special Purpose Menu For Sunday Evening Meal

Pete was the chaperone when the daughter of the household entertained last Sunday evening. I was invited out of town for a late dinner, so I prepared things that almost served themselves.

Although I have to give Marianne credit. Normally she is a trifle absent-minded, and with a boy friend in the house you would expect this to be accented. On the contrary she extends herself to have things "as nice as you do Mum." Could be she's showing the boy friend her cooking prowess. Aren't daughters wonderful people?

Here I am again with a meat stretcher—in this case we stretch a seven-ounce can of tuna to serve six people.

Tuna Moulds on Lettuce with Lemon and Lemony Mayonnaise

Hot Refrigerator Rolls
Frozen Strawberries over Store Ice Cream

✧ ✧ ✧

Directions

Tuna Moulds

Two teaspoons plain gelatine, 1 can cream of mushroom soup, 2 eggs separated, 1 teaspoon lemon juice, ¾ cup cold water, 7-oz. tin tuna, 1 teaspoon chopped canned pimiento. Soak the gelatine in ¼ cup cold water; beat ½ cup cold water into 2 egg yolks and add can of soup and beat until smooth. Cook, stirring, over low heat for 3 or 4 minutes.

Add gelatine and stir until dissolved. Take from heat, cool and when mixture begins to set add the flaked tuna which has been rinsed with boiling water, well-drained and sprinkled with the lemon juice. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites, then the pimiento. Pour into 6 individual moulds, and when it is turned out serve sliced tomato and stuffed celery in centre. Pass either mayonnaise using lemon juice instead of vinegar or French dressing using lemon juice instead of vinegar.

Nut Cookies (refrigerator)

Three-quarters cup butter or margarine, 1 cup firmly packed brown sugar, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2¾ cups sifted flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon soda, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup finely chopped walnuts or pecans.

Cream the butter or margarine very well, then cream the sugar into it. When mix is light and airy beat in the egg yolks. Add vanilla. Sift the flour, measure it, sift it with the baking powder, soda and salt and stir into the butter-sugar mix. Add nuts. Shape into 2 small or one long roll 2 inches in diameter. Wrap in wax paper then in tea towel and chill overnight. Cut in thin slices with very sharp knife. Bake on unbuttered sheet at 400 deg. Fahr. for about 8 minutes. Watch these closely—just barely bake them until they turn a biscuit color.

These keep for weeks unbaked. When I bake them they last about half a day.

Variation: Substitute some of the nuts with finely chopped green and red cherries, OR Cocoanut.

HILL-CREST Chicks for Sale — Egg prices are high and will go higher. To date egg production is down 100,000 cases below last year, storage stocks down 50%, and chick bookings now right across Canada are below same date last year. It all points to one thing—a serious shortage of eggs with resulting high prices right through 1951. Canada may be forced to import eggs as she has cheese and butter. That's bad for all. Better plan now to fill those laying houses with high producing Hill-Crest Leghorns, Rhode Island Reds, or CrossxBreds to shell out those high-priced eggs later. Hill-Crest Chicks still sell at pre-war prices. Service a Pleasure. Write or Telephone G. A. Brethen or L. R. McMillan, Norwood.

Inflation Worry Discussed By Businessmen

By FORBES RHUDE
Canadian Press Business Editor.

The executive committee of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce has issued a statement on inflation, based on the report of a special committee. Here are some quotes from it:

Inflation is easily recognized by the man in the street and by his wife. A basket of groceries which cost $10 in 1939 costs about $22 today.

At the outbreak of the last war conditions conducive to inflation did not exist. Canada was not working all out. It was possible for a time to increase production for both war and civilian needs. However, at its peak, the war effort took 40 per cent of the enlarged total output.

With both supply and demand pictures closely controlled, and with the aid if public co-operation growing out of a sense of national peril, the over-all price ceiling became a practical possibility. However:

It would be a mistake to assume that the deceptively-simple wartime financial measures and direct controls were successful in removing the underlying inflationary influences.

Buying Power Doubled

In the six years to the end of 1945 the public's purchasing power in currency and bank deposits more than doubled — an increase considerably greater than the concurrent expansion of civilian production.... Even before the end of the war the pressures on the price ceiling were becoming increasingly difficult to to withstand.

The chamber report then outlines post-war events which added to inflationary pressures. Among them:

Year by year Canadians have had more money to spend, but each year a large proportion of the money has been earned in the production of goods of a capital nature.

These capital expenditures on plant, equipment and the like generate spending power but do not immediately add to the overall supply of goods on which wages and salaries can be spent.

No Excess Capacity

With the outbreak of war in Korea, the additional requirements represent an extra demand for manpower, materials and equipment, at a time when the spending power for civilian goods is already at a peak. Unlike 1939, there is no readily-available excess productive capacity of any size.

Demands of rearmament can, therefore, be only met by reducing the amount available for peacetime capital expansion and consumer goods. Yet people who will be making the guns and airplanes are going to be paid wages at least as high as if they were making motor cars and other peacetime equipment. As a result the supply of dollars in the hands of individuals, before taxation, is going to be at least as great, if not greater, than in the year past.

The plain hard truth is that if we Canadians go scrambling for the available supply of non-war commodities we can bid prices up to fantastic levels.

Mrs. Tom Smith

The funeral of Mrs. Tom Smith, the former Mary Ellen Exley, of 151 Montgomery St., who died Sunday was held Tuesday from the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were: David Miller, Ronald Akers, Melville Akers, Samuel Montgomery, Alfred Brooks and Albert Elliott. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Closing Line Would Mean Five-Cent Freight Increase

PORT HOPE, Feb. 28 (ENS)—Abandonment of the Port Hope-Millbrook section of the CNR railway line means increased freight rates for Peterborough, Vernon Morphet, Quaker Oats traffic manager, told the Board of Transport Commissioners at the hearing here Tuesday.

"If the line is discontinued, grain rates will jump from the present 11½ to 14-cent scale to a new one of 19 cents," said Mr. Morphet. "This has happened elsewhere. The railways spend to develop new business. I hope they will not isolate Peterborough which contributes $4,000,000-$5,000,000 annually."

Mr. Morphet was one of three Peterborough representatives protesting the CNR application to the Board of Transport Commissioners for closing the line between Port Hope and Millbrook. Only freight service would be operating over the 12-mile stretch from Millbrook to Peterborough.

Other Peterborough representatives were James Fraser, manager of the Chamber of Commerce and Alderman Ernest C. Braund.

Would Increase Rates

Maurice Daignault of Port Hope, manager of a chemical plant, said freight rates were bound to go up if the branch line was closed, and that was what concerned his firm. He estimated that rates to Peterborough would jump from nine cents a hundredweight to 17 cents — or an increase of $1.60 a ton for commercial fertilizer.

The Board consisted of Major Armand Sylvestre, KC, deputy-chief commissioner; H. B. Chase, and W. J. PaPtterson, all of Ottawa. A. D. Dysart, Montreal, commission counsel for the CNR, cross-examined the witnesses called to oppose the closing of the line.

In 1941 the Board of Transport Commissioners agreed to allow the CNR to close down the single-track line but soon after permission was granted, the decision was revoked because it was felt the line might be utilized for transporting war goods. After the war, the CNR again applied to have the line closed and a hearing was to have been held last summer but was postponed until this month.

Link To Sea

Mr. Morphet declared that if the St. Lawrence seaway went through, Port Hope would be a link to the sea for the city of Peterborough. He said that the Port Hope line was being starved for the longer haul by way of Belleville and he asked if the heavier costs of the longer haul would immediately result in the rates being boosted.

He suggested the railway operate an inter-urban diesel and passenger coach on the Port Hope line to take care of railway connections for Toronto and Montreal. In any event, it would be good policy for the railway to have an alternative to the Belleville route.

Mr. Dysart then questioned Mr. Morphet.

Mr. Dysart— What produce is carried from Port Hope to Peterborough?

Mr. Morphet—Grain; about 18 to 20 cars a year.

Mr. Dysart—What is the most productive station on the line?

Mr. Morphet — Campellcroft. Traffic has held its own at Campbellcroft in the past 10 years. We will take all they can grow.

Mr. Dysart—Do you know that the traffic has been reduced from 25 or 30 cars down to nine?

Mr. Morphet—I am surprised to hear that.

Mr. Dysart—If grain production increases and rail traffic decreases, then the answer must be trucks?

Mr. Morphet— I don't know.

Mr. Dysart—Do you know that it will cost $100,000 to $200,000 a car for the unit you suggest? Will the abandonment of the line be a hardship to Peterborough?

Mr. Morphet—I don't know how much a unit would cost. It is true that abandonment of the line will not hurt Peterborough.

"We would like to see the line stay," said Reeve Harry Campbell of South Monaghan Township. "We have an elevator at Fraserville but it is cheaper by truck to Peterborough. Millbrook is our shopping centre. I would like to see the line remain."

Daily Delivery

W. L. Coulter, Millbrook hardware merchant said that his main argument was that the merchants there got package freight daily on the passenger train. Freight service, for the heavy goods, came once a week and sometimes an order would be delayed two weeks on freight transportation. Farmers required speedy service for farm implements. Twenty - two merchants were petitioning to have the line stay open, Mr. Coulter said.

Mr. Dysart—Why don't you get this in by truck?

Mr. Coulter—We have no regular trucking service.

Mr. Dysart—Would you be interested in knowing that LCL freight in 1950 was $4,300 and $4,827 for expenses?

Reeve D. Olan of Cavan Township said that in his township they shipped by truck and rail both. R. C. Metcalfe, Campbellcroft feed mill owner, said that he had built up a feed business based on rail service. Road conditions would not always permit him to use his truck to draw in supplies. His financial returns from his business would be considerably less if the rail service closed, he said. Other merchants in his community used the railroad to get in merchandise.

Mr. Dysart said that nine cars came into Campbellcroft in 1950 and of these five were grain, two were calcium chloride and two were cement.

Depend On Train

Reeve Elmer Scott of Hope Township said that his community depended on rail service for their mail. Roads were not always in shape for traffic due to snow or spring washouts and rail was the reliable method. Reeve Scott said that he had been thinking it might be a good idea to transport pupils from the township to the high school area school at Port Hope, providing there was a morning train. He estimated that 50 children from his area would attend.

"You have heard the slogan that the mail must get through. If it didn't get there by train, the postal department would see to it that it got there some other way. When roads are bad how do people get to the station?" asked Mr. Dysart.

Reeve Scott said by old Dobbin or by tractor.

Mayor W. N. Moore of Port Hope, who is connected with a local industry, bluntly informed the hearing that he didn't think that the CNR was giving the branch line a break. His plant used a lot of lumber obtained from Lindsay and Peterborough, in crating their goods. By truck the wood arrives in 24 hours. Going by rail the long way around, it takes four days. It used to take only two days, or less, when it came the short way, via the line from Peterborough to Port Hope.

"Why does it go by Belleville? The short line should get the business," said Mayor Moore. "If the branch is closed, up will go the rates."

"There are railway men at this table who are surprised to hear that it takes so long and no doubt they will look into it," Mr. Dysart asserted.

"We get short haul rates but it goes the long way around. Apparently this line has not been utilized for heavy freight because of railway policy," said Mr. Daignault, chemical plant manager.

Mr. Dysart commented that he would admit an increase in the freight rate but sometimes for special reasons it was cheaper for a railway to take freight the long way than the short haul.

Last witness of the afternoon was H. R. Elliott, of Port Hope, civil defence controller, who pointed out that in the event of hostilities, the highways were to be kept clear of civilians, which left only the branch line going north for this traffic and for transfer of vital services to Peterborough and such points where they formed part of a civil defence group.

Quebec Anxious To Develop Iron Quickly

By The Canadian Press

Premier Duplessis Tuesday told the Quebec Legislative Assembly that 600,000,000 tons of iron ore have been blocked out in the adjoining territories of Ungava and Labrador.

The Union Nationale government leader said development of north-eastern Quebec's iron mines is considered a matter of urgency in view of the international situation.

The iron mining industry and construction of a railway from Sept Isles, prospective port for ore shipment, into the north shore interior will open up the entire 390,000 square-mile area, he said.

John McDowell (PC, Iberville) said in the Manitoba lebislature that the people of Canada now are paying for wartime price restrictions.

Speaking against a CCF resolution asking federal price controls, Mr. McDowell said controls during the Second World War were responsible for present conditions.

Using wheat as an example, he said there are no price restrictions in Ontario and Ontario No. 2 mixed winter wheat sells for $2.22 a bushel at country points. Control of wheat prices in the Prairie provinces meant that the farmer ther only received $1.87 a bushel for Manitoba No. 1 hard, a substantially-higher grade.

Asks Drivers' Tests

Speaking in the Alberta legislature throne-speech debate, H. B. Macdonald (Ind., Calgary) called for a system of drivers' tests for operators of motor vehicles. He noted the climbing traffic fatality rate in Alberta, which has more automobiles per capita than any other province.

A Progressive Conservative member of the Nova Scotia legislature was sharply critical of the Dominion government in discussing Ottawa's policy in establishing new industries.

Speaking in the throne-speech debate, W. H. Brown (PC, Yarmouth) said "at the least sign of unemployment the boys at Ottawa start on the old story of decentralization of industry, of the help that should be given Maritimes; but as soon as industry begins to boom, they reach out their claws and grab, and when they have it all cornered they start all over again."

To Offer $950 In Music Awards

Musical scholarships and prizes to the value of $750 are now being offered to students of musical composition in centres across Canada. Alex Sinclair, recreation commissioner, reported this morning that he had received a letter in connection with competition for these scholarships.

The competition is open to students of either sex who are residents of Canada and who will be under 22 years of age on March 31 of this year.

The scholarship will be awarded to the students whose compositions show the most talent and imagination and can be taken either at the Royal Conservatory of Music, Toronto, or the McGill University Conservatorium of Music, Montreal.

In addition to the scholarship, a further sum of $200 will be paid in not more than three prizes, divided as the selecting board may decide. These prizes are offered to all, including juniors.

A further sum of $50, to be divided into not more than three prizes, is offered in the junior division of the competition. These prizes are offered to those competitors who will be under 18 years of age on March 31 and who do not qualify for any award in the open competition.

Ferguson Using Shock Treatment In His Plays

By KAY REX

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (CP)—Author Graham Ferguson uses the shock treatment in his plays.

Maybe theatre-goers who Tuesday night saw the Ottawa Drama League production of the Montreal-born writer's "Argus Banks" were stunned at the way the play ended.

But we bet they went home talking about it afterwards.

It's that kind of play.

It tells of strife and disillusionment. It delves into the human side of the Canadian shipping strike of 1949. Finally it attempts to work to a conclusion its theme as summarized by Mr. Ferguson in an interview: "If we meet violence with violence we must end in destruction."

Premiere of Play

Tuesday night was the premiere of this drama which runs through its three acts in a "blind pig" on the waterfront of a Canadian seaport town, presumably Halifax.

The play concerns Harry Bride, a philanthropic bartender, his customers and friends and the violence which follows the appearance of strike-breakers Louis Letka and his buddy.

This is the first play the Montreal-born writer has had produced in Canada and the Ottawa Drama League cast of 14 men and five women turned out a convincing production.

Bride, the idealist turned bartender, "the man who loved people," is capably played by Bruce Schwerdfager.

The play has a few wry passes at humor but generally it is deadly serious. Its main strength lies in that it makes the audience pause and ponder long after it is over—even if it doesn't particularly like what it is left to think about.

Author Ferguson, who has worked with the Peterborough Summer Theatre, received his training in dramatics in New York where at present he is doing free-lance writing.

McGregor Says Contract Broken

KINGSTON, Feb. 28—(CP)—George McGregor said Tuesday that "financial difficulty" caused his sudden departure from Halifax St. Mary's of the Maritime Hockey League.

McGregor, highest-paid player on the St. Mary's roster, said a disagreement with club officials over living quarters for his family had led to his quitting, which resulted in an indefinite suspension by the league.

McGregor said he had been promised an apartment on his arrival in Halifax with his wife and baby. When he arrived, there was no apartment available and the McGregors were placed in a hotel.

Jimmy MacDonald, general manager of the club, had promised him the first available apartment. A house had been found for McGregor, but he and the manager had agreed that it was unsuitable. The player said MacDonald also promised to look after McGregor's hotel bill, but said later that the club could only pay $300 of the total.

After considerable delay, McGregor said, he had paid the bill himself and telephoned Don Murphy, assistant genral manager, informing him that McGregor would leave unless the matter was settled. When no word was received from the club, McGregor left Halifax the following day.

Radio Industry Considers Small Markets

QUEBEC, Feb. 28 (CP)—Canada's privately-owned radio industry turned today to consideration of what in radio parlance is known as "the small markets"—the little fellow who listens to radio parlance is known as "the small markets"—the little fellow who listens to radio programs and buys what the program has to sell.

Leader of today's panel discussion, the third day in which members of the broadcasting industry have discussed their problems at the 26th annual meeting of the Canadian Association of Broadcasters, was Ralph Snelgrove of St. Catharines.

His talk followed a day in which the broadcasters discussed the part privately-owned stations will play in Canadian civil defence program.

In a closed meeting they discussed what private stations could and would do, should war come to Canada.

And out of this came a resolution saying in effect: (1) that every station should prepare at once a detailed plan for maximum service in the event of any emergency; (2) that every member of the C.A.B. should join or initiate local civil defence committees; (3) accord the utmost cooperation to civil defence authorities in preparing for emergency work and (4) inform local authorities of the need for maintenance of broadcasting facilities during any emergency.

The part radio can play in the life of a community in time of stress was underlined by presentation to Ken Soble of Hamilton of an illuminated address for his part in promoting the Red River Valley Relief Fund, and the award of the John J. Gillin, Jr. memorial award to Jack Blick of Winnipeg for his part in the Winnipeg flood work. Mr. Blick is manager of station CJOB Winnipeg.

Mr. Gillin, in whose memory the award was made, is an American who year after year until his death, attended meetings of the C.A.B. and in many instances helped its directorate in the organization of its problems.

The convention heard from Dr. J. R. Petrie of Toronto, of the Canadian Tax Foundation, Tuesday night. He called on the radio industry to play its part in keeping the people of Canada informed on how they can help the government keep inflation from getting out of hand.

Top TVL Scorers Once Linemates

Earl Cousins of the Belleville Merchants, who captured the Trent Valley Hockey League's southern division individual scoring championship, and Ken Trumble of the Marmora Millionaires, who did likewise in the northern division, are former linemates of the Marmora team which won the TVL championship the past two years.

Lavender, the other linemate, who still plays on a line with Trumble, placed fourth in the northern division, closely followed by Stewart in fifth place, who took over Cousins' position on this line last year.

The line of Cousins, Trumble and Lavender was well known around this district, having played together in junior hockey. When they moved up to TVL ranks they formed a potent line on one of Marmora's greatest teams.

Gus and Earl Leonard, who formed the main defence duo on this team, are now playing with the Peterborough Petes.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

At Buenos Aires, Brooklyn's Curtis Stone won a thrilling 10,000-metre race Tuesday to give the United States its first championship at opening of the Pan-American games. The Penn State athlete uncorked a last-ditch kick to beat out Argentina's hardy Ricardo Bralo by five yards.

Shortly afterwards, Virgil Dean gave the U.S. its second championship by high-jumping six feet 4¾ inches.

Stone's time was 31 minutes, 8.9 seconds compared with 31:09.4 for the big Argentine laborer.

The other track championship decided during the day went to Argentina's Senora Ingeborg Mell De Preiss, who threw the discus 126 feet 5¾ inches.

Outfielder Stan Musial, highest salaried player in the National League, was absent without leave Tuesday at the St. Louis Cardinal training camp.

But manager Marty Marion took no action against the star.

Marion promptly forgave Musial after the outfielder explained he thought training was to start March 1.

"He always has been a good team man," Marion said.

Brooklyn Dodgers Tuesday signed baseball's longest-term television contract and became the first major league club to enter into a working agreement with a club outside the United States and Canada.

Clem Crowe, former Baltimore Colts' coach, is expected to formally sign a contract today with Ottawa Rough Riders Football Club to coach the Big Four entry for the 1951 season.

Crowe arrived here Tuesday from Buffalo, N. Y., where he farms. He is going back to his farm Thursday and did not indicate when he'll return to take over the job of getting Riders ready for next fall's campaign.

A projected series of 20 exhibition golf matches between PGA champion Chandler Harper and British open champion Bobby Locke, has fizzled out, Harper reported Tuesday. The matches were to be played between March 15 and the PGA tournament in June.

Harper said Locke cabled him from South Africa that he will not come to the United States until just before the Tam O'Shanter in August.

England Gets Cricket Victory

MELBOURNE, Feb. 28.—(Reuters). — England scored her first cricket victory over Australia since 1938 when Yorkshire's Len Hutton—outstanding star of the test series—cracked the winning single late today.

The blow clinched an eight-wicket victory for the visitors and handed Australia her first defeat in test cricket since the war.

Hutton, probably the greatest batsman now in the game, averaged 88.88 runs an inning throughout the five-match series. His aggregate was 533 and he was not out four times.

With a first-innings lead of 103, 320 to 217 England dismissed Australia today for 197 and thus required 95 to win. Hutton hit off 60 of them, and three partners accounted for the others.

Chief factor in Australia's second-innings downfall had been bowler Alec Bedser, who took five wickets for 59 runs, giving him a match analysis of 10 for 105. His test series total was 30 for 482, an average of 16.06.

Despite today's victory, the "Ashes"—mythical symbol of Anglo-Australian cricket supremacy —remain in Australia. The Aussies won the first four matches of the series.

Mrs. Steer's Rink Wins One But Loses Next

OSHAWA, Feb. 28—Mrs. R. H. Amell's rink from the Toronto Granite Club won the third annual General Motors Trophy bonspiel at the Oshawa Curling Club here Tuesday night, defeating Miss E. Creswicke's Toronto Curling Club entry in the final game.

Mrs. O. M. Steer, of Peterborough, ousted Mrs. L. E. Woolley, of Toronto Granites, in the quarter-finals in a sensational extra-end game but, in turn, bowed to Miss Creswicke. Mrs. Amell had little difficulty in any of her games Tuesday in taking General Motors Trophy to the Granite Club for the second successive year.

In the secondary event, Mrs. H. E. Baseman, of Hamilton Thistles, defeated Mrs. R. Card, of Kingston, in the final. In the third event, Mrs. Neff's Toronto rink came from behind to beat out Mrs. Godfrey's Royal Canadians. In the fourth event, Mrs. J. A. Kearns of Toronto Granites defeated Mrs. G. Trenton Horse Divides Race

TORONTO, Feb. 28 (CP). — Tony Todd, owned by A. De Fosse of Trenton, and Byrondale, owned by Wells and Hess of Morrisburg, Ont., evenly divided the fifth and featured race Tuesday at Dufferin Park. Each won a heat and placed second in the other. Hugh Davis and Percy Robillard were the respective drivers.

Byrondale was under restraint in the early part in the first heat. Approaching the ¾ pole Robillard eased the bay gelding to the outside and rounding the lower and final bend, moved closer to the leaders. In the home stretch drive, he was soundly shaken up, gradually closed ground on the pace-setter Tony Todd and won in a driving finish.

In the second heat, Tony Todd was hustled to the front at once. He was expertly rated by Davis while setting the pace. Entering the stretch, he was sent to the extreme outside and in the drive was vigorously handled to hold Byrondale safe at the close. The latter was placed in close attendance of the pace throughout, came with a terrific drive between horses in the home stretch to finish second.

Unusual Birth

WINNIPEG, Feb. 28 (CP)—A young Winnipeg woman, paralyzed from the waist down, has given birth to a normal, healthy child. A five-pound, eight-ounce boy was born Feb. 14 to Mrs. John Pfeiffer, 24, formerly of Clay Bank, Sask. Medical authorities said cases of paraplegic women giving birth to a normal child are rare and a few years ago would have been almost impossible.

Fire At Dock

VANCOUVER, Feb. 28 (CP)—A fire at the British Columbia Packers, Ltd., steamship dock was brought under control Tuesday night about an hour after it mushroomed in the congested waterfront area. Firemen remained at the scene long after the blaze was brought under control as a precautionary measure. There was no immediate damage estimate but the toll was not expected to be high.

Howe Says Canada Can Carry Load Without US Gifts

CHICAGO, Feb. 28—(CP)—Canada's Trade Minister Howe said Tuesday night that Canada will shoulder her full burden in the current emergency without the expectation of any free gifts from the United States.

Though the United States has 12 times the population and 18 times the productive strength, Canada never has asked the U.S. for gifts nor will she do so now. Howe said in a speech to the Chicago Commercial Club.

"We expect to carry a fair share of the sacrifices and costs of collective defense. On a per capita basis, we shall probably carry more than many of our allies."

He said he came to Chicago to talk about the Canadian war effort, for it seemed clear to him that there had to be a frank and full discussion of what Canada was doing in view of what some of his American friends and American publications were saying.

Not Touchy

"Some of you may think that we Canadians are touchy, too ready to resent the suggestion that we are doing less than our duty in this time of peril. That may be so, but I doubt it. What I am concerned about is that my American friends should have a clear explanation of the Canadian position."

He lashed out at the "insane ambitions of the Kremlin" which were causing such a "colossal waste of human and material resources," touched briefly on the thorny question of compulsory training in Canada and intimated that when the need arises, Canada will not be found wanting, either in the quantity of her fighting men or their quality.

He told of Canada's plans to send additional ground troops to Korea and to offer troops for Europe's defense, as well as an air division of 11 fighter squadrons, two of which would soon be sent to England to join one squadron already in training there.

Canada's defenses, he said, will be framed on the basis of possible attack by air and sea. There was a 100-ship naval force now in the making.

Radar System

On the ground, Canada, working with the U.S., was planning a huge radar warning system, to bolster air defenses. One-quarter of the system would be located in Canada, built and paid for by Canadians. Anti-aircraft guns were being modernized to supplement air defense and protect vital points.

But all this effort led to problems, and some of them were:

1. The St. Lawrence Seaway must be built. Without it, the steel industry now on the Great Lakes area would have to migrate to the Atlantic coast.
2. Commodity controls in Canada would have to be extended "to all war commodities."
3. Canada was placing eight times as many war orders in the U.S. as the U.S. was placing in Canada. More contracts and sub-contracts could "with advantage" be placed in Canada.
4. Inflation was a big headache in Canada. The $5,000,000,000 three-year defence program on which the government has embarked was comparable on a per capita basis to what the U.S. now was spending.

"We know, as you do, that appropriations for military preparedness tend to grow rather than to shrink, and I believe that when the emergency is over you will find that our defense expenditures are relatively comparable to your own."

Equal Stability

Canada could not hope for a measure of stability in prices without stability in the U.S. said Mr. Howe.

"We earnestly hope you will succeed in attaining a reasonable measure of stability for only if that happens can we in Canada hope to avoid serious trouble."

He did not want to suggest that Canadians can relax and let the U.S. solve the price control for them.

"That has never been the Canadian attitude and never will be. Canada is pursuing fundamental anti-inflationary policies as vigorously as ever. All I say is that you in the U.S. succeed in all your efforts to stabilize prices, one of the most powerful external pressures toward rising prices in Canada will be relieved."

Mr. Howe told his American audience of the big defense production program in Canada.

"We are building two types of jet fighter planes that we believe to be the most efficient being built anywhere, and we are also producing trainer planes, part of which will go toward your training program.

"We are coming into production with a jet engine suitable for our fighter planes, and with a radial engine that will power our trainer planes. We have a very large radar program in hand."

Guelph Landslide Crushes St. Michael's Majors 8-2

By The Canadian Press.

Guelph Biltmores' Ken Laufman grabbed top scoring honors in the OHA Junior A race as the Hatters walloped Toronto St. Michael's Majors 8-2 in one of the three games played.

Elsewhere, Toronto Marlboros beat Galt Black Hawks 5-3 and St. Catharines Teepees trounced Stratford Kroehlers by the same score.

In the Guelph-St. Mike's game, goalie Ed Chadwick of the Toronto club was hurt by a stray stick at the 16:27 mark of the second frame with the score 7-1 for Guelph. He was unable to continue when the St. Mike's trainer accidentally shoved smelling salts down his throat, knocking him out. The remaining time of the second period was added to the third frame and spare goalie Gerry Young replaced Chadwick.

Centre Laufman got a goal and an assist to make his total number of scoring points 104, one up on Oshawa Generals' Lou Jankowski. Andy Bathgate with two goals and Harrow Howell, Eddy Kulik, Ron Murphy, Don Keith, and Herb Dickenson adding singles to keep the Hatters in third place just behind Toronto Marlboros. Bob Sabourin and Bill Lee's counters failed to save St. Mike's from slipping a little deeper into the ninth-place rut.

On The Go

In Galt, Eric Nesterenko rapped in three to lead Marlies, Chuck Lumsden and Parker McDonald getting the other two. Hawks' Pete Conacher, Ken Wharram and Walt Gardner answered, but Galt goalie Clark Somerville got poor protection from his defencemen.

Skip Teal and Bibber O'Hearn with doubles paced Teepees in their 5-3 victory, Billy Young getting the fifth. Chick Chalmers, Gord Myles and Bob Bailey registered for Kroehlers.

Wednesday in OHA Major engagements Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen tangle with Hamilton Tigers and Toronto St. Michael's meet Toronto Marlboros. In the junior loop Oshawa Generals face Waterloo Hurricanes, Windsor Spitfires engage Barrie Flyers. Teepees mix with Kroehlers again and Toronto's Marlboros and St. Michael's clash.

May Stockpile Rubber In Australia

SYDNEY (CP)— The National Security Resources Board is considering stockpiling rubber, bauxite and sulphur for Australian defence.

Rubber is needed chiefly for aircraft and motor-vehicle tires. Bauxite is used in making aluminum, and sulphur for making explosives.

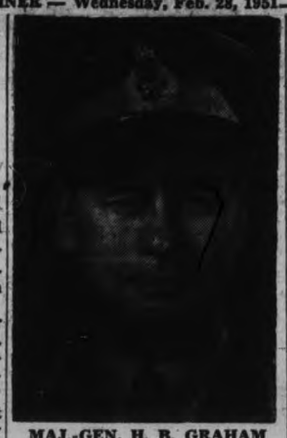
Government officials say that federal ministers have already made it clear that rubber is in short supply, and with increased defence commitments the shortage will be more pronounced.

American overseas buying has cut down the amount of rubber available to other importing countries.

Bauxite is considered plentiful at the moment. Deposits at the reserves of the Australian Aluminum Commission are estimated at about 8,600,000 tons.

Have War in Mind

But in the event of war consumption would increase rapidly.



Australia has fairly adequate stocks of sulphur, but with increased American buying for its own stockpiling needs, officials expect that the National Resources Board will recommend the establishment of a reserve.

Sulphur is at present being imported from Italy, Texas, and Mexico, but Australia has been allowed only very small quantities in the US export allocation for the first quarter of 1951.

Because of this, Australai is importing more from Italy.

Frost Urges Ottawa To Withdraw From Liquor Taxes

TORONTO, March 1.—(CP).—The Ontario Government wants to be alone in the field of liquor taxation. Premier Frost Wednesday urged the Federal Government to vacate the field, leaving the revenue from liquor taxes completely to the provinces. Speaking during debate on an amendment to the Liquor Licence Act, Premier Frost said in the Ontario Legislature: "There is no field in which more good would come than in this field, if a single taxing authority could be arranged." Premier Frost said an example of the confusion that could be caused by the dual authority in the field was the federal increase in the liquor tax last September. He said it was made without notice and upset the province's estimate of revenue from the tax.

The provinces needed additional sources of revenue and liquor would be a good way of providing them, Mr. Frost said, noting that of a total of $102,000,000 in liquor taxes in 1949, the federal government had received $62,000,000.

The government bill to amend the Liquor Licence Act would permit local option votes in areas legally wet but which have no liquor outlets at present and thus cannot vote. Liquor status of amalgamated or annexed areas would remain unchanged unless a local option vote calls for a change.

It would also give the Liquor Licence Board power to deny applicants for liquor licences the opportunity to make formal application, in cases where they have no chance of success.

The Premier criticized federal intervention in liquor taxation, and said it was not conducive either to good liquor administration or to good federal-provincial relations.

Action in changing Ontario's liquor permit system in 1943, during liquor rationing, had educated "hundreds of thousands" to purchase liquor.

Mr. Frost said that Judge W. T. Robb, chairman of the Liquor Licence Board, had been ordered to review all licences. He said he had also considered the question of local autonomy in controlling liquor licences, but the need for uniformity had indicated the value of one board over the whole province.

U.S. Railways Settle Wage Dispute

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Presidential assistant John R. Steelman today announced a settlement of the wage dispute between the American railroads and 15 non-operating unions. It calls for a 12½-cent hourly pay increase for 1,000,000 workers.

Steelman's announcement came after a night-long session at the White House climaxing negotiations which had begun last Oct. 25.

The 15 unions originally had asked for a 25-cent hourly wage increase for their members, including shop employees, machinists, clerks and others who do not actually run the trains.

Another increase, estimated at four to five cents an hour, will be added to the 12½ cents about April 1, based on the government's cost-of-living index of Feb. 15.

A still further boost in the hourly wage rate will be permitted next summer if the government's stabilization program permits the kind of productivity allowance called for by the CIO-auto workers contract in the automobile industry.

Retroactive To Feb. 1

The 12½-cent boost is retroactive to Feb. 1.

Today's settlement has no direct bearing on another rail dispute involving operating workers — switchmen, enginemen, firemen—who have staged sporadic strikes recently.

Non-operating employees had been getting an average pay of $1.48 an hour before the increase.

Their Host Dead But Party Gay

LONDON, March 1 (Reuters).—There was a gay party at London's plush Savoy Hotel Wednesday night.

Champagne was free on request, cigars at $4 apiece were plentiful, and the canapes were the best.

Altogether, 150 men—it was a stag party—attended the binge. But the host was absent.

The party was to celebrate the anniversary of his death and the glory of his regiment, the Honorable Artillery Company.

Before he died Capt. H. Forest Stanley Pryke wrote a will, and in it he bequeathed almost $4,000 to a friend, Maj. Gerald Wilford, for "a party worthy of the HAC."

There was no evening dress, no toast "to absent friends," and no women. Capt. Pryke was a bachelor. To him there was nothing gayer than a stag party.

There is enough of the $4,000 left to stage two more parties for him.

Expect Casualties Arrive At Weekend

VANCOUVER, March 1 (CP)—Canadian battle casualties from Korea are expected to arrive here this weekend, it was reported Wednesday. They will be flown from the fighting front for treatment in Shaughnessy Military Hospital.

"We expect wounded to be arriving here this weekend or early next week," an official said. "So far we have no official word."

The Canadians, members of the Princess Patricias Canadian Light Infantry, went into action in Korea a week ago. Their casualties were reported light.

It was not known how many of the wounded would arrive.

Neighbors Good Deed Becomes A Tragedy

WINDSOR, March 1 (CP). — Ray (Mush) Vigneaux, 55, died at hospital of food poisoning contracted from food brought in by neighbors at the time of the death of his brother, Norman.

Funeral services for Norman were held last Saturday. The following day, 12 members of the bereaved family were stricken by food poisoning after eating a meal of food brought by neighbors.

Dr. John Howie, medical officer of health, said laboratory tests showed there were poisonous organisms in a ham which formed part of the meal that caused the poisoning.

Siamese Twins Born To Montreal Woman

MONTREAL, March 1—(CP)—Premature Siamese twins born to 25-year-old Mrs. Fridolin Gervais died here early today one hour after their birth in a room in east-end Montreal. The twins were joined at the abdomen, thorax and face.

Attending physician Dr. Andre Mireault gave the cause of death as "congenital debility."

The woman, who was attended by the doctor and a nurse, was said to be resting comfortably.

The births were the first for Mrs. Gervais who has been married 1½ years. Her husband, a laborer, was present at the delivery.

FIRST HOSPITAL PATIENTS

TRENTON, March 1 (CP) — Two relatives of the late William Lyon Mackenzie King were the first patients to enter the new Trenton Memorial Hospital.

Nancy and Paul Dunlop, three-week-old twins, were placed in the hospital Wednesday as a precautionary measure to guard against flu. Their father is group Capt. G. P. Dunlop of the RCAF station here. The late prime minister was a granduncle.

USSR Agrees To Big 4 Paris Meeting

Say Russia Intends To Send 17-Man Delegation

MOSCOW, March 1. (CP) — Russia agreed today to a Western proposal for a Big-Four Deputy Foreign Ministers' meeting in Paris March 5 to lay the groundwork for a Big-Four Foreign Ministers' meeeting.

Reuters News Agency said it had learned that Russia would send a 17-man delegation to Paris.

The return acceptance was handed to the ambassadors of the United States, Britain and France. They were called to the Soviet foreign office to receive a reply to parallel notes their governments sent Feb. 19 suggesting such a meeting.

The Deputies will try to map out an agenda for a proposed Big-Four council of Foreign Ministers meeeting to discuss problems causing world tension.

Meet at Pink Palace

The French Foreign Office Wednesday announced that it had chosen the "Pink Palace" (Palais Rose) in Paris as the meeting place of the deputies.

If these preliminary talks bring about a Big Four foreign ministers' conference it will be the ninth since the Potsdam agreement of 1945 providing for such meetings. The last one was in the fall of 1949, when the Big Four failed to agree on an independence treaty for occupied Austria.

The idea of a new Big Four meeting was suggested by Russia in a note last Nov. 3. The Soviet Union wanted the ministers to discuss German questions alone, particularly the issue of German rearmament. But the Western Powers insisted that any such meeting should deal with other world problems as well.

Gromyko Leader

Later in the day, it was announced that the Soviet delegation to the Paris deputies' session next Monday will be headed by Andrei A. Gromyko, first deputy foreign minister. His assignment was taken here as an indication of the importance the Russians attach to the talks.

It was learned a first study of Russia's note indicated it made two main points:

1. The United States (and other Western) charges against Russia's military strength and conduct in the world are baseless and the Soviet Union rejected them as it has before.

2. The Soviet Union is prepared to go into the Paris meeting March 5.

The question obviously left open, according to this information, is that of the terms and conditions of the Paris meeting.

Casualty Of Wool

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 1. — (AP). — A Columbus soldier has been shipped home from Korea, not a victim of bullets or frostbite—he just can't wear the army's wool uniform. Sgt. Glenn E. Garrison has what doctors say is an allergy to wool. "Of course, you had to wear wool in Korea," Garrison said at his home Wednesday. "And I'd break out and swell up." Oddly enough, Garrison served 3½ years in the army in the Second World War. But most of this was in the South Pacific where only cotton was worn. He expects a discharge soon.

6,000 Dockers Walk Off Ships In New Protest

SYDNEY, March 1 (Reuters)—Sydney's 6,000 dock workers today walked off ships in protest against the jailing of an official of the Waterside Union.

A few hours earlier, E. C. Roach, assistant general secretary of the Waterside Union, had been sentenced to 12 months for contempt of court. He was charged with publishing in the federation's newspaper a circular, an article and a cartoon to embarrass the arbitration court.

Labor Minister Harold Holt Wednesday told dockworkers to end their ban on overtime by March 4 or face disciplinary measures. They want £1 (about $2.35) increase in their weekly basic wage. An arbitration court has awarded them only a 10-shilling increase.

The government reported plans to use emergency legislation now being drafted to deal with the one-day-a-week strikes of coal miners, reliable sources said today.

Under it the unions can be fined heavily and union leaders fined or jailed.

Meanwhile in New Zealand, police Wednesday seized the headquarters of the Auckland Branch of the Watersiders Union as dock workers decided to continue their 11-day strike for wage increases.

Five hundred servicemen today loaded butter for Britain, unloaded Australian wheat, and manned the cold stores.

Some 20,000 tons of badly-needed phosphate bound for New Zealand has been diverted to Australia.

Most coal miners in New Zealand have gone on strike in sympathy with the watersiders. Work also has stopped at several hydro-electric construction projects.

Toronto Backing Out Amalgamation Plan

TORONTO, March 1 (CP)—The City of Toronto is getting legal advice on the advisability of backing out of its attempt to bring about amalgamation of 12 suburban municipalities with the city.

The city's board of control decided on the action Wednesday fearful that the outcome of hearings before the Ontario Municipal Board might be for a metropolitan area plan under which all public utilities would be brought under a joint administration with no recompense to Toronto, each municipality retaining its own administration.

The metropolitan idea was advanced by York County, acting on behalf of the 12 municipalities. It suggested that waterworks, sewage disposal plants and the city-owned Toronto transportation commission be administered by a metropolitan board.

Receives Word Husband Wounded

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., March 1 (CP)—A New Westminster woman said Wednesday night that her soldier husband has been injured in the Korean war.

Mrs. Anita Wagstaff said Lieut. Alfred S. Wagstaff suffered gunshot wounds to both legs Sunday while in action with the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry on the west central front.

Word of his injuries came through the Canadian army she said. He was the first identified Canadian casualty since the Patricias went into action last week.

Mrs. Wagstaff did not know whether her husband would be returned to Canada or kept in an overseas hospital.

Tie Cabbie To Tree, Gets $36 Loot

Hold Three Soldiers At Kingston For Armed Robbery

KINGSTON, March 1. (CP) —Three soldiers were arrested on armed robbery charges today after a wild midnight-to-dawn taxi ride. They were accused of stealing an estimated $36.00 from a taxi driver at gunpoint and of tying him to a tree at Gananoque, 15 miles east of here.

Taken into custody while in the taxi in downtown Kingston following the robbery were two men who gave their names as Pte. Lawrence Madden and Pte. William Metcalfe, both stationed at nearby Barriefield barracks.

Arrested at a Provincial Police roadblock at Cornwall, 90 miles north-east of Gananoque, was the other man, identified as Raymond Morgan, 23, of Roslyn, Ont.

The taxi driver, Clarence Curragh, 23, of Kingston, said three men hired him to drive them to Gananoque shortly after midnight. He said that on the way one soldier pulled a gun and, with the other two forced Curragh out of the taxicab and tied him to a tree with his own necktie and suspenders. Then the men drove away in the cab.

Curragh freed himself after an hour.

Two Transports, Two Cars Pile Up

OSHAWA, March 1 (CP). — Three slightly-injured men today rescued two drivers from an early-morning pileup of two automobiles and two transport trucks on slippery highway 10 miles west of here.

John Cassels, 22, his 23-year-old brother James and Ed Chillman, 19, all of whom live at Fairport Beach near the scene of the accident, suffered minor cuts when a skidding transport driven by Edward Carr, 26, of Toronto, hit the rear of their automobile and rolled on its side.

With the help of the three men, Carr, with a deep cut on the neck scrambled from the wrecked cab of his truck.

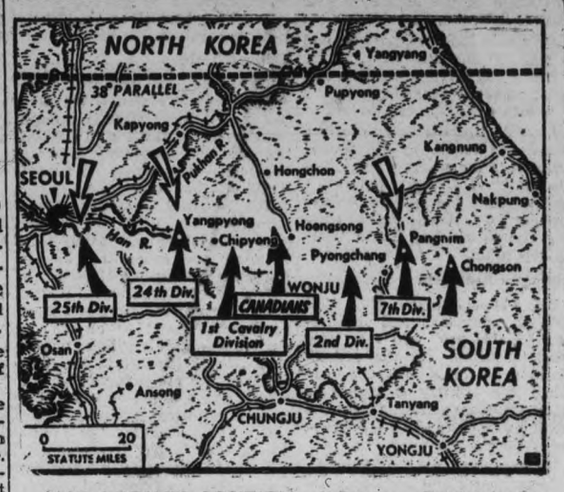
Seconds later, another truck, driven by E. L. G. Corbett of Toronto, jack-knifed into the cab of the wrecked truck. Corbett was unhurt but his truck was damaged extensively.

The Fairport Beach men had barely pulled Corbett clear when a car driven by H. D. Mountjoy of Toronto struck the wreckage of Corbett's truck and, travelled almost 300 feet down the highway. Mountjoy, severely injured, was taken to a Toronto hospital.

MacArthur Lifts Red Cross Ban

GENEVA, March 1 — (AP)—The League of Red Cross Societies said Wednesday the ban imposed by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's headquarters on wearing of the Red Cross emblem in Korea has been lifted.

The league has recruited medical welfare teams from Canada, Denmark, Britain and the United States at the request of the United Nations, for work among the civilian population of Korea. When members of the teams reached Tokyo they were informed they would not be permitted to wear their Red Cross emblems.



The league then protested to UN.

TORONTO, March 1— (CP)—The third member of a Canadian Red Cross team and the three members of a British unit are proceeding from Tokyo to Korea to do relief work among civilian refugees.

Mr. Stanbury said two members of the three-man Canadian unit—J. P. Purves, a Public Welfare officer from Cranbrook, B.C., and Tim Yeh, a graduate in sanitary engineering from University of Toronto—are already in Korea. They will be joined by Dr. O. A. Wiesener of Toronto, a medical officer.

Canadians Advance One Mile To Reach Suburb of Yongdu

Princess Pats Take Three Important Hills

MAP LOCATES POSITION of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry earlier this week in the centre of the line with the British Commonwealth Brigade. The Pats seized three important hills Wednesday and advanced to the outskirts of Yongdu, southwest of Hongchong. Meanwhile U.S. troops of the 7th and 2nd Divisions have closed a vice on the Hoengsong-Pangnim highway and have struck north in pursuit of fleeing Chinese Reds. On the western sector patrols from the U.S. 2th Division spashed across the Han River into Seoul, meeting only minor opposition.

TOKYO, March 1.—(CP). — United States Marines dived today into hilltop trenches north of Hoengsong with flashing bayonets, and wrested two key heights from Communist Chinese defenders.

Both hills were taken in quick order by the Marines, who led United Nations central front forces at the heart of a 40,000-man Red Chinese force dug in north of Hoengsong.

The main action at the centre of the line sparked similar Allied advances at the western and eastern anchors of a 60-mile front.

U.S. 3rd Division troops fought on the western end of the line. Seventh Division infantrymen battled at the eastern end.

West of the marines, Canadian troops, along with other commonwealth units, were reported pushing out of the Chipyong area. Chipyong is about 12 miles west of Hoengsong.

Reach Yongdu

The 2nd Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry Wednesday advanced to the outskirts of Yongdu, southwest of Hongchon where the Reds are concentrated. The Canadians, supported by New Zealand infantry, drove ahead more than a mile after capturing three high points in the rugged, hilly area.

The Eighth Army communique issued at 8 p.m. Korean time (6 a.m. EST), reported that British elements advanced 3,000 yards—a little less than two miles—and secured Hill 527 three miles southeast of Yongdu at 2 a.m. The British elements were not further identified.

In the air, combat between jet planes was reported for the first time since early in February. Four United States F-80 Shooting Stars tangled with 12 Russian-type MIG jets in a 10-minute dogfight over northwest Korea. The Fifth Air Force said no American jets were damaged but three enemy planes were reported to have been damaged.

Maj. Maurice Roach, a marine battalion commander described today's bloody end of the marine fight for the two hills:

Savage UN Army Tactics Break Guerrilla Activities

U.S. EIGHTH ARMY HEADQUARTERS, KOREA, March 1. (AP)—Relentless pursure-and-kill tactics of the US Eighth Army appear to have broken the back of Communist guerrilla activities behind United Nations lines. There was a time when anti-guerrilla warfare kept at least one division and a regimental combat team busy, when they were sorely needed on the front lines. Those outfits now are at the front.

Today there are an estimated 29,000 guerrillas in South Korea, but they are split into two groups. South Korean troops and National Police are doing most of the mopping-up work.

At the height of their activity, the guerrillas made rear-area life hazardous. They raided towns and villages, and attacked allied supply trains carrying supplies from the big base at Taegu in south-east Korea to the front.

The anti-guerrilla warfare was divided into two basic operations. In one, an allied force kept main supply routes open. In the other, units were sent to hunt out and kill the Communists.

One guerrilla group, estimated to number 10,000 is in the south-west corner of Korea. The other is in the mountainous area around Andong, in east central Korea.

The southwestern group, never a dangerous threat, is made up mainly of poorly-armed Communist sympathizers, disgruntled and hungry refugees and just ordinary bandits. It is not astride any main supply route.

The group in the east central mountains was different. Eighth Army officers called it an organized military force with a definite mission.

Intelligence reports said it was made up of the 10th North Korean Division plus stragglers. It was given the mission of cutting the east central supply route and attacking Taegu.

But they failed miserably. U.S. Marines, re-outfitted after the Changjin reservoir retreat in northeastern Korea last December, moved into the area around Andong.

Malton Plant Doubles Staff

TORONTO, March 1 — (CP).—A. V. Roe Company of Canada announced today that its new plant for production of Orenda jet engines will be built by Steel Improvement and Forge Company of Cleveland, Ohio, and may be in production about the end of this year. A company spokesman said the cost will be "in the millions."

He added that within 18 months there will be 10,000 employees on the company's payroll, about double the present number.

The engine plant at Malton, about 18 miles north-west of Toronto, will be near the firm's present plant where the engines will be assembled in the airframes.

The Orenda engine will be used primarily for the new CF-100 all-weather, all-purpose jet fighter.

Churchill Makes Italy Apology

LONDON, March 1 (CP) — Conservative Leader Winston Churchill Wednesday night issued a statement saying he is sorry if any of his remarks offended the Italian people.

Hansard records Churchill as having said in the House of Commons last Monday

"Be quiet, hold your tongue. Go and talk to the Italians. It's all you are fit to do."

Churchill was believed to have been addressing his remarks to old antagonist who recently gave an interview to an Italian newspaper.

A group of Labor members of parliament Wednesday night sent a letter to Premier Gasperi of Italy dissociating themselves from what they called Churchill's "insulting referende" to Italy.

Churchill's statement said:

"I am sorry if any remark of mine in the heat of debate should seem to imply disrespect of the Italian people. This was far from my intention. Ever since the fall of the Mussolini regime I have done my best to help them regain their honorable position in Europe and this is shown not by words only, but by actions."

Girl 3 Falls Into River Boy 4 Runs, Brings Help

BROCKVILLE, March 1 (CP) —The presence of mind of four-year-old Reggie Clements is credited with saving the life of his three year old playmate, Kathy Coleman, when the tiny girl tumbled into the icy water of the Nation river at North Augusta, 14 miles north west of here, yesterday.

The youngster ran to his home nearby and told his mother, Mrs. Alfred Clements, what had happened. She rushed to a next door garage and four men went in search of the child.

"Bud" Bowmen, one of the four, spotted the youngster floating face down some 300 yards down-stream from where she had fallen in.

Wading into the four-foot deep water, he lifted the child out. She had been in the stream almost 10 minutes and according to Bowman was "already turning black."

Les Clifford, one of the other men, rushed the unconscious child to a nearby general store and artificial respiration under the direction of Mrs. Theodore Baker, a trained nurse, was begun immediately.

Dr. A. I. Armstrong, an ambulance and firemen arrived about 15 minutes later and an inhalator was applied. The doctor, firemen and the nurse worked for more than an hour before little girl began to show signs of life and color returned.

She was taken to hospital where today she was reported recovering satisfactorily.

Experts Cheer Britain Sunny Weather Ahead

LONDON, March 1 — (CP) — After enduring the wettest February in recorded history, Britain today looked forward to a promised spell of sunshine. Meteorological experts said the weather had broken at last.

Instead, the first day of March brought impenetrable fog. London suburbs were particularly hard hit.

The fog followed Britain's wettest month since observations started in 1871. The February total was 4.98 inches, more than three times the February average.

In January and February this year the country had more rain than it usually has in the first five months of the year.

Way To Fight Inflation Increase Production Prime Minister Declares

Intends To Propose To Parliament That Canadian Forces Be Sent To Join Gen. Eisenhower's Army

OTTAWA, March 1.—(CP).—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Wednesday night that the Canadian Government will impose price controls if and when it believes they will "really work." "But we are not," he told a big Liberal party gathering, "going to recommend controls unless and until we can honestly tell the public we believe they will work." At the same time, he warned that Canadian living standards and consumption of goods are going to drop as a consequence of inflation and Canada's defence program.

Affirming the Government's belief that over-all price controls would not be "really effective" at this stage of the country's fight against inflation, he said:

"We wish it were otherwise and it may become otherwise. . . We are keeping our minds free and ready to adapt our policies to any new and changing conditions."

Mr. St. Laurent was reporting as Liberal leader to the annual banquet of the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation of Canada, the party's policy-making body. The council's three-day annual meeting ended Wednesday night.

Discusses Problems

The Prime Minister dealt with both the domestic and international fields, and said the "only quick" solution to the present world problem is war—the very thing this country is trying to avoid. It was going to take "a lot of patience to solve our problems without war."

He expressed his "undiminished" confidence that the North Atlaitic alliance, if all member states do their part, will "give us reasonably good chances to prevent any third world war."

Mr. St. Laurent affirmed the government's intention to propose to Parliament that Canadian forces—both from the army and the RCAF—be sent to form a part of Gen. Eisenhower's integrated forces in Europe.

On the question of price controls, he said the best way to fight inflation is to increase production. But even if the country produced more in 1951 and 1952 than she did in 1949 and 1950 the defence program was "so large that there is still bound to be some reduction in consumption and in living standards for some of our people."

The thing to do was to try "to keep the inevitable reduction in civilian goods as low as possible and distribute what is left as fairly as possible."

Jaycees Give Impromptu Talks

Impromtu speeches were the feature at the Wednesday night effective speaking class at the Public Library. Attended by 17 Junior Chamber of Commerce members, there were 32 speeches made, and three demonstrations of use of voice.

Speakers included three-minute talks by Bob Wyatt, My First Job; Ken Broadhurst, Why Peterborough Needs an Airport; Vern Slocum, It's My Job; Les. Groombridge, Peterborough Theatres; Gerry Grady, My Most Embarassing Moment; Bernie Morin, Peterborough's Raiway Services; Grenville Lathangue, A Habit I Broke; Bill Waye, Fishing Is Fun; Bruce Edwards, My Favourite Radio Program; Jack Haldimand, Our New City Hall; Joe Marino, Why I Have Chosen This Course; L. B. Martin, The Public Library, and Charles Boulter, My Hobby.

Animation, anger and table thumping were the highlights of the pet peeve section on impromptu speaking. Peterborough motorists, car splashing, unemployment insurance, Communism, and radio programs were under fire during the peeve speeches.

Arrangements were made to hold a mock parliament at the March 7 meeting. Party leaders elected were Alf. Tigley and Joe Marino. Vern Slocum was named speaker.

Alf. Tingley was chairman of the fourth effective speaking session.

Canada Watching U.S. Hearings

OTTAWA, March 1 (CP)—The Canadian government is watching with keen but noncommittal interest the progress of current United States congressional hearings on the long-debated St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

A couple of months ago, Canadian authorities were urging that Canada should consider undertaking the seaway phase of the project alone if the U.S. Congress continued to give the development the legislative cold shoulder.

They argued that Canada had waited long enough for Congress to make up its mind, that rapidly-expanding Canadian industrial centres urgently needed the power that would be provided and that the deep seaway was essential to continental defence.

They are still stressing the importance of the project as a source of power and a defence measure, but now that it is before a congressional committee in Washington, the suggestion that Canada might go it alone has been quietly dropped.

However, it is believed that Ottawa has plans—never made public—covering a Canadian undertaking without U.S. co-operation. But the government would prefer to develop the project in company with the U.S. A joint undertaking would mean a sharing of the cost and the construction of a better seaway.

Ask Bidault Try To Form New Cabinet

PARIS, March 1 (AP)—President Vincent Auriol today called on former premier Georges Bidault to try to form a new French government.

Auriol tapped the dapper, experienced politician for the job after Rene Pleven, who quit with his coalition cabinet Wednesday in a dispute over a new election law, had turned down an offer to try again.

Bidault's was France's first post-war foreign minister and was premier twice—for five months in 1946, and again from October, 1949, to June, 1950. He said he would confer with leaders of other parties to see if he stood any chance of forming a new cabinet. He is a leader of the Roman Catholic Mouvement Republicain Populaire (MRP).

A group of middle-of-the-road deputies, headed by Vincent de Moro-Giaferri now are backing a constitutional amendment in parliament calling for a national referendum to let the voters decide for themselves on their electoral system.

Cabinet Resigns

Pleven and his three-party coalition cabinet resigned Wednesday night, after slightly more than seven months in office, when the National Assembly became hopelessly deadlocked on proposed electoral changes.

The national elections are scheduled for next fall. The changes must be made fairly soon to allow the authorities to arrange the ballots in time.

The new proposal would let the voters decide whether their next parliament would be chosen on a personal-candidacy basis or by proportional representation, and whether the election would be only a single ballot or would include a run-off.

These issues caused the downfall of the Pleven government. The Assembly late Wednesday voted down the single-ballot system 311 to 295. Rather than ask for a vote of confidence on the run-off system, Pleven resigned after a behind-the-scenes count convinced him such a motion would be defeated.

Half-Load Bans Effective Today

Because of a sudden stretch of mild weather, half-loading restrictions for trucks become effective today. The announcement was made by Highways Minister George Doucett.

The restrictive period will be from March 1 to April 15, he said. But if freezing weather sets in, the restrictions will be lifted.

Here is the local situation:

Half loads on Highway 7 east, from seven miles east of Peterborough (where the cement paving ends) to Perth; and on Highway 7A.

Highway 7, west, permits full loads as does Highway 28, Port Hope to Peterborough.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, March 1 (CP) — All grains displayed a good tone in moderately active trade today.

The market's opening was delayed a half hour by mechanical difficulties in the board's own telephone system, which links commission houses with their representatives on the floor. This system was set up many years ago to prevent theft of board quotations.

150 Homeless As Fire Sweeps Apt. Building

TORONTO, March 1—(CP)—A five-year-old boy, pinch-hitting for his father, aided the escape of some 150 tenants Wednesday when fire destroyed the three-storey Vaughan Gardens apartments.

Courage and alertness of little Laird Neville was credited for the safe escape of all occupants of the U-shaped building on Vaughan Road at the northwestern outskirts of the city.

Eight firemen suffered minor injuries in battling the spectacular blaze that raged out of control for more than five hours. Eleven persons, one a 74-year-old invalid, were rescued by firemen. Damage was estimated at $325,-000.

Laird, son of the building's janitor, discovered the fire in the basement shortly before noon and gave the alarm. The youngster raced through the corridors pounding on apartment doors and yelling "fire! fire!"

His father, Gerald Neville, was absent when the fire was discovered, but returned moments later to join his son in rousing the occupants.

Most tenants escaped with no more than the clothing they were wearing as the rapidly-spreading flames swept through the building. Several, asleep when the blaze started, escaped in their night attire. A few persons, suffering from influenza were carried to safety on ladders.

Dense clouds of smoke and flames shooting more than 40 feet into the air attracted thousands of spectators to the scene. The entire top-floor of the 46-apartment brick structure was gutted and most of the remainder of the building was charred and ruined by the flames.

William Brickstock, who resides on the top floor, had one of the narrowest escapes. He had just arrived home for lunch when he heard young Neville yelling "fire."

He got his wife safely from the building, then returned to his apartment to phone the fire department.

"When I went out into the hall again, there was so much smoke I didn't dare try and reach the fire escape," said Brickstock.

He returned to his apartment, climbed out a window and hung by his fingertips until firemen were able to bring a ladder and rescue him.

'When they reached the skyline I saw them leap into the Chinese trenches and saw them thrusting and stabbing with their bayonetted rifles."

The marine assault forces jumped off at 2 a.m. Nine hours later they had taken two crests of Cloverleaf Hill, just west of the Twinnam river. This is the nearest high point to the strategic road hub of Hoengsong.

Shift Attack

Then they shifted their attack northwest toward Hill 315, where the main enemy defenders were believed dug in.

Two miles to the west another marine force ran into a tougher fight in their assault against wooded Hill 438, which rises 1,500 feet from the valley floor. The Chinese, holed inn, resisted all efforts to dislodge them.

Allied tanks, artillery and planes hit the enemy along parts of the entire Communist line.

The Allied actions on the western, central and eastern fronts had the semblance of a general attack, But U.N. commanders indicated that each was limited in scope. They likened them more to line-straightening thrusts than to an over-all drive.

Buying Picks Up On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, March 1 (CP). — Buying picked up slightly as the session progressed on the Toronto Stock Exchange today and prices advanced slowly in continuation of yesterday's late recovery move.

Callinan Flin Flon, a sensation with its extreme volume and price fluctuations in January, came back to life today after several weeks of obscurity. In mid-afternoon it was the most active issue on the board with a turnover of 225,000 shares. It jumped 10 cents in early trading and settled with a three-cent gain at 28 cents.

Industrial advances ranged to more than a point. Papers led the way with a wide list of issues higher and utilities, agricultures, constructions, foods and liquors showed a majority of gains. Steels, manufacturing companies, textiles and refining oils were mixed and retail stores and banks tended lower.

Noranda and Consolidated Smelters headed an otherwise fractionally higher base metal list with jumps of more than $1. Key issues ahead included Waite Amulet, United Keno Hill, Quemont and Falconbridge.

Western oils and golds moved ahead over a broad front with small gains.

Informal Talks

LONDON, March 1.—(Reuters). —Gen. Eisenhower, Atlantic Pact supreme commander, arrived in London from Paris by air today for informal talks with the British chiefs of staff. Small Majority Averts Crisis

ROME, March 1 (AP).—Prime Minister Alcide De Gasperi's government squeezed out a narrow majority on a minor phase of the defence program today and staved off a government crisis.

The narrowness of the margin, however, suggested that either some of De Gasperi's own Christian Democrats were voting against the government or that virtually all others in the Chamber of Deputies voted with the Communists.

De Gasperi threatened earlier today to resign if there is a repetition of his government's defeat—its first—in the Chamber of Deputies Wednesday night. He was set back, 219 to 214, on a minor amendment to a defence bill. In the immediate offing is the principal test vote on the pro-western government's $415,-000,000 rearmament budget.

Today's vote, on a measure providing for a census of supplies, was 253 to 237 for the government. The necessary vote for a majority is 246.

US Ambassador Urges Begin Seaway Now

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP).—Stanley Woodward, United States Asbassador to Canada, today urged an immediate start on construction of the proposed St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

The seaway, currently the subject of Congressional hearings in Washington, would link ocean-going vessels with the Great Lakes via the St. Lawrence River.

In an address prepared for the Rotary Club of New York, Woodward termed the seaway project "strategically necessary and economically sound."

"A substantial part of the seaway exists today," he said. "Large ships can travel almost all of it. For about 1,000 miles, or up to Montreal from the sea, ocean-going vessels can travel."

Want Atomic Pile

NEW DELHI, March 1.—(Reuters).—The Indian Atomic Energy Commission is actively considering setting up an atomic pile in India, Sri Prakasa, minister for natural resources and scientific research, told Parliament today. Radioisotopes could be manufactured in India only after creation of such a pile, he said. The isotopes were at present being imported from the United States and Britain.

Barcelona Riots

MADRID, March 1.—(Reuters): —Firecrackers and small bombs exploded in Barcelona Wednesday night as students continued their protests against increased streetcar fares. The students' organization appealed to members not to take part in the disorders, which it said were provoked by outside agitators. The demonstrations started Saturday.

Power Situation Desperate US Officials Told

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP) —A House of Representatives committee was told today that the power situation in the St. Lawrence States—New England, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania—is "no longer critical—it is desperate."

Clyde T. Ellis, executive manager of the National Rural Electric Co-operative Association, urged early congressional approval of the St. Lawrence seaway and power project.

"The whole St. Lawrence area has been, and is, confronted with a critical shortage of electric power," he told the House Public Works Committee. "It can easily be seen that the power situation in this region is no longer critical—it is desperate."

He testified there are 28 rural electric co-operatives in the St. Lawrence area but, because of the shortage of power, they provide energy for only 73 per cent of the farms, compared with a national average of 85 per cent.

War Possibilities

"Our people in this area, like all people throughout the country, are also interested in the fact that, should war come again, the St. Lawrence development would supply power and navigation requirements that might not be obtainable from any other source," he said.

"The farmers are interested in the fact that by 1960, 40,000,000 tons of iron ore will have to be imported each year to maintain annual steel production at 130,-000,000 tons, which has been set as our goal to meet defence needs.

"This means low-cost transportation facilities must be available to deliver ore to blast furnaces and converters in the Great Lakes region."

Four cabinet members and other administration aides have urged Congress to approve the seaway to provide a deep-water route for Labrador iron ore to supplement lessening supplies from Minnesota.

2,500 Girls Taking Part In YW's Various Activities

The Peterborough YWCA celebrates its 60th anniversary this year. The work it has done and is doing in Peterborough was commented on recently by its president, Mrs. T. J. Carley.

"There is no other place in the city where girls will receive so much help physically, mentally and spiritually as in the YWCA."

Wednesday afternoon in an interview with the Examiner, Miss L. Brownscombe, executive director of the YWCA., backed up the president's statement with the following facts and figures:

A total of 2,500 girls are contacted in the YWCA through its recreational, craft and club activities. Of this total 1,532 are members.

What are all these young people receiving in the Y?

"Our program is full and diversified," Miss Brownscombe remarked. "We offer health and recreation in the gymnasium and swimming pool, training in skills and leadership, friendship and broader interests through self-governing clubs and classes in drama, art and crafts."

In a breakdown of the Y's activities, Miss Brownscombe explained that 1,337 had registered in 16 gymnasium dancing classes, basketball and badminton in 1950. In addition, 76 basketball league games were played in the gym.

In the swimming department, 814 registered in 26 swimming classes with an aggregate attendance of 11,878 for the past year. A total of 400 girls learned how to swim, 55 gained Red Cross awards and 57, Royal Life Saving awards.

Classes totalling 120 were given to pupils handicapped with polio. "It is thrilling to see new life and interest opened up for these youngsters through learning to walk and swim in the pool," Miss Brownscombe remarked.

During the past year, there was a total registration of 453 in 10 clubs and seven interest groups in the young adult section of the program department. These interest groups included leathercraft, oil painting, drama, public affairs, French conversation, bowling and roller skating.

Membership in the Y Teen Department totalled 274 and in the children's groups the membership was 144.

243 Meetings Held

In addition, the Y.W.C.A. provides accommodation for meetings of city organizations. During the past year 243 meetings, and 36 teas, bazaars, recitals, showers and receptions were held in its clubrooms.

It also acts as an information bureau giving such services as a rooms' registry, counselling, traveller's aid and vocational guidance and employment placement bureau.

During 1951, 104 girls lived in the Y residence at a minimum cost. Accommodation was also provided for 418 transient guests.

"We feel that the Y.W.C.A.'s greatest service to this community," Miss Brownscombe continued, "is providing recreation for girls and young women in the proper environment and developing in them as well, a sense of responsibility and integrity that will make them better citizens."

In a discussion of the financial needs of this organization, the executive director explained that the Y was 72 per cent self-supporting.

"It is the remaining 28 per cent. we are asking the public to give us through the Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign," Miss Brownscombe concluded. "If this support is given the Y.W.C.A. will be able to continue to serve this city."

Last year, the Y.W.C.A. received $12,000 from the community fund.

Teaching Is Not A Mere Job But Vocation Teachers Told

The Ontario English Catholic Teachers' Association of Peterborough district, held its annual mid-winter convention at Mount St. Joseph. Rev. R. McDonald, C.Ss.R. celebrated mass at 9:00 o'clock in St. Joseph's chapel.

In an address following the mass, Father McDonald emphasized the necessity of teachers holding fast to the idea that their profession is not a mere job—but a vocation.

The president, James Moloney, opened the morning session with an address in which he pointed out that the OECTA can be a tremendous force for good in these times when democracy is facing some of its most challenging moments.

Following the business section of the meeting, the teachers were entertained by a delightful musical interlude by the pupils of Immaculate Conception School, under the capable direction of Sister Vincentia.

The guest speaker of the morning, Rev. L. J. Bondy, CSB, MA, PhD, Superior of St. Michael's College, University of Toronto, gave an inspiring address on "The Role of the Catholic Teacher". Father Bondy dealt with the two main requirements of a good Catholic teacher. First: She must know how to teach. In order that her mental faculties remain alive, she must have an intensity of knowledge and must continue to be a student. Second: She must bring Christ into the classroom. Pupils should be influenced by the teacher's personal knowledge of, love and close contact with, the Divine Master.

J. C. Doyle, BA, B.Paed, separate school inspector, opened the afternoon session with brief remarks, in which he advised the teachers to train children in right habits of working and thinking. Mr. Doyle also expressed his desire that the teachers "leave the convention with greater zeal and enthusiasm for the great work they are doing."

The guest speaker of the afternoon was Mr. Howard C. Dierlam, superintendent of art in Toronto public schools. The speaker pointed out that an art programme should be so arranged that every child may benefit by it. The teacher's work, is largely one of stimulation and understanding guidance, which will encourage the pupils in creative thinking and perhaps reveal a spark of genius. At the conclusion of his address, the speaker displayed various samples of child art.

The junior pupils of Lindsay separate schools, delighted the audience with a sprightly, old-fashioned dance.

Paying For The Civic Hospital

When the ratepayers refused to empower the City Council to issue debentures for $300,000 to pay debts on the new Civic Hospital last December they knew that, one way or another, the money would have to be found and the debts paid. The defeat of the hospital by-law was a rebuke for what the ratepayers considered to be unrealistic financing. Readers will recall that at that time The Examiner pointed out that although the rebuke might give the ratepayers a degree of satisfaction it would not save them any money. And in consequence the city now has a deficit of $139,074, which has been taken care of by means of a bank loan, and that money must be paid off in five years. This burden will be reflected in the tax rate, of course.

* * *

Fortunately, it looks as if the next five years would be reasonably prosperous ones, and when times are good, taxes may reasonably be high. There is much to be said for getting this hospital debt paid and out of the way in five years, instead of relying on more twenty-year debentures; a city may well have too many debentures awaiting payment each year; they have the disadvantages, as well as the advantages, of long-term loans.

* * *

The financing of the hospital has proved an unexpectedly heavy expense to the city for many reasons, most of which were beyond the control of the builders. However, we have it now, and this final bank loan will pay for it; in five years, unless something unexpected happens, we shall have seen the end of that obligation.

* * *

We must not expect that we have heard the last of the hospital when we have paid for building it. It will be a continuing obligation. Peterborough is the principal medical centre for a very large area, and it is necessary that we should have a first-rate hospital here, kept up to the mark in every respect, staffed and equipped for the latest developments in medicine. When the decision was made to build a new hospital, the people of Peterborough renewed one of the many costly obligations which civilization lays upon us, and we must not be surprised if the hospital costs us money in the future. It is gratifying, however, to know that the actual cost of the fabric has now been met.

Best Dressed Men

Recently the Toronto Globe and Mail published a page of pictures of men who were, it said, the best-dressed men in Canada. We do not suppose that any final judgement can be made in such a matter, but we agree that these gentlemen are probably among the best-dressed men in the country, and they looked it. As it happens, two or three of them are known to us personally, and since the appearance of those pictures they have been subjected to a good many sly comments by some of their friends, who appear to think that it is funny to be well dressed.

We cannot agree with this point of view. We like to see well-dressed people; we also like to see people who are individually—even eccentrically dressed. In fact, we are delighted by the sight of anybody, man or woman, who cuts a figure. The people who give us no joy are those who are dressed conventionally, but not well — whose clothes, though probably good enough in their way, "do nothing for them", in the colloquial phrase. We should like to see Canadians, of both sexes, more clothes-conscious than they are. At present we are a nation of dull dressers, and with chivalrous reluctance, we say that Canadian women are, upon the whole, dressed with less taste and effect than Canadian men.

We recognize the difficulties which stand in the way of being well dressed. Clothes cost a great deal of money, and all the accessories of dress are expensive. The upkeep of clothes is costly, for clothes do not look after themselves. And it cannot be denied that to dress well requires a conscious effort, an attention to style, and a concern for colour and effect, which many men do not choose to give to the matter. But for many people, the result is worth the effort: they not only look better—they feel better, when they are well dressed.

Excuses must be made for those who have no talent for dress, and for the invincibly dowdy and the eccentric. We have no desire to turn Canada into a land of walking fashion plates. But there are thousands of men who could be really well dressed if they would spend a little more money, and a great deal more time, in that department of life. There is much to be said for being as decorative as possible.

Perhaps the Globe and Mail will make an annual choice of the best-dressed men in Canada. It has already had a tonic effect upon many Canadian males, for in their derision of those who have been held up to emulation there is a certain wistfulness, and more than a hint of jealousy.

Head Down To The Blarney Stone

We note that the owner of Blarney Castle has died. Now might therefore be a good time to bring Blarney Stone procedure up-to-date, as the next owner of the Castle and the stone imbedded in its walls begins his regime. The Blarney Stone is too inaccessible. First, it is mounted in one of the castle's 120-foot towers, and people who want to acquire the gift of the gab have a long climb to it. Secondly, when they get there, they have to hang out a window by their heels, so as to be able to implant the kiss on the magic stone.

This procedure might have been all right in earlier days when men went to great lengths to cultivate oratory, but now people expect short-cuts. Now, oratory is taught by correspondence in six easy lessons. None of the Demosthenic ordeal of voicing vowels with a big pebble in the mouth and shouting golden phrases to the wild waves. The Blarney Stone should be brought down to ground-level, aspiring orators should be able to face it as men on two legs and not apes hanging by the heels, and, for health's sake, the stone should have a sanitary officer in attendance, to wipe its surface with antiseptic after each osculation.

If these modernizations are not instituted, we wager somebody will steal the stone, in protest, and probably send half of it to the U.S.A. so that its principal devotees will not have to travel so far to seal their chances for political advancement.

Now A Pound Gap?

For the last five years the principal theme of international finance in the public ear has been the "dollar gap"—the shortage of American dollars, particularly in Europe. Now, owing to remarkable national efforts, Marshall Aid and, lately, American defence spending, the dollar gap is nearly closed in many European countries. For instance, Britain's economic recovery has been so rapid and stringently effected that she has been able to reject any further loans from the U.S.A. Now a new bogey raises its head: a "pound gap."

American aid has been so generous and effective and western Europe's recovery as a trading group of nations so complete that few have noticed that instead of a dollar shortage a pound shortage now looms. This change of fortunes, almost a reversal, coming in as it has done under the persistent shadow of the dollar shortage, has been astonishing. The change and the reasons for it have been analysed by the United Nations' Economic Commission for Europe. The chief agent has been Britain, who despite all the noise about the American dollar, has continued to be banker for half the democratic world and has, through rigorous economic adjustments and traditional trading canniness, reduced dollar imports. At the same time, she has bought heavily in India, Australia and other sterling countries.

Last year Western Europe added 1,847 million dollars to its net gold and dollar assets. Instead of losing 300 million dollars to the United States, as they did in 1949, European countries acquired 1,500 million dollars from the U.S. in the twelve months before devaluation. Most of this was the work of Britain. This was done by cutting down on imports from the U.S. by almost a quarter, as well as through greater selling to the U.S. The percentage of Europe's total imports which came from Canada and the U.S. fell from 37½ per cent. to 29 per cent. Europe's trade was carried on among the European nations themselves, with very heavy reliance on countries in the sterling bloc for raw materials—on British colonies and Dominions, for instance. Revaluation encouraged this trend of trading and at the same time Europe had to pay higher and higher prices to the sterling area for the raw materials. (Further, the United States has been buying scarce raw materials in the sterling area.) Australia, Malaya and India have been piling up large credits.

The E.C.E. report says that this shift in Europe's balance of payments deficit is likely to receive further impetus through the increase during recent months of the prices of the primary goods making up the bulk of Europe's overseas imports. The growing sterling gap may have to be met by an upward revaluation of the pound, or by deliberately recasting the trade of both Britain and Europe. It is one of the influences which may encourage Britain to increase her imports from dollar countries like Canada. It could be as serious for Britain to be short of pounds as to be short of dollars.

NOTE AND COMMENT

The men of Vaud canton in Switzerland have voted once again against giving the vote to women. Yet the Vaud has a long history of radical politics. Perhaps the most radical thing men can do nowadays is to keep something from women.

The New Africa

by PATRICK O'DONOVAN

TWO great colonial territories in West Africa are suffering profound change. There are many people who watch the process with honest anxiety. Have we gone too far and too fast? Has a century of honest and careful government done no more than lay the foundations for two more Liberias? Legitimate questions, since to prove oneself liberal-minded it is not necessary to drool over every nationalist movement everywhere.

✦ ✦ ✦

A NATIONALIST movement is usually a distressing sight. Its motives are not immediately concerned with helping the poor or weak but with something more crudely emotional which, like strong drink or professional football, makes a man feel good. The West African movement is no exception. Some of the its leaders are inadequate men; only rarely do you come across real self-sacrifice, willingness to suffer without publicity, willingness to accept unpopularity. Many of its prominent figures seem to conceal within their lives a personal failure that demands compensation—failure at the Bar or in commerce, dismissal from Government for alleged inefficiency or some small suspected dishonesty. Men who should know better say things that are patently untrue, and the honestly ignorant believe them because they would be so pleasant if they were true.

SURROUNDED by unreason and neurotic prejudice, the stranger is sometimes tempted to dismiss what is happening on the Gold Coast and in Nigeria as a racket worked by an interested minority. No conclusion could be more false or dangerous.

It is no coincidence that the two West African States where the common man has certainly the most political freedom and probably the best living are the most insistent on change. On the East Coast it is Uganda, which in rights and standards for Africans comes only after the Gold Coast, that is the most disturbed and the most complaining; while from the vast and shapeless Portuguese colonies, and even from the Congo—where there is very little "nonsense" about higher education and less about self-determination—every traveller brings an impression of placid contentment, and no authentic whisper of discontent ever reaches the outside world.

WHAT is happening on the Gold Coast and in Nigeria is what we have always promised. Had Lord Lugard and our fathers wished it, we too could have produced those quiet colonial pools where nothing happens. But in a British colony the agitation on the West Coast is a healthy and natural development, and indeed is a sign rather of advanced development than of any intolerable social injustice.

A colonial relationship is essentially temporary, and perhaps also unnatural. It rarely ends without corroding bitterness. More often than not much blood must be shed before the colonial Power recognizes the inevitability of its departure. But in West Africa something different is happening. Britain has made the concessions before she was physically compelled to do so, and the agitation and the loose talk about exploitation and misrule continue above a solid basis of respect and even affection for Great Britain and her way of life.

From our experiences in the Far East since the last war it should be possible to plan our behaviour in Africa. In the East the West was decisively rejected, and on rather different grounds the same rejection is a possibility in Africa.

✦ ✦ ✦

AS Africans learn more of the West they learn more of their own status. They are increasingly conscious of a deep dissatisfaction, a sort of racial grief. For millions of them the world looks to be divided simply between the Blacks, who must suffer and serve and be poor, and the Whites, who are rich and fortunate. There is a feeling that their culture and history are despised, that they are expected to be grateful for having no armies or great kings left; they have memories of slavery and experience of the colour bar. They are not moved by proofs of the real profits they have received from being colonies. But when Nhrumah comes to the Gold Coast and offers them dignity they are set on fire.

If we want these people for our friends (and it is hard to see how either today can do without the other) we shall have to go further than half-way to meet them.

THE Gold Coast, since it is the more homogeneous of the two areas, is likely to prove the more violent and uncompromising. In Nigeria more than half the population and land area belongs to a Moslem civilization that is suspicious of change and shrouds its archaic structure in mists of dignity. Even the rest of the country is divided into two mutually suspicious nations. In time these suspicions must disappear, but paradoxically they may serve to preserve the peace during the years of transition. Since Nigeria is without the fabulous natural resources of the Gold Coast, its transition to self-government could be a more difficult process.

Nigeria and the Gold Coast have been given constitutions that differ greatly in detail. Neither satisfies the extreme Nationalists, since each contains a number of provisos that prevent extremists from gaining absolute control and allow final power still to remain in Government House. The new Ministers will not be the men on whom Government has relied in the past, and they will have no experience of administration. The gravest danger is that, when faced with the necessity of finding money from the people to implement their promises, they will prefer the easy way of damning the constitution and retiring into violent opposition. It is not easy for a Nationalist to be prudent in public and still retain the loud applause of his people.

ON the other hand, these are shrewd, undoctrinaire peoples, who above all else are seeking status and respect. The killing poverty and the physical misery of the Far East are not to be found here. The sheer volume of the happiness to be seen on the West Coast offers some cause for hope that reason rather than fanaticism may prevail. If Britain could satisfy such men as Zik and Nkrumah—who are neither foolish nor dishonest—and the politicians rather than the chiefs that these constitutions are temporary, and that even now Africans have real authority over their affairs, some patience may appear. Success in this depends on the permanent Civil Servants, who must both teach and obey the new Ministers.

It would be hard to exaggerate the influence of what has happened here. Nothing like it was ever tried before on this Continent. It will be talked of with surprise in the Johannesburg slums, among tribes outside Nairobi longing for more land, and in Uganda, where men nurse secret grievances and suspect every move we make. If it fails, a great hope will die out of Africa, and other gods will be sought. But if it succeeds, then we may have begun the addition of a new Continent to the political world, and it may even emerge as our friend.

"GAD, SIR! HARDLY WHAT ENGLAND 'EXPECTED'!"

Britain's "Matchbox" Meat Ration

by SUSAN STRANGE

SOME months ago we Londoners were politely asked by the Government if we would mind taking our summer holidays abroad this summer. That way, it was explained, we would leave more room for the crowds of overseas visitors thronging to London for the Festival of Britain. Now, if the eightpenny meat ration gets no larger, the Government will need to make no second appeal. Few Londoners who can scrape or borrow the third-class fare across the Channel will let the marvels of the Festival come between them and the first outsize Chateaubriand (steak) they can sink their teeth into.

That may sound exaggerated, but the "matchbox ration", as it has been called, has made the British as food-conscious as ever they were in the depths of the war. Imagine what an American butcher would say if he were asked for a nickel's worth of meat. Yet that is more or less what British butchers up and down the country have been trying to dissect for unlucky customers with only one ration book.

Many families of two have now decided to eat meat only every other week-end. Families of four or five are offered a weekly joint roughly the size of a third of a leg of lamb. The rest of the time, they manage somehow on rabbit, fish, unrationed tripe or cooked meats, or their bacon and two rationed eggs. (The old-fashioned English cooked breakfast of bacon and eggs is as rare now as a Dickensian chop-house.)

In fact, the meat ration in Britain, designed to see that everyone gets fair shares and to keep down living costs is no longer doing its job. Eightpennyworth of subsidized meat works out at little more than one square meal a week. For all the other meals the family menu will be ruled entirely by the purse. Since meat became so scarce, prices of fish and poultry have gone rocketing up. Price control for fish is being considered, but could only be put back at a fairly high level. Even the humble rabbit which a year ago could be had for three shillings is now five or six.

Paradoxically, too, the wartime limit of five shillings on restaurant meals no longer exists. Any well-to-do city family can arrange to go out and eat at a restaurant two or three times a week. Moreover, those who can afford it can buy unrationed imported French and German hams and preserved pork at ten shillings a pound. About the only bargains to be had in British butcher shops these days are Australian hares, frozen whole in their skins but substantial and meaty, at 4/6d. or 5/- each.

The net result is that the poorest families are no longer protected by the rationing and bulk-purchase policy of a Labour Government. Indeed, there are signs already that in the industrial North the black market in eggs (at 8d. each) bacon and illegally-slaughtered calves and lambs is beginning to grow to record size.

IT may even be that meat-rationing of any kind will be unable to survive such a microscopic ration. As it is, British butchers are being paid compensation of nearly half a million pounds a week to make up for the small amount they are handling. Meat-rationing has been in existence here now so long that it would be hard to imagine life without it. After all, no child in Britain under the age of at least fifteen remembers what it was like to get meat without a ration book. Since early 1940 the butcher's first question to every customer has been, "Now, ma'am how many books (ration books)?". And the ration has varied round a shilling or one shilling and twopence for so long that it comes as a surprise to remember that in the Battle of Britain days in 1940 the ration stood at two shillings and twopence a week.

The only good result that can possibly come of the present British austerity in food, is to force British cooks to serve something else but the eternal "Cut off the joint and two veg". Even with the meat ration down to a shilling, most British housewives saved their family's rations for a week-end joint, however meagre. Now, even the smallest joint is out of reach. Necessity must surely force them to be kinder to the ill-treated English cabbage and to use imagination with their meat.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And it came to pass, as he went into the house of one of the chief Pharisees to eat bread on the sabbath day, that they watched him.

And behold, there was a certain man before him which had the dropsy. And Jesus answering spake unto the lawyers and Pharisees, saying, Is it lawful to heal on the sabbath day? And they held their peace. And he took him, and healed him, and let him go; and answered them, saying, Which of you shall have an ass or an ox fallen into a pit, and will not straightway pull him out on the sabbath day? (Luke 14:1-5.)

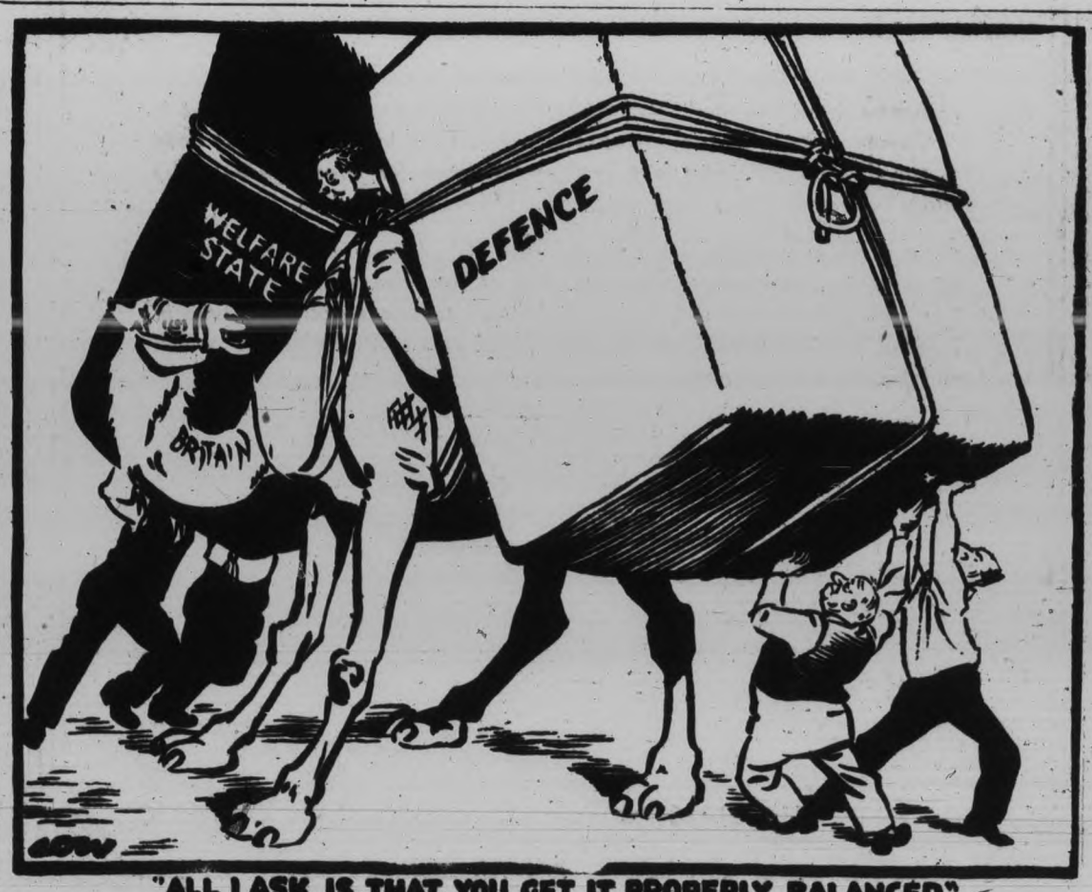
Verily, verily, I say unto you, He that believeth on me, the works that I do shall he do also; and greater works than these shall he do; because I go unto my Father. (John 14: 11,12.)

Tango On The Volga

(Christian Science Monitor)



Tin pan alley is much the same around the world, whether under predatory capitalism or the collectivized state. The Literary Gazette, published in Russia, seems to provide authority for this conclusion.

The Gazette, organ of the Soviet writers' union, warns Russian song writers that they must stop turning out trashy love lyrics and other "hack" products. It seems that too many lyricists have the same stars twinkling, the same rivers rippling, and the same shock workers shouting.

Of course, it has often been suspected that large numbers of New York and Hollywood songsmiths would go on the dole if June, moon, swoon, and croon were droped from the vocabulary. But one hardly expects to hear the proponents of repeated five-year plans protest that songs sound as if they came off an assembly line.

If a Russian composer-writer team turns out a song for the Communist May Day celebrations but fails to get it accepted, the pair merely rewrites it for Coal Miners' Day or Artillery Day, the Soviet critic complains. Perhaps on the theory that songs which flopped in an Arabian setting have gone over big when transferred to a Dixie locale—or vice versa.

But the worst offence cited by the Literary Gazette is that the authors of the song, "Russia Is Our Motherland," designed to foster Soviet patriotism, have allowed it to be set to tango music. What have the researchers of the historians' union been doing? Haven't they "discovered" yet that the tango was first danced in Nizhni Novgorod or Tashkent?

Better Acoustics Expected Ottawa House Of Commons

OTTAWA, March 1 (CP). — The Commons may soon be equipped with a public address system. The subject has been the topic of discussion for years.

The Speaker, Ross Macdonald, told the House Wednesday he expects soon to present a report on his studies of the acoustics in the big chamber.

The report is expected to recommend a system which will allow speaking members to be heard all over the chamber and in the galleries. One feature would be facilities for members of the Press Gallery who often have to strain to hear what is going on down below.

Some members who sit at the ends of the rectangular chamber or in the back benches sometimes have great difficulty in following proceedings.

Had To Read It

A back bencher said once he always had to read what former Prime Minister King said the day after he said it. He couldn't hear him in the House.

The question was raised Wednesday by Dan McIvor (L, Fort William), a hard-of-hearing member who asked what was being done to improve the situation.

Public Works Minister Fournier referred the question to the Speaker. The Speaker said he has been making a study and will be reporting to the House soon.

Mr. Macdonald visited London a few months ago to attend the opening of the new Commons in Westminster and has studied the acoustics there and elsewhere.

He is the latest in a series of officials who have made the same sort of study.

Petes Trounce Nylons, 8-8 To Start Senior "B" Series

The Petes plastered an 8-3 defeat on Kingston Nylons here last night to open their best-of-five senior "B" puck playoff series to declare an Allan Cup contender. The next tilt is in Kingston on Friday. About 1,000 fans saw a so-so scrap, lively the last half, with the homesters dominating most of the way. They led 2-0 in the first frame and had a 5-2 edge to lead 7-2 going into the fairly even third stanza. The visitors drew three of the four penalties in an exceptionally clean playoff contest.

Honey Tompkins was the "money" player of old in this fray as he figured in on four goals as well as playing a swell game on defence. Chum Fryia notched three, while Gus Leonard scored two and aided on one. Single points were gained by Jack Mortimer, Fred Garvey, Arn Dugan and Don Floyd. The Kingston markers were by Gerow, Aitken, Harrison, with an assist apiece to Catlin, McKeown, Joyce, Patterson and Partis. Both goalies were good, with Udall having much more work to do as the Nylons turned in an inept effort most of the way.

A Bit Scrambly

It wasn't good playoff hockey, though the game livened up somewhat in the third period. The first was definitely scrambly, with the second some better but loose. The Petes looked good the last half, but the Nylons at no time showed why they should be in such a series. Only good net work by Specs Udall kept the score from being about 12-3. The visitors' defence was woefully weak and the forwards not only failed to back-check to any extent but they did not pass well going in on the attack. The Petes started off slowly but soon began to roll and were playing good hockey all through the third heat.

Fryia scored early from Gus Leonard as they opened it up slowly with both sides careful and playing clean hockey. Plumb drew a tripping penalty but was back when Garvey scored in close on neat finish. Horton was gated for elbowing and McKeown followed for high-sticking. Then Plumb got it again for slashing but Udall held off the Petes' thrusts the rest of the rather ragged period.

Speeded Up

It was faster in the second and Gus Leonard scored early from an in-close faceoff, his shot whizzing by the startled Udall from an angle. Gus Leonard got another a bit later from Tompkins on a lovely bit of stick work by Honey who weaved his way in and around and flipped out a perfect pass-back. Kingston finally came to life and gave Harding some anxious moments, and eventually Gerow blasted one home in close on Catlin's rebound. Mortimer got that one back from Tompkins with Honey again showing stick wizardry to work right in and pass at the proper moment. Aitken notched a neat one a minute later with McKeown and Joyce in on the combination play. Fryia then scored from Dugan on a pass-up and breakaway as Nylons ganged up. Petes made it 7-2 when Tompkins tapped home a return pass from Floyd with Udall floundering around wondering who was going to fire.

Patterson was waved over to start the third for interference, and Fryia scored in a scramble from Tompkins. Catlin was robbed later as Nylons roared in and play was much faster and more interesting. It was late in the heat when Harrison rammed the disc into the hemp on a three-way play right in side with Patterson and Partis. The Petes had an edge in this period, too, and Udall was much busier than Harding, but he kept kicking them out and the Petes had enough lead not to worry, while Nylons played as if it were a foregone conclusion. Teams:

Nylons: Goal, Udall, defence, Patterson and Plumb; centre, Partis; wings, Catlin and Gerow; alternates, Watts, Murphy, McKeown, Joyce, Aitken, Potts and Harrison.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Horton and Tompkins; centre, Dugan; wings, Floyd and Mortimer; alternates, G. Leonard, Fryia, West, Garvey, E. Leonard, Jopling and Davison.

Lemon Contract Over $50,000

NEW YORK, March 1 (AP) — Bob Lemon Wednesday night signed a Cleveland Indian contract that probably makes him the "highest-paid pitcher in baseball." He signed just before the midnight holdout deadline.

Marsh Samuels, Indian publicity man, said the star righthander agreed to a figure "above Bob Feller's $50,000 salary." Feller, also a Cleveland pitcher, signed some time ago.

General Manager Hank Greenburg announced the signing last night at the Indians Tuscon, Ariz., training base. Lemo agreed to terms via a long-distance telephone call to his home at Long Beach, Calif. He will join the Indians today.

A Cleveland official put the tag of "highest-paid pitcher in baseball" on Lemon.

St. Jerome's Get Cage Title In Beating SPS

St. Jerome's College of K... ener defeated St Peter's se... basketballers 74-46 at the C... legiate gym here last night ... capture the Catholic Athletic Conference title. They swept through their schedule undefeated. The best crowd of the season saw a fast, open game, with the visitors better in passing and shooting. They clicked on 71 per cent of field shots and 93 per cent of their 14 penalty throws. Fred Allore's homesters could click for but 47 per cent of field goals and 61 per cent of foul tries.

St. Peter's drove hard early to take an 11-6 lead in the first quarter, but they were down 27-19 at the half and 49-34 going into the fourth. The taller visitors were deadly on fast passing plays and quick shots under the hoop. Schnepf and Sattler were particularly effective, the latter scoring 14 points and Schnepf 14, while Fehrenback was good for 10, Link eight, Eliaz and Fernandz six apiece, Gibbons and Vanhee four each and Nowak one. Jones led SPS with 18 in a fine showing, as O'Neil accounted for nine, Simmons seven, Galvin and Cupoli four each, and O'Leary and Richardson two apiece. The pick of the players were Jones, O'Neill, Cavanagh and Fitzgerald. Teams:

St. Jerome's: Schnepf, Nowak, Link, Fernandz, Fehrenback, Vanhee, Sattler, Eliaz, Gibbons, Rosenblood.

St. Peter's: O'Neill, Jones, O'Leary, Richardson, Galvin, Cupoli, Simmons, Cavanagh, Fitzgerald, Holme, Legrow.

Monarchs Edge Marlies 2-1 In Toronto Tilt

By The Canadian Press

Toronto St. Michael's Monarchs may not turn out to be the best hockey team of the next half-century, but they have a fairly legitimate claim to fame. They're the owners of the fastest four-game winning streak in history.

And what's more, they only had to score a total of two goals to win all four games.

The statistical freak occurred at Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens Wednesday night when the Monarchs edged Toronto Marlboros 2-1 in what officials of the Ontario Hockey Association's major group had billed as an "eight-point" game after poor attendance prompted the schedule-makers to lump four scheduled games into one.

The victory gave Monarchs the group title by a couple of city blocks. Marlboros needed the eight points to tie them for first place. If another game that meant nothing to the standings, the third-place Hamilton Tigers whipped Kitchener-Waterloo Flying Dutchmen 9-2.

Round Robin

A round-robin playoff series involving the top three clubs opens March 4 with Marlboros playing the Monarchs.

But final positions in the junior A playoff scramble are far from fixed, although the eight participants are virtually decided.

Stratford Kroehlers nailed down a playoff berth by downing St. Catharines Teepees 3-1 while the ninth-place St. Michael's College juniors were losing to Toronto Marlboros 5-2. With four games to play, the Irish are six points out of eighth place.

Windsor Spitfires tripped Barrie Flyers 4-3 last night to create a three-way tie for first place as Marlboros moved up to join the two clubs in the top rung.

The fourth place Guelph Biltmores trail the league-leaders by six points and have five games to play. They're reasonably safe from fifth-place St. Catharines who are 10 points behind, but Teepees are threatened by Oshawa Generals, who tied the last-place Waterloo Hurricanes 7-7 to move within four points of St. Catharines.

Usual Fisticuffs

The juniors had their usual session of fisticuffs, with nine players drawing major penalties in Barrie, four in Toronto and two in Oshawa.

The scoring highlight was a three-goal performance by Oshawa's Lou Jankowski, which regained him the league's scoring leadership over Guelph's idle Ken Laufman. Linemate Alex Delvecchio snagged two goals to tie Laufman for second place, while Charlie Macdonald was a three-goal man for the cellar-dwelling Hurricanes, salvaging the tie with his third marker.

Glen Hall, Windsor's fabulous goalie, was the cause of Barrie's downfall as the Flyers suffered their first loss in 16 home-ice starts. Hall handled 41 shots to 19 for Lorne Howes at the other end.

Hard-working George Aitken fired two goals that ensured Stratford's victory over St. Catharines after the Teepees had made the Kroehlers a present of their opening goal. A defenceman passed the puck onto goalie Don Simmons' stick and Bob Bailey dropped it into the net before the astonished netminder could make a move.

The major loop game between Marlboros and St. Michaels was fast and grueling playoff hockey with Howie Lee's first-period goal being offset by second-period Monarch tallies by Sam Kennedy and Eddie Mulligan.

Three goals by Tom Smelle and a pair by Harvey Fraser featured Hamilton's rout of the hapless Dutchmen, who dressed only 10 players for the contest.

Panthers Whip Gananoque 17-1

PORT HOPE, March 1.—Port Hope Panthers found the Gananoque Lions to be little opposition here in the first game of a best-of-three series for the OHA Eastern Ontario Junior "C" championship. The Panthers won 17-1.

Gananoque's best showing came in the first period. They opened the scoring early and held the Panthers to three counters in the frame's late stages. In the second and third periods, however, the play was all Port Hope's, four goals being scored in the middle stanza and 10 in the last.

Every member of the Port Hope team figured in on the scoring. Darcy Campbell was top goal-getter with four. The lone Gananoque tally was off the stick of Ken Keyes.

In the last three playoff games two of them against Bowmanville, Port Hope has scored 54 goals. Only six have been scored against them.

Gib McKelvey Dies Ex-Queen's Athlete

KINGSTON, March 1. — Dr. Gilbert (Gib) McKelvey of Portland, Ore., a star athlete at Queen's University in the early thirties, died in Minneapolis Minn., Tuesday, it was learned here today. He was 45.

A player on Queen's senior football team in 1931 and 1932 he was captain in his second year. In hockey, he was a hard-hitting defenceman, playing for Queen's and for the Kingston team which played in the 1926 Memorial Cup final in Winnipeg.

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

Eddie Yost, 24-year-old Washington third-baseman who was threatening to become a prize holdout, has signed a contract for a reported $16,000.

The result is a compromise between the $18,000 Yost had demanded (double his last year's pay), and the $14,000 offered by the Senators.

Coach Clyde Milan told a reporter at Orlando, Fla., Wednesday the most determined Washington holdout he can recall was the great Walter Johnson, in 1928.

As Milan remembers it, Johnson didn't sign by the opening day, and the team took a terrific walloping.

"I think he got what he wanted after we took that terrible licking," Milan said.

What Jonnson wanted—and got—was $7,000.

Over at Lakeland, Fla., there'll be two star outfielders on the sidelines when Detroit Tigers open spring training today.

Big Vic Wertz and Walter (Hoot) Evers proclaimed holdouts Wednesday. Both said they had rejected the club's "final" offers and would await the arrival of general manager Billy Evans Saturday.

Wertz was believed to have turned down a contract calling for about $20,000. Evers, whose offer was said to be the third highest among American League outfielders, was expected to get about $30,000.

Third-baseman Willie (Puddin' Head) Jones signed his 1951 Philadelphia Phillies contract on Wednesday after a conference with club president Bob Carpenter. He is the last of the National League champion regulars to come to terms. Salary figures were not disclosed but the guessers said it probably was in excess of $12,500.

Turning to boxing, veteran heavyweight Billy Grant of Orange, N. J., Wednesday was ordered to retire from boxing "for his own good." The order came from the State Athletic Commissioner, Abe J. Greene, who also announced suspension of eight other boxers.

Greene said Grant is "over the hill" and should quit the ring.

At Chicago, Jack Sharkey, former world's heavyweight champion, said "Joe Louis is crazy attempting a comeback—I know, for I tried a comeback myself."

Sharkey, in Chicago to demonstrate his skill as a flycaster in the international sports and outdoor show Friday, tabbed Chicago's Bob Satterfield as an uncrowned heavyweight champ.

Sharkey said Satterfield "is just about the only heavyweight in circulation who could beat Ezzard Charles," the current titleholder.

Boston Holds Red Wings To 1-1 Tie, Show Edge

By The Canadian Press.

Johnny Peirson, 25-year-old Winnipeg-born right-winger, gets a fair number of goals for Boston Bruins but he also spends his share of time in the penalty box.

He was conspicuous in both departments Wednesday night — probably the major reason why the third-place Bruins had to be satisfied with a 1-1 tie with the Detroit Red Wings.

The Bruins, attempting to strengthen their hold on the third playoff spot in the National Hockey League, deserved to win. Playing before 9,085 fans, they outshot the league-leading Red Wings 29 to 21.

Peirson got his 13th goal of the season early in the second period to give Boston a 1-0 lead. Goalie Jack Gelineau appeared headed for his fifth shutout when Peirson drew the game's third penalty for tripping defenceman Leo Reise in the third period.

While Peirson was spending his 36th and 37th minutes in the penalty box, Vic Stasiuk slammed home Red Kelly's rebound for the tying goal.

Facing Real Battle

Outcome of the game didn't change the league standing. It did, however, emphasize that Detroit is going to have a real battle to hold onto first place.

Including Wednesday night, Detroit has been able to register only one win in five games. Three have been tied. At the same time second-place Toronto Maple Leafs have won four and tied two while losing none in six games.

Result is that Toronto now is only four points behind Red Wings with two important games in hand.

Wednesday night's tie boosted the Bruins two points ahead of the fourth-place New York Rangers who in turn have a two-point lead on Montreal Canadiens.

Arrangement of the teams in the two clusters could be changed as a result of a heavy schedule of games in the next few days. Toronto visits Montreal tonight and New York is at Chicago in the start of a run of seven games which may have a lot to do with the eventual league standing.

Woodstock Athletics Claim One Of Worst Jinxes

WOODSTOCK, March 1 (CP)—A story that must tug on the heartstrings of even the most callous hockey coach is unfolding in this Western Ontario city.

It involves the Woodstock Athletics, an Ontario Hockey Association senior team which has had its ranks all but shattered since the beginning of January by a long string of accidents.

Latest was a serious injury suffered by forward Al Taylor, who underwent an operation for removal of his right eye in hospital here Wednesday.

Taylor was checking defenceman Roy Reeves of Port Colborne Merchants Tuesday night when Reeves' stick flipped high in the air and struck Taylor in the eye.

Woodstock went on to win the game 5-4 to narrow Port Colborne's lead to 3-2 in their best-of-seven playoff series.

The long string of injuries goes back to early in the year when Woodstock's ace right-winger, Monk Shuttleworth, suffered a smashed foot at work and was sidelined for the season.

5 Hurt In Crash

On Jan. 19, five Woodstock players were injured in an automobile accident west of Brantford while en route to St. Catharines for a league game. Of these four were put out of action for the season. They included Gil Robertson, who suffered a broken thigh, Don Thrower with a broken ankle, sub-goalie Vic Anstett, chipped hip bone, and Jim McKay, fractured vertebrae.

Before the playoffs started, the OHA gave the team permission to sign four players from Dundas Red Wings as replacements.

Two of these replacements were also injured in the Tuesday night game here. Max Taylor suffered a four-stitch gash in his nose and goalie Pete Kaus was forced to retire with a cut on the eyelid.

Kaus had been sent in to play earlier in the series when regular goalie Vern Hesse suffered a cut forehead and had to retire. Tuesday night the situation was reversed.

Athletics limp into Port Colborn Friday for a game they must win to stay in the hunt for the Allan Cup. If they lose, they may have one consolation. They're unlikely to run into any more injuries.

Crowe Signs Contract With Rough Riders

OTTAWA, March 1 (CP). — Clem Crowe, short, squat and hefting 30 years of football as easily as he carried his blue-and-white polka-dot tie, signed his contract with Ottawa Rough Riders of the Big Four Football League Wednesday.

Coach of Buffalo Bills from 1946 to 1949 and of last year's Baltimore Colts, he's seen two games of Canadian football. In his brief visit to Ottawa, however, he's had enough advice on the Canadian game to last him at least until next season.

The boys in many back rooms are talking about it quietly, but a good percentage are figuring Crowe as the man who will lead Ottawa to its first Grey Cup final since 1941.

Back in 1923, 1924 and 1925, Crowe was one of the famed "seven mules" ahead of Knute Rockne's even-more-famed "four horsemen."

Some Present

Says Player Seemed Satisfied

HALIFAX, March 1 (CP). — General Manager Jim MacDonald of the Halifax St. Mary's Maritime Major League Hockey Club said Wednesday that his former player, George McGregor, of Kingston, Ont., had seemed satisfied with all financial arrangements.

He was commenting on a statement made by McGregor in Kingston yesterday. McGregor said that financial difficulties had caused his sudden departure from the club.

The argument between the club and player seemed to hinge mostly on housing accommodation. McGregor said that MacDonald had promised him an apartment and when no suitable one was found had said he would look after the hotel bill. Later MacDonald said he would only pay $300 of the total.

Wednesday MacDonald replied that accommodation offered was acceptable to all players but McGregor. Three places were found for McGregor but he found them all unsuitable.

No Idea He'd Jump

"At no time," MacDonald added, "did I have any idea that McGregor intended to jump the club. As far as I knew, he was satisfied with all financial arrangements. He was the highest paid player, receiving between $160 and $175 a week. I was on the road with the team when he left for his home in Kingston. The first I knew about this was when Assistant Manager Don Murphy called me long distance.

"During his stay in Halifax, after he had turned down the apartments and the house which we lined up for him, McGregor ran up a hotel bill of $900 of which approximately $125 was for meals. Our club, to keep McGregor happy, paid $300 of this bill, but it would seem that McGregor is of the opinion that the Halifax St. Mary's had not done enough for him. At no time did we agree to pay his entire hotel bill. We did not do it for any other player. And there is no reason why McGregor should be an exception to the general policy."

Lakefield Winners

LAKEFIELD, March 1 (ENS). Lakefield Midgets downed Stirling 11-5 here last night to move into the third OMHA round against Bolton. They had previously eliminated Havelock. This game was wide-open and generally clean, with the winners having a good margin on play.

Henry scored three in a row in the first frame with Pue getting one, an assist each going to Curtin, Pratt and Hockaday. Pue counted three in the second as Spencer and Henry also scored, the latter and Hockaday earning an assist each. Hermiston had a goal and assist, and Montgomery a marker for Stirling. Henry and Pratt from Matthews were the Lakefield marksmen in the third, as Hermiston tallied two and Williams one for Stirling, Montgomery helping once. Teams:

Stirling: Goal, Ray; defence, Munroe, Akers; centre, Hermiston; wings, Williams, Montgomery; alternates, Anderson, Smith, McMurray, G. McGee, M. McGee, Egglestone.

Lakefield: Goal, Wingett; defence, Pratt, Pue; centre, Hockaday; wings, Spencer, Wasson; alternates, Hinton, Beaubiah, Crapp, Huddlestone, Henry, Curtin, Millage, Matthews, Lane.

C's Beat Norwood

CAMPBELLFORD, March 1 — (ENS).—A large crowd in the arena here Wednesday saw the Campbellford TVL team take the first of a best of three series from the Norwood club by the score of 8 to 3.

If the weather man will cooperate, this series will be rushed through, with a game in Norwood on Friday and a return match if needed in Campbellford on Monday.

Wednesday night's game was a fast and hard-fought affair, and it would be difficult to pick three outstanding players because the calibre of hockey was good all the way through. Wib. Blake scored the first four goals of the game and assisted on another in the last frame.

Penalties to both sides increased in number as the game progressed. Play became quite rough-and-tumble in the third period.

Norwood: Goal, Renwick; defence, Rogers, Fennell; centre, Webb; wings, Payne, Thompson; alternates, Griffin, Gilbert, Ferguson, Williams, Peterson, Wilson.

Campbellford: Goal, Laverne; defence, C. Trumble, R. Tanner; centre, W. Blake; wings, Herrington, Pace; alternates, Robinson, Mason, Cole, Bob Peake, J. Smith, McMillan, Jeffs, Dooher.

Referees, Wm. O'Malley and Dick Bridgman of Trenton.

Charge Luciano Czar Of Vast Gangster Gov't

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP)—Senate crime committee investigators Wednesday pictured Charles (Lucky) Luciano, deported New York vice overlord, as the czar of a vast and secret underworld government.

Luciano, now in Italy, settles disputes between two of the country's major crime syndicates the Senators added.

In a preliminary report, the committee said the United States is menaced by highly-organized criminals financed largely by illegal gambling. They operate in many places with the connivance and protection of law enforcement officials at all levels of government.

The committee estimated "conservatively" that $20,000,000,000 changes hands every year in the U.S. as a result of organized, illegal gambling. It added that millions of dollars of this are paid out as protection money in various forms.

From the thousands of pages of testimony it took from some 500 witnesses, the committee said the conclusion is inescapable that there is a second government within the country—"a government by the underworld."

"This secret government of crimesters is a serious menace which could, if not curbed, become the basis for a subversive movement which could wreck the very foundations of this country."

The five-member committee, headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem. Tenn.) said it has no doubts about the existence of "at least two major crime syndicates."

Seaway Vital For Defence

TORONTO, Mar. 1 (CP)—Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, urging a start on the St. Lawrence seaway project, warned Wednesday that North America should not again invite the threat that war can bring to ocean supply lines.

The Canadian chairman of the International Joint Commission, in an address prepared for delivery to the Electric Club of Toronto, said the seaway itself was ont a "collossal, stupendous undertaking." But those superlatives certainly would apply to the effect it would have on the economy and defences of Canada and the United States.

The $806,000,000 project, in addition to creating millions of horsepower of electrical energy, would open the Great Lakes to ocean shipping. This would allow freer movement of iron ore to the industrial heart of the continent.

Labor on the project had been estimated at 60,000 man years or an average of 10,000 men employed for six years. This was a small total compared to the number of men "who would be required to man and support the anti-submarine war organization which would be needed to keep the sea lanes open for the delivery of iron ore from Africa and South America, which are the alternatives."

"We and the United States have already had one very costly experience in this matter with our oil and bauxite in the Second World War which very nearly brought disaster," he said. "Surely we should be wise enough not to invite its repetition."

Major Hears Ghost Voices Blames Air Conditioning

By ALAN HARVEY

LONDON, March 1.—(CP).—Air conditioning is a fine, modern invention and Britain's fresh-air fiends are all in favor—but they'd rather have it functional than fantastic. That's roughly the reaction of Maj. Tufton Beamish, 33-year-old Conservative member of Parliament for Lewes, Sussex. He reports that he has heard "ghost voices" in the new House of Commons chamber.

Maj. Beamish doesn't frighten easily. He won the Military Cross at Dunkerque and was in Singapore when the Japanese invaded. The eerie echoes, he says, are extremely real and seem to be wafted into the chamber on the new air-conditioning system.

(Flashback: Before the reconstructed £2,000,000 (about $8,000,000) chamber was opened last Oct. 26, engineers claimed new devices would "outwit every echo" in the building.)

Basement Buzz

Maj. Beamish is so distressed by the unparliamentary noises that he has submitted a written question, due to be answered next month. He says he is certain his ears haven't deceived him, and anyway his secretary has had the same experience.

"Down in the basement I have twice heard conversations," he told reporters. "The voices seemed to come from the grill through which conditioned air passes.

"Once, it was evident that a number of Socialists were meeting privately just before the foreign affairs debate. They were criticizing the foreign policy of the government.

"My secretary's ears do not deceive her either. On the night of the defence debate, when she was in a room at the top of the building, she clearly heard Mr. Bevan (Labor Minister Aneurin Bevan) winding up for the government."

Much Better

Parliamentary correspondents, pondering this, might be excused for thinking the system had possibilities. It would be a lot easier listening to debate in the Strangers' Bar than it would be peering down from the press gallery — even though accommodation for reporters is much better now than it was in the old chamber.

Generally speaking, the new Commons is a success. The only major malcontent so far has been Conservative leader Winston Churchill who recently donned an overcoat in the chamber to draw attention to a draught. But even Churchill is pleased, in the main, with the new surroundings.

Doctor Needed For Hastings

"If we ever had an epidemic of flu in this town, I don't know what we would do," Ross Burnham said at a meeting held Monday night in the Council chamber at Hastings to organize a Chamber of Commerce.

He was commenting on a statement made by H. Youngs that a doctor is very much needed at Hastings. It was one of the problems that a Chamber of Commerce would go far in remedying, Mr. Youngs said.

"Yes, and members of the Chamber of Commerce would likely be the first ones to catch the flu," said Arthur Orr, acting president.

At present there is only one doctor in Hastings, and it is reported that his health will not permit him to make calls or leave his home.

The first meeting was held two weeks ago when members from the Marmora Chamber of Commerce were present to explain how it should be organized and conducted.

A committee was picked at that meeting to select an executive, which were to attend this meeting, along with any others interested.

At the first meeting held the reeve and all members of the Council were present. It was stated that councillors could not hold executive positions in the organization. Reeve Stan Stevenson was the only member of the Council present Monday night.

Most of the meeting was spent in discussion of a banquet and where to hold it. A committee was appoint d to make arrangements.

Tell Senators They're Too Smug

OTTAWA, March 1 (CP)—The Senate was warned Wednesday that if it shied away from reform measures and didn't advance with the times it will cease to be an arm of Canada's government.

In two speeches strikingly similar, Senator Thomas Reid (L, New Westminster), 65, a Senator since 1949, and Senator R. W. Gladstone (L, Ontario), 68, appointed the same year, both proposed reform of the Upper Chamber whose members are appointed for life.

Scottish-born Senator Reid told his colleagues they were "too smug—too self-satisfied," said retirement at 75 probably would be a good thing and urged some form of contributory retirement pension for Senators and members of the House of Commons.

Senator Gladstone, a native of Ontario, warned: "It is sheer nonsense to think that we can justify the continued existence of the Senate if it goes along as provided by the fathers of Confederation 83 years ago.

"It, as a governing body, we stand still, then nothing is more certain than that in time, the Senate will be eliminated as an arm of our government."

Urges Women Make Home Happy

By BOB THOMAS.

HOLLYWOOD, March 1 (AP) —Now is the time for all good women to return to being women.

This may look like a typewriter exercise, but it's actually Corinne Calvet's advice to women in these trying times. The French charmer is earnest about it.

"I am becoming more and more an American every day," said the actress between scenes of "Peking Express." "But still I remember some European viewpoints. And I must say that they certainly helped in my marriage." (Her husband is actor John Bromfield.)

"I firmly believe that the man should be the master in the family. And a woman's first duty is to make him as happy as possible.

"I think this is more than ever important now that we face a war emergency. The men come home from work after facing all kinds of troubles and problems. A woman should do everything she can to make the home seem like a little corner of paradise that he looks forward to at the end of the day."

Not Hard

This may sound like a large order, but Miss Calvet said it's not hard. Be feminine, she advised, shaking her long tresses as a hint.

"Nearly all men like long hair, and women should go back to it," she said. "You notice that men are impressed when they see a girl with long, flowing hair—walking down the street. When she turns around, they may be disappointed by her face, but at least her hair is attractive."

"The most important career for a woman is making a home for her man," she repeated. "But that doesn't mean a woman cannot have influence.

"Throughout the history of France you will see that it was the men who did all the speech-making and law-writing, but behind each of them was a woman."

Relax Nickel Ban

WASHINGTON, March 1 (AP) —The government Wednesday relaxed its ban on the use of nickel, stainless steel, and high-nickel alloys in many civilian products in order, it said, to prevent some plants from having to shut down before they can shift to defence work. The control agency authorized manufacturers to use these scarce materials in products from which they have been banned after March 1, provided the manufacturers cannot use them for other more essential products.

Pay Licence Fees

WINNIPEG, March 1—(CP)—A "mystery man" Wednesday was reported to have paid the city $40 in licence fees to block a threatened legal suit against Westminster United Church or its minister, the Rev. Allen Huband. The minister had refused to pay the fees demanded by the city for four marriage-guidance lectures given at the church last fall. He contended the talks were part of the ministry of religion.

Leave of Absence

TORONTO, March 1 (CP) — Three months leave of absence was granted Wednesday to Elwood Hughes, general manager of the Canadian National Exhibition at the first meeting of the 1951 board of directors. Robert Dixon, secretary, was named acting manager. Mr. Hughes has been ill recently. Directors re-elected R. C. Berkinshaw as president.

Manslaughter Verdict

MONTREAL, March 1—(CP)—Elie Lawand, 25, accused of murdering his wife by pushing her from the second-storey balcony of their home Wednesday, was found guilty of manslaughter by a court of King's Bench jury. The jury reduced the offence from murder to manslaughter and added a recommendation for clemency. Lawand will be sentenced later in the present assizes.

Autumn Convention

OTTAWA, March 1 (CP)—The Young Liberal Federation of Canada will hold its biennial convention "sometime" this fall in Vancouver, it was announced Wednesday night during the annual meeting of the advisory council of the National Liberal Federation.

Dies From Injuries

TORONTO, March 1—(CP)—John Smith, 53, died in hospital Wednesday from head and internal injuries suffered when beaten and robbed by two men two months ago. Fred Pentland, 22 and Blair Jordan, 20, have been held on a charge of robbing Smith.

Introduce Bill To Amend Election Act

TORONTO, March 1 — (CP) — Bills to amend Ontario's election and voters' lists acts, to bring them in line with federal laws, were introduced in the Legislature Wednesday by Attorney-General Porter.

Their introduction raised joking questions from opposition benches as to whether an election would be called this year.

"Don't get jittery, boys," Premier Frost told them.

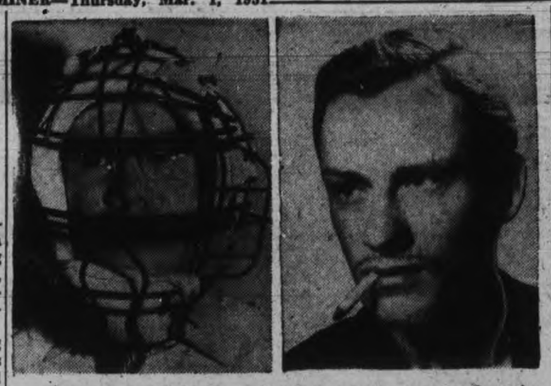
The province would adopt the federal system of compiling voters lists in both rural and urban areas, using provincial enumerators and making up municipal lists in the same order as municipal assessment rolls.

Changes in the Election Act would bar all magistrates from voting. At present, magistrates in municipalities of less than 5,000 can vote.

Both bills will be sent to the Select Committee on Elections, which was set up by the Legislature last year.

Amendments to the Mothers' Allowance Act, introduced by Welfare Minister Goodfellow, will provide allowances to a divorced mother who has the custody of her children unless the court rules she is unsuitable, and will grant all chances for disabled children and for children up to the age of 18 who need to finish secondary school education.

Fowl Proceedings



LONDON (CP)— Police were called in, the area cordoned off and a crowd gathered when three men were seen on the roof of a building. The trio emerged later to report they had been asked to inspect the rooftop chicken runs.

8,000 Children Ill

VANCOUVER, March 1—(CP)—Eight thousand school children were absent from classes in Vancouver and New Westminster Wednesday a high percentage of them influenza victims.

Drag For Child's Body

SUDBURY, March 1 —(CP)— Police Wednesday night dragged Junction creek, which runs through the centre of this city, for the body of Grant Loughlin, 3, believed drowned. A playmate, Earl Wood, 2, was rescued after falling through the ice.

DRAMA CRITICS have dangerous jobs, even in Canada. At left is Roland Cote, critic of Montreal's Le Canada. He has taken to wearing a catcher's mask, ever since he was slapped around by author Jean-Louis Roux, right. It all started when Roux's play, Rose La Tulippe, opened in Montreal and was panned by Cote. Critic and author met accidentally afterwards and the irate author slapped Cote's face. It is reported that Cote is going to sue the over-enthusiastic author.

Ontario Legislature Kills Vote For 18-Year-Olds

TORONTO, March 1—(CP)—Three opposition members' bills came before the Ontario Legislature Wednesday. Two were defeated in formal votes and another was killed by the process of giving it a six-month hoist.

The vote was 43 to 35 to delay consideration for six months a bill sponsored by A. A. MacLeod (Lab.-Prog.-Toronto Bellwoods) to give voting rights to 18 year-olds. Liberal and CCF members opposed the motion.

The two other bills were defeated by votes of 57 to 21 with the Liberals supjporting the Progressive Conservatives.

One was a bill sponsored by Gordon Ellis (CCF-Essex North) to protect the equity of homeowners unable to meet mortgage payments due to sickness or unemployment.

The other was a measure introduced by William Dennison (CCF-Toronto St. David) to require blood tests for venereal disease of all persons intending to marry in Ontario.

Speaking on his Bill to extend the provincial franchise to 18-year-olds, Mr. MacLeod said many youths were supporting their parents and families, others were married, and they were old enough to carry arms in defence of the country.

Give Youth Chance

Reid Scott (CCF-Toronto Beaches), at 23 the Legislature's youngest member, said voting rights would make youth responsible to the commmunity.

CCF Leader Jolliffe said the government had "a long record of equivocation and delay," on the question.

Premier Frost said there had to be an arbitrary age, which could never be fair to all groups. Reduction of the voting age belom 21 would require a simialr reduction of the age persons were allowed to drink liquor. The law regarded those under 21 as infants, unable to make binding business contracts.

Mr. Dennison said that blood tests before marriage "must be part of any long-range plan to wipe out syphilis." Thousands of cases had been avoided in 32 of the 48 States of the United States which had similar action.

Health Minister Phillips said the proposed Bill would be acceptable if the Wasserman test, used to detect syphilis, were reliable. But 50 per cent of those whose tests sohwed positive did not have the disease.

Wasserman tests also showed positive for two or three weeks after the onset of any virus infection—including influenza, and even after vaccination.

Ontario syphilis rate had declined from 143 per 100,000 in 1943 to 25 per 100,000 last year, Dr. Phillips said.

17 Liberals Bolt Party Vote Over Method Of Collecting Union Dues

OTTAWA, March 1 — (CP) — Liberal members of the Commons hold divergent views on the question of whether employers should collect the union dues of an employee in an organized industry.

This was pinpointed Wednesday when 17 Liberals bolted from the party during a vote on a private member's bill that would have made the "voluntary revocable check-off" of union dues mandatory on employers under the Federal Labor Code. Under the check-off, employers collect dues and turn them over to the unions.

The bill has been sponsored for the last several sessions by Stanley Knowles (CCF, Winnipeg North centre). It was defeated yesterday 127 to 67.

The check-off provision would have applied only to industries that are under federal interprovincial undertakings.

Support for the bill, heaviest it has received, came from all but two of the opposition members and from the Liberals, many of them representing industrial ridings.

The government made it clear that it did not want the bill to pass at this time. However, those voting for it included James Sinclair (L, Coast-Capilano), parliamentary assistant to Defence Minister Claxton; Walter Thomson, Ontario Provincial Liberal leader who sits for Ontario Riding, and David Croll (L, Toronto Spadina), former Ontario Labor Minister.

Other Liberals voting against the majority included George Cruikshank (Fraser Valley); Wilfrid Lacroix (Quebec-Montmorency); Arthur Laing (Vancouver South); T. H. Goode (Burnaby-Richmond); W. H. McMillan (Welland); E. T. Applewhaite (Skeena); James A. Byrne (Kootenay East), Maurice Brenton (Joliette-L'Assumption-Montcalm); P. T. Hellyer (Toronto Davenport); Don Brown (Essex West); John Hunter (Toronto Rosedale), and A. H. Jeffery (London).

The two opposition members voting against the bill were Douglas Harkness (PC, Calgary East) and Frank Stanfield (PC, Colchester-Hants).

Fred Macdonald (L, Edmonton East), a trade unionist, voted against the bill. He took the view that trade unions can negotiate check-off privileges more satisfactorily than through legislation.

George Hees (PC, Toronto Broadview), vice-president of a manufacturing firm, said he favors the check-off. In his firm the check-off had produced "nothing but good" and had helped materially to improve labor-ampagement relations.

Paul E. Cote, parliamentary assistant to Labor Minister Gregg, who spoke against passage of the bill at an earlier sitting, said "intrusion of the state into collective bargaining" would be objectionable. Union and management should be left to negotiate such matters.

Pugnacious Primitives

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z. (CP)— Pastor F. A. Mote, a Seventh Day Adventist missionary, said here the world's most primitive people must be the "Big Nambas" on the island of Mallicole in the New Hebrides. They have no tribal life and each family is an enemy of all other families.

Line Closing Talks End At Port Hope

Not Starving Line Deliberately CNR Official Says

PORT HOPE, March 1—A two-day hearing of argument for and against closing of the CNR branch line running between Port Hope and Peterobrough, ended Wednesday afternoon, the Board of Transport Commissioners reserving their decision.

The CNR seeks to close the line entirely from Port Hope to Millbrook and run only freight service from Millbrook to Peterborough. Throughout the two-day hearing, it was evident that business done by the line had depreciated materially.

The board heard Mayor W. N. Moore, of Port Hope, comment that there had been nobody in recent times soliciting freight business from his company. When they bought lumber for crating shipments, it came from Lindsay and Peterborough but was routed via the long haul from Belleville instead of the short haul from Peterborough along the branch line to Port Hope. It took over twice as long to arrive in Port Hope, the Mayor said.

Forecast Rate Boost

Another industrialist, Maurice Daignault, of Port Hope, forecast a boost in freight rates once the branch line was closed and he said it was bound to be reflected in the price charged for the commodities made by his company.

Farmers wanted the railroad to stay but some admitted using trucks for shiping their goods and receiving supplies. For some farmers it was apparently a case of sentiment. The railroad had been there a long time; was part of the history of the community and they were loath to see it go.

The Board of Trade in Port Hope through spokesman Herbert Long, told the hearing Wednesday that some of their industrial prospects insisted that one of the requirements before locating in Port Hope was a direct rail line to Peterborough.

In Lakefield, a company with export business had an eye to the St. Lawrence seaway development and a line from Peterborough to Port Hope would be essential to them.

Not Deliberated

Answering suggestions made by various spokesmen earlier in the hearing that the branch line was being starved out deliberately by the CNR, R. H. Hayes, general manager of the CNR's central division, said it was not correct that freight traffic was being purposely sent the long way via Belleville to accent the lack of business on the branch line.

"It is easier for us to couple a freight car on to a train bound for Belleville and then to a train heading for Peterborough than to send a crew down to Port Hope to pick up the car," Mr. Hayes said.

Asked by Stuart Ryan, K.C., why the company didn't couple a freight car to the regular passenger train which runs from Port Hope to Peterborough, Mr. Hayes said that the Board of Transport Commissioners does not allow the railroad to run first class passenger coaches and freight cars together.

May Direct Men Into Industry, Services, W. H. Clark Predicts

Direction of manpower into industry as well as into the armed services was predicted Wednesday night by Wallace H. Clark, vice-president, industrial relations, Ford Motor Co.

Mr. Clark was addressing an audience of 65 members of the Personnel Association of Peterborough at a regular meeting in the Empress Hotel's Kawartha room. His subject was "the manpower problem and mobilization."

Can It Be Done Voluntary?

"Anyone who thinks about and discusses these manpower problems sooner or later finds himself hard up against the question: Can the necessary distribution be made on a voluntary basis?" asked Mr. Clark.

"The Prime Minister had courageously stated that he is not opposed to the direction of manpower if that should become necessary, but he has argued logically and reasonably, it seems to me, that up to this point it is not necessary."

Mr. Clark said that if enlistment is voluntary, and in itself a test of patriotism, then industry cannot interfere with the enlistment of men who are essential to war production.

But, he added, if enlistment is not voluntary then no moral stigma is attached to anyone if these problems are worked out "rationally in the best interests of the nation."

"If some form of direction becomes necessary, and I think it will, then I am not at all sure it will be merely a matter of directing men into the armed services. It may be equally important to direct them in and out of certain industries."

The manpower problem in simplest terms is this: Determine what our manpower resources are; where they are needed, and then get them there.

Nation Must Come First

"If this can be accomplished on a voluntary basis, well and good," said Mr. Clark. "But if it cannot, then the requirements of the nation must come ahead of any other consideration."

He suggested that in the meantime a larger percentage of the population should be given military training. And he asked local industry to encourage technicians to enlist in the reserve forces, particularly the RCEME.

But, he conceded, this enlistment of technicians in the reserve does not settle the ultimate question of which skilled men can be spared to the services and which cannot.

Where will the manpower come from to meet the demands of defence programs and possibly greater emergencies?

Mr. Clark said that a complete answer can only be given when events demand it, but there are sources of labor in Canada which are not being used.

Here is his breakdown of manpower figures:

Present Canadian population is 14,000,000, up nearly 2,000,000, including Newfoundland, since the Second World War.

Toward the end of the last full year of the war, in October, 1944, there were 4,318,000 employed persons, and another 777,000 in the armed forces. Today there are 5,084,000 employed persons, plus 62,000 in the armed forces.

Increase Is 766,000

Thus the increase in total employed persons since the peak of wartime production is 766,000, and the decrease in total armed forces is 715,000.

Mr. Clark commented:

"These figures make it clear that the number of persons employed, including those in the armed forces, has not increased to the same extent as the population. Obviously, therefore, there are sources of labor in Canada which were drawn upon during the last war that are not being used today. True, it is unlikely that these untapped sources will be significant sources of essential production skills. Most of these will be women and older men.

"Nonetheless, they constitute a working pool which could be of considerable use in a time of extreme shortage."

Some other recent observers, while recognizing that there are pools of workers which can be tapped as demands grow, have pointed to changes in the situation as compared with 1939.

For one thing, in the war years, youthful manpower and womanpower was benefitting from the relatively high birth rates of the '20s; while today we are feeling the effects of the lower birth rates of the depression '30s.

Now we are in another high birth-rate period, with the result that more women must stay at home to look after young children.

However, these are merely limiting factors and do not change the fact that there is a large pool which can respond in growing measure as any emergency increases.

There is the further fact that experience in the last few years should undoubtedly enable industry to produce more with less manpower than heretofore.

We must accustom ourselves to a state of "progressive mobilization," said Mr. Clark. Canadian defence production is just beginning. Only 100,000 out of 5,084,000—a small proportion of our manpower is engaged in defence production. This compares with 800,000 during the peak production period of World War II.

Stumbling Block To Reds

"North American production is one of Joe Stalin's biggest stumbling blocks," he said. "And the more we can increase civilian production, the more we prepare ourselves for the industrial job of turning out the tools of defence."

Mr. Clark said there are probably undeveloped skills among the present working force and these skills can be put to more productive uses. But how is this information to be assembled.

Some authorities feel the census-taking organization should be used. But there is opposition by statisticians who say that the moment the census ceases to be an impersonal survey and becomes a precise, personal record, individual by individual, it will cease to be accurate and complete.

Some people would withhold information if they thought it might later be used as a basis for government action affecting individuals.

Industry Willing To Help

Mr. Clark said he thought industry itself was the best source of information on the present distribution of essential production skills. And he thought industry would be glad to co-operate on a nation-wide basis.

"The establishment of the National Advisory Council on Manpower is certainly a step in the right direction," he said. "Already this group has made a contribution to the problem with its suggestion for the direction of manpower, on a voluntary basis, into the more essential industries."

Mr. Clark said he was concerned over the decline in the number of engineering graduates from university. Yet their services are becoming increasingly important in both industry and the armed services.

"I think it is vitally important for industry, for the armed forces, and for the government services, that the enrolment in engineering, science and business courses be kept at least as high as the physical plant of our schools, the resources of our teaching staffs, and the brains of the generation growing up will permit."

He hinted at subsidized training, saying he believed the taxpayer would be prepared to put

City May Set Tax Rate At 55 Mills

Extra Expenses Said Cause For Boost; Meet Friday Night

Mayor Swanston is calling a special meeting of the Council for Friday night at 8 p.m. to approve the budgetary appropriations for the year and set the tax rate.

Nightly meetings of the finance committee this week have been scrutinizing the estimates for possible economies, but it is likely that the tax rate will emerge at a fraction over 55 mills.

"The estimates of the Board of Education are up 1.95 mills, or practically 2 mills," Mayor Swanston said. "Civic Hospital deficit and what they are asking for this year is another 2½ mills. Then there is the interest and principal we have to pay on the additional hospital loan which was reported Wednesday. That is around another half-mill or more.

"There is also an increase of two mills in the general rate. That is largely accounted for by the higher salaries and wages which the council has had to face in dealing with the estimates.

Three Main Items

"These are three bulk items in which the council has had little or no latitude in bringing down this year's budget. We have to provide the requisitions of the Board of Education and the Board of Governors of Civic Hospital. As has been reported, salaries are also an important item in the requirements of the Board of Education.

"Salaries for the police and fire departments, and also wages for other civic employees have had to be considered," the Mayor said.

The tax rate levied on Public School supporters last year was 49½ mills. Separate School estimates had not been received by the council up to this morning. The Separate School rate for 1950 was 50½ mills.

Minden Airman Lost In Crash

Lieut. John Bertrand Hartle, 26, of the Fleet Air Arm, is presumed dead after his Sea Fury fighter plane crashed on Wednesday into the sea near Bermuda. He was flying from the aircraft carrier Magnificent.

Until he jointed the RCAF during World War Two, Lieut. Hartle lived in Minden with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Hartle. He was their only child. He is also survived by his widow in Dartmouth, Nova Scotia. Lieut. Hartle was born in Toronto and moved to Minden with his parents 15 years ago.

Mr. Hartle senior is Minden township treasurer and secretary-treasurer of the telephone system at Minden.

Hospitals Ban Visits

Visiting at both city hospitals has been banned until further notice, The Examiner was told today by officials of both hospitals. Exceptions will be made in cases of critically ill patients.

"We have found it necessary to make this restriction," said John Hornal, superintendent of Civic Hospital, "because of the increase in the number of cases of communicable colds and influenza."

The ban applies to all private, semi-private and public ward patients.

March Came In Like Lion, It's Gauge Day

By BOB HATTON

You know that March came in like a lion—slightly bedraggled—and that this is St. David's day.

But that is of little consequence. Today is a much more important day than that. Did you know that this is also gauge day?

Everybody expects because it snowed and was a wet nasty day today—the first of March—that the 31st day of March will be warm and balmy with a bright sun shining.

You might as well learn the bitter truth now. The 31st day of March and all the other days of March, April and May are going to be damp, dull and disagreeable.

How do we know? How does anyone who knows anything about predicting the weather?

It's Gauge Day

This is the first Thursday of the third month of the year. This is gauge day!

This day sets the pattern of the weather for the next three months. It's a dreary prospect to think about, but we might as well face up to it.

Almost every day, we're going to see flurries of snow, showers of rain, dull and dreary skies. People eager to drive out through the countryside to watch nature come back to life, fishermen even now beginning to prepare for the trout season opening April 28, will be hit the hardest.

You won't feel much like driving out through soggy back roads full of potholes which might trap you car.

Rain filled trout streams will be running high and muddy. No good for fishing at all.

In town housewives each Monday will put out their washing with little hope that it will dry. Children will go out to play and come back soaking wet.

It looks pretty grim doesn't it. Oh well, never mind, perhaps it won't turn out quite that bad.

Judge Upholds City Appeal On Gas Bylaw; Orders Russelle Fined $50

Marks Second Decision Supporting Bylaw In Past Two Years; Defence's Three Points of Attack Fail

The city bylaw stipulating the hours of sale for gasoline, has been upheld by Judge J. A. McGibbon of Lindsay. Judge McGibbon's finding, handed down in a four-page written judgment, sets aside the dismissal of a conviction by Magistrate R. B. Baxter, Port Hope. So John A. Russelle, service station proprietor who has been bucking the by-law for two-and-a-half years, is guilty of selling gasoline out of hours. And he has been fined $50 and costs, his second offence.

It is the second time in a little more than two years that the bylaw has been upheld.

Now that the "test case" is over the city feels on firm legal ground, and will proceed with nine prosecutions under the by-law.

Five Charges Pending

All nine of the alleged violations were in July, August and September of 1950. Five charges are pending against Russelle, one against Thompson Bros., two against Vincent Crebar, and one against Harry Tudhope of the Parkhill service station.

These four proprietors will appear in police court March 12 to face charges against them.

City bylaw 4701 was passed July 12, 1948, and has been a subject of both legal and lay controversy ever since. It passed city council automatically after a majority vote of the Garage Operators of Peterborough.

It calls for no sale of gasoline on weekdays between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m., and from 7 p.m. Saturday to 7 a.m. Monday.

Allowed To Open

However there is a proviso that special permits can be issued to service station operators allowing them to remain open from 7 p.m. to 10 p.m. (an extra three hours) on weekdays, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sundays.

Thus, many were allowed to remain open each day on a rotation basis.

Johnny Russelle immediately headed a minority group of service station operators who opposed the bylaw. They said it was during the night hours that they got most their business.

The sequence of events went like this:

July 12, 1948—bylaw passed.

Dec. 6—Russelle convicted of selling gasoline out of hours and fined $25 and costs by Magistrate W. R. Philp.

Jan. 5, 1949—W. J. Arthur Fair appealed on Russelle's behalf, claiming the bylaw invalid as it was not drawn up properly, and it was discriminatory. Judge S. L. Smoke dismissed the appeal and upheld the bylaw.

Toronto Bylaw Invalid

During the summer a similar Toronto gasoline bylaw was declared invalid. Shortly after Russelle and several other operators allegedly began to break the Peterborough bylaw by selling gasoline out of hours.

September 3—Russelle charged with selling gasoline between the hours of 7 and 8 p.m.

October—The Ontario Court of Appeal reversed the Toronto decision and found the Toronto gasoline bylaw valid.

Nov. 1—Magistrate Baxter dismissed the charge, claiming it was discriminatory, invalid and

Nine Per Cent Increase New GE Offer

Members of Local 599, IUE-CIO (Office Workers) are meeting tonight to decide whether or not to accept the CGE's latest contract offer on wages.

The company this week raised their offer from a general increase of 7.5 per cent to nine per cent. Other clauses in the company offer remain the same: a one-cent adjustment for each 1.3 change in the cost of living index; a three-year contract; and a three-cent increase each anniversary date.

Tom Fitzpatrick, IUE International representative, will give the report of the negotiating committee. The membership will then vote on the wage offer. Some 450 office workers are affected.

Six Unions To Negotiate With

This is the second offer made by the company.

A total of six unions are now negotiating in the CGE chain, and the original company offer has been the same in each case. Three of them have now received the nine per cent wage offer after rejection of a 7.5 per cent increase.

Local 524, UE, bargaining agent for 3,500 production workers in Peterborough, are today voting by secret ballot on whether or not to accept the original offer. Its rejection is considered certain.

NEW BAILIFF for Peterborough County is Harry G. Hartle, RR 11, Peterborough. His appointment by the provincial attorney-general's department was announced this wek. Other bailiffs are E. C. Everett and W. J. G. McNabb.

Record Catch

OSLO, Norway —(CP)— A record catch of 630,000 tons of sloe herring was reported off Norway during the season ended Feb. 15. This was almost 20,000 tons more than last year. Two-thirds of the catch is turned into meal or oil and the rest used for food.

Can't Transfer Steel Plants

HALIFAX, Mar. 1 (CP) — It would be difficult for Canadian steel companies to move their plants to the Maritime provinces, Lionel R. Forsyth, president of Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation, said here Tuesday night.

He was commenting on a statement by Prime Minister St. Laurent who told the Commons that Canada's steel men might possibly move their plants to east coast areas as was being done in the United States.

"Compare the coasts," he said. "There are more people to the square mile along the east coast of the United States than here, and opportunities for distribution here are greater than in the Maritimes."

He said steel output in the province is as great as the market will hold now.

"That's why," he added, "you don't find people carrying satchels full of greenbacks down here to establish more steel plants in Nova Scotia."

Urge Boards Improve Publicity

LONDON, Ont., March 1 (CP)— A plea for improved public relations on the part of school boards was made Wednesday at the second regional session of the Urban and Rural School Trustees Association.

W. J. Churchill, executive editor of the London Free Press, and president of the Managing Editors of Canada, told the more than 60 Western Ontario delegates assembled for the one-day session, public relations at the civic level is "for the most part neglected."

"Your schools have a story to tell — stories of tremendous changes, wonderful strides being made," he said. "You and the teachers should reach the parents more than you do," he said.

Mental health education for the teacher, school nurse and parent as a mean of combatting malajustment in later life was called for by Dr. W. A. Tillman, London psychiatrist.

Canadians Only Ones Don't Know Army

ST. CATHARINES, March 1 — (CP)—George Drew, National Progressive Conservative leader, charged Wednesday night the Canadian people are the only ones who don't know every detail about Canada's army.

Speaking to 1,700 collegiate students, Mr. Drew said they could rest assured the right people in Russia knew these details.

"We make it possible for Soviet spies in Canada to see things and give exact details to Russia of the number of weapons we have and should have; the amount of equipment we should have and do not have; and the number of times the average Canadian man turns out for parade," said the opposition leader.

Only 4 UN Vessels Lost Or Damaged

A naval spokesman said Wednesday the only United Nations navy vessels lost or damaged in the Korean War were three minesweepers sunk by floating mines and one US destroyer hit by the shore guns. They were operating in the Wonsan area off the North Korean east coast.

The spokesman's statement was made in reply to Red Korean claims of sinking or damaging 69 UN vessels between June 25, 1950, and February 22, 1951.

Brush the Birds Eye Cod Fillets with melted butter and sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika. Place on well-greased broiler rack under medium heat and broil 20 to 30 minutes, turning to brown both sides. Meanwhile, melt butter in skillet. Add sliced onion and saute until tender, but not browned. Add cubed tomatoes and simmer until just tender. Add remaining ingredients and pour over Birds Eye Cod. Makes 6 servings.

Canadian Play Praised At Regional Drama Festival

By STEWART NEBBS

MONTREAL, March 1—(CP)—Joseph Schull's "The Bridge," first Canadian-written presentation in the five-day Western Quebec Regional Drama Festival, was well received by an appreciative audience Wednesday night, third night of the festival.

The three-act drama was described by adjudicator Robert G. Newton as a play that has "tremendous strength and feeling, but there was too much talk at some dramatic moments."

The play, set in a cottage on the outskirts of a village in France just after the Second World War, had "very good merit. It was moving, a good story and an extremely-interesting situation. The performance was well up to scratch."

The story is that of Lili, a young French girl whose husband was killed in the war and who brought hardship on herself and family—at a time when feelings against collaborators were running high—when she had an illegitimate child by a German.

Eases Situation

A young British officer, quartered in the cottage to restore a bridge destroyed by the retreating Germans, does much, however, to eradicate the hatred of the villagers by demonstrating patience and understanding of the situation.

Lili was portrayed by Lenore Osborne while Renee Almond took the part of Lili's mother, Therese Lacoste. The British officer, Maj. Armstrong, was played by Kenneth Haslam.

Of Miss Osborne's performance, Mr. Newton had this to say: "She gave a remarkable performance. I have nothing but praise for her from beginning to end."

Miss Almond showed "excellent feeling but her speech was a little too precise—slightly too academic."

Haslam had "a very difficult part to play but performed well."

Outlaw Chinese Fan Tan BC Fears Monte Carlo

VICTORIA, B. C., March 1 — (CP).—Attorney-General Gordon Wismer moved Wednesday to outlaw fan tan gambling in Vancouver Chinese social clubs.

"If games of this kind were permitted to be operated, whether or not there was an element of gain, you'd immediately have a miniature Monte Carlo in Vancouver," he said.

With his action, Mr. Wismer took the side of the Vancouver Police Commission in its row with Vancouver City Council. He also overrode an appeal court ruling that where fan tan—a form of crown and anchor—is not played for gain of the game's operators it is not contrary to the Criminal Code.

Fan tan is the most popular card game in Vancouver's Chinatown, third largest on the continent. In 1949, Vancouver City Council voted to licence 18 gambling clubs to keep many of the city's 8,000 Chinese happy.

Closed Club

A few weeks ago, Mr. Wismer revoked the charter of one of the Chinese clubs at the request of the police commission. Last week, city council refused to revoke the charter of another club, as recommended by the commission, because Mr. Wismer had not yet taken action.

Wednesday, Mr. Wismer took the action requested by the commission. He suspended the charter of the Young Businessmen's Club and said he would do the same to any other clubs on recommendation of the Vancouver Police Commission.

Mr. Wismer said in a statement: "It was found that many of them (Chinese social clubs) were engaged in playing fan tan, which is one of the oldest gambling games in the world and is a game of the purest chance.

Geiger Counters Over Counter

SYDNEY — (CP) — A Sydney scientific equipment stores does a good business in Geiger counters which it sells for £54 ($127) to people who look for uranium on their holidays.

The Commonwealth Government will pay a handsome reward to anyone who can find commercial deposits of radio-active minerals.

So many people spend their vacations in the arid uranium-bearing country of central Australia.

The Geiger counter they buy in Sydney is packed in a canvas bag and is slung over the shoulder like a portable radio. It weighs five pounds and measures 8½ inches by 3¼ inches.

For the professional prospector the store offers a bigger Geiger counter for £103 weighing 7½ pounds.

Toronto Exhibit To Give Canadian Art Big Bost

TORONTO — (CP). — An all-Canadian exhibition of paintings and sculpture here from March 9 to April 15 is seen by experts as one of the biggest shows in the history of Canadian art.

For the 79th annual exhibition of the Ontario Society of Artists at the Toronto Art Gallery more than 500 entries were examined carefully and the best 100 works of painting and sculpture were chosen for the exhibition.

Many newcomers are represented along with Canada's top academicians. There are academic and modern works, some primitives, and some of the so-called amateur class. The only criterion applied in the selecting that occupied many hours was the work's art content, regardless of the background of its creator, whether professional or amateur.

Viscount Alexander, Governor-General and himself an eminent amateur artist, will officially open the exhibition on March 9, unveiling an accurate cross-section of painting and sculpture in Canada today.

Secret Ballots

The jury of selection comprised five nationally-known artists: J. W. G. Macdonald, Yvonne McKague Housser, J. Sydney Hallam, Bob Haworth and R. York Wilson. Cleeve Horne, president of the Ontario Society of Artists, was chairman of the committee, assisted by Herbert S. Palmer and Fred Finley.

The judges voted secretly on the selections by flashing their decision on an electric light panel visible only to the secretary. They started with 527 paintings, drawings and sculptures which included the work of two artists in Nova Scotia, 28 in Quebec, two in Manitoba, three in Alberta, and five in British Columbia, with the rest from Ontario.

In its campaign to encourage Canadian art the Ontario Society of Artists this year is offering two awards. The Taber Dulmage Feheley purchase award of $500 is to be given for the work that contributes best to progress in painting. The J. W. L. Forster award of $100 is given for the "best subject picture" in the exhibition.

Apart from the annual exhibition a special section entitled "Way of Painting" includes 20 works in 16 different media, all in use today, such as water-color on wax. Each work carries a panel describing the method used which is expected to be of great interest to the student and layman alike.

Minimum Pay Discussed In Saskatchewan

By The Canadian Press

Minimum wages and pensions for dependents of victims of industrial accidents will be raised soon in Saskatchewan.

The Provincial Legislature Wednesday heard Labor Minister C. C. Williams tell of plans to introduce bills providing for widows and children of men killed in industrial accidents. He gave no figures.

The minister said the changes are made necessary by increased living costs.

In the Manitoba Legislature, Agriculture Minister F. C. Bell said his department is conducting a survey to determine the province's agricultural problems and to find their solution.

Introducing agricultural estimates, Mr. Bell said the province has made such strides in combatting tuberculosis in cattle that the government is applying to the Federal Agricultural Department to have Manitoba declared "TB-free."

Liberal and Nationalist members accused the Quebec government of playing politics in the dismissal of Louis Pasquier as manager of a government beet-sugar refinery. Agriculture Minister Barre denied the charge and said Mr. Pasquier's expense accounts had sometimes run as high as $300 a month.

Involved In Discussion

At Halifax, Michael McDonald (CCF, Cape Breton Centre) became involved in a series of discussions with supporters of the Liberal government as he spoke in favor of reimposition of price controls, low-cost housing and improved teachers' salaries.

Hugh John MacDonald (L, Calgary), one of the two members of the Liberal opposition in the Alberta Legislature, attacked the Social Credit government's natural gas policy. He claimed insufficient reserves were being set aside for the province's own use.

He charged that the government was influenced by the thought of "a fast dollar" in listening to gas-export promoters.

Toronto Wedding Of Interest Here

Attended by many guests, the marriage took place Wednesday in St. Jude's Anglican Church, Toronto, of Margaret Patricia, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Roger W. Matchett, all formerly of Peterborough, now of Hamilton, Dr. Matchett being a brother of Mr. Oscar S. Matchett, to Dr. Thomas Gordon White, Sault Ste. Marie, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. A. White, Bruce Mines. Rev. Canon R. J. Shires officiated, with Mr John Linn at the organ, and Miss Jean White, sister of the groom, as soloist.

Dr. Matchett gave his daughter in marriage, and she wore a hand-some gown of white silpper satin, with rose point lace bodice, and long lace sleeves. The skirt, with an apron effect at the front, ended in a cathedral train. Her long embroidered pearl-studded veil was held with a pearl tiara, and her flowers were pink Pinocchio roses intertwined with white carnation petals and fern.

Her attendants were Miss Ann I. Metler, wearing burgundy satin, Misses Diana R. Wadsworth, Beverley A. Brown and Joanne F. Smith, in pale blue. Their dresses carrying out the University of Toronto Dental colors, as the groom and the bride's father are both dentists, were fashioned with Mary of Scotland collars, buttoned bodices and full box-pleated skirts. The maid of honor wore a pale blue feather bandeau with burgundy bow, and carried a crescent of pale yellow carnations in a cascade of lemon leaves. The bridesmaids' bandeaux were burgundy shade with blue bows, and they carried crescents of burgundy and white-tipped carnations with cascade of lemon leaves. Mr. Robert E. White was groomsman for his brother, and the ushers were Messrs. R. Paul Matchett, Howard Thompson and George Brown.

After the reception at Prince Arthur House, Dr. and Mrs. White left on a trip through the Northern Central States, and on their return will live in Sault Ste. Marie.

Help Create War By Indifference Liberals Told

OTTAWA, March 1 (CP). — The well-worn criticism that women are apathetic toward politics cropped up at the meeting of the National Federation of Liberal Women.

It was the first open meeting of the Federation whose executive has been holding closed sessions here in conjunction with the three-day annual meeting of the National Liberal Federation's Advisory Council.

A review of feminine political enthusiasm in the provinces brought from Mrs. Hazel Atkinson of Westbrook, Cumberland N. S., the comment that "women by their indifference to all things political are helping to create war."

"The Liberal party owes much to its women, but is a little slow in fully recognizing their efforts and influence in the political field," said Mrs. Inman of Montague, PEI. "No system can possibly be superior to those people who operate it."

Mrs. Inman said she saw "as our present greatest weakness" the inability of a group of women to select one from amongst them and then divesting themselves of all pettiness and jealousies support to the fullest the chosen person.

"Until we can do this we shall not be able to assume the positions of importance to which we aspire," she declared.

Discrimination Against Women

LAKE SUCCESS, N.Y., March 1 (Reuters)—Comprehensive information on the legal status of women throughout the world with regard to civil, military and jury service has been compiled for the first time in a United Nations report entitled "Women In Public Services and Functions."

"The most striking feature revealed by the secretary-general's report on this question is the frequent discrimination against married women," a UN press release said.

"In Australia, Belgium, Canada, the Union of South Africa and the United Kingdom marriage is as a rule a bar to the appointment of women or their continuation in office.

"Many other governments accord no survivorship pension to the widower or children of a woman civil servant, while provision for such pensions is made for the family of a male civil servant."

Home and School

PCVS

Third in a series of group meetings for parents and teachers was held Wednesday by the PCVS Home and School Association in the library of the Collegiate. Mr. J. H. Moebus, vocational guidance officer and president, welcomed 35 parents and 11 teachers of grades 9B and 9F.

During the introduction the teachers spoke briefly on the subjects they teach and expressed pleasure in being given the opportunity of meeting parents of their pupils. As one remarked "Teachers think of parents in terms of their children."

Mr. Moebus explained the objective of grade meetings as giving the parents the opportunity of meeting teachers in an informal way to talk over particular problems so that a better understanding is arrived at by all concerned.

The fall progress report on the length of time given to homework in grade 9 and time allotted to outside interests came up for discussion.

The meeting was then turned over to the teachers and parents.

Refreshments convened by Mrs. F. Dobson and Mrs. G. H. Frise were served by members of the Home and School executive.

It was announced that a general meeting of PCVS Association to which all parents will be invited is to be held March 7th in the collegiate auditorium.

She also received greetings from many well wishing friends.

Of Interest to Women

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Macaroni Money-Savers When Cutting Meat Bill

When a $10,000-a-year family has to keep a weather eye on their meat bill and when both husband and wife agree that some s-t-r-e-t-c-h-i-n-g has to be done, then I guess I can stop apologizing for all of my impulses to write to you on a low-cost plane.

Don't misinterpret that $10,000-a-year remark—the mazooma belongs to friends of ours—not us.

So it is macaroni week in the Moore kitchen. I am hoping I do not surfeit my family on it. I've had one bleat from Pete: "Mother what we go through for your dear, dear readers . . ." I nip that kind of talk in the bud when it does spring up with some such retort as "You probably have better food and more varied than any other boy your age—and you wouldn't be the size you are if you were undernourished or malnourished." (He's still just 16 and measures 6 feet 2 inches and has not stopped pushing up yet.) "Okay, okay—I was just trying to stop you making macaroni all next week too."

✧ ✧ ✧

Noodle and Veal Supper

(Fresh shoulder pork may be used in place of shoulder veal.)

Dredge one pound of boned, cubed shoulder veal in a mixture of 2 or 4 tablespoons flour, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon onion salt, and shake of pepper. Saute in 2 tablespoons bacon dripping until golden brown. Add 1 cup canned tomatoes, and 1 cup water 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, ½ teaspoon salt, mix well and bring to boiling point; cover and simmer 30 minutes, or until meat is tender. Meanwhile cook 4 or 6 ounces boxed noodles in boiling salted water until tender and drain and rinse. Add this to the meat mixture and simmer or bake 15 minutes longer. Sprinkle top with 4 ounces grated old cheese.

✧ ✧ ✧

Macaroni Mousse

(If you have individual custard cups use them for this, and serve turned out. Delicious with sausages or split broiled wieners.)

One cup cooked macaroni, 1 cup soft breadcrumbs, ½ cup old cheese grated, 1 pimiento chopped finely, 1 tablespoon grated or finely chopped onion, ½ teaspoon salt, shake of paprika, 2 beaten eggs, 3 or 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1½ cups whole milk. Gently stir together all of these ingredients and turn into buttered casserole or individual ramekins. Stand in pan containing warm water and bake at 325 deg. Fahr. for about 50 minutes. This has a smooth custardy texture and a good flavor that makes it popular with men.

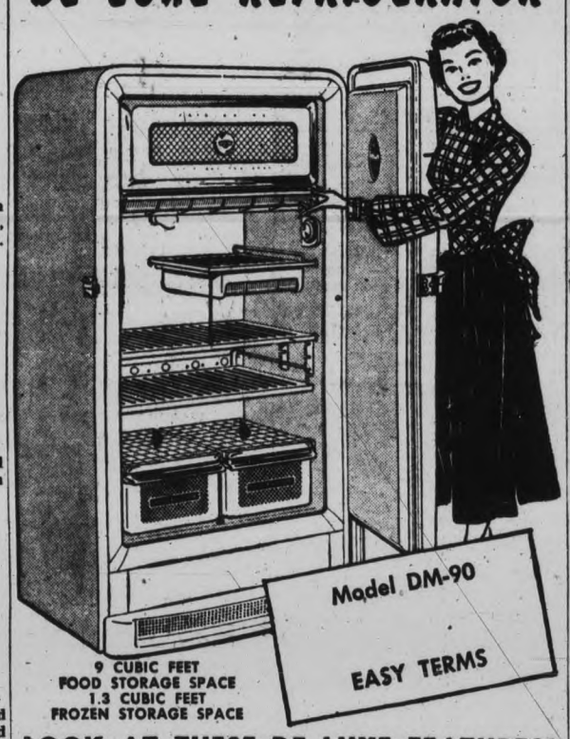
Spaghetti—Genoa Style

In one-half cup of salad oil saute ½ lb. fresh sliced mushrooms which have been cleaned by scrubbing, 2 tablespoons diced salt pork, 1 cup sliced peeled onions, 2 peeled cloves of garlic and 1 lb. beef which has been pounded thin with steak pounder and then cut into 1-inch pieces. When vegetables are limp but not brown, add 2 cups fresh or canned tomatoes, 2½ cups hot water, 1 teaspoons thyme, 1 teaspoon (or less) of sage, 2 teaspoons salt, shake of pepper. Cover and simmer until meat is tender. Meanwhile have cooking 8 ounces spaghetti in plenty of water, until tender. When both are ready put a layer of spaghetti on a hot platter, over this pour a generous layer of the meat sauce, and sprinkle over half of 1 cup of grated old cheese; repeat these three layers. These amounts serve eight. For economy's sake you may substitute the mushrooms with diagonally cut celery, or you may use 1 can of mushroom soup, condensed to replace the ½ lb. of mushrooms.

✧ ✧ ✧



Spaghetti with Meat Balls

You may omit the meat in the above recipe and use the sauce over meat balls made as follows:

Meat Balls: One-half to one pound ground beef, lamb, pork or veal, mixed with three slices white bread toasted and soaked in water 5 minutes and squeezed out, 2 tablespoons chopped parsley, 1 small clove garlic chopped as finely as possible, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons grated old cheese, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper. Mix in order given and saute in 2 tablespoons fat until golden and crusty all over. These may be added to the sauce before it is finished cooking if desired. The spaghetti is on the bottom, then come the meat balls, then the sauce, and finally a sprinkling of grated old or processed cheese. This is such a favorite with my young people and such a favorite with me, for it balances the budget, that we have it about once per month.

Boutique Fashions Now Established In London

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON —(CP)— The boutique, originally a French fashion, now is firmly established in London.

The cut in price is achieved by economy in materials. For instance, a bouffant evening dress originally designed for the main salon, using 30 yards of material, would in the boutique design use only a third of that material.

In coats, suits and dresses, all materials are designed to cut with an eye to maximum effect for minimum price. Eccentric lines and extreme fashions are avoided. Designs are simple with accent on accessories.

A simple tailored suit in navy might be worn with a white pique collar for morning wear. A soft chiffon or muslin blouse, decorated with delicate lace and combined with matching handkerchief, gives the right effect for afternoon wear. In the evening, a swathed jersey blouse, with or without embroidery, makes the suit an effective cocktail ensemble.

Boutique Collections

At present, London's Hardy Amies is regarded as having the most comprehensive boutique collection. Hartnell and Matli show accessories only and Stiebel-Jacqmar have a ready-to-wear salon. Charles Creed and Peter Russell do general wear and Worth concentrates on teen-age fashions.

With an eye to the limited bank balances of many young debutantes, Worth's recent boutique show gave youthful clothes suitable for all social occasions.

There were dreses, coats and suits in crepe wools, foulards, linen, muslin, soft-printed grosgrains, new and interesting cottons, flowered prints, faille and satin.

A stiff, navy cloque suit with slim skirt and tight-waisted jacket with fluting peplum, combined with softly-draped chiffon blouse of turquoise, might be suitable for Ascot or a garden party.

Star of the show is an evening dress in oyster slipper satin with full, train skirt and neat waist. A deep triangle of pearls and gold sequins embroider the front from waist to bust, and the off-the-shoulder neckline has deep cape collar tied at one side in a kerchief knot.

Shanghai Mother Flew To Winnipeg For Baby's Birth

WINNIPEG —(CP)— A 19-year-old Shanghai mother flew to Winnipeg so that her baby might be born in a free country.

Pretty, dark-haired Mrs. Paul Mari gave birth to a six-pound, 13-ounce boy Feb. 11, less than a month after she and her doctor-husband fled Communist China.

The Maris arrived in Winnipeg Jan. 19 after a trip by boat, train and airplane from Shanghai. They had only $30 in cash when they completed the journey.

"We travelled by train from Shanghai to Tientsin and then by boat to Hong Kong," Mrs. Mari said. "I was a terrified sailor and for a while they were afraid I was going to give birth to my child on the boat."

The Danish ship on which the Maris travelled was designed to carry 12 passengers, but it had 175 refugees on that trip. From Hong Kong, the couple flew to Tokyo, the Aleutian Islands, Edmonton and finally Winnipeg.

A New Canadian

Mrs. Mari is happy her child was born in Canada.

"It's funny to think my son is a Canadian and I'm not," she said.

The young mother was born in Shanghai of Russian descent. Her 31-year-old husband is a native of Russia but has lived in the Orient for most of his life.

Dr. Mari hopes to practice in Manitoba after passing medical exams here. At present he is an interne at St. Joseph's hospital.

"Manitoba is one of the few provinces that gave me any encouragement about practising," the doctor said. "So we came here."

Down here we mourn, but not in vain,
For up in heaven we will meet again.

up money to meet this need during an emergency.

Not Given Up Hope of Peace

Mr. Clark concluded by saying this mobilization of manpower did not mean that the country had given up all hope of peace.

"Far from it," he said. "Knowing the potential aggressor, that bullying, grabbing state which has made no secret of its plans for our destruction, we realize that we can only hope for peace if we are able to resist and defeat this enemy. It is my earnest prayer that we may be spared war, with its horror, waste, beastliness, and its human anguish.

"By preparing our defences now we are taking the only course open to us to avoid war—short of cowardly surrender to the Communist way of living. And that is something that no free man could stomach.

"As an economic condition, mobilization for defence spells hard work and discomfort for many. But it is infintely preferable to total war or—God forbid—subjugation to the rule of brutal Communism.

"There are difficulties in store for Canada, but they are not beyond our capacity to handle. It will require long hours, perhaps years of work. It will require some personal deprivation. It will require teamwork of the inspired kind which we witnessed in this country during the last war. And above all it will require constructive, careful thought and unwavering courage.

'The best brains and the stoutest hearts in the nation are needed in this hour. I am sure that Canadian talent and Canadian resources are well able to handle any problem involved in this mobilization job. If we have confidence in one another, and if we work together, we need have little fear for what the future holds for us."

Mr. Clark was introduced by Robert Abbott, general manager of Raybestos, and thanked by Robert Hardie, personnel supervisor of CGE. Reginald Reid, personnel manager of Outboard Marine and the president of the Association, was in the chair.

Quite a Surprise

ALEXANDRIA, Italy, March 1—(Reuters)—Gioannina Ferretti, a 48-year-old widow, told police here that Mario Bertolotti, 50, an insurance agent to whom she had been engaged two years, had disappeared with about 1,000,000 lire ($1,600) of her money. Several other women claimed to have been jilted by him. Police found him last night, and made a more unexpected discovery: Bartolotti is a woman. She had posed as a man about town for four years.

Dutchmen Send 1st String Line To Bolster Leafs

KITCHENER, March 1 (CP)—The entire first-string forward line of Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen will join Lethbridge Maple Leafs in England next week to bolster Canada's entry in the world hockey tournament in Paris March 11-19, Dutchmen officials said today.

Arrangements have been completed to have centre Mickey Roth, right wing Billy Flick, and left wing Dinny Flanagan leave by plane next Monday or Tuesday.

The trio formed a potent front-line combination for the Dutchmen in the Ontario Hockey Association major series this season. Flick is top scorer in the series with 54 points, Roth second with 51, and Flanagan fourth with 45. They will play their final scheduled game on Friday night with the Dutchmen, who finished in last place and out of the playoffs in the four-team loop.

Manager Bobby Bauer of the Kitchener team said he completed arrangements for their trip with George Dudley, secretary-manager of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association. The Dutchmen offered player help at a meeting of the OHA last Saturday. At first it was thought only two players would make the trip to join the Maple Leafs, picked by the CAHA to represent Canada in the world tournament. Then the CAHA decided to take the line intact.

Frederick C. Cox

The funeral for Frederick Charles Cox of Lift Lock farm, Otonabee township, who died on Monday was held Wednesday from the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. B. S. Morwood of Mark St. United Church conducted the service.

The pallbearers were Clifford Cox, Robert Cox, Albert Roberts, Percy Price, Arthur Stinson, Norman McConkey. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Judge Upholds

outside the powers of the city to enforce. And the bylaw, he found, did not follow the wording of the petition.

Jan. 19, 1951—Chief Thompson appealed the dismissal before Judge McGibbon, acting in place of Judge Smoke. T. J. Carley, KC, represented Russelle, and Alex Elliott, KC, appeared for the city. Both solicitors submitted written arguments.

Written decision of Judge McGibbon: "John A. Russelle has contravened the provisions of the said bylaw, and I therefore must set aside the dismissal of the conviction by Magistrate Baxter, and find the accused guilty of the offence with which he is charged, and impose a penalty of $50 and costs."

Judge McGibbon dismissed Mr. Carley's three main arguments in his written judgement.

Not Discriminatory

After looking up cases cited both by Mr. Carley and Mr. Elliott he came to the conclusion that the bylaw is not discriminatory.

Petitions of the majority of operators were regular and in order, and signed by the required number of operators as set forth in the Factory, Shop and Office Buildings Act, Section 88 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario. This provision allows persons operating in a particular line of business to apply for the closing of their premises within stated hours.

And Judge McGibbon said that the city council were within their rights and had the authority to pass the bylaw.

While there is a slight difference in the wording of the petition and the bylaw "there is nothing which in any way will change the meaning, form or context.... and in my opinion the bylaw is in accordance with the petition."

Cattle Truck Upsets In Oshawa Residents Rally For Round-up

OSHAWA, March 1—Far into the early hours of Wednesday morning residents of Oshawa were disturbed by the lowing of cattle and the pounding of calves' hooves, the manoeuvring of heavy vehicles and the grinding of winches. A five-ton stake truck, taking a wide turn at the crest of the point had hit a deep ditch and turned on its side, throwing out its cargo of cows and calves.

Headed for the Toronto market, the truck was driven by George Irwin, 33, of Tweed. He was accompanied by his partner in business, Harold Mara, 30. Neither was hurt. Coming in from the east the driver missed the cut-off to No. 2A Highway and continued south on Simcoe Street and was headed for the Oshawa pump house when the accident occurred.

Dr. E. H. Webster, veterinarian, was called and helped to release several cows which, in being pitched to the side of the truck, were trapped.

The frightened beasts continued to bellow lustily until they were released.

One cow which had been tethered was found to have been hanged as the noose about her neck jerked its head in the plunge. Adding further to the muck and turmoil of the scene, Mr. Irwin was forced to bleed the animal, to save the meat.

Two large tow trucks finally righted the truck, which was not seriously damaged, and by this time residents of the neighborhood, who were on the spot, helped with flashlights in rounding up the straying cattle. It was no easy task crowding them back into the truck as, thoroughly frightened, they balked, twisted away and ran. Also the dead animal in the truck took up the space of about four standing cows and getting the last one into the truck took much shouting and goading.

There was no further mishap, however, and the animals were taken to Toronto.

Princess Pats Occupy Two Hills, Find Russian Weapons

By WILLIAM BOSS

WEST - CENTRAL FRONT, Korea, March 1.—(CP).—The Patricias Wednesday captured Hill 419 and 500 in a bloodless three-hour assault.

(A Reuters dispatch from the front reported that Canadian troops took two key hills, important strongpoints in the Chinese Communist defense system, flanking Hill 614 which was captured by Australians Tuesday.

The Associated Press, in dispatch from the 9th Corps front, said the hills were Chinese strongpoints which had held up the Canadians—the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry — for a week. The AP said the two Red battalions which had held the hills apparently retreated during the night.

(Reuters said that as a result of the Canadian-Australian advance, the Commonwealth brigade held a commanding ridge line within striking distance of the main Communist lateral supply route in the west-central sector.)

Reorganizing atop the hill that for five days had baffled an assault by two Canadian companies, the Patricias looked back and saw why.

Its height commanded every approach, its defences left no gully, ridge or slope leading upward uncovered. And at least two enemy battalions held it.

Kick Off

The Canadians kicked off at 7 a.m. from the base of the hill, with the company under Capt. Del Harrison of Calgary leading. Sgt. Vern Holigan of St. Catharines led a platoon to the identical spots his men reached in their original assaults.

Then a company led by Major Jack George of Edmonton passed through and reached the summit in a stiff two-hour climb up the slushy, muddy, sulphur-stenched hill. The only fire encountered was from Hill 500 to the west where the Chinese fought a brief delaying action before withdrawing.

Enemy resistance was cracked by the Australians' capture of Hill 614 Tuesday.

CSM. H. O. Larsen of Calgary won 50 cents from Sgt. H. D. Jones of Victoria on a bet that the Chinese would consider the position untenable and the attack revealed that they had pulled out.

Lt.-Col. J. R. Stone, the Canadians' commander, called in air support to rout enemy troops denying Hill 500 to a platoon led by Lieut. Harry Inglis of Halifax. Inglis is attached to the company of Major George Flint of Montreal.

Lieut. Inglis went out after Major Jack George's men were firmly atop Hill 419 to clear Hill 500, last of a series holding up the advance in that sector of the front.

Do Job Well

Col. Stone had the 5th Air Force air liaison officer, Lieut. R. H. Laier of Cozak, Neb., call in jets led by Capt. P. H. Wise of Cleveland, Ohio., and Major F. Z. Malone of Hope, Ark., who in no time flat had napalm streaming down the hill from the exact enemy positions.

Descending from the command post after the battle, Col. Stone went straight to Lieut. Laier.

"Congratulations on the most perfect air strike ever," he said. "You couldn't have done better if you'd tried."

Speaking of the operation in general, he said:

"This is the sort of operation I like. It was completely bloodless. But if they had decided to hold, it would have taken almost a division to capture it.

"I'm glad they decided to make this only a delaying line and did not try to hold. They'd had just too much the last few days."

Have Too Much

Preliminary examination from the summit indicated that they had. Lieut. Peter Mackenzie of Vancouver unearthed 37 freshly buried Chinese. The adjutant, Capt. Bob Swinton of Vancouver, found a further nine, plus a pair of Chinese Army trousers on the ground—complete with legs.

The enemy left picks, shovels and saws used in the construction of the position, and ammunition, bullet-riddled boots, stockings and jackets littered the ground. The stink of inadequately buried bodies and the stench from the bombs used to set the hill aflame two days ago filled the air.

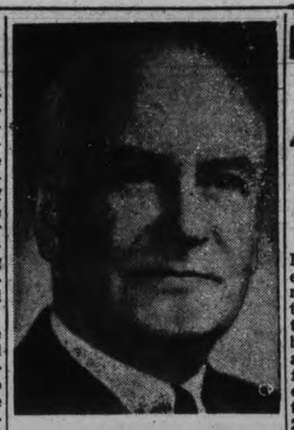
For many of the Patricias doubtful of Russian interest in Korea, a platoon led by Jack Degan of Vancouver uncovered proof — pieces of Chinese mortar bombs and grenades bearing instructions in Russian for their use. There were also cases of Russian-labelled mortar bombs, some of which I have in my possession.

Pte. Allison Bishop of Chipman, N.B., and Pte. George Delroy of Galt, from the section of Cpl. Ken Campbell of Vancouver, thoughtfully looked over the positions they had failed to capture three days ago.

"They had really dug in," said Pte. Bishop. "It would have been a tough job to get them out if we'd had to."

Get Hot Meal

As soon as Col. Stone reported the operation a success, Major Pat Tighe of Victoria, his second-in-command, returned to rear headquarters to get the cooks to prepare a hot meal. Within three hours, CQMS Lou Fumano of Vancouver and Cqms. Ed Morris of Edmonton had trains climbing the hill to the positions of Major George and Capt. Harrison, respectively, loaded with steaming beef and pork stew, creamed potatoes, bread, peas, cigarettes and chocolate bars.



Major George, surveying the path the battalion followed and Col. Stone's headquarters far below—obviously visible earlier to the Chinese—and looking at the troops settling in for a cold snow-swept night mused:

"Well at least it was an easier go this time."

Actually, his company had the roughest go so far in this campaign.

But forward-looking Capt. Swinton, also surveying only mountainous country in the enemy's direction replied:

"Yes, but I didn't think we'd have to cross the Alps to reach the 38th parallel.

Nervous, Always Tired, "Had Very Little Pep or Energy"

Appetite Poor, Could Hardly Eat a Meal Without Having Sour Acidity, Heartburn—Gratefully Tells of Relief by Taking Syntona.

Many hundreds of men and women throughout this city and vicinity have given public statements telling how Syntona quickly goes to the root of their health troubles and has them feeling better again. Quite frequently this gratifying experience comes to them even after long suffering. Such is the case of Mrs. Sadie Shorter, 207 Charles Street East, Ingersoll, Ontario, who said recently:

"During all the past year I was in a rundown condition, extremely nervous, always felt tired, and had very little pep or energy. Appetite was very poor and what little food I did eat caused sour acid risings, heartburn, and a full, heavy distressed feeling in my stomach. I had no ambition to do my work, couldn't sleep well at night and often got throbbing headaches.

"I read about Syntona in the paper and since the medicines I was taking didn't appear to be helping me, I decided to get a bottle of this herbal medicine. In just a little while I was feeling better and with that encouragement I continued taking it and now my appetite has returned, food digests well without sour risings or heartburn and my nerves are calmed down so that I am getting sound restful sleep. I am also free of headaches and altogether feel like a new person, thanks to Syntona."

Syntona is sold and recommended in Peterborough at Elliott's Drug Store. Find out how it can help you, too. (Advt).

Pre-School Years Time To Mold Child-Speaker

NORWOOD, Mar. 1 (ENS)—Norwood Home and School Association met Monday evening in the public school. The president, Mrs. Gerald La Brash, presided.

The new radio and record player, purchased jointly by the Home and School Association and the school board, was on display. Max Scott, treasurer, reported 78 paid up members. Following the business discussion, to commemorate Founder's Day, the program opened with a candle lighting service. Mrs. Kenneth Pakenham read an account of the life of Mrs. Ada Courtice, the founder of Home and School. Joan Stackhouse lit the candle in honor of Mrs. Courtice's memory. The second candle was lit by Mrs. Reta Pakenham for the Ontario Federation and Mrs. Edgar Clarke lit the third candle for the National Federation. The fourth candle was lit by Mrs. Gerald LaBrash for the Norwood Home and School Association.

Mrs. E. Clark closed with a fitting prayer.

Mrs. Kenneth Pakenham, program convenor, introduced the guest speaker, Miss Rachael Young of the Children's Aid Society in Peterborough.

She spoke on the development of the pre-school child, breaking this into three age groups—up to one year, one year to three years, four years to six years. By the age of six, the child has learned to trust, has an enquiring mind, a good conscience, and plenty of initiative and imagination.

Miss Young stressed the necessity for intelligent and loving parents and that the time for parents to lay a good foundation was during the pre-school age.

Miss Young complimented the members on the splendid growth of this new organization in Norwood.

Mrs. Jack Stewart thanked Miss Young.

Mrs. Fred Tredree sang a solo "This is My Task" accompanied by Mrs. H. Caskey at the piano.

Lunch was served by the following: Mesdames Donald Telford, Donald Paxton, Stanley Fisher, Stanley Flett, Joe Clements, Horace Brown, Arthur Spring, Alfred Scott, Gordon Stackhouse, Herbert Caskey, J. Osborne, and Mr. Horace Brown.

Progressive Adult Education Held Big Weapon Against Communism

Progressive adult education is one of the most effective weapons against Communism Dr. E. R. Corbett, executive director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education stated in an address Thursday night.

Dr. Corbett was guest speaker at the So-Ed program at George St. United Church.

His topic, "Education for Action", the speaker outlined the purposes, directions, and philosophy that were behind adult education programs in Canada.

"In our programs, we teach people to think, read, discuss and work to-gether—the basic qualities of democracy," stated the speaker. "In this way we are constantly setting up counter-offensive movements against Communism."

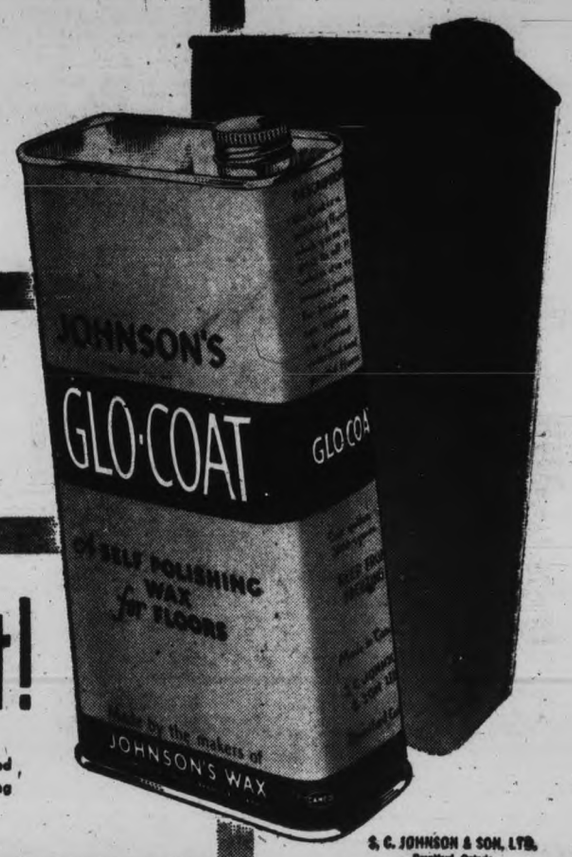
Traces Development

Dr. Corbett traced the development of adult education from the time of Socrates up to the present and explained in detail two programs that had been carried on successfully in Alberta and the Maritime provinces. The programs were projected from the University of Alberta in the western province and St. Francis Xavier University in the Maritimes.

"These programs were extension services, the speaker explained. "The idea was to take to people education of a practical nature which would help them rehabilitate their communities. They began where the peoples needs were—finances. Culture was added to the curriculum after an adequate standard of living had been attained. This is called the economic approach."

In this way a state supported university such as the University of Alberta could serve the people, those on the land and the working people, who supported it through taxes.

"These programs have had and are having two important overall effects," Dr. Corbett concluded. "They are not only stabilizing thinking in democratic ways but are also maintaining a high standard of living."



The speaker was introduced by Charles Forsyth, general secretary of the Y.M.C.A. and thanked by Colin McEachern, field secretary for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

14 Killed In U.S. Plane Crash

SIOUX CITY, Ia., March 2. (AP)— A DC-3 Mid-Continent Airline plane crashed and burned here today and 14 persons were reported killed. A Sioux City Journal reporter said 14 persons were killed, including the pilot and co-pilot, and that eight persons survived. The north-bound ship was coming in for a landing when the crash occurred about 11 a.m. EST. Witnesses said visibility was fair but a sudden snow squall blotted out the plane just before the crash. It was Mid-Continent's second crash this week. Last Tuesday, 29 passengers and the crew of four walked away from one of its airliners just before the craft was enveloped in flames after crashing at Tulsa, Okla. Six of those aboard the Houston-bound plane were given hospital treatment but none was injured critically.

Identify Crew

In Kansas City, Mid-Continent identified the crew members as Capt. James Graham, Kansas City; first officer Philip K. Toler, Mission, Kas., and Miss Marilyn Woodbury, Kansas City, hostess. Also aboard was another first officer, Ernest F. Eilert of Overland Park, Kas., who was to be stationed here.

The plane was en route from Kansas City to Minneapolis. It was flight 16 leaving Kansas City at 7:15 a.m. It had stopped at Omaha about 8:20 a.m., and was due in Minneapolis at 1:57 p.m. EST.

Radio station WCCO at Minneapolis said a source at Sioux City listed these as the survivors:

Say 30 Army Divisions To Be In Europe By 1952

WASHINGTON, March 2. (AP)—The Atlantic Pact powers may have about 30 army divisions in existence in Western Europe by the end of this year, but only a dozen would be ready on the front line if shooting started. This latter group will be the occupation forces of the three major Western powers — six American divisions, three British, three French — on station in Germany. They will make up the force immediately available to Gen. Eisenhower, Allied Supreme Commander.

They will be reasonably prepared, at or near full strength and with the needed combat equipment. The others now are in reserve back in their home countries, in varying conditions of readiness ranging down to mere skeletons of organizations.

On the basis of published or known information, the Western European military picture at the end of 1951 probably will be about like this:

The U.S. may have overseas the four additional divisions which Defence Secretary George C Marshall has said will go. That will bring the total to six, of which two will be experienced in the European area.

Have Armored Division

Britain now has two divisions in Germany and it is understood another is being organized there, probably an armored outfit. There are some others—the number is not disclosed—in England, either organized or to be formed.

France has three divisions — like the British, well-equipped and trained units—in the occupation zone, with at least two more in readiness in France. There has been speculation that France may expand her army by another 12 or 15 divisions under her new program.

Canada, which has already sent equipment for one division to Belgium, has promised a force of brigade size. Definite commitment of Canada's 25th infantry brigade to Korea ruled out speculation that it might soon be sent to Europe.

Italy has the structural organization at least of half a dozen divisions. However, many of them are under strength, lacking equipment and in need of training.

Belgium, The Netherlads, Norway, Denmark and Portugal have or hope to have by the year's end the equivalent of about a division each.

Charges Reeve On 10 Pay Lists

ORILLIA, March 2 (CP). — Lawrence A. Cooper of Rama township charged Thursday night that ousted Morrison township reeve, George Canning, was on 10 township pay lists.

The reeve and his council were unseated by Judge A. E. Wright, of Bracebridge, two weeks ago partly on the grounds that some of them received wages from the township while holding office.

Cooper made his charges during a stormy nomination meeting at which Canning and ex-councillors William Cox, H. L. Clipsham, Eric Eyer and Edgar Day were all renominated. They will be opposed by W. F. Hughes, Jack Hastings, Leon Leguer, J. R. Morgan and Arthur Wright in the election slated for March 8.

Judge Wright also found that the date of the 1950 election had been changed from New Year's Day to Dec. 29 without proper notice being given the voters, and that some of the voters' lists were incomplete in many respects.

New Zealand Gives Royal Visit Details

WELLINGTON, N.Z., March 2 (CP)—Prime Minister Sidney G. Holland Thursday announced details of the royal visit to New Zealand in 1952.

He said the King, Queen and Princess Margaret will arrive here May 6. They will visit the South Island, then cover the North Island before leaving June 7, he said. Princess Elizabeth will not accompany her parents.

The trip, originally planned for 1949, was postponed because of the King's illness. He was operated upon for an obstruction of the leg arteries. Tentative plans to hold it in 1950 were set aside because of the British elections.

The Royal Family will visit Australia beginning March 1.

Princess Margaret, Holland said, will visit several smaller centres. The King and Queen will visit all the main cities and some smaller towns, he said.

Bidault Fails To Form Gov't

PARIS, March 2 (CP). — Georges Bidault today gave up his attempts to form a new French government.

It was the third day of negotiations to form France's 14th post-war government in succession to the cabinet of Rene Pleven which resigned Wednesday over electoral reform.

It became apparent today that Bidault, leader of the Roman Catholic Mouvement Republicain Populaire, would fail when the Gaullist parliamentary group refused to have even discussions with him.

President Vincent Auriol then offered the job to ailing Henri Queuille, 66, a radical Socialist (Conservative). Queuille, who headed the longest-lived of France's post-war cabinets — 13 months—agreed to try to form a government.

Political observers here expressed belief it would take at least 15 days to form a new government.

Trucks Collide 3 Men Killed

SHAKESPEARE, Ont., March 2. (CP)—Three men were killed today when two trucks collided two miles east of here.

Dead are George Dungey and Bert Seebach of Sebringville, Ont., and Frank Kruskoski of Waterloo.

The two men were Ontario Highways Department employees and were carrying asphalt for road repairs in their truck.

Shakespeare is about eight miles east of Stratford.

Embarkation Leaves To Be Announced Soon

OTTAWA, March 2 (CP). — Embarkation leave for a limited number of Canadian soldiers slated to go to Korea is expected to be announced shortly.

RCAF planes may be used to fly some special leave men to their homes.

It now appears that the 25th Brigade, based there, will not leave North America for at least another two weeks.

Negotiations have been under way with the Americans whose ships will transport the brigade's 5,000 men across the Pacific.

Say New Planet Turns Out To Be Old Friend 'Thalia'

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP)—The United States navy's "possibly new" minor planet has turned out to be an old-timer—and all is secure in the heavens.

The "unusual" object has been identified as the Pip-Squeak planet "Thalia," which has been known to astronomers since early in the 19th century.

"Thalia" is slightly erratic in its habits, as minor planets, or asteroids, go—but its general pathway through the heavens has long been known. It comes within 100,000,000 to 200,000,00 miles of the earth every five years or so. It's about 50 miles in diameter.

The announcement earlier this week by naval astronomer William Markowitz that he had noted a celestial object—tentatively presumed to be a new asteroid which might come even closer to the earth than the moon—touched off some supercharged speculation about dire events.

Some newspapers in Europe splashed sensational stories quoting unnamed scientists as "wondering" whether the day of wrath might be in the offing. They thought there might be a collision between the earth and the asteroid.

Dr. Markowitz, reporting on the new turn of events Thursday, was by no means red-faced.

He pointed out that the object might well have been a new one, and that if the navy hadn't made a public announcement the object might well have got beyond ready observation before astronomy's scouts had a check on it.

Deny Report Bevin To Resign

Attlee's Office Gives Unusual Statement After Many Rumors

LONDON, March 2. (CP) — Prime Minister Attlee's office issued an official denial tonight of reports that Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin has decided to resign. Bevin returned to work today after a lengthy illness.

The unusual step was taken by 10 Downing Streeet after reports were published that Bevin had decided to step down because of ill health.

"I am authorized to say that there is no truth in these reports," a spokesman at Attlee's office said.

Earlier, Reuters News Agency quoted a usually-reliable source as saying Bevin has decided to resign.

Reuters said the 70-year-old Bevin might retain offifce in the government as a minister without portfolio after a resignation from the foreign secretary post.

The news agency said Bevin's decision was taken following a private discussion with Attlee on Thursday night.

He attended his first cabinet meeting Thursday since the middle of January and later made his first public appearance since his illness at a Labor social meeting in his own constituency, London's East Woolwich riding.

Charge Hesitation

In the House of Lords Thursday, Lord Templewood, who served as Conservative foreign secretary, suggested that the "vacillation and hesitation" in the government's conduct of foreign affairs was due to Bevin's illness.

When questioned by reporters at the social rally about the demands for his resignation, Bevin said:

"What I am concerned with is the future of my country, my party, and with peace."

In his 25-minute address to his constituents, Bevin made only one reference to his illness.

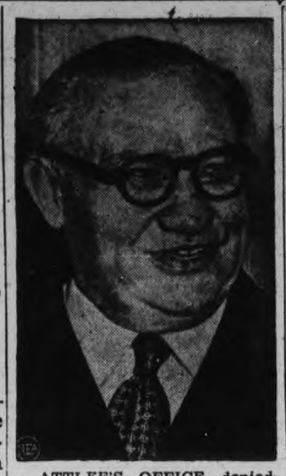
"I do not think there is any need for me to apologize for being ill," he said.

Butter $1 Pound If No Support

OTTAWA, March 2 —(CP)— Without government price support, Canadians would be paying $1 a pound for butter and 80 or 90 cents a dozen for eggs, H. H. Hannam said today.

Support programs "have been of definite advantage to the consumer as well as the producer," the Canadian Federation of Agriculture president said in a speech before the annual meeting of the Ontario Concentrated Milk Producers.

"Those who are critical of farm organizations for seeking price support programs on the ground that they are costing the Canadian taxpayer a good deal of money should remember that for many years taxpayers have been paying many thousands of dollars—yes, millions — in hidden taxes in the form of tariff protection for many of our industries," Mr. Hannam said.



"Every time a Canadian citizen buys a pair of shoes, or a suit of clothes, or an auto or a refrigerator or hundreds of other articles, he pays a tax required by our protective tariff.

"It doesn't show in government figures but it is a tax that has to be paid out of the taxpayer's pocket. This protective tariff is price support because it prevents prices of these goods from dropping."

372 Civil Marriages Performed In 1950

TORONTO, March 2 (CP). — Civil marriages in Ontario last year numbered 372. A return tabled in the Legislature Thursday night showed that 102 of the ceremonies were conducted by judges, the rest by magistrates.

Until the civil marriage legislation was enacted last year, marriage ceremonies in the province could be performed only by the clergy.

ATTLEE'S OFFICE denied today that Foreign Secretary Bevin has decided to resign following a long illness.

CCF Member Asks Ontario For Weaker Beer

TORONTO, March 2 (CP). — A demand for weaker beer, liquor and wine was voiced in the Ontario Legislature Thursday night.

C. H. Millard (CCF-York West) chief opposition spokesman on liquor questions, blamed alcohol for much of the increases in Ontario's divorce and illegitimate birth rate.

In a two-hour throne speech debate address, he urged the government to water down the alcoholic content of beer and spirits and curb the hours of sale.

Mr. Millard, who is also Canadian director of the United Steel Workers of America (CIO-CCL) said drinking is causing absenteeism and sapping Ontario's industrial strength.

He contended the number of divorces, illegitimate births and convictions for drunkenness had risen sharply in recent years, partly because of liquor.

Many Interruptions

Mr. Millard's speech, one of the last before conclusion of the throne speech debate, was frequently interrupted by government members and at one point E. B. Jolliffe, CCF leader, rose to ask them to stop.

Mr. Millard recalled that in 1949 the Rev. J. W. Foote, now Reforms Institutions Minister and former vice-chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, had said in the House he favored the abolition of all liquor and beer outlets except government and brewers' retail stores.

"That was my own opinion and still is," Mr. Foote cut in.

Mr. Jolliffe jumped to his feet, waved a finger across at the unperturbed Premier and shouted:

"The Prime Minister is not entitled to sit in judgment on any one in this House. If government members persist we will reply in kind, interrupting whenever there is an opportunity, and you know that will be very often."

William Gordon (L-Brantford) told the House a visit to Ireland had convinced him that sweepstakes would do little to help Ontario. Sweepstakes have often been suggested as a means of raising money for hospitals in the province.

Plan 4 Charges Against Chief

WELLAND, March 2 —(CP)— The Welland Police Commission announced today that Police Chief Thomas Gee, under suspension since Monday, has been served with four charges in connection with gambling and bootlegging prosecutions.

A police commission statement, released from the office of City Solicitor Allan Brooks, said:

"Chief Gee is charged with corruptly accepting money and/or money's worth for the purpose of preventing or limiting police raids and searches of premises and the withholding of criminal prosecutions, reducing a charge of keeping liquor for sale to a charge of illegal possession where facts in possession of the chief constable warranted a charge of keeping for sale, corruptly and negligently failing to cause searches to be made and prosecutions to be launched against bootlegging and gambling establishments in the city of Welland and with general neglect of his duties."

A veteran of 25 years on the force, Chief Gee has been chief since 1945.

Extra Time Won't Bring Higher Pay

Hamilton Optimistic They'll Handle Delivery Quite Well

TORONTO, March 2. (CP)— Toronto letter carriers today protested against what they called "impossible working conditions" brought about by a Federal economy order that went into effect last week.

The order brought about a reduction to one delivery a day from two in residential districts and some consolidation of routes to spread the work among a cut-down staff.

Wes Bayliss of the Toronto Letter Carriers' Association said today that, as a result of the changes the carrier finds his pack heavier and his walking distance increased. He said carriers who have been reporting for work 30 to 45 minutes early to sort their mail and make the work easier for other members of the post office staff have decided to start on the job at the hours required by regulations.

Don't Get Paid

"They did not get paid for coming in early on their own time and only did so to make the work easier," said Mr. Bayliss.

A similar decision against starting early has been reached by the Hamilton council of the Federation Association of Letter Carriers.

Officials of the Letter Carriers' Association here said 176 mail delilvery routes have been combined with other routes.

Mr. Bayliss said the cutbacks to once-a-day mail delilvery with the accompanying staff reduction has placed too much of a load on the men still carrying the mail and has added extra hours to their working day.

No Delay in Hamilton

HAMILTON, March 2 (CP).— The decision of Hamilton postmen to adhere strictly to their regular working time of eight hours per day and a 44-hour work week will not have any tendency to slow down mail deliveries here, Postmaster F. L. Curtis said today.

Some of the men have been coming in to work a little earlier than the regular starting time in order to help themselves, that's all," he said.

Hope Report Costs $290,563

TORONTO, March 2 (CP)—The Hope report on education, made public this year after a six-year Royal Commission study, has cost the government of Ontario $290,563 so far, Premier Frost said in the legislature Thursday night.

He was replying to a question by C. H. Millard (CCF—York West). This figure is the total expenditure up to Feb. 20. Cost of publishing the report and defraying other outstanding obligations is estimated at another $25,000.

Real Peace Talks Unlikely Develop At Paris Meeting

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER.

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP). —The United States heavily discounts that real "peace talks" with Russia will result from big four negotiations beginning in Paris Monday.

Officials here are convinced that what Russia wants to do in Paris is to set the stage for a new diplomatic and propaganda offensive against the western defence effort if and when the big four foreign ministers meet in Washington at a date not yet set.

The Paris session of representatives of the British, French, United States and Russian foreign ministers is expected to last about two weeks. Its purpose is to decide on subjects and complete the arrangements for a session of the ministers themselves, probably in April.

The U.S. State Department statement cautioned the world not to expect that any meeting of the foreign ministers will be really productive—that it will result in the serious "peace talks" by which the western powers and the Soviet Union might end their conflict.

There is no prospect now that Far Eastern questions will be taken up in the impending big four negotiations. The western powers have proposed to tackle (1) the level of armaments, (2) completion of an Austrian independence treaty, (3) German questions and (4) other possible causes of tension in Europe.

The Russian purpose is assumed here to be to create confusion and indecision among western governments and divide Germany in the hope of halting western efforts to include German military units in the European defence force.

Counter-strategy of the west is to insist that what is happening in Germany is the result—not the cause—of European tension and that this tension grows out of Russia's military might, coupled with its aggressive designs.

Marines Capture Hoengsong, Reds Stiffening

TOKYO, March 2. (CP)—United States Marines swept through abandoned Hoengsong today and stabbed deeper in the heart of Communist defences on the Central Korean front. Communist resistance stiffened all along the Allied line. On the East-Central front, Korean Reds wearing South Korean uniforms knifed inside American positions and fought the infantrymen hand-to-hand. Red jets again challenged US jets near the Manchurian border.

Tank-led Marines of the 1st Division drove into Hoengsong unopposed at 2:40 p.m. (12:40 a.m. EST) after smashing Chinese Reds in a two-day battle on dominating ridges nearby. Infantrymen followed the Marines.

Field dispatches said they found the rubbled highway hub littered with the frozen bodies of earlier Allied casualties and scores of wrecked army trucks and jeeps. Hoengsong was virtually deserted.

Fifty air miles east of Seoul, Hoengsong is in the middle of the mountainous central front. It fell to the Chinese Feb. 12 during the Red counter offensive that failed to crack the allied line.

Costly Attack

That counter-drive had cost the Chinese heavily. But an ambush inside Hoengsong took a heavy toll of Netherlands troops, including their commander, Lt.-Col. Marinus P. A. Den Ouden.

On the Marines' left flank, Canadian, British, New Zealand and Australian troops punched northward against stiffening Chinese resistance. This was in the Yongdu area, 17 miles west of Hoengsong.

The Eighth Army communique Thursday said that a Commonwealth vanguard consisting of Australians gained nearly two miles, capturing a hill three miles southeast of Yongdu and 14 miles southwest of Hongchon, important Communist assembly area.

To retake Hoengsong Friday, the Marines stormed a series of hills and ridges to the south and west—sometimes at bayonet point. Then they swept through Hoengsong toward high ground to the north. The Marines were on the approaches to Hongchon.

Ireland Proposing New Welfare Set-up

DUBLIN, March 2 (AP)—The government of the Republic of Ireland called today for creation of a new state welfare set-up which would cost $61,600,000 a year.

The coalition government of Premier John Costello, never seriously challenged since it took office in 1948, risked its existence on the hotly-controversial issue.

The vote in the republic's Dail, or parliament, will come next week.

A defeat for the government would force a new national election, although the government's normal term runs until 1953.

When in full operation the state welfare plan would apply to 700,000 Irish workers. It would also be open to 100,000 farmers if they should elect to come in.

Hint Ontario Plans Equal Pay For Women

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP) — The Ontario Government in the next few days will bring legislation before the provincial legislature to provide equal pay for both men and women doing the same jobs, a Toronto paper says in a newspage story today.

The story says that legal and labor officials say the step may require a new section of the Labor department, headed by a director, the legislation is expected to affect mainly workers in offices, stores and factories where women sometimes draw less pay than men engaged in the same work.

It said the legislation will not have any connection with the minimum wage act because in Ontario the only minimum wage is for women.

The proposed bill will specify the broad principle but will not include all details because these would be difficult to codify.

Premier Frost declined to confirm or deny the report.

Report King Ill With Bad Cold

LONDON, March 2 (AP)—The King has a cold and fever, Buckingham Palace disclosed today.

He has been forced to cancel all immediate engagements, including a scheduled visit to Lancashire next week with the Queen.

The King's health has been holding up well lately under the usual heavy round of engagements, though last November he was reported suffering from an attack of rheumatism.

Two years ago he underwent an operation to improve blood circulation in his right leg.

Urgent Consultations Held Over US Admiral

LONDON, March 2 (Reuters)— The Daily Mail and Daily Express both reported today that urgent London-Washington consultations are under way at present, instigated by Prime Minister Attlee, to change the terms of command of the American admiral who is to be in charge of the Atlantic naval forces.

Both say this is the reason why the House of Commons debate on naval estimates, scheduled for Thursday, has been postponed.

The Daily Mail also links Gen. Eisenhower's visit to London Thursday with the storm over this appointment.

It says Eisenhower urgently reviewed proposed appointments to the grand alliance staff with British service chiefs to avoid a repetition of this incident.

May Call Conference On Defence In May

LONDON, March 2 (Reuters)— A Commonwealth defence conference may take place here in May, it was learned today.

It is still not known which Commonwealth countries will take part. An agenda has not yet been agreed, but delegates are likely to discuss:

1. Middle East defence, linking up with Gen. Eisenhower's Atlantic pact command in Europe.
2. Supply of strategic raw materials.
3. Increase in production of armaments and other manufactured goods for military needs.
4. The problem of guarding the Commonwealth's long supply lines.
5. Possibilities of a Pacific pact, designed by Australia and New Zealand.

Two Ottawa Soldiers Die In Korea

No Casualty List To Be Issued Before Next Week

OTTAWA, March 2. (CP)—Two young Ottawa district soldiers have died of wounds suffered while fighting with Canadian troops in Korea, their families were informed on Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. Dominic O'Brien of nearby Billings Bridge were notified that their son, Pte. Kenneth O'Brien, 19, had been killed in action Feb. 23 and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Colbourne have received word their son, Pte. Thomas Colbourne, 23, has died of wounds somewhere in Korea.

Both were members of the Second Battalion of the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry which last week went into battle lines.

Officials at Army headquarters declined to say whether the two Ottawa soldiers are the first men killed since the Patricias went into action in Korea.

Lists Delayed

Army headquarters said no casualty lists will be issued before next week.

Canadian airmen are expected to fly Canadian battle casualties from Korea home from Japan. Canadian nurses will probably make the trips with them.

However, defence headquarters said Thursday it has not yet received word that the first movement of Canadian battle casualties by air to this continent is imminent.

It is expected that RCAF North Stars on the trans-Pacific route will be used to fly the Canadians. If the numbers become considerable when the whole 25th Brigade goes into action, some of the casualties will probably be brought home by ship.

Not all wounded will be returned. Those who do come will be men it is thought will either not be able to fight again or will not be able to fight for a long time.

Recover Equipment

On the west central sector in Korea, the Canadians Thursday looked northwesterly from Hill 419, pondering the inscrutable ways of the Chinese.

A company under Maj. Jack George of Edmonton had recovered all the equipment it abandoned Feb. 24 when it evacuated a position under intense enemy fire — the Princess Patricias' bloodiest encounter so far in the Korean war. Hill 419 was captured Feb. 28 in a bloodless assault.

The Chinese hadn't touched packs, picks and shovels, nor even the company's wireless set.

Although the Canadian positions have been within mortar and machine-gun fire of the enemy daily during the last seven days, the Chinese only once fired mortars at the headquarters of battalion commander Lt.-Col. J. R. Stone.

The enemy, although well equipped with Russian and Chinese ammunition apparently preferred to conserve their fire until the Canadians were within small-arms range.

Officer Workers Reject Second GE Offer

Local 599, IUE-CIO (office workers), Thursday night rejected a CGE wage offer of a nine per cent increase.

A resolution passed unanimously by the members stated that the nine per cent offer isn't sufficient to scale down the difference between the salaries of office workers and the wages paid other organized workers.

The resolution, brought in by the joint negotiating committee of Peterborough and Davenport office workers, points out that a percentage increase is of greatest benefit to the highest paid worker, and of least benefit to the lowest paid.

Rejection of the company's second offer was urged by Tom Fitzpatrick, IUE international representative.

He quoted salary ranges which he said were based on "company figures". At the Peterborough plant the average male office worker's salary is $47.38 a week, female $30.66, and the unit average $39.55.

Eleven males average $26.68, 31 average $3412, and 74 average $44.55. Higher salary ranges bring the overall male average up to $47.38.

Seventy-four women average $24.87, 124 average $34.03, and there is only one in the $40-and-up range, said Mr. Fitzpatrick.

"These figures are a plain indication why the office workers cannot settle for a nine per cent increase," he said.

The negotiating committee, representing 800 in the Peterborough and Davenport plants, was instructed by the membership to press for a substantial across-the-board increase, a one-year contract, paid hospitalization and insurance, pensions and pay for overtime.

Joe Wirtz, IUE international representative, brought the membership up to date on the labor situation in the United States and the progress of IUE. Orville Martin, president of Local 599, was chairman.

Mrs. F. J. McGrath

A former resident of Peterborough, Mrs. F. J. McGrath, the former Mary Powers was buried in Heavenly Rest Cemetery, Windsor, early this week. Her husband, also of this city, predeceased her 10 years ago. They had lived in Windsor since 1921 and Mrs. McGrath had been staying in Detroit since Christmas.

She leaves two daughters, Mrs. Dayton Closser of Detroit, and Mrs. John Vinini of Calgary and two sons, Dr. William McGrath of Windsor and Frederick of Stratford.

Dollar Goes Up

MONTREAL, March 2 (CP) — The American dollar today opened at 4 11/16 per cent premium to the Canadian dollar, up 1/16 from Thursday's close. That is, it took $1.04 11/16 Canadian to buy $1 American.

The pound sterling $2.93⅛, up 3/16.

U.S. Car Makers Allowed To Boost Price

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP) —United States automobile makers now are free to raise their prices 3½ per cent—and this is expected to cause a retail boost of a little more than 2½ per cent as soon as the higher-priced cars begin arriving in the show windows.

The rise in ceiling prices of new passenger cars was ordered Thursday night by the Office of Price Stabilization, and it officially went into effect today.

O.P.S. officials expect the retail prices to go up slightly more than 2½ per cent instead of the 3½ per cent granted to manufacturers.

An order soon to be issued will allow dealers to pass on to their customers the exact dollars-and-cents amount of the manufacturer's increase.

Another Problem

Meanwhile, rebuilding of the shattered wage stabilization board ran up against a major obstacle—a demand by unions that it handle labor disputes as well as wage controls.

Economic stabilization administrator Eric Johnston was making cautious moves to fashion a new industry-labor-public board to replace the nine-man panel from which organized labor has withdrawn its three representatives.

Top labor leaders, acting on orders from the United Labor Policy Committee, showered all the mobilization agencies with resignations Thursday, in protest against alleged "unfair" wage control and "big business" domination of the defence drive.

Prices Roll Upward On Toronto Exchange

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP)— Prices rolled upward in continuation of Thursday's advance on the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Activity picked up slightly from yesterday and a wide list of issues posted good gains.

Callinan Flin Flon featured the market with a turnover of 220,000 shares in mid-afternoon. It came to life yesterday after five weeks of obscurity and today jumped eight cents to 38 cents. The zinc-copper-gold mine caused considerable excitement in January with its extreme volume and price fluctuations.

The rest of the market moved upward in fairly quiet trading.

Industrials were well ahead with gains ranging to more than a point. Every group in the list was ahead, the strongest advances going to papers, steels, refining oils, manufacturing companies, and utilities.

Consolidated Smelters paced an otherwise fractionally higher base metal group with a jump of $2.75.

Western oils climbed quietly.

Golds continued mixed with little trading. Newlund was a lone exception as it jumped 17 cents in brisk trading.

Hand-To-Hand Battle

On the east-central front, U.S. 7th division spearheads which had thrust three miles north of Amidong Thursday were forced by anti-tank fire to withdraw Friday. At its northernmost point, the armored patrol was within 28 miles of the 38th parallel.

It was in this area that an estimated 60 Korean Reds disguised in Korean Republican uniforms slipped inside American positions northeast of Amidong.

AP Correspondent Tom Stone, with the 7th division, reported the Reds went up to the infantrymen in their foxholes and fired.

Between 35 and 40 of the Reds were killed before the others scattered after an hour-long clash."

MAIN ST. TOPICS

TRANSFERRED

After several years with the 50th HAA Regiment's A. and T. staff, Staff-Sgt. Gerald Dunn has been transferred back to his original regiment. He leaves Monday for Shilo, Manitoba, where he will join the First Field Regiment, RCHA, as its regimental quartermaster sergeant (WO 2).

AWAIT BUDGET DATE

Finanace Minister Abbott said Thursday in the Commons he is not yet in a position to say whether the 1951-52 budget will be brought down before Easter. He was replying to G. K. Fraser (PC, Peterborough West). The Commons is due to adjourn March 21 for a 12-day Easter recess.

CUSTOMS FIGURES

Customs receipts for February dropped no less than half the January figure. Receipts for February, 1951, $227,633.04; for January, 1951, $594,000; and for February, 1950, $420,000. Chief reason for this drop is that a number of manufacturers mailed in their monthly sales tax twice in January—the second time on the last day of the month.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

The resignation of Mrs. M. E. Phippen of the boys' and girls' department of the Public Library was accepted with regret by the board of directors at their meeting Thursday night. Mrs. Phippen has been a member of the library staff for approximately two years.

Confeds Take Tilt

Confederation took a 3-0 senior School Hockey League win over Queen Mary at the Arena in a fast, fairly even fray. Simmons and McIntosh each had a goal and an assist, with Floyd getting the other marker. Floyd, Miller and Sloan turned in a fine effort for the winners, as Deck shone in goal for the losers, Brown and Deal also being effective. Teams:

Confederation: Main, Sloan, Simmons, McIntosh, Linsey, Floyd, Goldie, Brown, Little, Chamberlain, Corner, Bolton, Miller.

Queen Mary: Deck, Dafoe, Morgan, Brady, Brown, Dobbin, Atkinson, Putnam, Schweir, Hooton, Boyce, Friar, Deal.

Referee: R. Rutherford.

Steal Police Car

LONDON, March 2 (Reuters). —London's underworld, out to learn the latest secrets in the anti-crime war,' Thursday night captured their most up-to-date weapon—a police radio car. Closing in on a gang of thieves, the crack police flying squad jumped from their sleek, high-powered Humber and followed on foot. The suspects disappeared and police found their car had been stolen. It's still missing.

Find Bus Driver Went Against Lights

A charge of careless driving against bus driver John Norton, Keene, was dismissed in police court today, but he was found guilty of driving through a red light and fined $7.50 and $14 costs.

The charges resulted from a spectacular accident Jan. 29 in which the empty rural bus driven by Norton met in collision with a car at George and Charlotte Sts. and the car crashed through a store window of the T. Eaton Co. on the south-east corner.

Magistrate W. R. Philp, K.C., said there was no evidence of excessive speed in reference to the icy condition of the streets. But he said, "In my opinion the accused did enter the intersection when the lights were against him."

Evidence was heard Monday. Driver of the car, Clare Hill, Lakefield, said he was driving to work at the CGE about 7.15 a.m. west on Charlotte St.

When he was about opposite the Charlotte St. entrance to the market square, he saw the light facing him turn green. He drove on into the intersection. When he was about three-quarters of the way across the crossing, he was hit on the right side by the bus going south on George St. He didn't see the bus until a moment before the collision.

He didn't know anything more about it until he came to, standing on the street beside the car which was a total wreck. The front bumper had gone through the nine-foot square window and broken another window about five feet by nine feet.

Didn't See Bus

Driving to work in the car with Hill was Colin Campbell, also of Lakefield. He said he saw the light turn green for Hill when they were opposite the Empress hotel. He was looking straight ahead and didn't see the bus until it was very close.

The bus hit the car beside him and then it felt as if it hit the car again at the rear as it pushed the car into the window.

Both of the youths in the car suffered bruises and cuts.

Traffic Officer Claire McGillen testified that when he arrived the bus was stopped behind the car facing west almost touching it. He said the bus showed no skid marks before the point of impact, but there were skid marks about 44 feet long from the impact to where it stopped.

Roads Icy

He said both the approaches to the intersection and the intersection itself were icy.

Constable Grant Gillespie said he was on duty one block north of the accident at Simcoe St. He was waiting for the light to turn green for him to cross George St. The bus passed him going south. After it passed he started across and got about half way to the opposite side when he heard the crash and ran down to the scene. He said the two sets of traffic lights at Simcoe and Charlotte Sts. were synchronized to work together.

John Conlin, 390 Parkhill Rd. (not the constable) was walking south on George St. The bus passed him and he saw it approaching Charlotte St. He considered it would not be able to stop in time at the intersection because of its speed and the icy road.

Saw Crash

He saw the Hill car come out into the intersection and the two crashed about the centre of the intersection. He said as they hit, he had the two vehicles and the traffic light on the south-west corner in his line of vision. The light was red for south-bound traffic, he said.

Norton said in his own defence that as he approached Charlotte St. the light turned to amber when he was about 40 feet back from the intersection. He touched his brakes and saw that he would slide on through the intersection so he geared his bus down with the idea of going through on the caution light at about 15 miles an hour.

He said he didn't see the car until a fraction of a second before the crash.

Diesel Horns Can Be Made To Sound Like Locomotives

"We can make a diesel horn sound like anything you want," Ira Sylvester, sales engineer of the Montreal Locomotive Works' diesel division, told members of the Engineering Institute of Canada, Peterborough branch, on Thursday night.

Mr. Sylvester was discussing the progress of the diesel-electric locomotive in Canada.

He said diesel horns could make sounds like steam whistles instead of the sounds they make now. One engineer at the meeting described that sound as "the scream of a wounded moose."

"But we don't particularly want to imitate the steam locomotive's whistle. We want something that will blow the car at the level crossing off the tracks, gently though. What is needed is something to let car drivers know that a bigger and faster train is on the tracks," Mr. Sylvester said.

Freight Hauling

The main value of the diesel locomotive, he said, lay in freight hauling. With replaceable engine units and other cuts in cost of maintenance, the diesel locomotive could handle much more than the steam locomotive.

In yard engines— shunters or switchers—the diesel was again more effective than the steam engine. One diesel locomotive could do on one tank car of fuel oil what one steam locomotive could do with 12 cars of coal for fuel.

Problems in building diesel motors for railways were largely in space — bringing the diesel down in size to fit in a locomotive framework which would pass through tunnels and under low bridges.

The problem of increasing power without basically changing the engine was solved by the use of turbo-superchargers, Mr. Sylvester said.

An engine which delivered 660 horse-power without a supercharger could deliver 1,000 horsepower with a supercharger.

No Heating System

The use of diesel-electric locomotives on passenger hauls is confined to warmer countries than Canada at the present, he said. An effective system for heating a diesel-hauled passenger train has not yet been made.

"And until roalroad officials see something more effective in heating methods, they will not use diesels for passenger hauling," said Mr. Sylvester.

Mr. Sylvester is believed to be the only living member of the crew of Canada's first diesel locomotive, which set a record for the west-bound Montreal-Vancouver run in 1925. It made the run in 67 hours, setting a record which has not yet been tied or broken.

He has had experience with the application of diesel power to railway locomotives for the past 25 years.

Library Loans 3321 More Books

A total increase of 3,321 books were in circulation at the Public Library during January and February of this year as compared to these two months last year. The 1951 total for these two months was 13,552.

These figures were reported to the board of directors of the Public Library meeting by librarian Bill Graff Thursday night.

The circulation increase in the adult department for the two months was 827—from 21,289 in 1950 to 22,116 in 1951. The boys' and girls' department jumped from 13,552 in 1950 to 16,046 this year for an increase of 2,494.

Takes Seat In House Cuts Labor Majority

LONDON, March 2 (AP). — A. J. Mulvey, 68-year-old Irish Nationalist from Ulster, was sworn in today as a member of the House of Commons—more than a year after his election.

The seating of Mulvey cuts to four the Labor government's effective majority in the House.

Mulvey, who was chosen in the February, 1950, national election to represent Mid-Ulster (North Ireland) had boycotted the seat until today. This was his way of protesting the continued partition of Ulster's six counties from the Irish Republic.

In a statement Thursday night he said he would not necessarily vote consistently either with the government or its Conservative opposition.

Need Better Effort

TORONTO, March 2 (CP)—An appeal for 12 volunteers to distribute cards urging reimposing of price controls drew only nine offers Thursday night at a meeting of the Toronto District Labor Council (AFL) attended by 125 delegates. "What can we expect from Ottawa?" asked President William Jenoves. "If this is the example of our effort toward price control we can't expect very much."

Court Appearance Delayed For 3 Men

KINGSTON, March 2 (CP).—The three men held by police in connection with the robbery of taxi driver Clarence Curragh of Kingston Thursday will probably appear in court in Brockville next Wednesday, it was learned here today.

The men are Pte. Lawrence Madden and Pte. William Metcalfe, RCEME, Barriefield, and Raymond Floyd Morgan, Kingston.

Police said the laying of the other charges awaits the return of Crown Attorney H. Atkinson, K.C., presently ill at home in Brockville.

It was also learned that Morgan, employed in Kingston, has been a member of the United States Army and a check is being made by provincial police to learn his present army status.

Peterborough-Kingston-Oshawa

Oshawa is going to expand four times its present size and the Ontario Legislature this week approved Oshawa's big municipal swallow. Kingston, too, is gobbling up outside municipalities like the village of Portsmouth, although the Legislature did not give Kingston such big chunks as the city fathers wanted.

* * *

Peterborough is more restrained in its appetites. It has not, for instance, taken a bite at Lakefield, Omemee and other neighbouring points, and is not likely to do so. Peterborough chews away at suburban areas with delicacy, on invitation, and does it gradually. Since it became a city in 1905 it has almost doubled its acreage by annexations. In 1905 the area of the city was 2,826.7 acres. Now the total acreage is 3,973.65. In the first 24 of its 46 years as a city there were no additions. Since 1929 seven annexations from North Monaghan and Smith townships have been made, as follows:

1929	North Monaghan . 21	acres
1941	Smith 18	"
1942	Smith 20	"
1945	North Monaghan . 683.35	"
1946	North Monaghan . 85	"
1947	Smith 29	"
1948	North Monaghan . 290.6	"
	Total annexation 1,146.95	acres.

There are, it will be noted, only two sizable chunks, those of 1945 and 1948: these are not at all comparable with the impending annexations in Oshawa or Kingston. Oshawa, according to reports, is adding this year some ten thousand acres.

* * *

Has Oshawa a nefarious scheme to become bigger than Peterborough? Can that be the reason for its gargantuan swallow? Well, Oshawa will certainly be bigger in area, a great sprawling place of more than fourteen thousand acres. (At present it has 3,585 and is therefore bigger than Peterborough.) Peterborough may take this consolation: The land annexations will add only 7,000 inhabitants. Since the present population is now only 29,771 (last, 1950 figures), Peterborough will still have a slight edge on the ambitious half-way city on Highway 2, for Peterborough has now almost 37,000 people within its borders.

* * *

Oshawa's increased population will nose Kingston out of the place next below Peterborough. Relative standings are now: Peterborough, Kingston, Oshawa. Oops! We forgot to mention that Kingston is annexing whole villages. That will put Kingston well above Peterborough. It will be a city of 50,000, and the fifth largest city in the province. Ah, well, size is not everything. We would not, for instance, trade our Normal School for Kingston's penitentiary, which, at long last, will actually be in Kingston, not in the separate municipality of Portsmouth.

A Reminiscence of The Old Grand

The news of Cyril Maude's death last week must have awakened memories of him in some of the older Peterborough playgoers, who saw him at the Grand Opera House when he visited Peterborough shortly after the first Great War; we have been unable to find the precise date of his visit, but we recall the late Fred Craig's description of an interview which Maude gave to The Examiner; he was greatly pleased with a new play which he hoped shortly to try on the stage; this play was Grumpy, perhaps the greatest success of his career.

As Herbert Whittaker, the Toronto drama critic, recalled recently, Maude once tried to stage an adaptation of Stephen Leacock's Sunshine Sketches of a Little Town; it was called Jeff, and in it Maude played the part of Jefferson Thorpe, the barber who acquired sudden wealth. The play was a failure, unfortunately, but it is of interest to know that Maude once attempted to put something of Canada on the stage.

Maude was an actor of a type now rare, a comedian of great style and polish, but not one who confined his attention to drawing-room plays and scenes of high society. He had an admirable training as a young man in the comedies of Sheridan and Goldsmith and in the drama of the eighteenth century, and it was there that he developed the full, mellow but subtle style which distinguished him. It was Maude who transferred Barrie's charming book, The Little Minister, to the stage; he played Gavin Dishart and his wife, the beautiful Winifred Emery, played Lady Babbie. For many years they were London favourites, and they toured extensively, to Canada and to the U.S.A. Those were the days when stars of the first magnitude, like Maude, did not disdain to play in such Canadian cities as Ottawa, Kingston and Peterborough.

Maude was a man of great charm and surprising frankness. After he had retired from the stage for several years he suddenly starred in a film. "Why did you do it?" his friends asked. "I wanted to put hot-water heating in my house, and it was an easy way to get the money," he replied. Such directness in a man of his profession was refreshing. He died at the ripe age of eighty-nine.

Movable Dominion Day

Some parliamentarians at Ottawa are again trying to secure a perpetual Monday holiday for the 24th of May and July 1st. A bill sponsored by J. L. MacDougall, Liberal member for Vancouver-Burrard slipped past second reading and almost into third and final reading the other day because of lack of attendance of members. By this Bill, the 24th would have been celebrated on the first Monday after the 23rd, and Dominion Day on the first Monday after June 30th. Thus the 24th would fall on the 24th no more often than on the 28th, for example, and July 1st celebrations on July 1st no more often than on July 4th.

This matter is particularly important with regard to Dominion Day. Have Canadians so little pride in their federated heritage that they would be willing to celebrate the national birthday as often on the American Fourth of July as on our own First of July? The Americans are just as eager for long week-end holidays as Canadians are, but catch them willing to forego celebrating the Fourth on the Fourth merely to get the holiday fixed on a Monday so that they can have a big week-end of it!

As Mr. Howard C. Green, Conservative member for Vancouver-Quadra said in opposing the Bill, "one of the great weaknesses of the Canadian people is that they pay too little attention to our traditions, our history" and "those things which make us think of Canada." He believes that the House of Commons should be encouraging the people to celebrate their national holiday on July 1st, fittingly, and not merely as another week-end.

Enough of this twaddle about moving the 24th and 1st to Mondays. The debate on the Bill was adjourned last Tuesday, and third reading not given. Let us hope that the Bill stays on the shelf for keeps.

The Manners of a Dog

By paying fifty cents and going to Montreal for the purpose (children 25 cents), you will be able next Monday to see an interesting graduation exercise. The scholars of this school are dogs, and the graduates have just passed Mrs. Blank's Winter Obedience Course. There will be a prize-giving and special demonstration. An advertisement in a Montreal paper noting these facts has caught our eye.

We shall not quibble about the "Winter Obedience". It is presumably dogs who are to show the obedience, not Winter, and we suppose that a dog which is obedient in winter will be obedient in summer. (We would not make so rash an assumption about dogs in Spring.) Obedience in dogs is a fine thing. We would rate obedience even above faithfulness; any critter can exhibit a dog-eyed devotion for the hand that feeds it, but too few come to heel.

We wonder if the "Dog Training Graduation" will also feature dogs' masters and mistresses? It is well enough for a dog to learn to sit, lie, heel, crawl like a snake, add, say thank you and vote for the right party, but if the master is not coached to give the dog the proper command at the proper time, the cultivated obedience is good for nothing. For instance, the dog's owner should be both present and ready with the right bark when it starts tilting our garbage can. We have no faith at all that a dog which has been schooled at an Obedience Course is above rummaging around garbage cans. Dogs are dogs.

Paris Pink Palace Conference

In the foreword to his report to Parliament covering the activities of his department in 1950, Mr. L. B. Pearson, Minister of External Affairs, says that "It is recognized that, while the free world has to hasten and strengthen joint action to deter or meet aggression, at the same time it is important that no opportunity for genuine negotiation with the Soviet Union or with the Chinese Communists should be neglected." That is a statement of Canadian policy. The first part of the proposition is being fulfilled through Canada's rapid re-armament, her help in arming other countries, and in her defensive alliances, particularly with the North Atlantic Treaty nations. It is reassuring that the second part of the proposition is also getting attention. The western proposal to hold a "Big Four" foreign ministers' conference—Britain, France, the U.S.A. and the U.S.S.R.—is an indication of continuing effort to reach agreement peacefully. That Russia has accepted the invitation to send a delegation to the preparatory Deputy Foreign Ministers' conference is an omen that agreement is still possible.

Is it significant of Western good intentions that the French Government is making the Palais Rose—the Pink Palace—available for the conference?

Notes And Queries

By ALPHA

Questions are solicited for this column particularly those relating to local lore and tradition.

SIR: When was the Parkhill Road bridge over the Otonabee built? I remember some time ago that you mentioned its arches as being gems of symmetery and line.

ANSWER: The Smith Street bridge (Parkhill Road used to be called Smith Street, after a former mayor) was completed and opened in February, 1911, forty years ago. It replaced another structure, which had been causing great trouble in the preceding decade, and frequently had to be closed.

The new bridge was built to the designs and plans of City Engineer T. A. S. Hay, and by the contractor D. Conroy. Its three spans are of a hundred feet each. It was considered a handsome bridge at the time it was opened; I consider it one of the more beautifully proportioned in Canada. It is gratifying to know that this fine structure was designed locally, by the City Engineer.

ALPHA: Which is correct: to keep the fork in the left hand, or to have it in the left hand only when necessary for cutting meat, etc., then to put down the knife and use the fork in the right hand?

ANSWER: There are two schools of thought on this delicate matter (that is, among people who use forks at all). The British way is to keep the fork firmly encased in the left hand from beginning to end, except when a rest is needed. The American way is to avoid left-handing the fork except when it is absolutely essential, as an anchor or stab, and to keep the knife out of hand except when needed as a saw or hatchet.

It would be interesting to make a trans-Canada survey and follow the movements of the fork across Canada. One might thereby be able to assess the pro-British and pro-American prejudices.

In Nova Scotia, the fork stays in the left hand, the knife in the right, and cultivated people tackle the meat and potatoes, salads and fish, in a downright two-handed, he-man way, i.e. British fashion. In New Brunswick, whose society has deep American roots, the American way is favoured; i.e. the fork is primarily a shovel for the right hand, the knife a blunt instrument of which the less seen the better. I am not sure about Quebec. In that province, I believe, society follows the lead of high Parisian society—tucks the napkin firmly under the chin, digs in with an ardour which good food should demand, and depends on the hands and fingers rather than unnatural instruments like knife and fork, for instance, when eating chicken.

Southern Ontario is rather divided. The haut monde of Toronto, which bases its manners on the United States, are right-handed shovellers with the fork; but quite genteel, and even the very best of Toronto society rigidly follow the British system. Here in Peterborough, I notice that there is considerable ambiguity, resulting in embarrassing compromises between the two methods. In Northern Ontario and the West, nobody has ever heard of a person gluing the fork to the left hand—except in some military circles. Vancouver is about fifty-fifty. In Victoria, the right-handed American method is considered beneath contempt.

* * *

I MENTIONED the military. As a very junior officer of a quite snooty regiment which had a depot in the bleakest, windiest part of Manitoba (and I do not mean Winnipeg), I was given, with other very junior officers, instruction on proper regimental deportment. We were told that in the mess, nobody but a ruffian—and therefore unfit to be a member of the regiment—used the fork as a right-handed shovel. The fork was taped to the left hand until everybody got the hang of it. I am afraid I admit to having become something of a ruffian since leaving the regiment, for I sometime do transfer the fork to the right. But I always have an uncomfortable feeling about it; as if eating with the fork as a shovel were as uncouth as using the knife as a hand-to-mouth hoist.

Professor Z. Reginald Smoore, of the University of Arkansas, tells in his monumental, "An Anthropologist Among the Anthropoids of West Africa", that the Baramruchi tribesmen manipulate their forks (wooden ones, five times as big as ours) with the left foot; but that the neighbouring tribesmen of the Baramrucha tribe (on the other side of the river Baram-Ruc-Ho) consider that method gauche, if not traitorous, and eat with the fork (which has four prongs rather than the three of the Baramruchi) always held in the right foot.

The whole matter is a bit footling.

SIR: I have a small English car. When I bought it, the licence fee was two dollars. Now it is seven dollars. Why this 350 per cent. increase?

ANSWER: I can sympathize with your implied sense of outrage. My private belief is that Canadian car manufacturers have found the British small-car competition hotter than they bargained for, and have put pressure on the authorities to make the competition less keen. For instance, the duty on English cars has now been increased, so as to force the retail price up nearer the Canadian-American car level.

Until three or four years ago, the only four-cylinder car on the market (used-car) was the Model-T Ford. The licence on four-cylinder cars had been only two dollars. It was left at that, to ease the poor or frivolous who drove Model-T's out of necessity, and to please some farmers, who drove the Model-T out of choice. Then came the Austins, Morrises and the like, in great quantities. It was again possible to buy a four-cylinder new car. Thousands of people did. So, in deference to the Canadian manufacturers of American cars, who do not like competition, the Ontario licence fee was raised, even though the little English cars cause negligible wear-and-tear of our highways. Pay your seven dollars and shut up, lest the authorities take it into their heads to assess a hundred dollar licence fee, merely because your car is small and uses less gas than American cars.

ALPHA: Are policemen allowed to sport their pistols in court?

ANSWER: No. Policemen did, in the last Peterborough Assizes, and I believe that the attention of the Sheriff was called to this minor breach of regulation and custom by Mr. Justice Ferguson.

ALPHA: Where is Omega? I haven't heard you mention Omega for months.

ANSWER: Omega has rather deserted me for Zeta. But last week he was called to Ottawa to be a dollar-a-year man for the duration (of the Korean Crisis). There are about twenty such executives there now.... By the way, I feel strongly that one reason for the perpetuation of the Korean Crisis is the alliteration of the phrase. The K's come too trippingly to the tongue to be lightly relegated off newspapers' and people's tongues.

When I was having a hot-cross bun at a local eatery last week, a man who knew the secret of my double-life (as Alpha) asked: "Where is Omega?" He said "Oh-Mee-ga", just like a choir screeching for the top notes in Sir John Stainer's anthem 'I Am Alpha And O-MEE-ga, The Beginning And The Ending, Saith The Lord.' I prefer the pronunciation O'mega, accent on the O ... Does that answer your question?

FOR THE RECORD: A heading over a recent district despatch in the Examiner read: "Farm Forum Introduces Novel Idea" or some such. Apparently the Trent River farm forum, at its meeting, used the waist-measurement of attendants to gauge the admission fee. Five cents a foot were charged. Thus a person thirty-six inches around the waist would pay fifteen cents. This is not a novel idea. Local church organizations have been using this hilarious device for several years, for instance, at a pot-luck supper the charge would be a cent an inch. What fun when the ladies test each other's girth! What a great sport when some really fat fellow is being measured, particularly if he is a pillar of the church, and is found to measure fifty inches! It is tacitly understood that hefty ladies need only indicate their measurement and pay an average price of thirty-five cents in lieu of having the tape put to them. It is unsporting if a big gentleman refuses to be measured, but delicacy, if a big lady merely laughs gaily and says: "No need to measure me! Here's my thirty-five cents! (And she may be as wide as forty-six inches.)

Letter To The Editor

MARKET PLACE HAS POSSIBILITIES

Sir: Enclosed find clipping describing Kitchener's farmers' market—rather different from the ways and intentions of Peterboronians.

A thriving farmers' market is a token of the good inclinations, intentions, and hopes of city and country. The golden city will never be built on the death bed of the farmer—for its eats and life comes first from the soil, then breathed into life by the Creator, Maker, God Himself, without which nothing is—no man, beast, flower, leaf, bird, exists apart—to despise this life is to despise its Creator and forfeit the right to live here, there or hereafter.

It is significant that the elite, so-called, the bigwigs so-called, the lions, and even the ministers are never seen around the market—yet the oft-quoted St. Paul exhorted continually therefrom in his day—true, we are treated to some Jehovistic witlessnessing sometimes.

If the market was moved to the place opposite Little Lake wharf as was thought, it has possibilities. There would be a large parking place, a picnic atmosphere, an enticing creek nearby with planting potentialities and in winter a big many windowed round clubhouse-like building would enchant, entice, buyers, sellers, from city and country. If we can find the wherewithall to build 'rinks', why not a super-market for farmers. Anyway the exhibition grounds would be preferable to the contemplated fraudulent situation in the Council's mind.

There should be more farmers' markets in towns or large villages so that Peterborough would not be overwhelmed or flooded by produce from long distances. Charity begins at home. It is useless to try to civilize or Christianize foreign countries when we in spite of our silver-plated culture are not, witness our divorce and sudden death rate.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

And Moses called all Israel, and said unto them, Hear, O Israel, the statutes and judgements which I speak in your ears this day, that ye may learn them, and keep, and do them. (Deut. 5:1.)

* * *

Thou shalt be perfect with the Lord thy God. . . The Lord thy God will raise up unto thee a Prophet from the midst of thee, of thy brethren, like unto me; unto him ye shall hearken. (Deut. 18:13,15.)

In the last day, that great day of the feast, Jesus stood and cried, saying, if any man thirst, let him come unto me, and drink.... (But this spake he of the Spirit, which they that believe on him should receive: for the Holy Ghost was not yet given; because that Jesus was not yet glorified.)

Many of the people therefore, when they heard this saying, said, Of a truth this is the Prophet. (John 7:37,39,40.)

* * *

Now before the feast of the passover, when Jesus knew that his hour was come that he should depart out of this world unto the Father, having loved his own which were in the world, he loved them unto the end. . . Simon Peter said unto him, Lord, whither goest thou? Jesus answered him, Whither I go, thou canst not follow me now; but thou shalt follow me afterwards. (John 13:1,36.)

* * *

Yet a little while, and the world seeth me no more: but ye see me: because I live, ye shall live also. . .

These things have I spoken unto you, being yet present with you.

But the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, whom the Father will send in my name, he shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance, whatsoever I have said unto you. (John 14:19,25,26.)

A House For $300

Aluminum houses which are cool even in the heat of a tropical sun yet costing only $300, are among Britain's more unusual exports.

Seven hundred and twenty of the houses have been ordered by the Pakistan Government to house government employees and the first 200 units have just been delivered. Others will go to India, Africa and the West Indies.

Erected, each house is an attractive little two-room bungalow, with a front verandah running the width of the house; yet, the whole unit can be folded away into a crate roughly 12 feet long, 3 feet wide and 6 inches deep. The manufacturers are turning out nearly 1,000 of the houses every month in Newport, Monmouthshire.

NOT HIS DEBT

The wife of a recently-married Aberdonian had undergone an operation for appendicitis. A day or two after the operation her husband was having a whisky with the doctor, who in a moment of forgetfulness mentioned that the operation should have taken place two or three years earlier. The Scotsman thereupon sent the bill to his father-in-law.

17 Children In Happy Home At St. Vincent's Orphanage

More than 1,000 children have been given a home at the St. Vincent Orphanage during the approximate 50 years that this organization has been in operation.

This information was given to the Examiner by E. J. Wolff, representative for the orphanage on the community fund committee.

"Each one of these children have been able to take their normal place in society following their residence in the orphanage because of the capable work and understanding of the Sisters of St. Joseph," Mr. Wolff remarked.

Mr. Wolff went on to explain that during the past year an average of 17 children were given a home at the orphanage. They range in age from 2 to 14 years of age. The children as well as being provided with the necessities of shelter, food and clothing are also provided toys and other recreational equipment.

Has An Infirmary

The orphanage is equipped with an infirmary and has the services of a practical nurse.

"The Sisters do their utmost to make the orphanage as much of a home as possible for the youngsters," Mr. Wolff commented. "Financially it has a minimum of administrative costs because the Sisters have freely devoted their lives to this work. Nevertheless expenses are high and are going higher."

Food Alone Cost $2,323

In 1950 the cost of food for the orphanage was $2,323.06. In addition last year, several hundred dollars was spend on lavatory work, and on repairing the fire escapes. Two fireproof doors were installed in the basement and the summerhouse was remodelled.

"The orphanage hopes to equip a recreation centre in the building this year," Mr. Wolff explained. "However, this will cost a great deal of money. At present the government grants received by the orphanage are far from adequate for its operation. As a result the orphanage is making an appeal for funds through the Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign for this urgently needed money."

Last year the orphanage received $4,000 from the community fund.

Plan Conference

REGINA, March 2—(CP)—The provincial mines ministers conference will be held next fall in Saskatchewan for the first time, Resources Minister J. H. Brockelbank announced Thursday. Conference dates, not yet set, likely will be during September in Saskatoon.

Warn UK Keep Supplies Going To Canada

EASTBOURNE, England, March 2—(CP) — British industrialists were urged today to continue to carry out their undertakings to Canadian importers depending upon them for supplies.

The urging came from James S. Duncan, of Toronto, chairman and president of Massey-Harris Co., Ltd., and chairman of the Dollar-Sterling Advisory Trade Board.

In an address prepared for delivery to the Dollar Convention, a gathering of business men interested in trade with North America, Mr. Duncan said that rearmament may make supplies tight.

But he warned that if Britain gives up the Canadian market now she will never get it back, and he stressed the economic and other pulls upon Canada by the United States.

Mr. Duncan said in part:

"Do not forget the position you have secured in the Canadian market, particularly in the field of machinery, components and other producer goods, including steel, by abandoning those who, in the interest of both countries, rallied to your support in the hour of need, gave up sources in the United States and now are depending upon you completely to follow through with the assurance made by all concerned about the permanency of your efforts.

General Plea

"I make this plea not only to individuals in this country, but to your government as well.

"Remember when you reentered the Canadian market after the last war, having largely withdrawn through no fault of your own in 1939, you had certain handicaps to overcome. Eight or 10 years is a long time to be out of touch with one's customers. Another generation of technicians had appeared on the scene, a generation which was largely unaware of your technical excellence.

"Fortunately there still remained in the service of industry that older generation which could remember, and their influence has been vital. But another absence would be fatal."

Health Dept. Hopes To Aid All Canadians

TORONTO, March 2 (CP). — Dr. F. W. Jackson, director of health insurance studies for the Federal Health Department, said Thursday that the national health grants program is the first step in a plan aimed at bringing about the day when all the resources of medical science will be available to every Canadian regardless of where he lives or what he earns.

He told the annual meeting of the United Church's Board of Evangelism and Social Service that, since the start of the program 2½ years ago, the federal government has spent $47,500,000 on new provincial health services or extension of existing ones.

Post Elliott To Australia Mayrand Sent To Chile

OTTAWA, March 2. (CP). — C. Fraser Elliott has been appointed Canadian high commissioner in Australia, the External Affairs Department announced Thursday.

The 62-year-old former deputy minister of national revenue will succeed Maj.-Gen. L. R. LaFleche who returned to Canada on sick leave some time ago.

Mr. Elliott will be succeeded as ambassador to Chile by Leon Mayrand, 45, one of three assistant undersecretaries of state for external affairs at departmental headquarters here.

Canada considers the rank of high commissioner equal to that of ambassador. The former is used for envoys to Commonwealth countries, the latter for envoys to foreign countries.

Born In Winnipeg

Mr. Elliott was born in Winnipeg and studied at University of Toronto and Osgoode Hall. He was called to the bar of Ontario in 1915 and to the bar of Quebec in 1928.

He served overseas in the First World War as a lieutenant and later joined the income tax division and rose from counsel to deputy minister. He switched to the diplomatic corps in November, 1946, when he was posted to Chile.

Last year he served as an alternate delegate to the United Nations General Assembly. He is married and has a son and daughter.

Mr. Mayrand is a native of Montreal and a lawyer. He has studied at the universities of Montreal and Paris and at the London School of Economics.

He has been a journalist and a professor and joined external affairs in 1934, serving since in Ottawa, London, Rio de Janeiro and Moscow. He was promoted assistant undersecretary a year ago.

He is married and has two sons and a daughter.

Has Keen Interest

TORONTO, March 2 — CP) — Nobody is watching the battle progress of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in Korea with keener interest than William Henry Marsden of this city. At 79, the former army captain holds the Patricia's regimental number 1 as the first man to enlist in the regiment when it was originally formed. He also served in Korea in 1919-1920 as part of a British military mission to Russia.

Yo-Yo King Faces 18 Charges

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP) — RCMP officers Thursday took out a warrant against Samuel Dubiner, Toronto toy manufacturer sometimes known as Canada's Yo-Yo King, charging him with 18 breaches of the foreign exchange control act involving a total of more than $74,000.

The police believe Dubiner is in Israel.

Police described Dubiner as president and majority stockholder of the Cheerio Toys and Games Co. Ltd. He also is an officer of Dulev Plastics Limited. About two years ago, he set up a plant in Israel.

The amounts of money involved in the charges range from $100 to almost $20,000, police said. Investigators added the money he is alleged to have received without declaring it as being in United States funds came from his interest in a U.S. company with a name similar to that of the firm he headed.

To Build Pier

OTTAWA, March 2 — (CP) — The C. D. Howe Company of Port Arthur, has been retained by the federal government to prepare plans of a pier to be constructed at Sept'Isle, Que., it was disclosed Thursday in the Commons by Works Minister Fournier. The company bears the name of Canada's trade minister, but he has not been connected with it since joining the government 16 years ago.

Post Office Fraud

BOSTON, March 2 (AP)—Evidence against an undisclosed number of Boston postal district clerks allegedly engaged in a payroll padding fraud will be presented a federal grand jury March 19. Tennyson Jefferson, chief postal inspector for New England, declined comment, particularly over published accounts the government might have been defrauded of millions of dollars.

Jail UEW Officer

WASHINGTON, March 2 (AP) —Julius Emspak, national secretary of the left-wing United Electrical Workers, was sentenced Thursday to serve six months and pay a fine of $500 for contempt of Congress. Emspak refused to tell the Un-American Activities Committee of the House of Representatives wheher he had ever been a Communist.

41-Year-Old Treat

CHRISTCHURCH, N.Z.— (CP) —A climber at the summit of Mount Kinsey in New Zealands southern Alps had an unexpected treat when he found a tin of pineapple. Then he found another tin containing a note saying that the pineapple had been left 41 years ago by another party.

DOUGLAS BADER, famous legless R.A.F. ace of the Second World War, is seen with his wife on arrival at Montreal, where Bader was scheduled to open the British Motor Show. Bader, who commanded the Canadian 242 Squadron during the Battle of Britain, said he plans to visit many of the "Old Boys" who flew with him. The squadron was credited with 100 "kills" before Bader was taken prisoner-of-war in 1942.

Radioactive Bomb To Fight Cancer

LONDON, Ont., March 2—(CP) —The newest weapon in the fight against cancer — the radioactive cancer bomb—will be installed in its temporary quarters, War Memorial Children's Hospital, about July 1.

Dr. Carman J. Kirk, Victoria Hospital superintendent, told members of the hospital trust, meeting Thursday, the bomb is "the first one in the world and will require special quarters."

The "bomb," or to give it its official title, the Cobalt 60 Beam Therapy Unit, is being supplied by the Ontario Cancer Treatment and Research Foundation. The foundation is also paying for installation in the proposed new wing of the hospital in which the cancer clinic is housed.

Plans for the room in which the unit will be installed are complete, Dr. Kirk said.

Three inside walls of the room will be "very thick" and dirt will have to be piled up against the fourth wall because of the powerful radiations from the bomb, he said.

A cancer foundation official here said last night that the London unit was one of two such cancer bombs developed at Chalk River, the other to be used in Saskatchewan. Which will be the first in use depends merely on construction of quarters and he could not say whether the London plans are ahead of Saskatchewan's.

Harrison Rink Victorious In Colts' Play

By HERB. MARTIN.

Playing bang-up curling all day Thursday, Bert Harrison's rink came through to win the Colts competition for the Ontario Division 5, Sub-division A. They will now go to Oshawa to play the winners of Sub-division B. Should they be successful there, they go to Toronto on March 15 for the final round. With seven rinks entered, the competition got away pretty well on time on Thursday morning. The games as a whole were somewhat one-sided, and the interest was not as keen as it might have been. Probably the best game was the Langdon-Harrison affair.

However, those who did see the games enjoyed them and it was put down as another day's curling. Congratulations to the winners.

This competition is for curlers who have curled not more than seven years and this is the eighth year of its existence.

Tomorrow's program: 2 p.m., men's bonspiel; 7 and 9 p.m., Sturgeon Trophy.

Going To Chatham

Fred Stenson, Jack Allan, Ed. Bickle, and Doug Ford are leaving this evening to take part in the bonspiel sponsored by the Chatham Curling Club. Play begins Saturday morning.

Warsaw Gets First

LAKEFIELD, March 2 (ENS)—Warsaw Flyers defeated Lakefield Merchants 6-2 to open their best-of-five EPHL playoff series. It was 1-1 in the first frame on goals by Dunford and Patterson, Evans aiding the latter. Patterson got another from Evans in the second and he and Evans aided L. Lonsberry in scoring a goal, as S. Lonsberry tallied on a solo. For Lakefield, Chittick was the only marksman. L. Lonsberry clinched it with two markers in the third, Sharpe helping on one. Play was rough in spots. Teams:

Lakefield: Goal, Blake; defence, P. Calberry, Hamblin; centre, Chittick; wings, Hockaday, Dunford; alternates, Sloan, Knox; Wilford, Morrison, Dracup, Geraldi, Lambert, Coons.

Warsaw: Goal, B. Payne; defence, Watts, Clements; centre, Patterson; wings, Evans, L. Lonsberry; alternates, Eadie, S. Lonsberry, E. Payne, Smith, Batten, Sharpe, Dennis, R. Payne.

Remember When—

By The Canadian Press

Max Schmeling, leading heavyweight challenger after his knockout victory over Joe Louis, returned to New York 14 years ago today to challenge Jimmy Braddock for the title. But Braddock lost the title to Joe Louis, and when Schmeling got his title chance against Louis in 1938 he was knocked out in one round.

Yukon Eric To Test Geohagen

Timothy Geohagen, the pepper-pot Irish grappler from Dublin, has been matched with Yukon Eric in the feature bout at the Brock Arena next Tuesday evening. The fast-stepping strongman will be meeting his toughest ring foe to date, as the big Alaskan is slow but probably the strongest man in the business today. Their opposite styles, plus the boring-in tactics of the Irishman, should make this a most interesting struggle between two popular wrestlers, and it ought to draw another big city and district crowd of fans.

Tommy O'Toole, a newcomer in grappling to these parts, goes against Sonny Kurgis in the semi-final. Kurgis made a distinct hit in his only appearance here two weeks ago.

Pierre LaSalle makes his Peterborough debut in the prelim match against Jack Wentworth.

Hastings Boys Wins Playdown

KEENE, March 2 —(ENS)— Hastings took a 5-1 win over Keene here last night to open their best-of-five EPHL semi-finals, the next one likely being Saturday in Hastings. A small crowd saw a tidy tilt, with but three penalties up till the final frame when five were meted out. Both goalies shone in this fray.

Hastings took a 3-0 edge in the initial inning, Crowley, Isaacs and Edwards scoring, as Oliver aided on two and Cobbledick on one. Stock scored for Keene in the tight middle heat, but Crowley and Brown hammered home markers in the third for the visitors. Teams:

Hastings: Goal, McKenty; defence, Brown, Pettigrew; centre, Oliver; wings, Edwards, Crowley; alternates, Greenley, Laver, Stevenson, West, Lockhart, Thomas, Isaacs, Cobbledick.

Keene: Goal, Mackness; defence, Shearer, Stock; centre, G. Sellaby; wings, Heafield, L. Sellaby; alternates, Whalen, Kemp, Burns, Thompson, Houle, Davidson, Musgrave.

Referees—McArthur and Leggitt.

Bond's blanked Loblaw's, and Braund's No. 1 did likewise with Braund's No. 2. City Hall and Austin's earned 3-1 wins over A. & P. and Prudentials, as Lift Lock and Utilities divided.

Some of the ladies' high threes were: Marg Parker 656, Eleanor Thorburn 652, Elma Tucker 621, Winnie McCarrell 617 and Mary Gimblett 593. Men's high triples included: Bob Hopkins 646, Harvey Staunton 624 and George Gimblett 613.

Basketball season here is wearing along toward a close, so hoop followers should get in on this playoff action now. Couple of colleehs' contests at the YW this eve, starting at eight: Nurses vs. CGE, and Grads vs. Neill's. Lindsay and PCVS girls have a playoff at five this aft. here. Two right interesting scraps tomorrow eve at the Collegiate, beginning at seven. Regiopolis of Kingston comes to play PCVS juves their return OABA playoff, toting an 11-point lead. That one's followed by an exhibition betwixt Western Tech of Toronto and PCVS seniors. Marines are at Owen Sound. However, a twin bill is listed for tonight at the Collegiate, Cobourg vs. the junior PCI-ers at seven, and then Whitby vs. PCVS seniors, both being district finals. Don't pass 'em up.

Bert Bailey advises us that Prexy Pat Calladine of the men's City Softball League is calling the annual open meeting of the loop for March 7 (next Wednesday) at 7.30 p.m. in the YMCA. All those interested are invited. Prospective entries will be checked, reports made and quite likely the election of officers held at this get-together. Probably a strong four-team circuit will operate again, with doubleheaders under the arcs twice weekly at the Bowl d' Ashburnham, the league having an OASA affiliation for both senior "B" and itnermediate "A" playdowns.

Redmen Playing Eagles

Hockey fans will be out in force tonight as the OHA senior "B" group semi-finals commence at 8.30 in Civic Arena betwixt the Belleville Redmen and the Eagles. First of a best-of-five series, next one being Monday in Bella Villa and then back here Wednesday. Goalie Irvine is ready to resume net-minding chores for Wally Bent's boys, and the Magee men may find the Quinte speedsters a tough nut to crack now that it's money time. That first win is a big one in a short sawoff series, so both sides will give it all they have, and a rousing struggle is assured.

* * * * * * *

Elsewhere tonight appears the scoring marks of the Eagles for their 34 scheduled senior "B" games. While some of the boys fattened averages at the expense of the weaker group clubs, others banged 'em in against all and sundry—and regular fans know the real scrappers. Bill Crowley deservedly took top honors with his best season to date—previously trailing Bob Greenlaw and Joe Rochetta — with a grade total of 67 points in just 29 games, or two and a third points every game. He scored 43 and had 24 assists in a swell showing all through. Joe Rochetta was close behind with 65 in a dandy effort, too, while Andy Milne proved a big help with 60. Bert Hill's injury held him down some, and Keith Montgomery — mostly on defence — rates a mention with 32 points in 31 games. Parnall and Godfrey were side-lined the last part of the season with serious injuries.

They Seek Vengeance, Eh?

Vowing vengeance for being humiliated in overtime Tuesday before a big home crowd, the Lindsay Kinsmen are coming here tomorrow night to tackle Bun Kingdon's classy Oddfellows. Fourth of their best-of-five OHA junior "B" group semi-finals, the IOOF-ers leading the series two to one now. They could oust the scrappy Kin right here Saturday, and they will if hustle means anything. But a local loss could be right serious, since the final game would then be staged on Scugog ice. They've reeled off some rip-snorting scraps right along, and this one will be no exception. For sustained action and excitement, folks, drop in and see a junior puck playoff. You won't be sorry.

* * * * * * *

Three Peterborough minor puck clubs came through with victories on home ice last night. Johnny Godfrey's juvenile Oddfellows finished strong to earn a 9-8 decision over Belleville, and the return Saturday might be a pretty close fit between these well-matched squads. The midget Marines (handled by Al Watkins and Eddie Woodcock) smeared Kingston 14-0 to sweep their series 23-4 and step into provincial semi-finals. McGillis Eaglets—under tutoring of Jack Byers and Don Floyd — won 5-2 against the Belleville bantams, and hope to lengthen that lead in Bella Villa on the morrow. Both our bantams and juves are also shooting for Ontario semi-finals now.

Crowley leads Eagles With 67 Points

Counting a grand total of 67 points in 29 OHA senior "B" scheduled games for the Eagles this season, speedy Bill Crowley led the club in scoring. The winger got 43 goals and 24 assists for an average of two and a third points a game. His mark would most likely have been higher had he played in all 34 games for the team, but none of the Eagles took part in every game this season—injuries frequently interfering. This was the first time Crowley had led the league, though he has always been up with the leaders since starting to play here after his discharge from the navy.

Line-mate Joe Rochetta was runner-up to Bill with 65 points in a swell showing, too, on 30 goals and 35 assists. Andy Milne came on fast in the last half of the schedule to finish with a nifty mark of 60 points. Bert Hill with 44 and Dootch Vitarelli with 39 lost games due to injuries. Fred Mortimer got 36 and Keith Montgomery—used mostly on defence—clicked for 32 points in 31 games. The complete list:

SCORING CHAMP — Fast-skating Bill Crowley took over the scoring championship of the OHA senior "B" Eagles this year with a fine showing of 67 points in 29 scheduled games. He scored 43 goals from his left-wing position and aided on 24 more.

Oshawa Bees Dump Belleville Rockets

BELLEVILLE, March 2—Belleville Rockets bowed out of the OHA junior "B" playdowns hunt Wednesday night when they dropped a 3-1 verdict to Oshawa Bees in the third game in their best-of-five group semi-final here. The Bees swept the series in three straight and will meet the winners of the Lindsay v. Peterborough series for the group championship.

Jed Wilson claimed two of Oshawa's three goals while Ted Degray got the odd one. Ray Carey was the lone Rocket marksman.

As far as territorial play was concerned, the locals held quite a margin. However, erratic shooting plus a stout Oshawa defence made the difference.

Y Knots Too Strong

Vern Butcher's 22-point scoring thrust was enough to down the Golden Gaels Thursday night at the YMCA but the Y-Knots rolled on for a 60-19 win. Ted Curtis dropped in eight baskets and one foul shot for 17 points while all Butcher's points were on field baskets. C. Batchelor dropped in 11 points for the Y-Knots. Feeley and O'Neill each scored six for the Gaels.

Local Minors Take Three In The OMHA Playdowns

Ontario minor hockey playoffs last night at Civic Arena found all three local teams in fine form to sweep the set, before a nice crowd. Johnny Godfrey's juvenile adition of the flying Oddfellows came from behind late in their game to subdue Belleville 9-8 in the first of their two-game set, goals to count series, while McGillis Eaglets coached by Jack Byers, trimmed their Quinte bantam rivals by 5-2 in a thriller. The reurn fixtures are in Belleville Saturday.

Al Watkins' Outboard Marine midgets trounced Kingston 14-0 to eliminate the latter 23-4 on the round and advance further in their class.

Belleville bantams opened the scoring early in the second frame after a hectic but scoreless first period when Hagerman combined neatly with Bob Hull to beat Curtis, but McGillis Eaglets tore back and tied it as Dan Sutherland took Fred Rusaw's pass to fool Kingston. Hull put his team one up on a fine solo effort but that was all. Bill Forrestal and Gerald Garvey clicked on two sparkling tallies late in the frame assisted by Bill Mahoney. Gerry Buckley and Richard Brown to give Eaglets a lead they never relinquished. To ensure victory, Peter Heffernan, who played a fine game, potted two more in the third, one from Benny Floyd, with Belleville scoreless. Every Eaglet played well.

Swept Series

Marine Midgets lived up to promise, playing in the form expected of this fine team brought along so well during the last three years by coaches Eddie Woodcock and popular Al (Snowball) Watkins. Last night's game was never in doubt from the opening whistle as led by Jerry Frizzelle, Jim McGrath, Gary Kearns, Bud McDougall, Jack Corbett and Gerry Strickland and with the entire crew working hard throughout, the colorful squad outplayed their rivals and made life miserable for Joe Downey. McDougall led the point getters with five assists while Frizzelle scored four markers to lead there. McGrath performed the hat trick with three fine tallies while Ball, Kearns and Strickland each potted the disc twice. Strickland had one and one while Brian Turner assisted twice and Frank McGillen and Bob Gardner had one apiece. Every boy gave his best.

Oddfellow juves scored six tallies in the third frame of their exciting finale with a battling Belleville crew to eke out a 9-8 decision but it was the impressive manner in which the Godfrey boys came back from a three goal deficit that excited the fans. It was by far the most thrilling battle as both teams gave their all in a ding-dong struggle from start to finish. Goal scoring honors were well distributed as Paul Doris, Ray Pammett, Leo Sullivan, Spin Hope, Clare Ferguson, Laverne Jones, Mike Gooley and Ab Caravaggie each scored a biscuit, while assists were registered by Marv. Buchan, Caravaggie, Hope, Doris, Ferguson and Sullivan. Every man played well with Jones outstanding both ways and Doris, Caravaggie, Ferguson, Hope, Cupoli, Pammett and Sullivan good up front, closely followed by their mates. The Belleville crew, too, shone with Barclay fine in goal.

Windsor Goalie Stops 44 Shots But Guelph Wins

GUELPH, March 2 (CP) — Spitfires' goalie Glen Hall stopped 44 shots Thursday night but Guelph Biltmores fired three past him to beat Windsor 3-2 in an OHA junior A clash. Haters' netminder Cliff Hicks stopped 26.

The decisive marker came when Ken Laufman scored in the last minute of an overtime period with Hall prostrate on the ice.

The loss left Windsor in a three-way tie for first place with Barrie Flyers and Toronto Marlboros.

Laufman and Andy Bathgate with two registered for the locals, Earl Johnson and Eddy Joss connecting for Spitfires.

Omemee Team Ousts Cannington By 10 to 2

OMEMEE, March 2 (ENS) — The ORHA Omemee-Cannington game in Lindsay was a 10-2 victory for Omemee. Cannington had three replacements for sick men and Omemee borrowed Bruce Mitchell of Brooklin to replace Fisher, who is ill.

In the first few minutes of play Omemee clipped in three goals and another a few minutes later. It appeared like Omemee had just caught them napping when Cannington came back with two in a row and held them to the end of the period. It could have been anybody's game then. But that was the end of Canningon's drive though they played good hockey. The Hawks scored three in each of the remaining periods.

Cannington goals were R. Nicholson from O. Nicholson and McKinnon from Hicks. For Omemee Parker had two goals and four assists, R. Crawford and Jamieson each two goals and two assists, O. Crawford two and one, H. Fox a goal and T. Parsons and Deyell each an assist. Mitchell did an admirable job in goal stopping the puck standing, sitting and lying.

Omemee: Goal, Mitchell; defence, T. Parsons and D. Crawford; centre, Parker; wings, D. Fox and O. Crawford; alternates, F. Parsons, R. Crawford, Armstrong, Deyell, H. Fox, Jamieson.

Cannington: Goal, J. Piper; defence; C. Arnold and S. Lunney; centre, I. Clarke; wings, E. Arksey and R. Nicholson; alternates, McKinnon, O. Nicholson, J. Argue, C. McFadden, McTaggart, S. Hicks, Ashspy, Ken Shier.

Habs Beat Toronto Jinx Upset Maple Leafs 3-1

By MEL SUFRIN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

A 3½-month-long famine ended Thursday night for Montreal Canadiens, to the delight of 14,438 partisan National Hockey League fans.

Ever since the middle of last November, Canadiens have been trying to beat Toronto Maple Leafs. They came close often enough but it wasn't until Thursday night that they succeeded, turning back the Leafs 3-1 at Montreal Forum.

The victory was notable from several points of view. It kept the Canadiens in the fight for one of the four playoff spots. It put the brakes, at least temporarily, on Toronto's attempts to overhaul the league-leading Detroit Red Wings. And it marked one of those rare occasions when Maurice (Rocket) Richard has been able to score against the Leafs this season.

Montreal needed the victory badly, particularly in view of the fact that New York Rangers were pulling into a third-place tie with Boston Bruins by defeating the cellar-dwelling Chicago Black Hawks 4-1 in Chicago.

Interesting Race

Canadiens are two points behind Boston and New York, a situation which promises an interesting race to the deadline for those playoff positions.

Paul Meger sent Canadiens into the lead early in the first period when he combined with Doug Harvey and Billy Reay to beat Al Rollins, Leaf rookie goaltender in the nets despite rumors that veteran Turk Broda was to take over.

Bert Olmstead set up Richard for his 37th goal of the season toward the end of the first period. It was the first time this season that Richard had been able to beat Rollins.

Elmer Lach made it 3-0 for Montreal at 5:06 of the second period before Joe Klukay got Toronto's only goal on a play with Max Bentley and Flem Mackell. Leafs put on a sustained drive in the third period but despite a two-man advantage at one point they couldn't beat Gerry McNeil.

Usual Story

In Chicago, it was the usual story. The crowd was small and the last-place Black Hawks gave the Rangers little trouble. There were only 5,916 fans in the big Chicago stadium.

Zellio Toppazzini, right-winger from Copper Cliff, Ont., scored two goals for Rangers.

Ed Slowinski and Allan Stanley were the other New York goal-getters. Goalie Chuck Rayner had a shutout until 11:09 of the third period when Bep Guidolin scored with the hel pof Don Morrison and Ernie Dickens.

Chicago goalie Harry Lumley had a busy time, making 41 saves to 23 for Rayner.

Drama Festival Has Final Play

By STEWART NEBBS

MONTREAL, March 2—(CP)—Final full-length play in the Western Quebec Regional Drama Festival — Le Trait D'Union's presentation of Moliere's "Le Misanthrope"—was taged Thursday night.

British adjudicator Robert G. Newton said that the recently-formed French-language theatrical group made a "magnificent effort" in what "possibly was Moliere's most difficult piece."

Mr. Newton, judging the five-day festival, said the decor was "magnificent" and the company turned in a "magnificent" performance. But Mr. Newton found that interpretation was "a trifle too monontonous at times." He would have liked a "little more variety."

Henri Norbert, who came to Canada from France 19 months ago, played the title role of Alceste. The part of the girl, Celimene, was portrayed by Monique Lepage.

Although both major roles were difficult ones, Mr. Newton said Mr. Norbert displayed "style" and he had a "strong, flexible voice with variety from beginning to end."

Miss Lepage performed well but was inclined to display a coquettishness that was "somewhat forced."

Opposition Members Rap Government's Bill On Emergency Powers

OTTAWA, March 2. (CP)—The Progressive Conservative Opposition hammered Thursday at the Government's Emergency Powers Bill, contending that Parliament was being asked to surrender authority to the Cabinet. In a running Commons battle that occupied the entire sitting, the Legislation moved slowly through clause-by-clause study and finally bogged down on a section giving Parliament the right to annul any emergency controls.

Prime Minister St. Laurent promised that if any private member had difficulty proceeding with an annulment motion under the legislation, he personally would make it a Government motion to ensure that it received attention.

The section would allow private members to seek annulment of any control order issued under the Act.

The bill gives the government wide powers to take almost any action to ensure the building up of the country's defence in the existing international emergency. It also could introduce price controls and other restrictions to stabilize the country's economic life.

Want Authority Defined

Progressive Conservative members, led by Opposition Leader Drew, argued that the government should indicate precisely what powers it intended to exercise; that the authority it was being given was too all-embracing.

Mr. Drew said the legislation contained "wide open, undefined" powers which would leave parliament unable even to guess what the government had in mind.

Mr. St. Laurent said he could not foresee the government taking any major step without the consent of parliament. The government had nothing in mind now which could be disclosed as something that would be done. But it had to have the power to act quickly if the need arose.

Progressive Conservative members moved several amendments to modify the bill's terms, one of which was accepted and another, defeated by a standing vote. Others were left for later consideration.

Budget Time Uncertain

At the House opening, Finance Minister Abbott said he could not yet indicate whether he will be able to bring the budget down before Easter. The Chamber is due to adjourn March 21 for a 12-day Easter recess.

The Senate heard 55-year-old Senator Paul Bouffard (L-Quebec) support suggestions that some of the Upper Chamber's 102 members be appointed by the provinces as a method of broadening its scope. At present, senators are appointed by the Federal government for lifetime terms.

As the Commons control debate moved to a close, Mr. St. Laurent said the government would be happy if it could say just what control powers would be needed during the present emergency. But it would be "very presumptuous" for any one to try to predict the future course of the world.

Need Certain Powers

Mr. Drew agreed that the government should have certain emergency powers, but said they should be properly defined. The present Bill was too closely akin to the all-embracing War Measures Act. It was "the same animal with a couple of hairs clipped off the tail."

During the sitting the House adopted the first government Bill of this session which opened January 30.

Third reading was given to a Bill extending the Farm Loans Improvement Act for three years to March 1, 1954. The measure now goes to the Senate.

Under the legislation farmers can obtain loans for new agricultural implements, machinery, equipment, livestock or anything else considered necessary for the improvement of a larm or living conditions on it.

The Federal Government guarantees 10 per cent of the total loans under the Act, originally passed in 1944.

Increases for civil servants retroactive to December 1 may be paid before the end of this month, Finance Minister Abbott indicated.

The increases were announced last December, but the government was unable to pay them immediately because the additional money had not been voted by Parliament.

Ontario Plans Aid Immigrants

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP) — Provincial aid to immigrants, who meet unemployment and financial difficulties, during their first year of residence in Ontario will be forthcoming, Welfare Minister Goodfellow said Thursday.

He assured municipalities that new Canadians with less than one year's residence in the province would not become a charge on a municipality even though relief assistance was extended them.

Welfare Minister W. A. Goodfellow introduced a bill in the Ontario Legislature to amend the Unemployment Relief Act which would permit the government to pay 100 per cent of any necessary public assistance extended to immigrants before the one year's residence in a municipality had been established.

He said that a number of immigrants faced unemployment problems in some areas and with their financial resources exhausted were ineligible to receive relief where residence in a municipality did not come up to the one year requirements. The amendment would see the province bearing these costs, he said.

OTTAWA, March 2 (CP) — Rupert D. Underground Wiring In PUC Plans

Start In Two Years Matthews Tells Planning Committee

Transfer of power lines from poles to conduits underground is in the planning of Utilities Commission, but not as a definite undertaking until two years hence, Gordon S. Matthews informed James Dutton and James Hamilton of the city planning committee Thursday afternoon.

And when that project is begun it will likely be in the centre of the city rather than in some section of its fringe. It will then be dictated by the power load in the down town circuit supplying stores and other places of business, R. L. Dobbin, Utilities manager, explained.

The planning committee deputation of two former associates in the city council arrived at the Utilities board room almost in step and with full understanding and sympathy with Mayor Swanston and Ald. T. D. Miller, finance chairman.

For Mr. Hamilton and Mr. Dutton it was a mission of reminding the Utilities of the ideal of civic refinement in ridding the community eventually of disfiguring pole lines.

Renewed Suggestion

Chairman of the planning committee, Mr. Dutton renewed the suggestion that consideration be given by the Utilities body to placing wires underground "especially in new areas of the city" where poles are being erected for the first time.

"I cannot ever remember seeing overhead wires in the Old Country," Mr. Dutton said. "I know that work would be fairly costly in these days. I think it was about £1,600 a mile in the Old Country, and perhaps that would now have to be multiplied by five."

Mr. Dutton mentioned that the neighboring town of Cobourg was sinking the wires for a new street lighting system, and serious consideration was being given in British Columbia to the underground system. Planning committee felt that in the new work of the Utilities something might be begun, even on a small scale, as an experiment.

If the commission had to give priority to the centre of the city, "I think we would say amen to that," Mr. Dutton remarked.

Relay Sidewalks

Mayor Swanston said that if the commission was thinking of placing wires under downtown sidewalks, it was only a matter of time until council itself would have to think of relaying most of the old concrete sidewalks.

Reference to the example of Bell Telephone Company in conduit work during recent years, prompted Mr. Dobbin to point to that company's recent "stringing their wires on our poles."

Mr. Dobbin estimated the conduit system at five times the overhead. Conduits for power lines had to be of heavy concrete and also had to be laid below the frost depth. He said the Hydro Electric Power Commission was studying this question, and intended to put in a conduit sample some place. Lindsay began burying their electric wires, but ran out of money "and had to quit."

Mr. Hamilton spoke briefly in supporting the planning committee's idea within the bounds of costs.

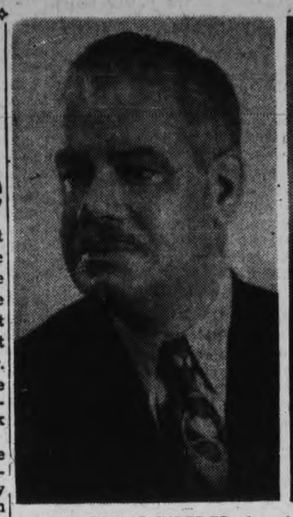
At one point Mr. Dobbin said this project was in the minds of the Commission as something that would have to be done in the next five years.

At that rate, Mr. Dutton commented, "some of us might not be alive to see it."

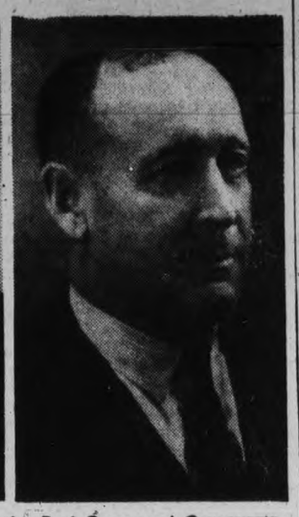
Hardware Store Entered, 3,500 Shells Gone

Thieves broke into the Hubert Chown hardware store on George St. Thursday night and stole about 3,500 rounds of .22 calibre ammunition amouting to about $56, some fishing reels and about $8 in silver from the cash register.

More merchandise may be missing, but it will not be discovered until a thorough check of the stock is made.



The thieves gained entrance through the Peterborough Printing building next door. They cracked open the rear door on Chamber St. and then walked upstairs and jimmied open a fire door between the two buildings.



Forced Door

They then walked down a narrow stairway to the back of the hardware store. One of them, bracing his back against the walls, forced open a door into the store proper with his feet. He tore the door jam partly away from the wall doing it.

The thieves then walked in and helped themselves.

Just about two weeks ago on Feb. 15 thieves broke into the Firestone store on Charlotte St. and took sporting equipment valued at about $959. In the loot were two .22 calibre rifles and some fishing rods and reels. Police believe the same men may be responsible for both breakins.

City Council Fails To Get Aid Needed From Utilities

"There we go again," said G. S. Matthews, looking at Fred Hills and George A. Macdonald, first one and then the other. "Softies," Mr. Macdonald remarked. Mr. Hills paused a moment: "Oh well," he said. It sounded in the spirit of "probably we'll get by all right."

Utilities Commission had just reduced from $40,000 to $36,500 its charge to the city council for the fire protection represented by the hydrant service, after hearing the appeal of Mayor Swanston and Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman of the finance committee.

"It's about half of what we need," was the comment of Ald. Miller, grateful but also with a note of disappointment. At that stage of the fixing up the 1951 budget and the tax rate, the finance chairman was grasping at straws.

All that he was looking for was one-fifth of a mill. That's how tough the world of municipal financing looked to him Thursday.

Need Fifth of a Mill

To compress the tax rate from 55.7 to 55.5 mills, that was the quest of the council's deputation of two.

Do you know what one-fifth of a mill is? It is 20 cents on each $1,000 of your property assessment.

Reduced to $33,000

Utilities Commission charged the city $35,000 last year, in a preliminary requisition, but subsequently reduced it to $33,000.

This year they sent in a bill for $40,000 with a statement of new hydrants and that sort of thing. It was published at the time.

"What this Commission has been fighting is to keep our water rates down," Mr. Matthews said. "The council thinks of the tax rate, but we have to think of the water rates, and we don't want to have to put them up."

Charge Up 122 Per Cent

"The water rates have increased 25 per cent from 1946 to 1951, but your charge to the city is up 122 per cent from $18,000 to $40,000?" Ald. Miller asked.

"I'd say that is a good question" Mr. Matthews said. He supplied part of the answer, and turned the rest over to Ross L. Dobbin, Utilities manager.

It had a familiar sound; wages are up about 100 per cent; extensions of mains, many connections, cost of the big trunk main, and so on.

Ald. Miller had apparently been delving into fire service matters last year so minutely that he quoted 20 hours as the total time of actual hydrant use. But, after all they are a standby service. Mr. Matthews said the Commission did not charge the city for water as in the flushing of streets, flooding of rinks and otherwise.

Loss of $6,500

Besides, the council was looking for some concession in the water account, and as published recently the financial statement showed an operating loss in the waterworks department of $6,500 last year.

Mr. Dobbin: "And it might be more this year."

In the council's financing, "we haven't come to the toughest year yet," said Mayor Swanston. But that was looking over the horizon to some unspecified year, but more or less near.

Ald. Miller and Mayor Swanston said the council had cut its estimates "to the bone."

"A reduction of $2,000 in your demand would not affect the tax rate," Ald. Miller said with the persistence of a man in dire straits. "That is just one-quarter of what we are trying to get."

"There must be other spots where you can get the rest," said Mr. Matthews.

Council's delegates said they could not think of another place of further trimming.

Both Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Hills said they would like help in keeping down the tax rate. "If we reduce our charge to $35,000, it will be just throwing the difference over until next year," Mr. Hills said.

"It is not hard to build up a good case on costs as they are today," Ald. Miller remarked.

"Can't you set it at $35,000?" Ald. Miller pressed. Further on he suggested "we would be agreeable to repaying you $5,000 at the end of the year if we have a surplus. . ."

"We have been suggesting a $2,000 cut to $38,000," Mr. Matthews said. And after a pause: "Say we split the difference?"

Mr. Macdonald and Mr. Hills agreed, and that was the decision.

"It's about half what we need," Mayor Swanston commented.

Court Awards $14,915.35 In Damages

Toronto Man Found 100% Negligent In Lillico Accident

Ivan T. Lillico, proprietor of Lillico Motors, Thursday night was awarded $14,915.35 plus costs by Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson at the Peterborough assizes. The action arose out of a collision last March 15 between Lillico and James G. Fogg, Toronto maintenance man, at Bloor and Sherbourne Sts.

After deliberating an hour and 40 minutes a jury found Fogg 100 per cent negligent and assessed damages at $14,915.35.

Lillico testified that as a result of the accident he has a permanent disability. He can only raise his left arm sideways 60 of 90 degrees, and he can only rotate his arm, in a horizontal direction, 20 of a normal 50 degrees.

Dr. J. E. Howse testified that he was unlikely "to fully recover."

Early In Morning

The accident occurred 1.30 a.m. in the northwest intersection of Bloor and Sherbourne Sts.

Lillico said he was driving south on Sherbourne St., crossed the bridge 40 feet north of the intersection and noticed the traffic light was green. He slowed to 15 miles an hour and glanced to his right as he started through the intersection, keeping his eye on an eastbound street car stopped for the traffic light.

The next thing he knew there was "a flash of blinding lights" immediately beside him, and his car was struck midway along the left side by Fogg's car.

He asked for damages that would compensate him for car repairs valued at $1,018.86, out-of-pocket expenses totalling $1,328.21, and an unstated amount for personal injuries including a permanent disability and pain and suffering.

He was 12 weeks in a Wellesley hospital with a broken left shoulder blade, a broken rib, and he was bruised all along the left side of his body.

A claim was also made for loss of business.

Admitted Error

Fogg, a 37-year-old maintenance man, admitted he went through a red light and hit Lillico. He said he was driving west along Bloor. He saw the light turn red and he applied his brakes to stop, but the car skidded on the slushy pavement and crossed into the northwest corner of the intersection where it struck the Lillico vehicle.

Hugh Ross, a Toronto constable said the Fogg car was travelling 30 miles an hour and went through a red light. James Johnston, a TTC motorman, corroborated this evidence. He said Fogg was going "too fast."

In the original suit brought by Lillico, Shirriff's Ltd. was co-defendant. Fogg's car was registered in their name. However William G. Clark, Shirriff salesman, said the vehicle was his as he was buying on conditional sale.

For the purposes of the Highway Traffic Act a person buying under a conditional sale is considered the owner, so the action against the company was dismissed.

Fogg has no insurance.

The jury found Fogg negligent on three counts: going through a red light, driving with excessive speed considering the shape of the roads, and failing to keep a proper lookout.

F. G. Gardiner, KC, Toronto, was solicitor for Lillico, assisted by W. B. Gordon. D. J. Walker, KC, Toronto, represented Shirriff's Ltd. while they were a party to the action, and T. J. Carley, KC, was solicitor for Fogg.

Name Marshall Park Is Out Cedar Lakes Memorial Park

The suggestion to name the Cedar Lakes recreational park, Marshall Park, in memory of the unstinting efforts of the late Fredrick C. Marshall, was ruled out at the Thursday meeting of the provisional board of Kawartha Recreation Incorporated. It was decided on a motion of Reeve Norman Wilson (Burleigh - Anstruther), seconded by John Madden, that the project be called Cedar Lakes Memorial Park.

Members at the meeting observed a minute of silence in memory of their late fellow director, Mr. Marshall. Manager of the Chamber of Commerce, James Fraser, presided.

Various suggestions were discussed which are to be ratified at a later date by the full membership of the board. The project, it was pointed out, is not to be a tourist park; there is to be no camping or parking of trailers.

It is a community recreation centre of 500 acres set aside and run by city, village and county people of Peterborough. Twenty-six service organizations and societies will participate.

Provisional director Alex Sinclair, city recreation commissioner, gave members valuable information on similar projects now operating in the West.

Build 12 Fireplaces

Employing local labor whenever possible, it was suggested that 12 fireplaces should be placed throughout the park. There would be toilet facilities at both Big and Little Cedar Lakes, a seasonal concessionaire appointed to run a concession building where small purchases could be made and who would also supervise dressing rooms and locker arrangements.

To preserve the forest it was proposed that firewood be made available from the concessionaire at a nominal sum. This, they thought, would be necessary for fire prevention.

Hours that the park would be open to the public would be limited but advance arrangement by private picnic groups would assure park facilities being open when the occasion demanded. The supervision of bathing beaches was also discussed.

The most important item of all was the discussion of financing. It was the hope of members present that during the next two or three weeks, tentative plans would be drawn up to enable them to ascertain what costs would be. These would then be presented to the service clubs for their approval and suggestions for raising funds.

$40,700 Needed To Finance Public Library

The Public Library will require $40,700 from the city, it was decided at a meeting of the Library Board Thursday night. A request for this will be placed before a meeting of the finance committee of the city council tonight.

The 1951 amount is an increase of $3,200 over 1950 and represents a per capita assessment of $1.12.

A breakdown of the 1951 estimated expenditures of $50,000 reveal salaries of $28,400—an increase of $2,830 over 1950.

Salary Increases

This included the salary of a full time graduate librarian specialist in boys' and girls' work to be employed July 1. Eight members of the present staff are also to receive a $400 increase.

The amount budgeted for purchase of books is to remain the same as last year—$9,000. A total of $200 has been budgeted for records as compared to $100 in 1950.

There is an increase of $660 in the estimates for the branch library to bring this estimate to $4.575.

Three separate telephone lines will be installed. One of these will be for the Boys' and Girls' Department, one for the main desk and one for Librarian's office and the Film Council. This added expense brought the 1951 telephone estimate up to $300, or an increase of $150.

Asks 2 Years Sentenced To 15 Months

Rather Serve Term In Penitentiary Than Reformatory

William Ross Gallagher, Brockville, asked for a two-year sentence but he was given only 15 months in reformatory by Magistrate W. R. Philp K.C., in police court today.

Gallagher is already under sentence of 18 months given him by Magistrate R. B. Baxter of Port Hope for breaking, entering and theft from a Port Hope store. The sentence given today is to run concurrently with the 18 month term.

Earlier this week, Gallagher pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing a car owned by Michael Caravaggie from the Davis garage on Charlotte St. Feb. 3.

Charge Withdrawn

Another charge of theft of the car against Gallagher's companion Allan J. Durante, Brockville, was withdrawn. Gallagher told police that he had picked up Durante and a companion Gladys Lang as they were hitch-hiking between Ottawa and Peterborough.

When Gallagher asked for a two year sentence, the magistrate asked him why. Gallagher said he wanted to go to Kingston to be near his father who lived in Brockville. It would then be possible for his father to visit him frequently. Gallagher said his father was getting old and he wanted to be near in case anything happened to him.

Served in Reformatory

Sentences up to two years are served in one of Ontario's reformatories in Guelph or Burwash or one of the jail farms such as in Mimico. Sentences of two years and over are served in Kingston penitentiary.

Gallagher has a record of nine convictions, eight for theft, dating back to 1942. He was convicted twice while in the army in England. The longest term he has served was a 12 month definite and one month indefinite sentence in 1950.

He has probably been out of reformatory only a few weeks, since serving his latest sentence.

County Farm Notes

By HARRY THEOBALD

Frank C. Paterson Urges Use of Peterborough County Soil Map . . . First Rally of County Forums a Big Success . . . But, Only 25 at Hog Producers' Meeting . . . Maple Cattle Breeders Meeting Here Tuesday, March 6.

Anything written about the Peterborough county soil map that gets scant notice on the wall of Frank C. Paterson's office is almost bound to be dry as dust.

"It has been there since 1938," Mr. Paterson remarked to the Examiner. "It was prepared by soil experts, and it is accurate, but it doesn't receive the attention its practical importance deserves. This map which is an index of our soil types is not entirely neglected. We have had several farmers within the last weeks call to discuss it, and many others have seen it during the years, but it is still a fact that most farmers don't talk about soil types as they should. Nor do they rate their land according to the classification on the soil map."

Mr. Paterson said soil should get first attention because it was the basis of agricultural economy.

"Farmers are well versed in types of livestock, but it might be more important if they knew as much about the types of soil. They should be aware of the differences between Otonabee loam, Farmington loam, Brookston clay and so on. There are many types of soil.

"Otonabee loam designates a great deal of the good land of our county. This top soil ranges in depth around 14 or 15 inches. Its subsoil which is known as the parent material is high in calcium. It is a stony material without humus.

Most of the Otonabee loam in this area is eroded, and there is little of it in the original depth. Much of it is down to seven or eight inches. In some places there is none. This type of soil is usually well drained. The fact that it is high in lime is generally appreciated by our farmers.

A lot of the land in western Ontario is deeper in its top soil and probably more fertile. It extends easterly through Ontario county and into sections of Durham. However, Otonabee loam, with good farming practice is particularly suitable to the growth of fall wheat, alfalfa and clover, and these are valuable crops. But, for example, it is not suitable for potatoes."

Mr. Paterson stressed one point, —that soil maps are accurate. They are essential to specialists in farming.

"Men who are going to grow flue-cured tobacco or set up orchards look for special soils, and you will find in most cases that they first consult some soil map or other. The tobacco people look for Fox coarse sand or Miami loam, and the soil map is a guide to them in their quest.

I am hoping all the time that more of our farmers will take the same advantage of the Peterborough county soil map. It would certainly help the odd man who should follow the indication of the map rather than copy some practice of his neighbor without looking into the adaptability of his own land."

Mr. Paterson said he would be glad to talk soil matters at any available time, and with special reference to the facts of the soil map.

MAPLE BREEDERS' MEETING

Annual meeting of the local division of Maple Cattle Breeders' Association at the YMCA Tuesday, March 6th, is of importance to some 250 breeders in this area. It is called for 1.30 p.m. The membership has been steadily increasing, and it is expected that a large percentage of these district breeders will be present to hear reports from the parent association.

JUNIORS PRODUCE WEALTH

Manitoba's 79 beef calf clubs carried on a $200,000 business in 1950. As compared with the previous year, 87 fewer calves were sold, but the total revenue showed an increase of $15,000. Average weight was 820 lbs. and average selling price $30.55 per cwt. This works out to approximately $249 for each calf. That is an increase of $48 per head over 1949.

The 833 club members who completed the project in 1950 marketed 534 calves grading A or B in Canada, and exported 174 to the United States.

"The 1950 beef calf club program began in an air of pessimism," according to Morley Douglas of Manitoba extension department.

"Some clubs discontinued the project and matters were maode worse with the late spring and consequent shortage of feed. However, the program turned out to be a decided success, and it now appears that 1951 will be another record year with nearly all the old clubs reorganized, and at least 15 new ones formed."

Saskatchewan had 118 junior grain clubs with 1,838 members, and produced 131,250 bushels of seed, comprising 51,280 bushels of wheat, 46,560 of barley, 32,250 of oats and 620 of flax."

Livestock clubs in that province numbered 201 with 3,114 members. They produced 3,000 baby beef calves, 3,000 chickens, 345 swine, and 80 dairy calves.

PRICE OF JUNIOR'S CALF

What's Junior going to do for a calf if he has to buy one for his club membership at something like $150 to $225?

Bob Bell's club leaders were asking that question the other day in some concern about the club prospects as organization approaches.

Youngsters on well stocked farms usually can pick a club calf from the herd. Some of them may like to shop around to see if they can find something better, but there might be a little cooling from the parental direction if Junior's joining the club starts with a cost of $175.

On the other hand the value of the calf isn't likely to shrink in the care of the young son or daughter. Any way, there is some enquiry about club calves, and Mr. Bell and his aides are hoping that farmers with some on hand will shave their prices in favor of enquiring club members.

Reporting for this planning session were: Reg. Ferguson, Alan Drummond, Everett McFarlane, Lorne Pimmett, Keith McIntyre and John Edmison.

Several other members, Ron Frankish and Irvine McIntosh, couldn't make the grade for this preliminary. There is a day's training meeting at Normal School March 30. Club leaders from the counties between Ontario and Lennox-Addington, inclusive, are expected here.

Mr. Bell would like to enlist two or three club leaders in the eastern part of the county. A week ago at Emily School No. 10 he had a promising forestry meeting. Boys and girls were keen about it. John Bell of the forestry department went along.

BIG FORUMS RALLY

"I could hardly believe it," was the comment of Wellington Sutton on the big attendance at Peterborough County's first rally of Farm Forums Monday night at the Normal School. Mr. Sutton is chairman of the Federation committee which has been sponsoring the organizing of Forums in this county.

Estimate of the assembly was around 175 to 200. Pine Grove Forum, north of Lakefield, and Donegal Forum in Asphodel were tied for largest membership present with 24 each.

"We have 14 Forums, and Northumberland 18," Mr. Sutton, presiding Monday night, remarked yesterday. "I was at the Northumberland rally at Warkworth Tuesday night, and our crowd was just about as large as theirs, and this was their second annual affair."

Comment of W. W. Dawson, president of the Federation, was: "We made Forum history Monday."

The program was mainly of social interest around the Forum review broadcast. Alex Sinclair, director of recreation in the city, conducted several quizes and games. Bruce Sargent led an opening sing-song period, and his three sons with Jim Elliott entertained in a series of orchestral numbers that were much enjoyed. Jack Sargent was at the piano, Carl Sargent violin, Don Sargent banjo, and Jim Elliott violin.

The program included several films, an hour of dancing, followed by refreshments. It was especially an occasion of Forum people meeting one another, and in every detail it was a fine success.

HOG PRODUCERS MEET

Increased production of hogs in Western Canada this year is likely to be reflected in volume next fall. Dr. H. R. Patterson, of the farm economics branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture, told Peterborough Swine Club members at their meeting Thursday afternoon at the YMCA.

"But, apart from that," he said, "the prospects are favorable for our pork moving to the United States at good prices."

Late summer frost reduced overnight a large part of the bumper wheat crop of 1950 to feed grades, Dr. Patterson recalled, "so we can expect a flood of hogs from the west next fall."

A result of that surge in the market may be some decline in prices during the period of western deliveries, from Oct. 1 to the end of November.

Removal of restrictions in trade in dressed pork between United States and Canada may tie our prices with those in the United States, Dr. Patterson said. However, the big U.S. corn crop of 1949 has nearly disappeared, and their hog population is likely to drop by next autumn.

The main part of Dr. Patterson's talk was a review of the Ontario hog survey for 1949-50 from statistics of production and costs obtained from county breeders who were selected by the government to obtain this information in the course of their practical work. Bruce Graham, of Asphodel, is the Peterborough producer keeping those records.

Elgin Senn, of Dominion Marketing Services, said the United States demand for Canadian pork offered an opportunity to get in the market for for breeding stock. The lean type of hog developed in this country appealed to American consumers. Producers south of the border were fast changing their type, even in the corn belt, to get away from the fat pigs they have been raising. It was also said the U.S. doesn't know what to do with all their lard.

"I suggest to our young men that there is money in the hog business," Mr. Senn said. "There are several things they should do. They should visit packing plants, and find out all they can about hog carcasses. They should cooperate with their agricultural representative, and they should be active in their hog producers association."

Melville Johnston was re-elected president of the Peterborough group and Bruce Graham secretary-treasurer.

Mr. Graham reported a treasury balance of $472. Twenty-five members attended.

F. C. Paterson expressed disappointment at the turnout as compared with 70 or more a year ago.

"I appreciate the evidence of interest by those who are here," Mr. Paterson said. "I suppose if prices were low, we'd have quite a lot out to protest, but when things aren't so bad, the attendance drops."

BOOKLET ON BLIGHTS

Mr. F. C. Paterson has on hand copies of a new booklet issued from OAC on bacterial diseases of plants, ranging from trees and shrubs to field crops, vegetables cereal and forage crops to flowers and ornamental plants.

CANADA'S QUALITY BACON

"Our better quality hogs can be processed so as to make super products for any market. This is our advantage, and we should hold to it tenaciously. We should set ourselves to maintain that quality regardless of all else."

That quotation from the January issue of the letter on Canadian livestock products, issued by the Industrial and Development Council of Canadian Meat Packers, agrees in advice with topics in the discussion at the Peterborough swine producers' meeting Thursday.

The Meat Packers expand their statement that "the extraordinary limitations on trading in pork products between this country and the United States has expired." It recalls that excepting the eight years, 1913-21, during which U.S. permitted free entry of meats, "mutual tariffs" between the two countries largely prohibited trading in hogs and pork products.

Canada sought a market in Britain for her surplus pork. Trade in Wiltshire sides was developed. It called for a lean hog. The kind of feed grains produced in Canada were favorable to the development of a distinct bacon hog type. . . The major bacon outlet has been the British market.

Effect of Populations

Meantime changes in population shifts have taken place. "Thirty years ago the United Kingdom had about 47,000,000 people. Now there are 50,000,000. Thirty years ago U.S. and Canada had 114,000,000 people. Now there are nearly 170,000,000. The weight of population has drastically changed, and this fact must surely have fundamental effects on market channels in future."

"At present the British market is being operated as a monopoly. Only one buyer is permitted to buy. A fixed price of 29 cents per pound for bacon delivered on board ship at Canadian seaboard has been offered by the British buyer for 130,000,000 pounds, but no contract has been entered into.

Home Market Expands

Meanwhile the Canadian domestic market is continuing, as it did in 1950, to take the bulk of the Canadian production, and U.S. markets are taking nearly all of such surplus as arises."

This article mentions the fact that U.S.-Canadian trade is restricted to dressed pork, and expects business to develop more or less in both directions.

"Fortunately," it concludes, "we have developed in Canada a very fine type of hog which is especially suited to produce products that are in high demand in the United Kingdom, in the United States and in other markets."

For those reasons it exhorts the Canadian swine producers to "maintain that quality regardless of all else."

THIS IRISH WOLFHOUND aggressively advances a friendship struck up with 4½-year-old Scott Leavers at the Kennel Club show this week in Kansas City. Standing 37 inches on all fours and weighing 140 pounds, the dog is Fairfingal of Ambleside, owned by Miss Helen Dalton, Wayzata, Minn.

1891 Tons Of Fertilizer On Local Farms Last Year

Use of fertilizer in Canadian farming has increased 500 per cent during the last five years.

According to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the 170,000 tons of 1927 had explanded to 764,000 tons in 1950.

The quantity of fertilizer used in Peterborough county last year was 1,891 tons as compared with 20,000 tons in Oxford and 37,000 tons in Kent.

These figures are not quoted as pertinent comparison because Peterborough's arable area is largely reduced by its proximity to the Pre-Cambrian shield, source of natural liming in this district.

Agriculture extends through all parts of Kent and Oxford, but in Peterborough it is virtually excluded from many of the townships by natural conditions.

Kent grows heavy cash crops of corn, tobacco and cannery vegetables. Its farmers have been accustomed to use of fertilizers for years, and there is also broadly advanced farming in Oxford.

W. L. Lavery of the fertilizer division of Canada Packers, Toronto, remarked to the Examiner: "Granting that big difference in agricultural components, I still believe that Peterborough county could use to its advantage ten times as much fertilizer, as they do."

"We are convinced that the market for fertilizer has scarcely been tapped. With this in mind we have taken steps recently to increase the capacity of our plants. We enlarged our Toronto plant substantially last year, and since then we have begun construction of another fertilizer plant in Chatham.

"We would not have that confidence in the future of the business if we were not certain that the use of fertilizer is sound practice."

Mr. Lavery said this expansion was to try to keep up with demand.

N. W. McConkey Sells Bull To Maple Cattle Breeders

Norman W. McConkey has sold to the Maple Cattle Breeders' Association the Holstein bull he bought last June from Clyde Hill Farms, Missouri, whose Black and White cattle are described by a high authority as comprising "one of the outstanding Holstein herds in the United States."

"I didn't buy this young animal with any intention of selling him," Mr. McConkey told the Examiner yesterday. "It is a rather interesting story how I got him for developing as sire of our Lifloc herd, but I just couldn't turn down the offer the Maple Association made for him. He stays at our place until April when he becomes a year old."

Born 10½ months ago, Clyde Hill Royal Elsie Lad was bred at Clyde Hill Farms, of Clyde, Mo., the property of the Benedictine Convent of Perpetual Adoration. Mr. McConkey said their herd holds the highest classification on selective registration of 86.7 points on 54 head of milking females. They hold the all time Herd Improvement Record average for herds of 31 to 50 cows in the United States.

This average for 39 head is: 590.4 pounds of butter fat, and 16,245 pounds of 3.6 per cent milk.

"This herd," said Mr. McConkey, "has won the progressive breeder award for eight consecutive years. The quality of those Holsteins is convincingly indicated in the background of the Clyde Farms herd."

"The Dream of Breeders"

Professor H. A. Herman of the Department of Dairy Husbandry at the University of Missouri School of Agriculture, who has taken a deep interest in Clyde Hill Farms, says: "This establishment is pretty largely what we would call a homebred herd, combining type, production, longevity and reproduction in a fashion that is the dream of most breeders.

"In fact very few herds accomplish the high level of success with respect to these four points that Clyde Hill has attained. The breeding program itself is very intriguing. It is a beautifully interwoven linebreeding program. The fact that so many of the cattle have lived and reproduced for a long time has made this possible.

"There are not many matings such as sire to daughter, etc., but there is a lot of first and second cousin matings, and also half-brother and half-sister matings.

"The interesting thing is that the herd seems to have those qualities so strongly bred into it that these close systems of breeding result in improvement or maintenance of this splendid type and production so characteristic in the ancestors.

"Finally, I think it is one of the most outstanding Holstein herds in the United States."

Read Fay Barney Story

"I first became interested in the Clyde Farms Holsteins," Mr. McConkey recalled, "by reading an article about them written by Fay Barney in the Holstein-Friesian World of May 1948, just after the big annual Holstein convention. From further enquiry I was struck by the fact that so many of those cattle were long-lived, a very important consideration to present day dairy men; also by their selective registration showing and their big production figures.

"It was also in my mind to bring in an outcross bloodline to our well known Rag Apple strain. The more I enquired and saw of the Clyde Farms cattle, the more they impressed me. For example at Clyde, which is a few miles northeast of St. Joseph, Mo., I saw seven sisters all by the sire "Rock River Hengerveld Al" that were each graded "Excellent;" each had more than 200,000 pounds of milk as life time record of production, at over fifteen years of age and they were all sound and breeding.

Calves are Optioned

"I found out that every calf born into the herd of those good families is optioned to breeders before birth. This calf Elsie Lad had been spoken for by a Texan breeder, but he hadn't come for it when I arrived there. So, it was the only available animal, and as I was their first prospective Canadian buyer they were quite plainly inclined to favor me, and that is how I came to buy it. I had no intention of buying for resale.

"I heard later that the Texan reached the Farms several days later, but Elsie Lad was by that time slated for Canada. So, that is how it is now destined for the Maple Association."

Necessity forced the Sisterhood at Clyde Hill into Holstein fame in the United States. Land in that section of Missouri is not the most fertile. Farmers grew corn and raised pigs and beef cattle. Supply of milk and butter from the neighborhood was somewhat irregular, so the nuns decided to buy a few cows for their own requirements of dairy products. That was in 1930, and the man they engaged to take care of them was a "natural" as herdsman. Clyde Farms Holsteins are actually the achievement of Joseph Gemmeke who has been manager nearly a quarter of a century.

It is related that if choice had been left to the nuns of Clyde Hill, the herd would never have come to public notice.

Neither do they compete in livestock shows. But, at the National Holstein exhibition there was a Clyde Farms display of five generations of "Excellent" cows.

Holstein breeders eventually beat a track to Clyde. As quoted from an account of that development: "Some outstanding Holstein men, after seeing the herd, urged the owners that they owed it to the breed to let others benefit by giving them an opportunity to learn more about the herd, and also to start to improve their own herds by getting foundation stock from bloodlines developed at Clyde Farms."

That is an outline of the background of "C. F. Royal Elsie Lad," with the following sketches of his paternity and immediate forbears.

From Zuba Family

The dam of C. H. Royal Elsie Lad is C. H. Marlene Queen Rock which was graded Very Good at two years, the highest rating attainable by a heifer of that age. Her production record at two years on 365 days milking was 12,879 lbs. milk and 525 lbs. butter fat, averaging 4.1 per cent.

At three years on 365 days, 14,004 lbs. milk and 573 lbs. butter fat, averaging 4.1 per cent.

The grandmother of Elsie Lad is C. H. Queen Fanny Tidy (Very Good): total production in seven lactations 142,130 lbs. of milk and 5,189 lbs. butter fat.

The great granddam is Fanny Zuba Rock River (Ex.), whose life time record was 215,476 lbs. of milk and 7,401 lbs. butter fat in twelve lactations.

And the dam of Fanny Zuba was Zuba Amorilla King De Kol, (Ex.) 225,232 lbs. milk and 7,317 lbs. of butter fat in twelve lactations.

Mr. McConkey said: "Zuba Amorilla is the only 'Excellent' cow of the Holstein breed on this continent with four 'Excellent' offsprings, and is believed to be the only one heading three generations of 'Excellents,' and two direct three-generations with more than 100,000 lbs. of milk production."

The sire of C. H. Royal Elsie Lad is from an 808-pound butter fat daughter of old Zuba. She was Elsie Zuba Rock River (Ex.), with a total lifetime production of 160,473 lbs. of milk and 5,805 lbs. b.f. in nine lactations.

Mr. McConkey said extension of the pedigree was just as impressive in production and longevity.

Indians Become Curling Fans In Saskatchewan

STANLEY, Sask. — (CP) — Indian fishermen and trappers of this lake shore community 160 miles northeast of Prince Albert are fast picking up the "sweep, draw, hogline" lingo of their rock-throwing white neighbors. Only the "stones" are somewhat unorthodox.

The settlement became curling conscious when uncertain winter weather virtually isolated it from civilization. The plan to have the Indians take up the Scottish sport was "skipped" by Leonard Coate, Saskatchewan trading post manager, and William Mattock, manager of the Hudson's Bay Co. post.

Providing rocks posed the first problem. Messrs. Coate and Mattock solved it by bringing into play large china jugs. Using them as molds, rocks were made from concrete and fitted with handles.

The Stanley Curling Club now has 12 21-pound rocks. The rink was laid out along the lake shore complete with painted hog lines and circles.

At the outset, trading post clerks made up most of the curling quartets but now the Indians, who at first had clustered along the shore wondering what the white man would think of next, are getting in and sweeping with the best of them.

The game has become so popular that rocks are thundering down the ice for most of the daylight hours. Plans are under way to string electric lights above the rink so the games may be continued into the night.

GIRL WITH A SWIRL is double amputee Lelia West, demonstrating her dancing ability in her studio. With two artificial legs, she is an expert dancer and also plays golf and tennis.

Legless Beauty Teaches Amputees To Dance, Walk

By RICHARD KLEINER

NEW YORK —(NEA)— Lelia West is a very lovely girl with rich blue eyes, a neat figure and a soft Tennessee drawl. And there was a time she wished she was dead.

"I don't like to talk about that time," she says. "It's as if I were talking about a different person. But——"

Lelia West was born with her legs crushed. They were so badly deformed that the soles of her feet were twisted around, and faced upward. Her legs were so short that when she was fully grown she stood just a few inches over four feet.

But she learned to walk, after a fashion. Of course, her childhood wasn't pleasant. Play with other children was out of the question. Doctors said they were sorry, but nothing could be done.

Went into Shell

She went into a shell. She found refuge in books, but not too much refuge. For years, she refused to look in a mirror—she didn't want to see what she knew it would show. She did all her shopping by mail. She wore only cut-down slacks, no dresses. She didn't have much to live for.

One day, when she was in California studying music, a child pointed to her in the street.

"Look, mother," said the child, "there's a midget!"

For Lelia West, that did it. She decided she had to do something, so that nobody could ever call her a midget again. At first, she desperately thought of strapping wooden blocks on the bottom of her pitiful legs. Then a nurse said she should have them amputated and get artificial ones.

Came to Life

She did. And the real Lelia West came to life. In the first glory of her new mobility, she enrolled in courses for dancing, walking, posture and everything she'd ever dreamed of doing.

It took her a long time to master the art of walking on two artificial limbs. She continually made adjustments and improvements in her legs, until she could do almost everything. She ran for busses, became a dancing teacher, played golf and tennis—and nobody could tell.

She held down different jobs, but gradually an idea formed. People who'd had artificial legs for years and could barely get around on them came to her for help. She taught them how to adjust the limbs and how to use them properly. She decided to make such work her career.

With the help of wealthy John Hay Whitney, she set up a 'studio workshop for balance and co-ordination." It's a small place. One room, the studio has a set of practice stairs, practice handrails for walking, and a special couch for practice sitting and rising. And there is a workshop where a limb-maker makes and adjusts artificial legs.

Helps Students Walk

Her clients are people from three to 70. She guides them to perfection in living on one or two artificial legs. Sometimes tightening a bolt, or bringing the leg closer to the stump, or some other simple adjustment will be of help. Occasionally, a new limb must be made.

Lelia West helps them to walk and run and dance. She counsels them on things like what shoes to buy, which is something she learned through experience. For women, it seems, pumps are too heavy. She herself bought 12 pairs of wrong shoes when she first got her legs.

Clothes, especially for female amputees, are a problem. Skirts have to be loose. The "new look" was a break for them, as the long skirts hid the mechanism around the knee. Men have no problems of this sort.

She says she's yet to meet an amputee client she couldn't help. She's a pretty good object lesson of her own ability.

Nostaglia For Old Days On Newspapers Hits Scott

By JACK SCOTT

Just got around to reading M. E. Nichols' "The Story of The Canadian Press," which I can't imagine interesting anybody but other newspapermen. Still the book hits some brief but memorable glimpses of newspaper folk in the early days—some pirates, some saints—and I sure like to read about them.

I'm particularly fascinated by the contrast between the newspaper offices of the old days and now. Nichols describes, for example, a visit in 1912 to L. D. Taylor, then publisher of the Vancouver World.

"A guide led me through dark passages," he writes, "doors opened and closed behind us to reveal a storage room or a clerk at work in narrow quarters. This elongated labyrinth ended in a poorly-lighted office." Here sat His Nibs.

Or consider the office of shrewd, poker-playing Walter Nichols, then publisher of the Province: "A large roll-top desk, littered with newspapers and all the sundries common to the desk of an editor of the 'eighties, left scant room for other furnishings. At the desk, on a swivel chair, his head all but buried in the disarranged accumulation of papers, sat Nichols . . ."

Picture Amusing

I find the picture amusing because if I lift my eyes now from my typewriter I can see a pretty good example of the modern newspaper office and there must be laughter up in that part of heaven where old newspapermen go when they die.

This office, which is fairly typical, is as neat and gay as a ladies' dress shoppe or a soda fountain. The walls are pastel in a charming shade of sea green. The offices are divided by glass partitions. Muted waltzes seep from chromium loudspeakers in the ceiling (cunningly stepped up to march tempo at deadline) and the whole place is fluorescent-lit.

The managing editor, himself, is in an office only slightly smaller than the rotunda of the CNR station and exquisitely done in natural wood. There is a bowl of roses on his desk and one or two papers neatly placed in the exact centre. Downstairs, the publisher makes his decisions (golf dates, etc.) in a chamber aptly suited for fashion shows. There isn't a decent roll-top desk in the joint.

The 'Files'

I suppose it's crazy to grieve for the good old days. There's no reason why a man can't do as good a job in a clean, well-lit room as he might in an airless cupboard. Still, I pine for the old tradition, for the days when it was assumed that the greater the newspaperman, the greater the disorder.

My father, who worked for, and worshipped, the late great John W. Dafoe on the Winnipeg Free Press, often reverently described for me Mr. Dafoe's roll-top desk in which, I understand, the historians are still excavating.

Pop, himself, toiled amid a formidable heap of refuse which still held maps of the First World War some 25 years after the Armistice. A slight breeze would have ruined what he vaguely called his "files." Fortunately no air ever penetrated his corner of the office.

A few such newspapermen and newspaper offices still exist. In our recent cross-Canada tour we saw several that were a delightful shambles, thigh-deep in crumpled copy paper, partitioned by old hunks of cardboard and containing desks the size of inverted apple boxes on which are piled the yellowing, dusty jetsom of the past.

This is, of course, exactly the way most newspapermen prefer to labor and the oldtimers, asked about something a decade or so in the past, can sink a shaft down into their records and pop up with the precise information, in a manner of seconds.

Can't Change Habits

No amount of glass bricks, knotty pine or Dave Rose waltzes can be expected to change the pattern of a life-time.

I think the gloomiest sight I ever saw was proof of this. We had gone in to look over the editorial floor of the Toronto Globe and Mail, a newspaper where the proprietor had gone berserk with progress. I beheld a large, gleaming room in the exact centre of which was a magnificent circular desk.

The men sitting around this desk were old newspaper guys. They looked as all desk men look, complete with cracked eyeshades, shiny blue pants, copy pencils behind the ear, shirt sleeves black with carbon paper. But as I moved closer I observed that they were staring sightless into space. They were broken men sent prematurely to the spotless Hell for newspapermen.

Men Change Too

It isn't only the newspaper offices that are changing, but the newspapermen themselves.

There are fewer of those delightful, traditional types, the carefree, poverty-stricken, casual, sardonic characters who strolled directly from their typewriters to the nearest bar to shoot craps or discuss the great stories of the past and the ancestry of editors.

The guild has changed all that. It has ruined everything that was colorful and individual in this business.

Now these fellows have nothing but a five-day week, overtime pay and a decent wage. Since they leave work in the brightness of the early afternoon there's a depressing incentive to go home and do some gardening. Should a group happen to gather in some milk-shake bar or tea room they discuss Guild contracts or the scores in the newspaper bowling league.

I haven't seen an after-deadline crap game in years.

Pay $25,000 Fine

CHICAGO, March 2— (AP)— The Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen paid a $25,000 fine Thursday for its three-day "sick call" strike in December. Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe assessed the fine last month after finding the union guilty of contempt for disregarding a federal court no-strike order.

Blame Flash Bulbs

WASHINGTON, March 2—(AP) —Flashes seen in the sky over northern New York and the southern parts of Ontario and Quebec last fall could have been caused by air force experiments with low-altitude photo flash bulbs, a spokesman said Thursday. The U.S. air force declined to divulge further details of the experiments but said the light bursts might have been seen in the Syracuse, N.Y., area.

Need More People

TORONTO, March 2—(CP) — If Canada's destiny is to be realized, the country's population must be increased by 750,000 a year for the next 30 years, William F. Holding, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, said Thursday night. Mr. Holding said one of the dangers of a small populatnon in a large country is that it might inspire some "predatory" country to attack Canada.

Judge Refuses Baronet, Wife Divorce

LONDON, March 1 — (AP). — A British baronet whose pretty wife posed for him in the nude but drew the line at making love on their honeymoon failed today in his bid for a divorce.

His wife, 23-year-old Lady Barbara Beaumont, also lost her attempt to divorce the baronet, Sir Francis Beaumont, 24. She charged cruelty.

Sir Francis accused his wife of wilful refusal to consummate the marriage and of misconduct with her physician, Dr. Edward Sugden of London.

Judge Gordon Willmer held that both had failed to make a case. The Beaumonts were married in 1949.

Sir Francis testified he and Barbara made love regularly for months before the wedding. But he said she refused to have anything to do with him on their wedding night because he had been drinking.

Next day in Capri, she was too tired from travelling. The day after that it was sunburn she got on the beach.

Won't Co-operate

On the following day, Sir Francis said, came the last straw: Barbara let him take pictures of her in her birthday suit on the balcony of their hotel—and then snapped him in the same state of undress— but still repulsed his advances.

Eight days later she left him for good. Sir Francis charged she later turned up as the mistress of Dr. Sugden, who was treating her for a nervous ailment.

Lady Beaumont, in rebuttal, contended that the baronet has unusual ideas about love-making and ordered her to get out when she declined to submit.

She and Dr. Sugden swore their relations were purely professional.

Use Atomic Warheads

Here and There In Sport

By The Canadian Press

One of the two Toronto teams in the Ontario Hockey Association Major series will drop out of competition at the end of this season, Clarence (Happy) Day assistant general manager of hockey at Maple Leaf Gardens, said Thursday.

Whether Toronto Marlboros or Toronto St. Michael's will be the survivor is to be decided in the forthcoming round-robin playoff series involving the two teams and Hamilton Tigers.

He added, however, that it didn't mean the major series would have less than four teams next season. In addition to Kitchener-Waterloo, the fourth team in the league this season, entries are expected from Niagara Falls and possibly other Ontario cities.

Skiing conditions throughout the province generally are fair, the Ontario Travel Department reported Thursday.

Conditions are excellent at Fort William and Port Arthur and good at Huntsville and Sundridge. Fair conditions are reported at Havelock, Midland and Dagmar and poor at Toronto Summit and Orangeville.

There is no skiing at Barrie, Peterborough and Cobourg.

Maj.-Gen. Churchill Cann, president of the Canadian Equestrian Society, Thursday announced a plan to raise almost $16,000 to meet expenses of Canada's Olympic equestrian team, which will be chosen by the society. The Canadian Horse Shows Association is co-operating.

Members of the Horse Shows Association are expected to provide the bulk of the funds from revenue obtained at horse shows throughout the country.

It was announced Thursday night that a man has been picked up in Florida and is being brought to New York for questioning in the college basketball bribe scandal.

A spokesman for District Attorney Frank S. Hogan made the disclosure. He did not identify the man and gave no other details.

The New York World-Telegram and Sun, reported authorities have uncovered evidence that a master betting ring fixed professional fights and professional football, as well as college basketball games. Hogan denied this report.

Slugger Ted Williams gave his broken left elbow its first 1951 test in the Boston Red Sox batting cage Thursday and, while not too optimistic, admitted he "felt good and hit some balls real well."

Closely studying the $125,000 "question mark," was club trainer Jack Fadden.

"I was watching Williams' face," Fadden explained "If a batter feels the slightest pain, he winces. But Ted didn't change his expression."

President Warren Giles of Cincinnati Reds Thursday warned the Red-legs to be cautious in their associations off the field.

"The spotlight is on all professional sports right now," he told the National League players. "You ball players from here on will be in the public eye and it is up to you to be circumspect so as not to create any suspicions."

Referring to the basketball-gambling scandal, Giles warned them to beware of gamblers. "Be more careful than ever regarding those with whom you associate."

Freighter Strikebound

BALBOA, Canal Zone, March 2 (AP)—The Panamanian freighter Oriental Dragon was strikebound in Cristobal today after her 37 Chinese crew members refused to sail her to New York. The Chinese said they went on strike because they were refused permission to go ashore in New York.

Hastings Victorious

Hastings Midgets playing in the OMHA Central Ontario finals, defeated Little Britain 7-4 on Hastings ice Thursday night and took the round 10-9. It was a fast, clean game before a good crowd and it wasn't till late in the third period that Hastings appeared on top.

Wayne Dodd was top man for Hastings with four goals and a pair of assists, but Radford, Post and the Fisher boys went well up front while Lynch and Crowley stood out on defence.

The line of Teel, Miller and Downing was most effective for Little Britain and Hall was a constant threat.

Hastings were winners of the OMHA Midget D championship in 1949, the first year this group was organized. Last year they went as far as the semi-finals, where they are again this year.

New Hospital Ship

YOKOSUKA, Japan, March 2 (AP)—The sparkling new Danish hospital ship Jutlandia arrived today for service with the United Nations in the Korean war. The 8,500-ton former passenger liner went into drydock. She will sail for Korean waters next week.

CHORES — Heavy weather bogged down early flight practice for the RCAF's 421 Squadron in England. Routine ground jobs became the order of the day. Pilot FO. Bud McKay, of Windsor, checks accuracy of a compass.

HOSPITAL ARTIST—Keith Parker, wartime wireless air gunner, has spent the last five years in Winnipeg's Deer Lodge Hospital. His arms are badly crippled by arthritis. During the war he learned to paint and despite the cramped position of his hands, he produced six oils.

Crippled Manitoba Veteran Exhibits Oil Painting

WINNIPEG— (CP)— Keith A. E. Parker, wartime air gunner and a patient for five years at Deer Lodge Veterans' Hospital, has painted an oil he is submitting to the Manitoba Society of Artists for exhibition next month.

The picture, entirely in blue tones, shows an old tower silhouetted against the dawn sky. The tower is on a curving shore with luminous blue waters stretching away to the distance.

"I've never seen the place," said Mr. Parker. "It's in Cuba. The tower was built by a monk—see, there he is, small. I got the idea from a photograph."

The frame of blonde wood was made by an instructor in the hospital's occupational therapy department.

Badly Crippled.

Mr. Parker is badly crippled with arthritis. His arms are rigid at the elbow but he has a little movement in his fingers.

When his right hand became too crippled to hold a brush, about three months ago, he educated his left hand to do the job. A table that fits over his bed has a section which opens up for a book rest. On this the nurse puts his canvas. His palette is of light plastic.

About a year ago Mr. Parker found painting was not too hard to accomplish and he has produced six oils. His first piece was a Manitoba snow scene.

During the war, he was a wireless air gunner in the R. C. A. F. and before the war a reporter.

"We just want to talk to him," said Inspector Lucas who has been requested to investigate the $500,000 fire.

Bellboy George Gauthier said he had seen the man standing in the room after discovering smoke coming from beneath the door. He was leaning on a dresser and puffing on a cigaret amid the smoke, Gauthier added.

Pope Observes Twin Anniversary

VATICAN CITY, March 2. (AP) —Gold and white banners of the Vatican state were flown today to honor a double anniversary of Pope Pius—that of his birthday and his election to the papacy.

The Pope was 75 years old today. Just 12 years ago—on his birthday—he was named Pope the 261st in the history of the Roman Catholic Church.

While greetings from many parts of the world began to arrive at the Vatican, the pontiff—as he has in the last 12 years—followed his routine schedule of work.

As in the past, a celebration will be held March 12, the anniversary of his coronation as Pope. At that time a thanksgiving service, which the Pope will attend, will be held in the Sistine chapel.

The Pope began his day, as usual, with prayer and with the celebration of mass in his private chapel early this morning.

His first audience of the day was with Msgr. Gionvanni Battista Montini, substitute Secretary of State, with whom he conferred for about an hour. He then received Nicola Cardinnal Canali, Major Penitentiary and Camerlengo of the Sacred College of Cardinals. The Pontiff then attended the fourth of a series of lenten preachings in the Throne Room of the Apostolic Palace.

Will a Wolf Attack Humans?

There is no authentic record of a wolf ever attacking a human of its own accord!

The adventurous campfire tales of hunters and woodsmen often contradict this. It is true, however, that wolves will resist fiercely when cornered or trapped.

Cat Stars In Film, Not Popular

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 2 (AP) As far as handling cat actors is concerned, Frank Inn would just as soon work with a coyote.

Frank is trainer, handler, friend and confidante of a rough-looking feline named Orangey Murray. This Murray character is well on his way to being the first starring cat in Hollywood history. Dogs and horses have made the grade, but never cats.

Orangey is playing the title role in "Rhubarb" and animal handler Inn says it's his hardest job.

"I've got a coyote who's easier to handle than cats," he remarked. "At least you can train a coyote to do tricks and he'll do them. You never can tell about cats."

Frank likes his cats, but as a trainer, he finds them difficult.

"You can't teach them tricks. They won't respond to your voice or hand motions. The only way you can get them to do things is to run them through it many times. Then they'll do the same thing by habit.

Not Dumb

"I really don't think they're dumb. It's just that they react according to how they're feeling at the time. That's why they're so unpredictable. If they're hungry or sick or upset somehow, the slightest noise might make them claw your skin off."

Cat lovers can rest assured that Orangey is getting the star treatment. Unlike human stars, who have merely one stand-in and one double, Orangey has a dozen.

"You can't expect to do a running scene or a fight with a dog and then appear fresh for a close-up," Inn explained. "So we have stand-ins and doubles and save him for acting."

POLITICAL POW-WOW—Three prominent members of the Liberal party are seen following a luncheon during the annual meeting in Ottawa of the Advisory Council of the National Liberal Federation. Mrs. Louis St. Laurent, wife of the prime minister, centre, was the guest of honor. Flanking her are Mrs. W. T. O'Regan, Ottawa, right, president of the National Federation of Liberal Women, and Mrs. C. J. Embree of Halifax, vice-president.

Recall War Days At Beaver Club

LONDON (CP).—Women who waited on Canadian soldiers at the Beaver Club near Trafalgar Square still meet once a year to talk about old times.

More than 200 women are members of the Beaver Club Voluntary Association, formed by Miss Lucille Selby with the idea of keeping the voluntary workers together.

"When we think of the Beaver Club, we think of true friendship, and millions of cups of coffee and cakes," says Miss Selby. "We found ourselves at the end of the war with Canadian accents."

The Beaver girls still do voluntary work. Once every two weeks their members take cigarettes, scarves and pullovers to men at a hospital in the London suburb of Roehampton.

Mothers 8 Babies of Mixed Races

TORONTO (CP).—Mrs. Mary Alice Mann of suburban Lakefield mothers eight babies of mixed nationalities ranging in age from a few weeks to nine months.

A foster mother for Infants' Homes, Mrs. Mann hopes to complete her little United Nations family by taking two more children and to keep them all until they grow up.

Asnwering routine, official questions at the time she took the first baby, Mrs. Mann said she had no prejudices regarding race or religion. She was given a Negro baby and a little later an Indian child.

Before long she was given the care of seven boys and one girl. Among them are a 5½-month-old boy of Greek parentage, a Chinese boy of seven months and a Mulatto boy 2½ months old.

Mrs. Mann, a trained nurse with 11 years hospital experience has a 16-year-old daughter.

Individual Cribs

There are individual cribs for the babies in the large, sunny nursery. Weather permitting they are put outside every day. Mrs. Mann now has two assistants — one laundering dozens of diapers daily and the other assisting with baths.

Tall shade trees grow in the two acres of property surrounding the home and Mrs. Mann is planning an enclosed play-yard with sand piles and slides.

Asked if she would get substitutes if some were adopted, the foster mother replied emphatically:

"I don't want to give any of them up, I want to keep them all until they grow up and get married. It doesn't make any difference to me what color they are—I love babies."

Every day the milkman leaves eight to 10 quarts of milk for the multi-racial little family.

Manchester Girl Boosts Overseas Pen Friendships

By MURIEL NARRAWAY.

LONDON — (CP). — Recently returned from a three-month visit to Canada and the United States, 20-year-old Maureen Stiles of Manchester now acts as unoffiical public relations officer for 'teen-agers on both sides of the Atlantic. As secretary of Manchester's Holy Name Club, Maureen is liaison officer for pen friendships.

"Young people of each country can't know enough about one another," she said.

To start with, Maureen is putting young folks of England's north country in touch with pen pals in the United States. Her visit to Canada was purely a family affair and gave little opportunity for lining up Canadian youth clubs. But she hopes her project will become well known in Canada.

Another project involves an exchange of youth club literature between Manchester clubs and the United States. A helping hand is provided by Miss L. M. Blackledge, organizing secretary of a Manchester Association of Youth Clubs.

Knowledge Important

Maureen says she thinks it is important that 'teen-agers in both countries should learn more about one another. On one American train journey she found some of her fellow travellers did not even know Britain was still under rationing. Her ration book was passed around with interest.

Maureen's visit to Canada was an exciting surprise she never expected. While in Boston, an uncle she had never seen—Bernard Stiles, Fort Erie, Ont. — wrote and sent her the fare to Canada.

They met in Buffalo, her uncle wearing a white ribbon in his lapel for identification purposes. She then spent 10 days in Fort Erie and a long weekend in Toronto.

One memory of her Toronto visit is cherished by her seven-year-old sister—a large "Gibson Girl" doll which Maureen won at a fair.

She said in an interview she hopes to go back to Canada, but "I'll have to start from the very beginning and save hard once more." For the last trip, she started saving seven years ago.

MUNICIPAL CHAPTER

Monthly meeting of the Municipal Chapter, IODE, was held Wednesday evening at the YWCA with Mrs. W Gordon Hall, regent, presiding.

A letter from the national Queen Mary Carpet committee congratulated Peterborough on reaching its $1,000 objective. Mrs. G. Groombridge reported 219 sewn and knitted articles had been sent overseas during the month.

Mrs. Groombridge also read a report from provincial headquarters stating that clothing is still urgently needed in Europe and requesting that gift food parcels for the people in Great Britain be increased. Owing to the present flu epidemic in Britain an increased supply of meat, fat and sugar is a necessity to the convalescents.

Provincial chapter has announced a short story competition offering scholarships of $150 and $75 for the best short stories submitted. The contest closes April 30, and further information may be obtained from provincial headquarters in Hamilton.

Miss June Fraser, film convener, showed a beautiful scrap book of IODE activities which she is compiling.

An invitation was read from the Lady Hughes Chapter in Lindsay for a fashion show they are presenting in the Academy Theatre in Lindsay on March 7.

The provincial annual convention will be held in Hamilton March 11 to March 13.

In preparation for the annual meeting nominations were called for, with Mrs. George Barns and Mrs. H. Baker as scrutineers.

Arrangements were made for this annual meeting which will be held in the YWCA on the evening of March 28. All members of the IODE are invited to attend.

I Had To Watch My Children Suffer

"For several years my two boys suffered greatly from asthma and bronchial attacks", says Mrs. A. Lamouroux, 256 Head St. South, Simcoe, Ont. "They would be weak, gasp for breath—choking, wheezing and coughing in a way to wring a mother's heart. I often had to watch my boys sit up nearly all night, unable to lie down because of the struggle for breath. Then I found out about RAZ-MAH. After 3 doses of RAZ-MAH they are relieved and have no attacks for months at a time. I certainly recommend RAZ-MAH."

Woman Breaks Precedent In Legislature

TORONTO, March 2 — (CP) — Precedent was shattered Thursday when Agnes Macphail became the first woman to preside over the deliberations of the Ontario Legislature.

It was the first time in the history of Ontario that a woman has occupied the Speaker's chair. The Speaker, the Rev. M. C. Davies, extended the invitation to Miss Macphail, CCF member for York East, to preside during Thursday afternoon's debate.

As far as is known, the only woman who has ever occupied a Speaker's chair in a Canadian Legislature is Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Speaker of the British Columbia Legislature.

Ottawa Child Gets Thanks Of Greek Queen

OTTAWA — (CP) — Blonde Diane Keddie of Flin Flon, Man., probably is the envy of fellow 10-year-olds in her neighborhood.

By now Diane should have a letter straight from the royal palace at Athens, a "thank you" note from Queen Frederika of Greece.

Some months ago Diane met Dr. Lotta Hitschmanova during the Unitarian Service Committee director's tour of Western Canada.

It happened to be Diane's 10th birthday and she gave Dr. Hitschmanova $2.50 representing 25 cents for each year of her life.

"She gave it to me with the express wish that I send the money to the Queen of Greece for 'the freezing babies of her country'," Dr. Hitschmanova said in an interview.

Get Acknowledgment

The director recently received acknowledgment that Diane's $2.50 has been received.

And a letter also has come for Diane from the marshal of the court at the royal palace.

"Your sweet thought has greatly touched Her Majesty who wishes me to express to you her heartfelt thanks," reads the letter. "Her Majesty hopes that the sun will always shine bright in your life and that with God's help you will always continue to try and bring sunsine in other people's hearts."

DOROTHY DIX

Morbid Mother Love Causes Much Grievance in Home

DEAR MISS DIX: A splendid young man of my acquaintance has been engaged for years to one of the finest girls in the world. They are desperately in love with each other and would have married long ago except that the boy's mother has gone into hysterics every time he mentioned marriage, and declared that if he left her it would kill her. They have waited, hoping that the mother would come to take a reasonable view of the subject and to have pity on them. Instead of that she has become more violent and now has wrung a promise from her son that he will not marry as long as she lives. The couple are in despair. What do you think they should do?

A FRIEND.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The thing to be done is to say no more to the mother, but for the young man to take his girl by the hand and step around to the parson and get married forthwith.

Of course, there will be a pretty scene. The mother will rage and have hysterics. She will accuse her son of ingratitude and tell him how much she has done for him and that he has rewarded her by breaking her heart, and so on and so on. Probably she will tell him that he has killed her and that she is going to die, but she won't. In a little while the storm will blow over. She will dry her eyes and accept the situation, since she cannot change it, and by the time there are grandchildren she will be thinking she made the match.

Her Love Unwholesome

There is really no other more despicable figure in the world than the woman who is so utterly selfish that she is willing to ruin her children's lives in order to gratify her morbid mother passion. Her love for the children is not a beautiful, wholesome, natural affection. It is a neurotic emotion, something dark and sinister, that curses instead of blesses.

Every grown man and woman must recognize the utter self-centredness that makes a mother unwilling for her children to marry, and they are weak and foolish to sacrifice their own lives and that of the men and women who love them to an old woman's whim.

So I say to all such: Don't debate the question with Mother another time. Your marrying isn't going to kill her, nor even make her permanently unhappy, so call her bluff and hie away to the parson with the girl or man of your choice.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: This problem has come up for discussion in our youth group: Which is the greater, the love that is of slow growth and that is the result of a girl and boy being thrown in each other's company for a long period of time, or the love that comes at first sight and which seems to knock one between the eyes, so to speak? Which of these loves is the more likely to endure?

S. R.

ANSWER: No one can answer this question definitely, because love is governed by no laws. It comes and goes as it will, and no one knows why, or when, or how long it will tarry. We don't even know why we love, or why we cease to love and we can no more help one than the other.

It is the fashion to deride love at first sight, but there is no doubt that there are, now and then, cases in which a man and woman who were predestined mates do recognize each other at sight. But this grand passion comes to but very few people and is not to be confused with the slight attraction that men and women may feel in meeting strangers for the first time.

Indeed, most people fall in love at first sight to the extent that they would not pursue the acquaintanceship if they had not been attracted to a particular individual when they met, but this surface attraction is not the real bona fide love at first sight.

Taking it by and large, and miracles excepted, I think that the love that is of slow growth and that comes through long association in which people know each other's faults as well as their virtues, when they find each other congenial and interesting and when they establish a background of mutual experience and memories, is the love that is most likely to endure the test of time.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: A man of 40, who is sixteen years older than I am, wants to marry me. His first wife divorced him for non-support. Do you think I need fear that if I marry him he will treat me the same way?

G. F.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Probably. He seems a poor matrimonial prospect to me. A man who hasn't taken care of a first wife is not likely to take care of a second.

Marmora H. & S. Observes Founder's Night

MARMORA, March 2 (ENS)—Founder's Night was observed by Marmora Home and School Association at a fine gathering held in the public school Monday evening with the president, Mrs. Bruce McKenzie, in the chair.

Attendance of parents and grandparents was taken by Principal E. C. Prentice with honors going to his class.

The candle lighting service was in charge of Mrs. E. Manchester who took the various readings. Candles were lit as follows: For Mrs. Ada Courtice, Brian McKenzie; for national federation, James Sproul; for provincial federation, Miss Hilda Taft; for Marmora branch, Mrs. Bruce McKenzie.

A surname contest conducted by Mrs. E. C. Prentice resulted in honors being divided between Mrs. Frank Bobyk and W. J. Cottrell. Mrs. H. Rennie then introduced one each of three grades of her music pupils who gave pianoforte numbers as follows:

Jane Glover, Beverly Young, and Jennie Reynolds.

Next came three choruses by senior scholars of the school conducted by Miss Olga Wurm, music teacher.

The guest speaker of the evening, R. E. Bowley of Deloro, spoke on "Hobbies." He emphasized the point that every person should have a hobby and the value of his own had been to him. He said there is the tendency today of children running free too much and of parents not paying attention to children that they should in their spare time. He confined himself to his chief hobby, photography, and passed around to his audience some examples of his work. Thanks of the gathering were expressed by W. J. Cottrell.

Featured in the refreshments was the special cake in honor of the fourth birthday of the Marmora Home and School Association.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Canadian Herb Lore Can Be Most Interesting

The Readers' Saturday Column will have to overflow, backwards, into Friday this week.

If you are a cook by avocation as well as vocation you will enjoy this information on herbs sent to me by Mrs. Cherie T. She has given this a great deal of attention and taken trouble to make it interesting and practical.

Thank you Mrs. Cherie T.—I have forwarded your enclosures to the reader who was interested in herbs. I am glad the "Apfel Strudel" was satisfactory.

✧ ✧ ✧

Bay Leaves: Particularly good in meat cookery; also in meat and vegetable soups and sauce. Some cooks consider it indispensable to tomato cookery.

Borage: Young leaves excellent for salad and pot herbs.

Chervil: Like parsley but milder. Use young leaves as garnish and in soups and salads.

Dill: As you know used in dill pickles. Use leaves in fish stock.

Fennel: The seeds and leaves have a sweet hot flavor. Use sparingly in pies and baked fruits. Leaves may be boiled with fish.

Marjoram: Use green or dry for flavoring soups. Good in stuffing for meats and fish.

Mint: This is familiar to everyone, but used in a limited way. But it may be used in fresh salads, fruit beverages, jellies, ices, sauces for vegetables as well as meat. Delicious with apple and chocolate.

Parsley: An indispensable herb for flavoring and garnish. (High in vitamins and chlorophyl, and consequently should be used every day in salads especially in winter when we are vitamin starved.)

Pepper Grass or Pepper Cress: Delicious peppery flavor. Use in salads or sandwiches.

Saffron: Gives a yellow color to baked goods, and sauces and confectionery. Has a pleasant medicinal flavor. Color is strong.

Sage: Use fresh or dried in poultry seasonings or stuffings. It is the common and familiar flavor of sausages. Good with cheese and vegetable combinations. The flowers are used in salads by those who grow herbs.

Savoury: An agreeable flavor that blends well with others. Good in meat mixes, vegetable soups, sausage, and mixed with horseradish.

Sorrel: Green. May be used in salads or as a pot herb.

Sweet Basil: Reminiscent of cloves. Good in salads, soups and meat.

Tarragon: The leaves have a hot pungent taste. Valuable in salads and sauces and for flavoring vinegar. Used by chefs in Tartare sauce, and chicken soup. Some of the leaves may be left in the pickle over gherkins.

Thyme: Use the leaves green or dried. A good reliable flavoring for stuffings, sauces, soups and meats.

Chives: The friend of the cook if a clump of it is just outside the kitchen door. Milder than onions, does not leave a tell-tale odour and perfect for tossed green salads or with hard-cooked eggs in almost any dish.

✧ ✧ ✧

Would readers please write to me if they want more of this herb lore? Rosemary, capers, nasturtiums, calendulas have the most intriguing uses.

THE EXPERTS SAY:

Points Out Drawbacks Price Controls

By KAY REX

OTTAWA, March 1 —(CP)— To have or not to have price controls is the question the Canadian Association of Consumers discusses in the latest CAC bulletin to its 13,000 members.

On the "yes" side the organization finds:

1. Prices are at an all-time high and are still rising. "Intolerable and unfair conditions" are being created for stationary income groups.

2. As defence production grows consumer-goods shortages also will grow, creating increasing pressures on prices.

3. The world demand for raw materials is pushing up prices. "Though Canada can do nothing to control world prices, we might ease their pressure on our own people by controlling the prices of goods made here from imported goods."

On the "no" side:

1. Controls are expensive—"their cost may equal the savings we think they bring us."

2. Price controls entail wage and salary controls. To freeze prices one must exercise some control over the ingredients that go into prices. Wages and salaries are a big part of these ingredients.

3. Controls include costs such as lowered quality in products as manufacturers try to compensate for losses on controlled merchandise. "Not all the poor quality of war-time goods was due to lack of materials."

Bigger Tins

The CAC reports that consumers should find more 20-ounce cans of peas, beans and peaches on store shelves in the coming year. A total of 1,141,000 dozen 20-ounce tins of peaches was packed last year together with 937,000 dozen 15-ounce tins.

This is a direct reversal of 1949 when 2,271,000 dozen 15-ounce tins and 692,000 dozen 20-ounce tins were packed.

Reason for the change may be found in the fact that Canadian women prefer 20-ounce tins and through the CAC made their preference known to the canners associations.

More 20-ounce tins of peas and beans also were packed in 1950.

✧ ✧ ✧

Salad Week

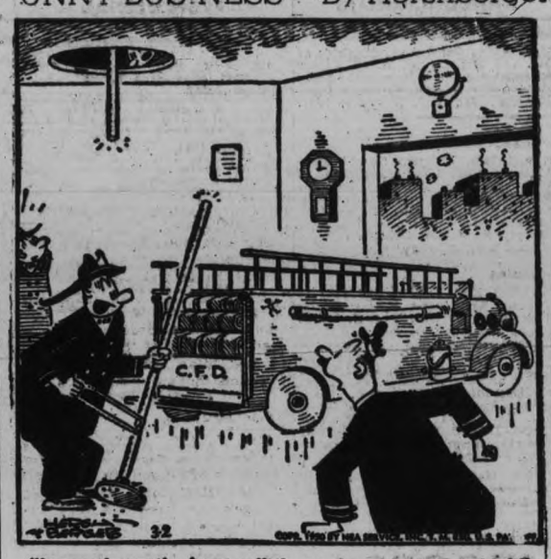
Canadian Horticultural Council plans to sponsor a salad week in August. This was announced at the Council's recent annual meeting in the capital. Naturally "the week" is planned to push home consumption of Canadian fruit and vegetables. It's also to interest housewife and restaurateur alike in turning out prettier salads.

✧ ✧ ✧

A furniture man who has been in the business long enough to be able to generalize on what Canadians prefer to buy when they furnish a house, says the "young folks" are the ones who choose the light-colored furniture. The darker wood is bought by older persons.

Incidentally he has a tip for those setting out to furnish a house or room. Don't buy everything at once. Buy it piece by piece.

"Live with it a while," he says, "before introducing more items."



After all you want your home to reflect your own taste and personality—you can't accomplish this when you buy everything at once.

HISTORIC SETTLEMENT

Ste. Augustine, Florida, was settled in 1565 by Spaniards who had spread from Mexico.

What's Right

You run into a person you have intended inviting to your house for a long time.

WRONG: Say, "I'm ashamed to see you. I've meant for so long to have you out."

RIGHT: Say how pleased you are to see the person and either extend an invitation or keep still about your poor intentions.

No Suggestion Of Strike Teachers Say

LINDSAY, March 2.—There has been no suggestion of either a "demand" or a "strike" on the part of the Victoria County secondary school teachers, a spokesman for the Teachers' Federation said in a statement issued Thursday.

The spokesman said that the meeting, which dealt with the teachers' requests gave rise to reports which were "apt to give the public the wrong impression."

The statement says in part: "In the past, as now, there has never been any suggestion of a demand. Usually, after discussion and consideration a mutually acceptable plan has been adopted.

"Use of the word 'strike' by the board chairman, as applied to the teachers is . . . misleading. The chairman . . . is quite right in predicting there will be no strike of Victoria County teachers, since such would be . . . illegal.

"Teachers are under annual contract to the board, and so cannot 'go on strike.'

Deplorable Suggestion

"The suggestion that the board would not object to losing three or four teachers who might be unsatisfied with salaries is most deplorable. It does not seem sensible that this area should train young teachers only to lose them to other centres just as they reach their highest efficiency; nor does it seem just to mete out a 'take it or leave it' treatment to older experienced teachers who have made a considerable contribution to this community.

". . . the teachers of this area feel that their requests regarding salaries were quite moderate and fair in the light of present conditions, and that the offer made by the board is not considered satisfactory.

"The maximum salary offered by the Victoria County board is $1,600 less than that offered a similar teacher in Toronto. . . . Even teachers with over 20 years experience are not yet paid the maximum salary. Are Victoria County teachers only . . . three-quarters the value of a Toronto teacher?"

Ex-Assessor, 59, Dies At Lindsay

LINDSAY, March 2.—For several years assessor of Lindsay and one of the town's most prominent lawn bowlers, Henry (Harry) Elgin Norton, 59, died Wednesday.

He had lived in Lindsay nearly 30 years and came here after World War 1, when he established a chicken hatchery which he sold several years ago because of ill health. A life member of the Cannington lawn bowling club, he had served on almost every executive position in the Lindsay club.

Born in Markham, he began his career as a fireman on the railroad, finally becoming an engineer in charge of a wrecking crane. He was a member of the IOOF and the Rebekahs.

Surviving are his widow, the former Maude Clarke, and one daughter, Mrs. V. H. Young (Elaine), of Brampton.

EARLY WEST

At the time of Confederation there were no more than 100,000 Canadians west of the Great Lakes.

Got His Number

OTTAWA (CP)—A big car seen daily in a parking lot here carries the licence number "Saskatchewan 9." Its owner, Dr. Emmett McCusker, Liberal member for Regina, says he's had that number since he got his first car in 1908.

Juror Take Count

MONTREAL (CP)—Seventeen new jurors had to be sworn in at the court of King's Bench during the February assizes. Officials said such an addition to the ordinary jury panel was rare but it was necessitated by a high proportion of influenza cases among the original panel.

Conservation Battle Waged In 2 Western Legislatures

By The Canadian Press

Conservation of natural resources was the weapon with which Liberals attacked the Alberta and Saskatchewan governments Thursday.

The British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario, Quebec and Nova Scotia legislatures also were in session.

Export of natural gas would adversely affect Alberta's coal industry, Liberal leader J. Harper Prowse charged, with coal miners alone losing from $8,000,000 to $10,000,000 in wages annually and as many as 2,500 miners being laid off work permanently.

He urged the Social Credit government to engage an expert to study the financial effect of exporting natural gas, and said there was a danger of Albertans becoming the "hirelings of corporations developed elsewhere." The government should take steps in conjunction with Ottawa to safeguard Alberta's interests in case a war forced export of natural gas. Four companies were seeking gas pipeline permits.

"We don't want our gas going down to the U.S. to be used in industry and have the American product compete behind a tariff barrier with the same Canadian product," Mr. Prowse said.

Charges Racketeering

In Regina, A. C. Cameron (L—Maple Creek) declared that "gangsters and racketeers" had gained control of part of Saskatchewan's uranium and oil resources. He demanded that cases like that of the granting of 14,000,000 acres of oil resources to a Toronto man should be curbed. This and other cases had resulted in a few people standing to make millions of dollars from the provinces's resources.

The Liberal attack drew a promise of a full public inquiry from Premier T. C. Douglas provided Mr. Cameron would formally charge that "scandalous circumstances" existed in present government policy.

Counter-Attack

It also drew a counter-attack from Resources Minister J. H. Brocklebank, who invited Saskatchewan Liberals to declare that if they were in power they would issue no oil exploration permits to persons who might later assign the permits to other parties.

In Victoria, Leo Nimsick (CCF-Cranbrook) demanded that the British Columbia government halt the indiscriminate hunting of wild horses in the Kootenay rangelnads. Many of the animals were being shot but not killed. They were left to die in agony or live crippled. Mares were killed and then colts starved to death.

In Winnipeg, Agriculture Minister F. C. Bell reported that Manitoba would encounter grasshoppers relatively lightly in 1951. "We have never before had such a large percentage of dead grasshopper eggs," he said, forecasting a further reduction in the numbers of the pest if this spring were wet.

Face A Choice

TORONTO, March 2 (CP) —Dr. Charlotte Whitton, a leading Canadian welfare consultant said Thursday Canadians face a choice between the United Kingdom and the United States. Dr. Whitton, a member of the Ottawa board of conrol, said Canadians can retain the traditional link with the British crown or drift "into a North American protectorate under the eventual political control of the United States." She told the Empire Club that Canada could not help but lose by becoming a satellite of the United States.

John Bentley, 26, of nearby Coniston, charged with theft of a taxi in which the men are alleged to have fled with $397,000 in cheques, also was remanded to March 6.

Tax Rate Set At 55.5 Mills To Raise $2,083,912 Highest In City's History

Rates Up 6 M. Over '50 R.C. School Supporters Up 6½ Mills To 57

Peterborough's municipal tax rate for this year is 55.5 mills for Public school supporters and 57 mills for Separate School supporters, as compared respectively with 49.5 and 50.5 mills in 1950. The increase over last year is 6 mills for P.S. supporters and 6½ mills for S.S. supporters.

The details of the levy are the same for the two groups except in two school items. The rate for current Public school requirements is 12.15 mills plus 1.11 mills P.S. debenture charges, amounting to 13.26 mills. And the current rate for Separate schools is 14.76. The difference is 1.5 mills (one and a half), which carries through to the difference between the two total rates for this year.

The levy for Separate schools last year was 12.37 mills.

New Peaks

There are new peaks of municipal taxation in Peterborough after the ascent a year ago to record high levels when the council managed to hold the Public School rate at one-half mill under the 50-mill mark. It was then officially predicted that the levy would climb higher this year. That prospect has become reality.

The budget of expenditure this year amounts to $2,083,912, as compared with $1,792,245 in 1950, an increase of $291,667. Those figures were quoted in their outline by Mayor Swanston at the meeting Friday night, which was advanced from the regular meeting scheduled for next Monday night.

They are set out in the analysis of the Public School rate, which is published on page two. The requisition from the Separate School Board is an additional $61,654.66.

The details of the rates are shown in three groups: general rates, comprising expenditure on streets, sewers, pavements, sidewalks, police and fire protections, Public Library, administration of justice, etc., together with collection and disposal of garbage, and the debt charges on works in this department, making a total of $1,100,519, or 28.41 mills. This is an increase of $100,783, or 1.59 mills.

The next group is listed as special rates, that is, current expenditure on Public Schools and Collegiate Institute and Vocational School, plus the charges on their

March Deals Ontario Dizzy Weather Blow Snow, Freezing Rain Ladled Out Liberally

TORONTO, March 3—(CP)—March cuffed Ontario with a dizzy weather blow today.

A storm which moved in from Iowa ladled out snow and freezing rain over the southern section of the province. The weatherman, calling it a "typical March storm," said it would reach as far north as Sudbury and North Bay. Areas north of there got snow.

A 25-mile wind added to the discomfort of the precipitation.

The blow came from the southeast and in most areas was scheduled to shift to the northwest by Sunday, maintaining its 25-mile clip.

The change in wind direction is expected to bring cooler air into the province Sunday, weather forecasts said today. In the southern section Sunday is expected to be cloudy. Frequent snow flurries are in prospect for the northern Lake Huron regions.

Thousands Of Chinese Flee Swatow's Tommy-Gun Rule

HONG KONG, March 3.—(AP).—Red terror in Swatow, a crushed guerrilla movement in Kwangsi, seething peasant unrest in the south—these were the reports out of Communist China today. They all added up to what the Red capital at Peiping itself admitted only last week—that the dissidents are challenging their Communist masters all over China.

Dispatches to the independent Wah Kiu Yat Po and other Chinese newspapers in Hong Kong said the tommy-gun rules in the port of Swatow, opposite Formosa.

They told of jails jammed with suspected adherents of Chiang Kai-shek, of relentless house-to-house searches, of 60 or more Chinese being marched out to the execution grounds nightly.

Clamp On Restrictions

A dispatch to Wah Kiu Yat Po today said so many Chinese are fleeing the Red terror of Swatow that Communist officials have clamped on new travel restrictions.

Wah Kiu Yat Po, which says it has an underground reporter in Swatow, carried a Canton dispatch which quoted "official circles" as revealing 2,700 "reactionaries" had been executed in Swatow to date. The Swatow purge is reported to have been on for two months. Thousands of others have been executed in Kwangtung Province, the paper said.

A pro-Communist dispatch from Canton asserted that the guerrilla movement had been dealt a crushing blow in Kwangsi, the South China province which has been a hot spot of resistance to Red rule.

This account said 1,505 guerrillas had been killed or wounded, 29,373 captured, and 9,265 had surrendered. It said of the total captured, 22,395 had "reformed." It made no mention of what was to be done with more than 16,000 who were "unreformed."

Peiping admitted recently that 3,000 of its agents had been killed in Kwangsi, next door to Canton and Kwangtung Province.

Oshawa Plants Hint Sabotage

OSHAWA, March 3 (CP). — The Oshawa Times-Gazette, in a newspage story Friday, reported recent attempts to sabotage industrial production in Oshawa.

Heads of industries were reluctant to discuss the matter but it was admitted there had been deliberate actions tending to slow up production, the story said.

It added that at General Motors there had been stoppages in the assembly line because bolts or other pieces of metal had been placed on conveyor belts. And there had been an epidemic of broken doors caused by trucks crashing into them.

The story quoted a well-informed source as saying that there is a growing wave of minor sabotage incidents in industry generally throughout the province. He linked this with a deliberate Communist campaign to slow down production and upset the morale of industrial workers engaged in defence production.

School Children Give $533, Top Objective

Children in the city schools topped their objective of $500 by $33.36 in the Penny-a-Day Drive, making a total of $533.36, Claire Collins, chairman, announced Friday night.

This provided a dramatic climax for the opening dinner of the Red Cross and Community Chest Fund campaign, held at the Canadian General Electric cafeteria.

The Penny-a-Day Drive has been in operation in all the city schools during the past week.

Enthusiastic applause greeted boys and girls representing each school as they handed placards bearing the name of their school and the amount that had been raised to Chairman Ross Dobbin.

No Competition

Mr. Collins explained that there had been no competition between the schools because of the diversity in the number of pupils. He expressed his appreciation to Ernest Reid who had collected the money from the schools every day during this campaign.

The children who presented the placards and the amounts raised in each school were: Arlene Payne, Queen Elizabeth, $5.84; Ruth Parks, King Edward, $24.33; Carole Rogers, King George, $42.22; Gloria Lamore and Marilyn Clarke, St. Mary's, $14.29; Barbara Walsh, Central, $35; Margaret Bowman and Terry Northrop, Prince of Wales, $46.19; Terry O'Keefe, Sacred Heart, $14.03; Tom Crowley, St. Alphonsus, $8.20; Peggy Davidson, Immaculate Conception, $19.15; Gary Teneycke, Grove, $12.61; Paul Board, St. Anne's, $26.88; Jack Pearson, St. Peter's High School, $33.49; Isabella Anderson, PSVS, $56.21; Queen Mary, $101.32; Queen Alexandra, $29.40; St. John's, $10.11; May's, $11.43; Parkhill, $5.26; Confederation, $35.65.

The total raised last year in this drive was $528.70.

This was the first year that St. Alphonsus and St. Mary's schools were included in this drive.

Canadian Patrols In Action

TOKYO, March 3.—(CP).—United States Marines and South Korean infantrymen advanced today in central Korea against Chinese Reds crouched in nets of barbed wire, trenches and mountain foxholes to defend their Hongchon assembly centre. The U.S. 1st Marine Division attacked within 15 miles of Hongchon from newly-won ridges north of Hoengsong. That war-wrecked highway hub fell unopposed to th eMarines Friday.

The Canadians were reported by Bill Boss, Canadian Press correspondent with the 2nd Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, to be still the foremost troops with the Eighth Army in the west-central sector Thursday.

Boss said the Canadians were "vigorously" probing the enemy's next line of defences. A strong patrol returned intact after a brisk fight Thursday, he said.

Friday the Canadians were reported with Commonwealth units which were moving north against stiffening Chinese resistance in the Yongdu region, 17 miles west of Hoengsong. An Australian force advanced 1,500 yards Friday and continued their drive Saturday seizing a hill 1,000 yards further on.

Move Up On Flanks

South Korean infantrymen moved up on the Marine flanks east and west of Hoengsong.

To the west, the South Korean 6th Division fought toward the 17 miles of highway leading west from Hoengsong to Yongdu. Friday they won two vital hills which put them within a mile of the road.

They had to use bayonets in a two-hour fight to hack to the top of one ridge five miles west of Hoengsong. Another ridge two miles farther west fell without a fight.

Ahead of the South Korean 6th today were enemy barbed-wire entanglements.

East of Hoengsong, other South Korean troops moved cautiously toward a series of enemy entrenchments three miles in depth.

Friday the Chinese held off the South Koreans in day-long fighting.

Farther east, the U.S. 2nd Infantry Division occupied more high ground north of the Pangnim-Hoengsong lateral highway.

Delay Tooling For Rifles Till Standard Decided

OTTAWA, March 3. — (CP). —Trade Minister Howe said Friday Canada has been reluctant to tool up for a production of a rifle not accepted as standard equipment by members of the North Atlantic Treaty. The United Kingdom and the United States have not been able to agree on a standard rifle, said Mr. Howe. But a committee has been appointed and the first task will be to decide what will be the standard weapon for Atlantic Treaty nations.

He spoke in the Commons after George Drew, Progressive Conservative leader, said Canadians felt real concern when they learned that Government-owned arsenals were turning out sporting weapons instead of rifles and machine-guns.

The production of the sporting weapons was going on while Canada was selling her British-made .303 rifles to countries in various parts of the world, including the agents of Communist China, said Mr. Drew.

Criminal Neglect

"I do not see how it is possible to have any feeling but the feeling that there is something approaching criminal neglect when we see that, in the face of these emergencies which are so constantly impressed upon us by the government, it fails to use the productive capacity already owned by the state to produce the weapons we need so badly," Mr. Drew added.

Mr. Howe said Canada has a good stock of the British-type rifle and there are plenty of the U.S. type available.

"We naturally were reluctant to tool up for a weapon that did not represent a standard recognized by the North Atlantic Treaty nations," he said.

Mr. Drew said he felt some explanation was due to the Commons. Defense Minister Claxton had announced two years ago that Canada was adopting the American rifle. Now Mr. Howe had said that no decision had yet been made on the choice of a rifle.

70 Mailmen Quit In Toronto

TORONTO, March 3 (CP). — Seventy letter carriers have resigned in the last three days in protest against the extra work of the once-a-day mail delivery, C. W. Axford, secretary of the Toronto Letter Carriers Association, said Friday.

He said a mass meeting of letter carriers will be held Sunday to point up to members of parliament the situation produced by delivery reductions. Toronto members of parliament have been invited.

Reduction in deliveries to residential areas and consolidation of some routes has been put into effect in Canadian cities as a federal government economy measure.

Use RCAF Air Ambulances For Wounded From Korea

OTTAWA, March 3 — (CP)— Wounded Canadians brought from Korea to this continent will be flown to hospitals near their homes by RCAF air ambulance service, it was announced today.

The RCAF said Dakota transport planes would be used to take the men from McChord Field, near Tacoma, Wash., to veterans' and military hospitals from Vancouver to Halifax.

The announcement said there was no immediate indication when casualties would begin arriving. It said, however, it was expected that Canadian wounded requiring medical attention en route would be flown to the United States by the United Nations transpacific airlift service which includes the RCAF's No. 426 Squadron.

The air ambulance service, complete with nurses, will be operated by the RCAF's Air Transport Command and will be ready to operate within a few days.

The ambulance lift will be handled initially by aircraft of the 435 Transport Squadron based at Edmonton. They have been fitted with special oxygen systems and with litters and litter holders. All normal hospital facilities will be available aboard the aircraft, and RCAF flight nurses and flight medical assistants will accompany the planes. Number of aircraft to be employed on the lift will depend on the requirements.

Hospitals receiving the wounded will be: Shaughnessy Hospital, Vancouver; Colonel Belcher Hospital, Calgary; Veterans' Pavilion, University Hospital, Edmonton; Deer Lodge Hospital, Winnipeg; London Military Hospital; Sunnybrook Hospital, Toronto; RCAF Hospital, Rockcliffe, Ottawa; Queen Mary's Hospital, Montreal; Quebec Military Hospital; Camp Hill Hospital, Halifax.

Instalment Plan For Paying Fines

By The Canadian Press.

The Manitoba government is going to consider a suggestion that it permit payment of court fines on the instalment plan.

The idea was recommended in the legislature Friday by Lloyd Stinson (CCF-Winnipeg South) who said time-payment of fines has been permitted in the United Kingdom since 1914.

Mr. Stinson, speaking during consideration of provincial estimates, said the prison population of fine defaulters had dropped by 80 per cent in the first 10 years.

Attorney-General C. Rhodes Smith said his government would consider the proposal but that it was "largely a matter for the federal Criminal Code."

Mr. Stinson replied that the Minister shouldn't try to "get out from under," and that Manitoba could give the lead to the rest of Canada by changing its law.

Faces Murder Charge As Husband Stabbed

TORONTO, March 3 (CP) — Marie Lopees was charged with murder today following a violent quarrel in which her husband was stabbed to death at their home in suburban New Toronto.

Police said the 24-year-old woman plunged an eight-inch butcher knife into the heart of Johnny Lopees, 26, following an argument which broke out a few hours earlier in a nearby beverage room.

The couple's landlord, Burton Davis, said he had gone to their basement apartment at midnight to tell his tenants to be quiet. Police said Lopees threatened to have the couple's eight-month-old daughter taken away from her mother.

Police said the woman seized the knife and warned her husband she would kill him. When Lopees stood his ground, she had stabbed him.

Labor Gov't Rejects Third War View

LEEDS, England, March 3. — (AP). — Deputy Prime Minister Herbert Morrison said today Britain's Labor Government "utterly rejects" the view that a third world war has begun.

Morrison, seen as a possible successor to ailing Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin if the latter gives up his job, devoted his entire speech before a regional Labor party meeting to foreign affairs.

He reviewed Britain's "Socialist foreign policy" since the last war and attacked Russia for "sabotaging the efforts of the United Nations to create collective security."

Morrison listed as perhaps the Labor Government's greatest achievement "the liberation of hundreds of millions of Asian peoples."

Send 5,000 Russians Teach Purge Methods

TAIPEI, Formosa, March 3 — (AP)—A foreign source today said 5,000 Russians have arrived in China's Hunan province to teach the Chinese Communists the Soviet purge techniques.

The source, who asked to remain anonymous, has spent many years in China. He said his information came from trusted Chinese friends who told him Russia wants all internal resistance in China ruthlessly crushed.

Moscow feels, he said, that the Chiense Reds need to be taught how to purge effectively, and they believe China can be Sovietized in this respect in two years.

Conscription Nears For Australians

CANBERRA, March 3 (Reuters) — Conscription appeared just around the corner for Australia today.

By a vote of 19 to 17 the federal conference of the Australian Labor party supported the principle of compulsory service.

The Labor party holds a strong majority in the Senate and has blocked a draft bill passed by the Liberal-Country party government through the House of Representatives.

The Labor party now will end opposition to the bill in the Senate.

The bill provides for drafting 13,500 18-year-olds.

Baby Weighs 17 Lbs.

CLEVELAND, March 3. — AP).—A baby weighing 17 pounds, 5½ ounces was born Friday to the 32-year-old wife of an engineer. The child was delivered at Berea Hospital to Mrs. Charles Bush, who has three other children. Doctors said the delivery was entirely normal.

Baby Kidnapped Mother Sought

TORONTO, March 3.—(CP). — Police today are seeking to locate a 26-year-old mother following the kidnapping of her baby son from his foster home Friday.

Gary Watson, 10½-months, was taken from his carriage on the verandah of the home of Mrs. Frances McArthur, in whose care he had been placed by the Children's Aid Society three months ago. The baby's abductors also took his blue blanket and white shawl. He was wearing a blue snow-suit.

A police search of the neighborhood disclosed that two women had been seen, one carrying a baby clad in a blue snow-suit and wrapped in a white shawl and blue blanket.

Police said they are trying to find Mrs. Grace Watson, who is believed to be in Toronto.

Five Union Members Injured By Bomb

JERSEY CITY, N. J., March 3 (AP).—A bomb was hurled into a Longshoremen's Union (AFL) headquarters Friday, injuring at least five persons.

Police said the bomb was pitched from a moving car through a plateglass window. Pieces of the bomb went through the metal ceiling.

A hotly contested union election is scheduled for today as a showdown to a bitter intra-union struggle. A local officer, George Donahue, recently escaped injury when his automobile was blown up by a bomb rigged to the clutch pedal.

Opposing sections have charged each other with forcing resignations at gunpoint and passing out union books to any one who promised to vote their way.

Two Snowmakers Too Good Trapped For Several Days

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., March 3 (AP). — This is the strange story of two scientific snowmakers who made so much snow that they and their equipment became snowbound for several days on a 3,600-foot mountain peak.

A rescue party fought its way through four-foot drifts late Friday and brought back the men, Joseph Vowels and Joseph Vittini. They were famished but otherwise none the worse for their experience.

The men were engaged in a project to increase rain and snow for the city of Santa Barbara. They started in last Tuesday near the top of Figueroa Mountain, 20 miles north of Santa Barbara.

They seeded the clouds with silver iodide and "each time we turned the machine on we were amazed to find ourselves in the centre of a miniature snowstorm," Vittini said.

Vowels said they obtained their objective "but did even better in burying ourselves and the equipment."

Princess Elizabeth Plans Visit To Malta

LONDON, March 3 (Reuters)— Princess Elizabeth today announced plans for another jaunt to the Mediterranean to see her sailor husband.

Her husband, Prince Philip, is stationed with the Royal Navy in Malta.

The Princess returned to London only last month after an 11-week stay with Philip in Malta—her third visit to Malta and her second Christmas away from home.

The Royal couple's two children, Prince Charles, 2, and the infant Princess Anne, will again stay home in London.

Wheat Price Disappoints Western Men

Farm Heads Feel Britain Lets Producers Down Badly

By The Canadian Press

Ottawa Friday proposed an 8.3-cents-a-bushel final payment on grain sold under the controversial five-year wheat pool that ended last year. First comment indicated strongly that the west doesn't think it's enough.

"Bitterly disappointing" . . . "does not measure up" . . . "no amount of dressing it up" . . . . "will fool the wheat producer"—these were among the statements of political and farm-organization leaders Friday night.

John H. Wesson, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, announced that a meeting of the three prairie pools will be held in Regina Tuesday to decide the pools' attitude toward the final payment. He indicated the reaction will be unfavorable.

He will prepare a statement on "What I think of the United Kingdom and what they have done with the four-year contract."

$65 Million Payment

Prime Minister St. Laurent announced that the government has decided to make a $65,000,000 treasury payment into the five-year pool. That will bring to $120,000,000 the amount Western farmers get as a final payment on the 1,428,000,000 bushels they delivered for sale by the Wheat Board. Cheques are expected to be issued in about a month, at a rate of 8.3 cents on each bushel sold.

Up to now, farmers have received $1.75 a bushel for No. 1 Northern and less on lower grades. Most of the wheat went to Britain.

Among politicians and farm heads questioned Friday night, none had unqualified praise for the amount of final payment. A few declined immediate comment. Most were openly hostile.

Here are representative comments:

G. F. Habing of Hazelridge, Man., president of the Manitoba Federation of Agriculture—the payment does not measure up to what we think it should be" and will be "met with keen disapproval among Manitoba farmers."

Should Be Lesson

Bruce McKenzie of Morris, Man., president of the Manitoba Farmers' Protective Association—$60,000,000 compensation for a $800,000,000 loss is not a satisfactory settlement . . . this should be a lesson to those who preach bulk marketing.

(Stanley Jones, president of Winnipeg Grain Exchange, said recently that Canadian wheat would have been worth $680,000,000 more in five years if it had been sold at the free world price instead of at controlled prices under the Anglo-Canadian and International Wheat Agreements.)

Agriculture Minister I. C. Nollett of Saskatchewan — "No amount of dressing it up by suggesting that the payment will amount to 23 cents a bushel for the last two years of the contract will fool the wheat producer. . ."

Latour Guilty Hanged May 15

SUDBURY, March 3 —(CP)—Adelard (Eddie) Latour, 50-year-old lumberjack, Friday night was sentenced to hang for the murder of Mrs. Cecile Rainville, 23, his cousin's wife.

Supreme Court jury convicted Latour, who previously had been convicted and then had seen the first conviction quashed on appeal, after deliberating six hours.

Mrs. Rainville was found fatally stabbed by a hunting-knife in her basement Sept. 12, 1949. Latour was seen leaving her home with bloodstained hands a few minutes earlier.

Mr. Justice A. M. LeBel, in sentencing Latour to be hanged May 15, said he would have been surprised if the jury had come to any other conclusion. He pointed out that the defence had not denied the woman died from wounds inflicted by a knife in the hands of Latour.

Tax Rate

debentures, a total of $621,714, or 17.67 mills. This is an increase of 1.95 mills.

Hospital Costs

Civic Hospital costs are shown in the next group, that is, current requirements of the hospital for 1950; charges on the debenture debt; and a special deficit which is an annual amount to be paid for five years in lieu of the proposed debenture issue which the ratepayers defeated in bylaw form at the municipal elections. This total is $321,716, a mill rate of 8.38. The increase is $102,447, or 2.44 mills.

Finally there is the rate for relief or welfare. Perhaps it may be repeated that the two Public School rates, 12.16 and 1.11 mills do not appear in the Separate School levy; and the Separate School 14.76 mills does not appear in the P.S. column of rates. Otherwise are identical.

Sectional Increases

The sectional increases in the rates are: 1.59 mills for general and garbage rates; 1.95 mills for Collegiate Institute and Public School requirements; 2.44 mills for Civic Hospital; and .02 mills for relief. Those increases add up to six mills, the difference between the rates for 1950 and 1951.

The assessments on which this levy is made are: Public School purposes $34,174,410; Separate School purposes $4,177,145; general rates, Civic Hospital and Collegiate Institute $38,351,555; and incinerator and garbage collection and disposal, which is the assessment of all properties, without exemptions, $4,192,625.

The budget bylaw, fixing the tax rate, authorizing the levy of the 1951 taxes, and accepting the assessment roll made in 1950, was presented by Ald. T. D. Miller, chairman of the finance committee. It was "taken as read" in the second reading.

At the conclusion of the meeting Mayor Swanston briefly referred to the passing of the appropriations in the budget, saying that on behalf of Ald. Miller he thanked the members of the various committees and also the heads of departments for their co-operation in "the hard work of the last two weeks."

All the members were present excepting Ald. Hugh F. Waddell who is attending the civil defence course in Ottawa, and is not taking off on a holiday as recently reported; and Ald. Norman Graham who is another victim of the epidemic 'flu.

At the meeting of the Utilities Commission this week, Ald. Miller said his committee was trying to cut the rate from a looming 55.7 mills to the even 55.5 mark. The Commission aid in that endeavour by reducing their requisition for hydrant service by $3,500.

"We got the rest by cutting it off Ald. Gillespie's appropriations (board of works)" Mayor Swanston told the Examiner after the meeting.

Not Ready Yet To Give Women Equal Pay-Frost

TORONTO, March 3 —(CP)—The Ontario government is not ready yet to enact legislation to compel equal pay for men and women doing similar work.

Premier Frost said in the legislature Friday there has been no formal consideration of such legislation even though we have discussed the principle many times informally."

The premier was commenting on a report that such legislation was being drawn up by the government.

"The idea has cropped up every year for many years, but no decision has been reached at any time."

Mr. Frost said there are factors which restrain the government from acting too hurriedly. For instance, it was considered possible that such a law would tend to militate against higher wage levels for men, and also to discriminate against women.

Brings Difficulties

An employer, compelled to pay equal rates to women, might decide that he would employ men because of a belief, even though unjustified, that men would suffer fewer injuries, would be steadier on the job or some such excuse.

"There is absolutely no argument against the principle of the idea," said Mr. Frost. "It is wholly fair. But theory and application are two different things. It involves a lot of consideration before acting."

The premier said that the British Labor government, while committed to such legislation, has not enacted it because of the problems involved. A British commission had reported in favor of it, but had suggested caution about enacting it.

Amend Bounty Act

Members gave their approval to the principle of a bill amending the bear and wolf bounty act and joined in wishing CCF leader E. B. Jolliffe a happy birthday—his 42nd—before adjourning until Monday.

During consideration of the bear and wolf bounty amendment, the House briefly debated the question of when a wolf is not a wolf.

Mr. Jolliffe referred to research in both Canada and the United States on the crossbreeding of wolves and dogs. In New York State for instance, he said, official opinion was that the animals did interbreed, producing a hybrid animal that was more cunning, dangerous and vigorous than either of its forebearers.

"It is a problem here too," said Lands Minister Scott who piloted the measure. "We are satisfied that timber wolves will not breed with dogs except under extreme conditions, such as enforced captivity. However, brush wolves do breed with dogs, especially collies, police dogs and chows. Our problem is to determine what is a wolf pelt on which bounty is legally due. Our experts do it by study of the inner hair of the pelt, though sometimes they have to see the carcass of the animal. We have probably 20 to 30 such cases a year."

12 Little Eskimo Boys Playing Hockey With Skates Sent 2,200 Miles As Gift

TORONTO, March 3—(CP)—If yells of "He shoots! He scores!" are echoing around the icy wastelands of James Bay, it's due to an Anglican missionary and the generosity of a Canadian university, two railway companies, an airline and a Hudson's Bay company team of huskies.

Twelve little Eskimo boys figured they had everything they needed to play hockey—ice, climate and players—except skates.

They appealed to the Rev. Don Whitebread, Anglican minister at tiny Port Harrison, to obtain 12 pairs of skates.

He appealed to Joe Griffiths, a friend and athletic director at the University of Saskatchewan, who got the skates and persuaded Canadian National Railways to ship them free from Saskatoon to North Bay in Ontario.

CNR officials in Toronto talked officials of the Ontario Northland Railway into shipping the blades to its terminus at Moosonee. Austin Airways, which makes four annual flights "down north" to Port Harrison, agreed to carry the skates if they could be moved across the Moose River to Moose Factory. The Rudson's Bay Company obliged with a dog team.

The skates arrived after travelling 2,200 miles. Apparently they fitted.

B.C. FESTIVAL FLAGSTAFF UNVEILED — A flagstaff given by the government of British Columbia to the people of London was presented by the High Commissioner for Canada, L. Dana Wilgress on the terrace of the festival concert hall, on London's south bank festival site, this week by the chairman of the London county council J. W. Bowen. Shaped from a 250-year-old Douglas fir, the flagstaff is 102 feet high. It is the tallest unstayed staff in Britain. Photo shows the High Commissioner hauling on the rope to hoist the Union Jack as the wind catches the flag and blows it across the faces of the officials. Wearing chain of office is the L.C.C. chairman.

House Squawks About Handling Divorce Bills

OTTAWA, March 3 (CP)—The Commons gave voice Friday night to its traditional and annual squawk about passing divorce bills. Then, with the air cleared, it adopted 83 of them.

Once at least in each session, members of all religious faiths protest against the task of granting divorces for residents of the only two provinces without their own divorce courts—Quebec and the new province of Newfoundland.

As the 83 bills came up for consideration, Friday night, one French-speaking Liberal —Jean Richard (Ottawa East)—declared that he would have no part in their passage, and stalked from the Chamber. Another—Wilfrid Lacroix (L—Quebec-Montmorency)—shouted that the bills should be "killed."

Target of the debate was a bill granting a divorce to Dr. Raymond Boyer, Montreal scientist released recently from penitentiary where he served a two-year term for Soviet espionage. His wife divorced him in the United States while he was in prison.

Have Duty

Works Minister Fournier, government leader in the Chamber and member for the Quebec riding of Hull, reminded the Commoners that the Constitution gave them jurisdiction over divorce and they could not shirk that responsibility.

Main government business before the Chamber was a sharply-criticized government bill to create a new Department of Defence Production with wide powers to direct the output of weapons and munitions for Canada's defence.

Progressive Conservatives, led by George Drew, oppositon lieader, charged the government was seeking "dictatorial" powers. They urged that the bill be withdrawn and modified.

Trade Minister Howe, who will head the new department, said the government made "no apologies" for asking for "extraordinary" powers in today's "extraordinary" circumstances.

Solon Low, Social Credit leader, also urged the government to consider a limitation of powers in the legislation. It should not ask for enough authority to "meet a hot war when we are not in a hot war at all."

In the opening stages, Prime Minister St. Laurent announced that the Federal treasury will contribute $65,000,000 towards final settlement of the five-year wheat pool established under the Anglo-Canadian wheat agreement. It will go to prairie farmers.

Boat Takes Children To B.C. School

BAMFIELD, B.C., March 3 — (CP)— A school bus is pretty standard equipment these days but in this small community on the isolated west coast of Vancouver Island, children get to school in a boat.

Every school day, in all kinds of weather, Alec McKay skippers the school boat Nalda along the inlets, bay and islands near here to pick up his 33 charges. In the afternoon, he deposits them back at their lonely homes.

The Nalda has a closed compartment with a polished wooden bench running along each side. Into this room troop the children —from the cable station or the lighthouse; children of fishing folk down the inlet; a boy or two from a logging camp; wide-eyed Indian boys and girls.

There are no streets here, or movies or electric lights. One of the schoolmarms rows to work from her home a bit down the coast.

Skipper McKay usually has to wait for the inevitable latecomer, who tears down the narrow trail to the small wharf, scarf in the wind and dog at heel.

None Seasick

The trip is not long enough for any of the children to get seasick. The older ones look after the younger children to keep them well away from the gunwales.

As the boat putters around the school route, McKay tells the children tales of bigger ships he has sailed in and of different oceans.

Now and then, a child falls over the side when he leans too far over to peer at a fish or try to spear a crab. McKay plunges in after all of them.

He hasn't lost a pupil yet.

New Minister Inducted At Centerville

MILLBROOK, March 3—(ENS) —Induction of the Rev. W. Harold Heustin into the charge of Grace Presbyterian Church, Millbrook, and Centreville Presbyterian Church took place Wednesday afternoon at Centreville. The Rev. Charles G. Boyd of St. Paul's Church, Peterborough, and Moderator of Peterborough Presbytery, officiated.

Before the induction ceremony, the Rev. Newton Reid of Colborne gave a sermon on the text, "The Lord went before." He said many things could be learned from the pilgrimage of the children of Israel from Egypt. He said man must be ready to take god as his leader and guide, and must be ready to follow Him.

James Dutton of Peterborough, chairman of the Board of Administration, spoke to the gathering after the ceremony.

"If it were only possible.... to visualize all that has been done by these two congregations and their people during the times of the many ministers who have filled these pulpits, much could be said.

"But now, standing on the threshold of a new era.... I charge you to give encouragement to your new minister. He is human. As he seeks to lead you into closer fellowship with God, be ready to follow," Mr. Dutton said.

The Centreville Church choir sang "Till I Become Like Thee," with Mrs. Grace Muspratt at the organ. Supper was served at the conclusion of the ceremony.

Warn GI Troops In Korea Vulnerable To Air Attack

By DON WHITEHEAD.

WASHINGTON, March 3 — (AP). — A dispatch cleared through the Korean war censorship carries a chill warning that the American Eighth Army is carelessly vulnerable to enemy air attacks.

The dispatch from AP correspondent Tom Bradshaw says:

"The UN Army in Korea has grown dangerously contemptuous of the enemy's air power. There just hasn't been any fear thusfar. Allied units are camped brazenly along river bottoms and in exposed valleys — sitting-duck targets for air attacks.

"A flight over the front line plainly shows this danger. The Allied side is a beehive of obvious activity, but when the actual front line is reached there is no sign of the enemy."

This situation exists even though the Chinese are believed to have a combat air force of up to 3,000 planes including fighters and medium bombers. And there is no guarantee this air power will not be unleashed in an all-out Red drive to defeat the UN forces.

Throughout the entire war, the Americans have been guilty of poor camouflage and poor dispersal of troops, supplies, planes and vehicles behind the front lines.

The airfields in Korea usually are jammed with fighter and transport planes. There has been no attempt at dispersal. The planes sit row on row beside the runways — ideal targets for an enemy pilot on a strafing run.

The lessons learned in the Second World War seem to have been forgotten.

For Parents Only

Teaching Of Truthfulness

By NANCY CLEAVER

"I don't want my boy to be a liar!" a father said recently to an officer of a Canadian juvenile court. His teen-age son had gotten into trouble with the law along with several other boys in his particular gang. The judge had ordered an investigation into the homes from which the boys had come. This father seemed perplexed that his boy should fluently and brazenly try to lie his way out of a tight corner when a policeman laid his hand on his shoulder.

Most parents want to teach their children truthfulness. Some of them expect their children to be truthful with little or no effort on their own part, as mothers and fathers. They seem to think that the ability to speak the truth is something a child acquires easily and inevitably as he grows up. Learning to tell the truth is not as easy as looking at a book and memorizing George Bernard Shaw's observation: "The liar's punishment is not in the least that he is not believed, but that he cannot believe anyone else."

Parents' Example

Perhaps the greatest single factor in teaching a child to recognize and appreciate truth is the parents' example. The mother and father are the child's first teachers and long before a boy or girl starts to school he has learned a great deal from those in his own home. Dad's story at supper time of how "he put one over" on the boss is not lost on his small son, Tom, who is quietly listening. The door bell rings and Mother sends little Marilyn to answer the door and tell whoever is there, "I'm sorry, but Mummy is out this afternoon. Do you wish to leave a message?"

What are Tom and Marilyn learning of the value father and mother place on telling the truth in experiences such as these?

Most children go through a stage about the time they start to school when it seems easier for them to tell a lie than to tell the truth. Parents need not be shocked at this, but they do need to be understanding. Mothers and fathers should try to discover the cause of this tendency to lie.

A Few Reasons

There are a number of reasons why children tell lies. A four or five-year-old will often tell an imaginary story, which is so real to the little child that it seems like the truth to the eager storyteller. The mother, who hears from her own son an amazing story of a brown bear who climbed up on the fence, then up on the garage roof, and then slid down with a thud on the ground, may well say at the conclusion to her boy, "that's an exciting 'pretend' story—now would you like me to tell you a fairy tale too?"

Little children often tell a lie because they desire greatly to please their parents. When they are asked if they have done something which they neglected to do, they are tempted to claim that they have accomplished all that has been expected of them. Another cause for lying in children is to appear stronger of cleverer or better in some way than they are. How many small girls have boasted to their playmates of their homes or their parents!

In curing a child of lying, parents, after they discover the cause, should try to remove the need the child feels to resort to this kind of behaviour. Too severe discipline on father's part may produce the "lie to please". A sense of insecurity on the child's part may result in the boastful lie. Parents must believe in their children and show their faith that they will gradually learn to be truthful.

A child is in the process of growth. He may for one reason or another tell a lie, but his parents should not call him "liar!" To give a child a bad name, to show doubt of his learning right ways of behaving, is to start him on the road to delinquency. In teaching truthfulness (or any other virtue) children need to feel their parents' love and belief in them.

Mothers and fathers, no matter how hard it is for their child to learn truthfulness, must continue to keep the final goal in sight. They must help their child to see the limit of their ability in the process of becoming a reliable, honorable citizen.

FARMERS' UNION MUTUAL FIRE INSURANCE COMPANY

Annual Meeting - February 24th, 1951

The Farmers' Union Mutual Fire Insurance Company declares Fourth Refund From Surplus to policyholders. In the absence of the President, Bruce McNevin, Vice-President Mr. J. J. Robertson acted as Chairman of the Meeting. Director J. C. Cummiskey delivered the Presidential Address.

Officers Elected for 1951—

President, Bruce McNevin, R.R. 3, Omemee.
Vice President, J. C. Cummiskey, Bethany.
Executive Committee—The President, Vice President and Mr. J. J. Robertson, Dunsford.

Directors Re-elected—

Mr. James A. Gifford, Ennismore.
Mr. F. H. Clayton, Beaverton.
Mr. Arnold McElwain, Gelert.

Summary of President's Message

A review of the Financial Statement reveals a profit of $27,604.05 on the years operations, an increase of $2,469.015. in direct insurance in force and the Company's surplus after providing for Refund No. 4 is $341,455.43. Including Refund From Surplus No. 4 in the amount of $26,358.48 and Refund From Surplus Nos. 1, 2 and 3 already paid, policyholders will have received by way of Refunds $126,894.11 since 1943 in addition to reduction in premium rates and broadened insurance coverage. This amply demonstrates tangible proof of savings derived from operations of the Farmers' Union Mutual Fire Insurance Company.

The President's address emphasized the necessity of careful administration and the necessity for promoting fire prevention education. This includes research, inspection and selectivity. Restriction of fire waste presents a challenge to the Company Officers, Directors, Agents and Policyholders. Common causes of fires were outlined as follows:

1. Defective pipes, flues and heating equipment.
2. Careless smoking habits.
3. Permitting children access to matches.
4. Use and misuse of electrical equipment.

The President emphasized protection available in the use of fire resistive materials and particularly fire retardent paint in construction and repair work.

He also gave a detailed explanation of the effect of lightning shock to electric clocks, refrigeration units, water heating elements, electric motors and radios. He pointed out that in many instances Fire Insurance Companies were called on to pay claims for presumed lightning damage when the actual damage was a question of normal maintenance.

With reference to claims for livestock loss, an inspection of live stock killed by lightning usually revealed evidence on the carcass as follows:

1. Scorched hair in the ears or around hoofs.
2. Unusually loose teeth.
3. Marks on the body where the lightning is grounded.
4. No swelling
5. Crackly feeling of the texture of the hide.
6. The animal does not completely stiffen.
7. An odor of dry sweet smelling cooked meat.

In the absence of the above symptoms a post mortem should be held. Animals that have suffered shock but have not been killed usually displays loss of co-ordination or appear terror-stricken and tremble violently, the eyeballs usually hard and rigid, the cups about the eyes filled out or bulging, eyes are usually bright and glittery and the animal has a temperature.

Many barn fires from unknown causes have been traced to over heated hay. The following general rules governing the storing of hay are worthy of consideration:

1. There is no substitute for adequate field curing of hay whether it is to be chopped, bailed, or stored as it comes from the windrow.
2. Regardless of the method of storage, hay should be spread evenly over a large area avoiding large masses that are closely packed.
3. Green hay should be stored in an area away from that which is dry and should not be mixed with straw or grain.
4. Adequate ventilation should be provided immediately after the hay is placed in storage, at the same time avoid an increase of moisture from roof windows or doors.
5. Every mow should be examined periodically for several weeks after storage. Temperature reading should be taken if there is any indication of overheating. This can be done by putting a sharpened wooden plug in a piece of piping in which a series of holes have been drilled. It can be driven into the mow and a thermometer lowered to the suspected area. 150° F. is not dangerous and may be expected. It is generally agreed that temperatures in excess of 180° F. will require emergency action since the situation rarely improves once the temperature of 180° F. has been reached. The temperature of a mow of hay at 200° F. may go to the point of ignition which is around 380° F. in an hour or two. When this stage is reached call the neighbours, get some water and a fire engine, and move the hay outside. It has often been done before and the building saved.

In closing the appreciation of the Directors was extended to the policyholders, agents and staff for their co-operation.

Are You Underestimating The Community Fund?

The Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund is a convenient arrangement which enables the citizens of this area to contribute to ten local agencies of the first importance at one time; it saves the effort of ten different drives for money; it saves the expense of ten different money - raising campaigns. There is only one thing wrong with it at present, and it is this: the citizens of Peterborough have become accustomed to it, and are therefore apt to underestimate its needs. To put the matter in a nutshell, the majority of people who give do not give enough, and too many people do not give at all.

* * *

Let us get one point clear about the Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund: every cent that is given to it is charity. And let us understand this about charity: it is good not only for the receiver, but also for the giver. Charity is one of the first duties laid upon us by the Christian faith. It is good for us to be personally touched by the necessity of others, and it is good for us to relieve that need; the benefit which we receive from charitable giving is not a smug glow of satisfaction when we hand over our money; it is the realization when we see someone else in need, that we all belong to one family, and we are all the children of God, and that it is our duty to help those who need help. It is not the giving which is of first importance, though it is a very important thing: the most important thing is that we should feel, deeply and keenly, the necessity of others.

* * *

The Community Fund makes it easy for us to give; it does not, and cannot, make it easy for us to feel. We must do that for ourselves. If we regard our contribution to the Fund merely as a tax on citizenship, or as a yearly handout, it is not doing us much good. If we look upon the Fund merely as a means of raising and distributing money, we seriously underestimate it, and should reconsider our ideas about it.

* * *

We strongly urge everyone in Peterborough to think afresh about the Fund this year. We must take care not to become so used to it that we do not notice it. And we strongly urge everyone to give more this year than last year. The Fund is well-organized, and the solicitors are efficient, but organization and efficiency can be defeated by apathy. The Fund has done a good job for the City since its inception; we must take care that we do not begin to take it for granted.

* * *

We address a word in particular to those who have not been giving to the Fund, or whose contributions have been mere tokens. They must realize that even though they may receive no direct benefit from the Fund themselves, they are benefited indirectly. The Fund makes provision, in one way or another, for many of the things which make life in Peterborough decent and basically civilized. Every adult has an obligation to support it, unless he can in some way convince himself that he is entitled to take from life without giving much in return.

* * *

The Fund is efficient and eminently worthy of support. It has only one fault: it is somewhat impersonal. That is a fault which it cannot help. It is the duty of every citizen to make the need and the good work which the Fund represents real and alive to himself, and to give with a generosity and warmth of feeling which will make next week's drive more than a simple collection of money. Charity, to be worthy of the name, must awaken in us feelings of tenderness and true sympathy; if we give to the Fund in that spirit, it will be a success indeed, blessing not only the receivers, but also the givers.

Too Simple To Move Mountains

Dr. C. J. Mackenzie, president of the National Research Council, told a Montreal audience one reason why Canada is not producing any atom bombs: "Production of an atomic bomb is only a small and crude aspect of atomic energy," he said. Canadian scientists at Chalk River are concentrating their attention on solving some of the problems which were left aside when investigation and work were being centred entirely on the bomb. He said:

"I suggest to you that for the first time in history our country is well prepared for a great and novel scientific development. We fortunately have been in the first wave of this great movement. At Chalk River we have a reactor of most modern design which has given us a tool of remarkable flexibility and power.

"We are now busily engaged in filling in some of the many gaps in basic knowledge that had to be by-passed in the mad rush to develop a bomb in a finite time.

"We are tackling many aspects of the innumerable problems which stand between the technique and knowledge of today and the ultimate realization of the full fruits of atomic energy."

Many industrial and social uses of atomic energy have been suggested—some of them hare-brained, it would seem—but Canadians at Chalk River are going ahead with remarkable projects which will ultimately aid mankind and advance society, if the bomb does not interfere. Dr. Mackenzie does not think highly of the suggested use of atomic energy heat to melt the ice at the Arctic and thus change Canada's climate; ("That makes little appeal to those who have considered all the aspects and consequences."). But he does not belittle the potentials of atomic energy applied to social and industrial life.

"Great and beneficial developments are bound to follow. One hears of mountains having been moved by atomic energy but that sounds like propaganda or innocence; at the moment fissile material is far too rare and expensive to be used for such simple purposes."

What a wonderful age is this when reputable men of science can say nonchalantly that what they have devised and hold in their hands is too good to be used for such a simple purpose as moving mountains! It used to be faith that could miraculously move mountains. Now another miraculous agent, God-inspired maybe, but man-made, can move them. Has faith declined, or merely taken a new anchor?

Niggling With Cedar Lakes Park?

With regret and considerable astonishment we learn that the provisional directors of the Cedar Lakes park project have not seen fit to honour it and the memory of the late Fred Marshall in the name of the park. Our feelings are no doubt shared by a great many citizens of Peterborough city and county, and by the Honourable Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests, whose department has already given much assistance in securing the reservation and developing it, and can do much to advance it in the future. Mr. Scott had hoped, as we and others did, that the park would be given Mr. Marshall's name.

Perhaps the directors were hesitant to single out one man from the many who have had this park project at heart for many years, men like Mr. Milton Clysdale and Mr. Scott himself, even though, had it not been for Mr. Marshall's initiative and determination, the park might still have been a private will-o'-the-wisp of the Kawartha Conservation Association, instead of a reality under the public corporation formed to receive the charter and administer the park. It was only on the formation of this public body ("Kawartha Recreation Incorporated") that the grant of Crown Land was possible.

Was Mr. Marshall too forthright for some people's liking in his efforts to get the project under way? Yet concession after concession was made to the interests and prejudices of Burleigh-Anstruther people, who are represented on the provisional board by their Reeve, Mr. Norman Wilson. The original acreage of the park as envisaged by Mr. Marshall was whittled down from 1,500 acres to the present 500. The new road being put through is not following the old road allotment directly into the park, but has been put east of Little Cedar Lake, to the private benefit of cottagers and the people who own and rent the cottages there. The park has not yet been joined with the Eel's Creek Crown Game Reserve—as it should be to protect the game—and local hunters and lodge renters use the corridor between the two as a killing ground.

There is evidence that local politics and petty prejudices are hampering the development of the Cedar Lakes Park. Politics should not be allowed to delay a development of this kind, and if local selfish or commercial prejudices are interfering with this work of great value and benefit to the entire city and county, it is time to ignore the prejudices and elbow the obstinately short-sighted out of the way.

The park was not conceived by Mr. Marshall in any petty way and it is not a petty undertaking. Full co-operation and considerable financial and material assistance will be required from the Department of Lands and Forests, from service clubs, conservation groups and the like. The present directors of the Park should feel that they have a county-wide mandate to go ahead boldly with the necessary plans and work. They should honour the intentions of Mr. Marshall rather than kow-tow to nigglers.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Seabirds are not uncommonly used as food in Newfoundland, we read. And anybody who has ever broken a tooth on breast of gull will know what that means.

The Detroit jail was so crowded last week that 44 men were forced to sleep on the floor. However, it's a solution to the housing shortage.

Margaret Truman has a TV contract for $100,000 a year. And anybody who says it is because her father is President can expect an angry letter from Harry, worth $150 of any autograph collector's money.

The Private Diary of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Spent a good deal of time today re-arranging books on my shelves. From time to time complaints reach my ears that the piles of books which accumulate on all the flat surfaces at the Towers are unsightly, and impede the business of cleaning, it is suggested that I do something about this. As I am very fond of books, and indifferent to cleaning, I approach the task with a heavy heart. The truth is that I have run out of shelf room, and cannot find a place to put any more, unless I fill in some of the windows. It has been suggested that I build stacks in the cellarage, like a Carnegie Library, but as the cellar floods twice a year, I am reluctant to do so. Also, I like to have books ready to hand—on the floor, for preference—and do not want to go to the cellar for a volume when it could just as easily lie under my chair. But when complaints reach a certain pitch I shift books around a little, and alter the location of the shelfless heaps, and peace descends for a few months.

✧ ✧ ✧

MONDAY: A Christmas present arrived today from a Welsh friend; I rather like such late arrivals; they spread the Yuletide spirit well into Lent. It was a book, and as I am reading it at present, I luckily do not have to worry about where I shall put it; I carry it about with me. It is Neville Cardus' "Autobiography", and is beautifully written. A good deal of it is about cricket, a game which I have never mastered; like baseball, its intricacies elude my simple mind. However, there was a time when I played cricket, and as I cannot follow any rapidly moving object, owing to some defect in my vision (or perhaps native stupidity) I never knew where the ball was. This made me useless as a bowler, and ridiculous as a batsman. I recall standing at bat one day, without a clue as to the whereabouts of the ball, until it struck me full on the nose, smashing my spectacles and surprising me very much. I had a nose like a potato for a week afterward. My interest in cricket, therefore, is small, and tinged with disdain, but Cardus can make me like it. When I have finished this book, I shall hide it under my bed, where I am beginning a cache of favourite volumes.

✧ ✧ ✧

TUESDAY: The first seed catalogue of the year came at breakfast. There are people who read these things avidly, and plan great gardens for the Spring, but I am not of their number. Years ago I faced the fact that I have no talent for making things grow; I admire the gardens of others, but unless some gifted fellow wants to cultivate the pleasure grounds at the Towers, free, for his own enjoyment, I shall never have one around my house. . . Discussed the problem of what to do about books with a friend who tells me that he keeps a book I wrote in his bathroom, and reads it during periods when he has retired from the world. This is a splendid idea. There is not a single bookshelf in my bathroom, and yet it has quite a lot of wall space and a good light from the north. I shall fit some shelves in there at once, and I may even move in my desk, as there is a good lock on the door and I could ensure privacy. I shall establish fixed hours for those who wish to use the room for other purposes; the rest of the time it shall be my study.

✧ ✧ ✧

WEDNESDAY: Business took me to Toronto to-day, and in the evening I seized the opportunity to hear the Mendelssohn Choir perform Benjamin Britten's "Spring Symphony." It is probably a very fine work, but the Toronto performance seemed to me to be remorselessly loud; my ears began to hurt long before the end. The poetry which was used in the Symphony was of great beauty, but it had been set to music in such a way that the words had to be ripped, torn, chomped and mangled. I have long thought that if there were any justice in the world, musicians would have to show that they had some regard for poetry before they were permitted to bend it to their purposes. Musicians are bowelless dogs, ready to twist the fairest lyric into a pretzel to fit some trivial scheme of their own. Even the great Verdi, when he pillaged the plays of Shakespeare for libretti for his operas, did some dreadful things. He should have stuck with Victor Hugo who was nearer his own size. . . . After the "Spring Symphony," we had Walton's "Belshazzar's Feast" which was glorious, but also very loud. Was fascinated at one point when the tympanist dropped a folded handkerchief upon one of his great drums, and neatly walloped it. This is a refinement of which I had not thought drums capable.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: Was chatting to-day with my niece Bellimperia, whom I do not often see, but whose progress interests me. She is attending square dance classes, and she tells me that although he likes the dancing, she does not like boys. "Why?" I enquired. "Because they have dirty hands and they smell," she replied. Later in the day, I went with her father to fetch Bellimperia and some of her male friends who wanted a lift. Her general diagnosis of their social disabilities was correct. In fact, I wondered if it would not be wise to give them all the new chlorophyll tablets, which are guaranteed to vanquish the personality of a skunk. Bellimperia is ten. I suppose that time will wear out her indifference to the male.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: Picked up an American magazine to-day, which contained pictures of the descendants of George Washington, linked with some speculation as to which of them might be King of the U.S.A. to-day, if Washington had followed the original plan of the revolting colonists, and had permitted himself to become a monarch. Pondered upon the strange attraction which kings and kingship have for the citizens of the Great Democracy. . . Pondered also upon the cult for George Washington which has arisen. My Great-uncle Horatio Nelson Marchbanks, who was old enough to remember Washington, never referred to him in any terms more friendly than, "the dissident ruffian, Washington" or "the instigator of the rebel rabble." These are hard words, but I sometimes think that General Washington's general wonderfulness has been mildly exaggerated. He was, however, remarkable in one respect which is too often forgotten; he was one of the first successful wearers of complete dentures; his were joined at the back with an iron spring, which made him clamp his mouth shut in the manner made familiar in his portraits. American supremacy in dentistry may be said to spring from this.

✧ ✧ ✧

SATURDAY: Assisted this afternoon at one of those meetings where a concert committee decides what musicians it will engage for its series next season. Having decided how much money we had to spend, we spent two happy hours figuring out who we could get for it—Monsieur A, who plays the piano with his hands and feet, and who wants five thousand dollars to do it for an hour and a half, or Signor B, who plays the musical saw all night for twenty-five dollars; Madame Y, who had a wonderful voice twenty-five years ago, or Mademoiselle Z, who is expected to have a wonderful voice in a few years? As we pondered, I looked at the pictures of the artists in the catalogue which we used; what liars photographers are! There was a picture of a soprano, looking like a virgin of seventeen, whom I saw recently, with a neck like the bellows of an accordion, and bags under her eyes like golf balls. There was a tenor, showing his magnificent chest and leonine head, but omitting his legs, which are about ten inches long. Another tenor was shown with his eyes closed in ecstasy; when they are opened, I happen to know that one of them is a bad glass job which he made himself, from the bottom of a beer bottle. Ah, human vanity! Ah, photographic artifice!

ASKS BUS SERVICE FOR CADVERLEY

Sir: With the recent raise in fares by the Peterborough Bus Company and the acquisition of new equipment we feel that we are justified in again drawing attention to our request for service in the Cadverley subdivision.

From our point of view we feel that the Company is now over-serving some districts and completely neglecting others. As an example, we would like to point out that the Company is at present maintaining parallel services one block apart on Armour Road and Rogers Street, from Hunter to Dufferin, while we appreciate the difficulties involved in routing lines through the area, we cannot agree that such routing is financially a better proposition than that involved in our request.

In the past we have been refused an adequate service on the grounds of bad road conditions. Anyone living in the area realizes that this was adequate as an excuse—but as an excuse only.

The area is settled almost entirely by ex-service personnel and their families. The majority of these families do not own cars and would patronize a bus service daily.

We feel that the primary purpose of a bus line is to render service, at a nominal cost to the city's citizens. This service is not being provided.

If the Company can produce any sound reason for not servicing this populated area within the city, we will be the first to appreciate their point of view. If such reasons do not exist in fact then we respectfully request service at their earliest convenience.

We do not request a new route but we would appreciate the changing of an existing route.

We of the Cadverley subdivision believe Mr. Mitchell, manager of Peterborough Bus Lines to be a reasonable business man and we are confident that he will see the necessity for the aforementioned bus service and do something about it.

KIWANIS IS APPRECIATIVE

Sir: The committee responsible for the annual Music Festival in Peterborough arranged for by this Club are very appreciative of the Editorial in the Examiner recently. I have been asked to thank you for it and to assure you that it will always be our aim to so conduct the Festival that it will continue to be of value to the community.

Yours truly,

BITTER ABOUT CANADA

Sir: I feel I must answer your correspondent's smug, self-satisfied letter on "Immigration What For.". I am only one of thousands of unfortunate English emigrants who were lured to Canada by colorful posters, decorating "Rainbow Corner" (the immigration centre in London); my husband, myself and children came to Peterborough full of hope—hope that by hard work and opportunity we'd realize our ambitions, ambitions that included giving my four kiddies a chance to grow into decent citizens. Your Canadian interview officer told us this was a land of opportunity, that it was a paradise for children, Canadians loved children (ho, ho!), that my husband would earn a living wage, that we'd be able to build our own little home under the VLA scheme, that the cost of living wouldn't be much higher than that in England. It cost us $1,000 to come to this "Land of Opportunity?" $1,000 lost to us that I wish I had now for the fare home.

Why? I'll tell you. I'm bitter, against Canada and Canadians; firstly, to try and get a loan under the VLA Scheme was a laugh—against us. My husband, though a vet, was English, he might just as well have said he was a toy soldier for all the attention paid to him; secondly he doesn't earn a living wage to compete with your ever-uprising prices; thirdly, and I think the most important reason why I hope you'll publish this letter, is that my children haven't much chance of becoming decent citizens—in Canada at any rate. Your people definitely don't like children. I have had one or two chances of a house, but when I mention four kiddies, I might just as well say "I have the plague." I pay a high rent for a ramshackle old place, we may have to vacate it in May as the owner is thinking of pulling it down—all it's fit for.

Pretty picture isn't it? The only excuse I can give for your Canadian interviewer in London urging us to come to Canada, is that the Englishmen are so badly needed here, if Canadian industry is to survive, their work is far superior to that of the Canadians and always will be. That is why English goods are so welcome here. Yes, one point I must agree with your correspondent on, England is a fine country, I wish I were there now.

"DISGUSTED"

WHY PICK ON THE ENGLISH?

Sir: I have read with interest two articles that have appeared recently in your esteemed publication, written by "Canadian who has served," and "Canada, first, last, and always."

Why all this sudden blast against the English in particular? Perhaps I shouldn't say "sudden," because that sort of thing has been going on during the twenty years I have been in this country and probably longer. Haven't they one solitary word of condemnation for the Scotch, Irish, Dutch, Italians, Poles, D.P.'s who are also coming here?

Are the writers jealous because they know they can't lick an Englishman and never will?

These writers should remember that Canada was populated in the very early days by Scotch, Irish and don't forget, English settlers too! It may be that their forebears came from the "Old Land" too—perhaps they were English—and if it hadn't been for them they wouldn't be here now!

It seems strange that Canadians should kick up such a fuss because the English are coming, when Australia and New Zealand are welcoming them with open arms, even to the extent of providing free passages for children and skilled workers—the more the merrier.

At the present time there is in my opinion no need for a good, steady man to be unemployed, unless he is physically handicapped.

Not so long ago I heard of a chap who drove a lift truck at a local factory. He was a bit of a dizzy chap so it is said, and upset more truck-loads of stuff than he was worth. He finally got the sack.

I can understand that sort of a chap getting a little peeved, when he hears that more of those b——y Englishmen are coming!

Finally, many Englishmen joined the Canadian Armed Forces in World Wars I and II, while some Canadians skulked at home on their father's five acre farms and got away with it.

God Save the King!

Yours faithfully,

GERALD TULLY

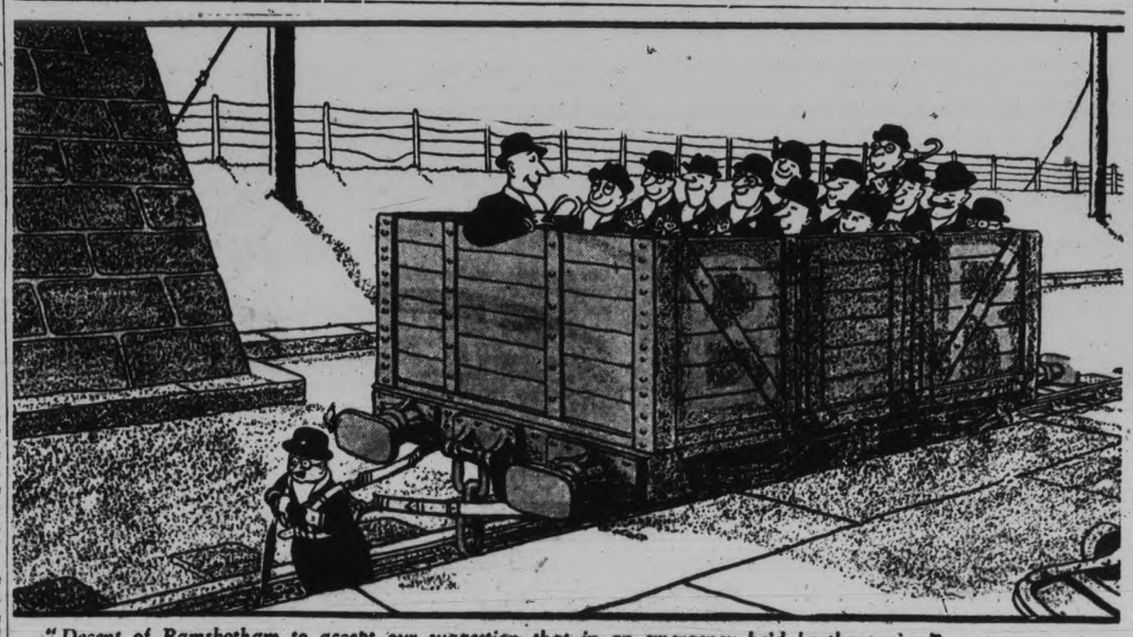
Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgements, and his ways past finding out!....

For of him, and through him, and to him, are all things: to whom be glory for ever. (Rom. 11: 33, 36.)

✧ ✧ ✧



And I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God....

And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God....

For who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ. (I Cor. 1, 4, 5, 16.)

✧ ✧ ✧

Let his mind be in you, which was also in Christ Jesus. (Phil. 2: 5.)

"Decent of Ramsbotham to accept our suggestion that in an emergency he'd be the engine."

Fur trading in Peterborough has been going on since white men first found their way into the Kawarthas. French buyers, trading with the natives in geegaws from their birch canoes, followed Champlain. Travelling English traders from the "Front" made seasonal trips into the district and frontier merchants counted on the fur trading end of their modest businesses as the profit side. More than six firms still flourish in industrial Peterborough and their business possibly totals thousands of dollars each year.

You can step into their establishments any day on the city's main streets and watch bundles of red fox—the season ended Feb. 28th—being dragged in to the trading counters. Some dealers are receiving as many as 60 pelts a day.

It is wrong to call it bartering as far as fox are concerned. The price is one dollar per pelt, take it or leave it. Skunk pelts this year have been very scarce, bringing a measly 35 cents per hide. One dealer told me that nine years ago, he bought 7,000 skunk pelts at $2.50 each. A few beaver have been brought in from the north part of the County and the coming season looks good for muskrats, experts say. But the famous Rice Lake 'rats have been falling off lately due to carp rooting out wild rice, wild celery and iris plants that the animals live on.

After business is finished in these establishments, the trapper and hunter, white and native, start their tales of the wilds, unbelievable things they have seen happen. Bass and frogs eating young muskrats, black snakes swallowing large mudcats. As many fox escape hunters by cupidity as there are shot or trapped, according to stories that follow in quick succession as the rooms fill with tobacco haze. The scene is no different, except for the fluorescent lighting, to gatherings of hunters and traders anywhere in the North country. I have watched trading in many places, a few in which trading sticks are used between buyer and seller instead of dollars. There is a sameness to it all.

Gunsmith Dave Clement of the Chemong Road dropped by the other day with news of prowess of target-rifle shooting for 1950 as listed by the Canadian Civilian Association of Marksmen. The Association supplies targets to entrants and the contestant may shoot anywhere in his own district as long as two witnesses are along. Dave's score for '50 was 99.06 which puts him away up near the top of competitive shooting. As he gets older, Dave says, he is more accurate and proved it by producing figures for the past five years. The fifth best marksman in Canada, Lloyd Walker of Toronto had a score of 99.44; he has only one arms, too. It was also interesting to learn the Ganaraska Rangers of Port Hope produced three shooters in the top-top bracket, George Box, Bill Meldrum and Harold Mumby. The only contestant in the top best few with a rifle made by himself for the competition was Dave Clement.

Only six more days until the opening of the Toronto Sportsmen's Show and this year's attractions, according to advance releases, are to be bigger and better than ever. There will be no doubt about that. Topping the bill will be Sharkey the seal, tank and stage show, and hundreds and hundreds of exhibits. Peterborough will be better represented that any Ontario centre of equal size,—boats, outboard motors, fishing tackle, trailers and watercraft accessories. There will be no tourist booth, however. Instead the Kawarthas will hold forth on the same show dates, March 9-17th, at the Cleveland Sportsmen's Show. So no matter how you look at it, Peterborough will still be represented at both.

Garageman Jim (Breezey) Withers built a 20-foot day cruiser from mail order plans last year, using plywood instead of planked hull as specified. The working model powered, by a 22 horse-power kicker gave such excellent performance on Chemong Lake in '50 that boatbuilder George Cook of Lakefield is now building a line of craft similar to Breezey's model.

Peterborough ice fishermen have been accorded a firm helping hand by Mr. Moon of Trenton, who has been providing fishing shack facilities and live bait. There has been little luck to rave about but it is nice to know Peterburians are so welcome in the Airforce Town. Please note: Some ice fisherman left a pair of gloves and flashlight on my desk two weeks ago with a note that they belonged to someone that was in Trenton. He didn't know the party's name, nor do I. I suggest that whoever finds these items missing, come and retrieve them, but fast, before they are completely snowed under.

Progress of Peterborough: LX

Industries Of District Survived 1873-79 Depression Well

By HOWARD PAMMETT, M.A.

The population of Victoria County increased during the decade 1871-81, as follows: (Following the township name is given, first, the population in 1871, and second, in 1881):

Victoria County

Mariposa, 5363, 5531; Ops 3350, 3358; Lindsay town, 4049, 5080; Emily, 3790, 2876; Verulam, 2692, 274; Eldon, 3052, 3778; Fenelon, 3949, 3094; Carden and Dalton, 1027, 1446; Bexley, 489, 903; Somerville, 1074, 1509; Laxton, Digby and Longford, 850, 957; Lutterworth, Anson and Hindon, 515 (1871); Omemee village (inc. 1874), 744, (1881); Fenelon Falls (inc. 1875), 1155 (1881); Bobcaygeon (inc. 1877), 750 (1881). Totals, 30,200, 33,655.

Peterborough County, Population 1871 and 1881:

Monaghan, 2624, 2060; Peterborough town, 4611, 6812; Smith, 3428, 3301; Enismore, 1104, 1137; Otonabee, 3392, 4013; Ashburnham village, 1197, 1266; Douro, 2671, 2864; Asphodel, 3247, 1918; Dummer, 1951, 2149; Belmont and Methuen, 1575, 1965; Harvey, 670, 1114; Galway and Cavendish, 521, 787; Burleigh, Anstruther, Chandos, Monmouth and Cardiff, 721, 1381 (Burleigh, Anstruther and Chandos alone); Snowden and Glamorgan, 399 (1871); Minden, 797 (1871); Stanhope and Sherborne, 310 (1871); Dysart, Dudley, Harcourt, Bruton, Harburn and Guilford, 655 (1871); Norwood village (inc. 1877), 853 (1881); Hastings village (inc. 1874), 692 (1881). Totals, 30,473, 32,312.

These tables indicate that the southern townships were losing many younger people to the new northern frontier, besides those commencing to go west to the prairies. Emily, Verulam, Fenelon, Monaghan, Smith, Asphodel and Cavan (from 4671 to 3479) declined in total population, although in some the decrease was due partly to the incorporation of villages. Other migrants moved from farms into the towns and villages. Other migrants moved from farms into the towns and villages — Peterborough County was 21 per cent urban in 1871 and 28 per cent in 1881, while in Victoria the percentages were 13 per cent and 23 per cent. Migrants were thus of two main classes (1) those seeking farms and lumber-work in the north; (2) those seeking urban industrials jobs.

The industries of the district survived the 1873-79 depression fairly well. Capital invested in industries rose 1871-81 from $1,374,699 to $1,624,723; net profit was 44½ per cent of investment in 1871, a high rate in our terms, and was exactly the same percentage in 1881. The number of workers, however, declined from 3,464 to 3,277, and their average wage per year fell from $227 to $233. The value of production rose from $3,197,356 to $3,695,725. In brief, fewer workers getting lower wages with the aid of better machines produced more goods and thus maintained profit rates for the employers. In Peterborough county the record is better: capital invested rose from $682,491 in 1871 to $948,397 in 1881, while net profit fell from 59½ per cent to 42 per cent. The number of workers rose from 1,718 to 1,790 and the average yearly wage from $227 to $237. Value of production went up from $1,843,84 to $2,158,498. In Victoria county, the picture is different: capital invested fell from $692,208 to $676,326, while net profit rose from 29¾ per cent to 47½ per cent. The number of workers fell from 1,746 to 1,487, and their average yearly wage from $228 to $208. The value of production increased from $1,353,512 to $1,537,227.

In simple terms, these figures mean that in Peterborough there was solid expansion in diversified industries yielding moderate profit, wherein workers' wages rose with their production; in Victoria with less capital and fewer workers getting smaller wages, there was more production and more speculative profit on "exploitive" industries such as the timber trade. Thus even by 1881 Peterborough was achieving a healthier even-balanced economy where the workers shared in prosperity, while Victoria which had obtained the major share of the timber trade by her new railways, nevertheless was not developing a diversified industrial growth which would maintain progress. In these calculations, the townships comprising Haliburton county after 1874 have been included in Victoria and Peterborough counties. If it had been possible to exclude Haliburton, the disparity between Peterborough and Victoria progress would have been considerably greater. As the timber trade declined in the next 30 years, this trend became more and more noticeable.

It is impossible to do more than briefly summarize the main industries other than lumbering and transportation: Foundries: increased 20-fold in number of workers and production; 3 large foundries in Peterborough by 1881 produced twice as much as 7 foundries in Victoria. Cheese factories increased from 1 (with 3 workers) producing $3,340 of product in 1871 to 11 (with 32 workers) producing $44,638 in Peterborough; and from no factories in Victoria 1871 to 7 (with 15 workers) producing $23,675 of product in 1881. Carpentry and furniture shops: increased production 4-fold in Peterborough, while Victoria production dropped one-third; production in Peterborough in 1881 was twiec that in Victoria. Wool mills: increased 9-fold in numbers while production doubled; in 1881, 45 mills in Peterborough produced over three times as much as 48 mills in Victoria; they were small mills averaging two to four workers. Carding and fulling mills more than doubled production in Peterborough, while dropping to one-third of 1871 production in Victoria. Tailor shops: more than doubled in Peterborough while remaining about the same in Victoria; in 1881 Peterborough production was over twice Victoria production. Flour mills: production rose 20 per cent in Victoria and fell 20 per cent in Peterborough, although still by 1881 50 per cent higher in the latter county in both production and employment; these were still nearly all water-powered mills.

Medicine, to produce health, has to examine disease, and music, to create harmony, must investigate discord.

Plutarch (A.D. 46-120)

Carriage and wagon shops: production went up 20 per cent in Peteborough and 10 per cent in Victoria with no increase in workers. Farm Machine factories: production and employment up 20 per cent in Peterborough, while in Victoria the industry almost disappeared; five shops with 31 workers producing $27,200 of product in 1871 fell to one shop with two workers producing $1,200 of product in 1881. Print shops: production and employment more than doubled in Peterborough; in Victoria, three shops with 16 workers producing $13,205 of product in 1871 fell to one shop with three workers producing $1,400 of product in 1881. Saddle and harness shops: production remained steady in Victoria but fell to half in Peterborough 1871-81. A few others, such as bakeries and dressmaking shops, increased production in both counties. Others such as tanneries, boot and shoe shops, brick and tile yards, tin and sheet iron shops, breweries, and pump factories, remained steady in the district. Cooper-shops and meat-curing plants remained about the same level in Peterborough while dropping to half of 1871 production in Victoria. It will be observed that the more urban industries of Peterborough county weathered the depression better than the others, in general. Manufacture of finished products promoted a more stable economy than exploitation of natural resources (timber, minerals, etc.)

Agriculture: Occupiers of land increased 25 per cent in the decade; the great majority continued to be owners, although tenant-farmers increased from 1,150 to 1,630, and farm-workers from 37 to 71. Acreage occupied rose by 40 per cent and acreage under crop similarly. The influence of dairying is seen in a doubling of pasturelands in this decade. Gardens and orchards also nearly doubled in acreage, as farmers grew more fruit and vegetables for themselves and for town market. The 1881 census did not give the number of farm machines and implements, but there is no doubt that wagons, plows, reapers, mowers, horse-rakes, threshing-mills, etc., also doubled in the period. Livestock in the decade follow: Horses from 16,855 to 23,780; working oxen from 2,908 to 1,599 (mostly in the north); cattle from 53,125 to 62,004; sheep from 56,182 to 44,402; pigs from 30,933 to 23,204. Meat, hide and wool prices fell so far in depression years that livestock were not profitable, except the cattle whose milk could now be sold to cheese factories, and the horses which brought a good price from lumbering firms.

Grains and other products yielded better by 1881: Wheat increased 20% and by 1881 was 9/10 spring wheat; Barley production tripled, and nearly equalled

Marmora Council Met 1850 10 s. Fine If Boar At Large

By W. J. COTTRELL

Recourse to the old minute book of Marmora and Lake township commenced on January 21, 1850, provided interesting history for those who make up the Marmora of today. This article covers the years 1850 and 1851 only.

At the first meeting of which there is record, January 21, 1850, the full representation of council members was made up of Solmon Johns, Laughlin Hughes, B. C. Johns, Isaac Broadworth and Patrick McCallum. Laughlin Hughes, by motion, was appointed "Town Reeve" and was later referred to as "His Honor the Reeve." Joseph Leggett, James Barley and William Lovell were appointed assessors and Edward Lennon, after whom Lennon's Bridge is named, was appointed collector.

At the next meeting held on February 9, James Bailey was appointed enumerator.

Pathmasters

Pathmasters were chosen as follows: Joseph Fitchett from Rawdon Line to Barley's Bridge. Barley's Bridge, as is little known, was the bridge spanning the Moira on the old Madoc road near to the Williams Mine. John Richardson junior from Barley's Bridge to the Iron Works. Alex McCallum, north side of No. 10 in the 8th concession to the Iron Works. James Barley, north west corner of No. 14 to south west corner of No. 18 in the 7th concession. Andrew Gowley from north side of No. 17 to No. 22 in the 10th concession. James Segriff (or Seagriff) from the top of the hill west end of the bridge (Marmora) to Rawdon Line. Barnabas Cain from corner of No. 10 in the 8th concession to Padgett's (or Paget's) Place. James Hamilton from No. 18 in the 4th concession to Hugh Jones' corner. John Lacky from No. 17 to No. 14 in the 8th concession.

John Cain, from top of hill, west end of Bridge to Rawdon Line. Hugh Jones from north side of lot 14 in the 7th concession to the Iron Works. Other appointments made were pound keeper, Joseph Leggett and James Crawford; auditors, John Meath, and James Fidlar; Superintendent of education, William Inkster; treasurer, Hugh Jones; township road surveyor, Hugh Crawford; fence viewers, Hugh Crawford, John Keys and John Richardson.

Fence Height Stipulated

The stipulation for the erection of fences was that they should be four feet and a half high, "laid up of good rails or logs."

The council next met on July 8 of that year when it was ordered that a new school section be formed on the west side of the township including the 1st, 2nd, 3rd concessions, lots 1 to 10 inclusive.

This is believed to refer to the old school which did duty before the present Beaver Creek school and was demolished by the late Murchison Johns.

Various petitions for new roads is the township were considered at the meeting held August 3, 1850. It was ordered "that all public roads be opened forty feet wide and that the township surveyor go and stake out each road no less than forty feet, and to straighten all roads where he finds it practicable, and that such roads be surveyed between now and the first of October, next."

Tax Money

The next meeting was on Oct. 19, 1850, at which a motion was passed that the sum of twelve pounds, ten shillings be levied and raised by tax to defray the expenses of the township and that a bylaw be passed for that purpose.

Salaries fixed at that meeting were: township clerk, four pounds per annum; township road surveyor, five shillings per day for every day he may be necessarily employed; township councillors, five shillings per day for every day they are actually sitting. At the last meeting in 1850 held on Dec. 7, a motion was passed that "whereas a grant of fifty pounds granted by county council for construction of bridge across the river Moira near the site of the old one known as Barley's Bridge and for the repairing of Leggett's Crossway (near the scene of present drilling for iron) and considering the sum insufficient for both: Be it resolved that Mr. Broadworth and Mr. Hughes be authorized to examine the site for the bridge and upon their report the clerk shall advertise for tenders and that good securities be required before the completion of the work on or before November next, and whatever sum may remain unexpended to be paid out on the cross way."

1851 Council

On Jan. 20, 1851, newly elected councillors met at James Segriff's Inn. The exact location of this inn is not known to the present writer. (There was a man named Seagriff who was ballast moulder at the Marmora Iron Works when a 152 days blast was run, commencing Dec. 15, 1825, and ending May 15, 1826, who received five shillings per diem for his work.)

At this 1851 meeting at Segriff's Inn, the newly elected councillors were Soloman Johns, Laughlin Hughes, B. C. Johns, Hugh Jones and James Hamilton. Two names were submitted for the reeveship —that of Hugh Jones and Solomon Johns. The latter received the honor. William Inkster was appointed clerk.

At the next meeting held Feb. 20, 1851, Isaac Broadworth was appointed assessor and collector. The number of pound keepers was raised from two to four, those appointed being John Wolfe, Edward Lennon, James Brown and Thomas Callaghan. Fence viewers were also increased to four, the appointments being Patrick McCallum, John Keys, Thomas Wiley and John Cain. The treasurership passed to John Meath.

James Fidlar and James Segriff were appointed auditors. William Inkster was reappointed superintendent of education.

Various bylaws were passed, including one on pathmaster's duties and statute labor; another on public highways, two on pound keeping, another for prevention of cattle running at large, and others relating to the operation of inns or houses of public entertainment.

Extracts from these bylaws follow.

Poundage fees: horse, cow, ox or bull, nine pence; sheep, calf or hog, four pence. Fines for cattle running at large: For every ram and boar, 10 shillings each offence; for every stallion, 20 shillings each offence; for every horse, mare or gelding, five shillings each offence; for breachy cattle, five shillings each offence.

No innkeeper was permitted to sell spirituous liquor after "the hour of ten o'clock in the afternoon." Innkeepers were to provide for travellers at least three beds over and above what may be required for private use. No innkeeper was to be permitted to sell liquor on the Sabbath Day with the exception that two glasses be given to a traveller during the day. Innkeepere were to be bonded on two sureties to the amount of twenty pounds currency. Four pounds currency was to be imposed upon them over and above the duty imposed by act of parliament.

A final bylaw changed the height of fences from four feet and a half to five feet with six feet crook and not more than four inches betwen the three lower rails and in the case of log fences not more than four inches between the two lower logs.

At the next meeting held on June 2nd a motion was carried that Mr. Meath be requested to examine the site of the bridge across the river Moira near Bailey's Old Bridge and report thereon the manner of bridge necessary to be built.

At the meeting held October 27, James Segriff was appointed pathmaster in place of G. Nelson, absconded. The motion was carried that £43, 15s. be levied for county purposes, £17.1.5 for school purposes and £43.10.5 for township purposes.

UK Exports Hockey Goods Made By Canadian Players

Just two years ago, Britain was importing all her ice-hockey equipment from Canada. Today she is an exporter to a number of markets including Canada. This summer will see an extensive range of UK-made hockey needs displayed among the sports goods at the Festival of Britain—where only articles which have stood rigorous tests of usage will be on view.

Behind the industry are three former professionals — two of them Canadians — who joined forces to found the firm of Dunkelman and Sons. Fred Dunkelman hails from Midland, Ont., where he once played on the British Consul juvenile team, while J. Wood comes from Montreal. With their intimate knowledge of the game and its needs, they set about correcting deficiencies in standard gear then in use everywhere.

As a result, they have introduced a number of constructional modifications. Shin and elbow guards are padded with fibre instead of cane strips, resulting in lighter weight and better protection, and all guards are moulded to fit the parts they are intended to protect.

Even glove fingers are bent to the right curvature, instead of leaving it to the player to unstiffen them in use.

New Hockey Stick

A new form of hockey stick built up of laminated wood was evolved, but has had to be shelved temporarily due to difficulty in obtaining a lamination of suitable gauge. Meanwhile Dunkelmans are turning out their own line of sticks, made from solid timber. An important departure here is the use of American rock elm instead of the traditional ash.

The only major items of hockey equipment the firm has not yet put on the market are boots and skates. However, they are at present working closely with Britain boot manufactures to improve on existing designs, and they plan to bring out a new line soon.

NEVER talk your best in the company of fools.

THIS I WILL ADVISE YOU TO, which is, never to attack whole bodies of any kind. . . . Individuals forgive sometimes; but bodies and societies never do.

ALL GENERAL REFLECTIONS upon nations and societies are the trite, threadbare jokes of those who set up for wit without having any.

MANY PEOPLE COME INTO COMPANY full of what they intend to say in it themselves, without the least regard to others; and thus charged up to the muzzle are resolved to let it off at any rate. I knew a man who had a story about a gun, which he thought a good one and that he told it very well. He tried all means in the world to turn the conversation upon guns; but, if he failed in his attempt, he started in his chair, and said he heard a gun fired; but when the company assured him they heard no such thing, he answered, perhaps then I was mistaken; but however, since we are talking of guns,—and then told his story, to the great indignation of the company.

THE LETTERS OF LORD CHESTERFIELD (1694-1723)

2 Cuckoos In A Barbershop Pose Problems, Tickle Tots

By L. M. PETTICREW, Hastings.

Having two cuckoo clocks in one place at the same time could get to be a problem, as could be attested by E. J. Petticrew, who operates a small watch repair shop at Hastings.

Now this might not be such a problem if it were not that Mr. Petticrew also operates a barber shop in the same building, as a sideline.

Mr. Petticrew, who has been barbering for 35 years, started repairing watches some years later.

Everything ran smoothly as cuckoo clocks, grandfather clocks, clocks that are wound once a year, and all types of the trade passed through the doors.

A cuckoo clock might turn up once every three or four years. But then the inevitable happened. Two cuckoo clocks arrived almost at the same time, though from different sections of the country. These clocks, comprised mostly of wood, wire, and a wind bellows, were put in running order and placed on the wall, in plain view of everyone. But few notice them until the birds chirp their cuckoo on the hour or half-hour.

Caught By Surprise

It usually occurs that one bird beats the other out the door. If a gentleman should be sitting in the barber chair with his back to the clocks when the time comes, he is caught by surprise. His head turns instinctively toward the clock as he watches the tiny bird in wonderment. With a few comments passed he is ready to forget the novelty.

And then the other bird appears, which causes the head to swing around still further. That bird has a bass voice; he must have a cold. During this procedure of head swinging, the barber stands back slightly bored, afraid his scissors which may be snipping at hair, may come in contact with an ear.

Naturally the best picture seems to be the gentleman who is lying outright in the chair being shaved. The hankering to take forty winks while in this position is overwhelming, due to the continual tick-tock of clocks which act like a drug. Disregarding this sleepy urge, the bird, who must always make his appearance at the proper time, opens the door and yells, "Cuckoo." As if war were declared, the patron rises up with eyes bulging and declares, "What was that; I though all the birds went south for the winter?"

And then discovering the object he says secretly: "A cuckoo clock! Golly, don't see many of them nowadays."

This brings up a subject to be discussed while the barber is sewing up the fellow's throat, where his surprise brought him in contact with the razor.

Cuckoo Bribe

But cuckoos aren't always troublesome. The children who will swear there is a live bird living in the wooden cage, stand around hungrily waiting for the next move. So it is only natural that where children were formely offered candies and goodies to act human while getting their hair cut, now cause little trouble after being promised a look at the cuckoo bird if they are good. This promise must always be kept in good faith, and so the clock must be set ahead to the next striking point. This of course will give the wrong time, so that a barbershop proves to be a poor place to look for the right time by the cuckoo clock.

Although the children think the bird is alive it must be admitted that it is only a wooden dummy. How else would you keep them running? They would get mighty dirty with a bird living in them. Wire and wood is the best explanation of the cuckoo clock. The case is wood with beautiful engravings of birds and leaves on it. The sound made by the bird is caused by two air bellows such as blacksmiths used to use, only smaller. One is placed on either side of the clock, on the inside over a small opening in the case where the air is taken in. One bellows draws in more air than the other, one giving the "cuc" and the other the "koo," which are like two notes on a pipe organ.

How Birds Move

The bird sits on a wire which is turned when the striking time comes, the bellows working off the same apparatus. The turn of the wire forces the bird out the door (rain or shine). A wire which is attached to the bird is also hooked to the small door. As the bird comes forward the wire pushes the door open. This keeps the bird from hitting his beak against the door.

Another wire is placed under the bird's tail, and it raises his tail up and down every time he chirps.

The bird is made of small pieces of wood and held together with wire. If it is in good working order, you can also notice, if you are close enough, that the small wires also push the bird's wings out while he is in action. (No wonder the kids think he's real.)

The clock is run by two iron weights placed on the end of chains. One is to run the clock while the other acts as the power for the striking or cuckoo. These chains run over notched pulleys so that when the weight pulls the chain down, it turns the pulley which runs the clock.

This chain process makes them very easy to wind, as a person only has to pull down on the loose end of the chain to raise the weight on the other end. The clock will stop if the weights should touch the floor, therefore the clock must be placed high enough on the wall to let the chain run out to the end without this happening.

It is Mr. Petticrew's theory that if the chain was long enough the cuckoo clock would run indefinitely. But that would mean it would have to be placed up very high, where it would only be seen from airplanes.

Now, here is one you can try. Place the clock on the wall. Dig a well directly beneath it, down which the weights can descend. You may dig right through the earth if you want to.

But, remember — dont let this thing drive you cuckoo.

Redmen Down Eagles, 8-3 To Open Group Semi-Finals

Roaring back in the last two periods here last night in furious fighting form, the Belleville Redmen upset the Eagles to take an 8-3 victory in the first of their best-of-five OHA senior "B" group semi-finals. A fair-sized crowd saw the injury-riddled Eagles fade after a 2-0 lead early in the second period with the scrappy and fast-stepping Redmen earning the verdict the rest of the route.

Wally Bent's boys really hustled while the Magee men—minus Crowley, Vitarelli and Greenlaw—appeared disorganized over most of the distance. They fought hard but couldn't click and their best efforts were turned aside by close-checking Redmen and good goal-keeping by Jimmy Irvine. The score was 1-0 for Eagles in the first but 4-3 for Belleville going into the 4-0 third chukker. They split the six penalties in a clean and fairly fast fray. The next tilt is Monday in Belleville.

Green Shone

Johnny Green shone for the Quinte crew on the attack, scoring three goals and aiding on another, Doug Free was in on two, as single points were garnered by Bastedo, Schreider, McDonald, Mulvihill, Goyer, Semark, Jones and Schmidt. Wardhaugh aided on a pair. Andy Milne was in on a pair for the Eagles, with singletons going to Freddy Mortimer, Sixty Coombs, Joe Rochetta and Bert Hill.

McDonald was gated early for interference but was back when Fred Mortimer scored in close on combination with Milne. Lalonde went over later for interference and was back when Coombs got it for tripping. The Eagles had an edge on play in this rather scrambly period, but Goalie Irvine was hard to beat.

Made It 2-0

Coombs made it 2-0 in the second from Hill and then Belleville got rolling. They scored four without a return. Bastedo batted Green's rebound and Schreider cuffed home a forward pass from Goyer. Free went around Irvine alone for a nice one and, after Lalonde had served an interference penalty, Green slapped one into the twine on neat inside combination with Wardhaugh and Semark. The Redmen were really flying in this frame and fighting for the puck every second. Green got it for kneeing, but was back when Rochetta tipped in a pass from Milne for a nice marker to make it 4-3 for the visitors. Ross Nicholls was good to keep the count down that low as Belleville had a good edge on play.

Green scored early on Schmidt's rebound in the third, and McDonald added another from Free after Nicholls was sprawled from saving one shot. They kept pouring in till Schmidt drew a holding penalty which did not prove costly. Later Green tore in speedily with Jones' pass to slap the cookie into the cage, and then Mulvihill made it 8-3 on a fast-breaking rush and close-in pass from Wardhaugh. Eagles kept battling back and had some close thrusts but couldn't whittle down the count. Teams:

Belleville: Goal, Irvine; defence, Bastedo and Schmidt; centre, Wardhaugh; wings, Mulvihill and Green; alternates, Goyer, McDonald, Moher, Day, Free, Jones, Semark, Schreider.

Eagles: Goal, Nicholls; defence, Munroe and Lalonde; centre, Milne; wings, F. Mortimer and D. Mortimer; alternates, Rochetta, Coombs, Hill, Stewart, Montgomery and Burns.

Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

That was some piece of curling news that came out of Lindsay last evening. The story broke around 6:30 o'clock. It came to us first by phone, then by wire, then by radio and finally verbally. It seems that Dr. R. Clark's local rink was playing against B. Everson's Lindsay rink in the final game of the main event of the week-long mixed rink bonspiel and the game had only nicely begun when the Everson quartet hung up the possible score—an eight end—on the genial Doctor. Suffice to say, the doctor finished as runner-up. We don't know the exact score but from reports it was plenty. Rumor had it around our own rink last night that the doctor knows now positively and definitely what "The Thing" is.

Other members of this rink were Mrs. A. Jones, Mrs. L. Browne and F. Green.

Mrs. G. Wood, Mrs. H. Fanning, Mrs. V. Selkirk and Mrs. T. Doughty are playing at the Granite Club.

Cyril Giroux's rink captured the Green Consolation event. He had with him Mrs. T. Doughty, Mrs. L. Bearne and T. Doughty.

Dave Charlton's rink was runner-up in the main Green event, and while we are not sure we believe his rink was Mrs. D. Charlton, Mrs. C. Coons and C. Coons.

So taking it all around, the local boys and girls did real well—nice going.

Toronto, Monday morning is the annual bonspiel for the Shannon Trophy.

And tonight at 7:00 o'clock and 9:00 o'clock it's the Sturgeon Trophy.

Junior Girls Of PCVS Oust Lindsay

PCVS' colors, Garnet and Grey, will be flying in the COSSA girls' championship tournament March 17, in Toronto. Miss Eva Scott's junior girls' basketball team easily defeated Lindsay Collegiate Friday afternoon 34-10 in the second of the two-game series for the lakeshore district title. They won the series 63-28.

Friday's win was the team's eighth this year without a defeat, and Lindsay was poor opposition for playoff time. The PCVS girls met their stiffest test in the Bowmanville games, winning away by a point and at PCVS by four.

During the six league games they ran up 168 points in six games against the opposition's 78. This past series' points brings the total to 231 and 106 against.

Friday night's game was typical PCVS junior girls' basketball. The guards checked the Lindsay forwards closely and took possession at every opportunity. Outwitting the Lindsay girls the Garnet and Grey guards passed quickly to the forwards who broke with zip up the floor. Once in the offence zone the forwards used short, jerky passing plays to work neatly under the basket.

Checking Pests

Betty Wilkinson and Phyl Peryer were checking pests. They hounded the Lindsay forwards, Wilkinson leading the guards' up-the-floor work and Peryer sharing the rebounds.

The scoring was pretty well the same old story, Carol Ferguson, Maisie Shearer, Rosie McInroy and Reta Naylor. Ferguson found the second half to her liking with fast dribbles and short one-hand stabs for 12 points. Shearer, McInroy, Naylor, with Lorraine Derry at times, kept the Lindsay guards spinning with their short, quick plays.

Carol Ferguson easily led the scoring with 16 points. Teammate Rosie McInroy had nine and Reta Naylor six. Marg Swinson and Eunice Worsley each had four for LCI.

Change Face-off Zones Campbell Proposal

TORONTO, March 3—(CP)—A Toronto paper today quotes National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell as saying he would like to see the two face-off zones in each end of the hockey surface replaced by a single and larger zone, located directly in front of each goalie.

He is quoted as saying such a modification would speed up the game, eliminate much of the practice of freezing the puck, especially by goalies, and permit a better spectator view of goal-range plays on faceoffs.

The present zones, one at each side of each goal, have a 10-foot radius. Campbell's projected zone would have a 15-foot radius, with the circumference passing within five feet of each goal-line. Only the centre men would be permitted within the circle—as in the smaller zone—and much of the scrambling, of necessity, would be eliminated, he feels, with the players forced to cover a wider area.

Campbell said he hopes to sell the idea to the league's six governors.

Havelock Boys Win

HAVELOCK, March 3 (ENS)—Havelock midgets took a 10 to 5 lead over Keene at the local Arena on Thursday in the first game of the home-and-home series, with goals to count.

Bill Buchanan scored three goals for Havelock, with two assists going to Ken McMullen and one of Bill Laing. J. Ruttan and Bill Laing each got two goals unassisted, followed by one unassisted by Jim Chase. The remaining two goals were scored by K. Nobes and K. McMullen on assists from J. Ruttan and B. Buchanan.

Havelock led in scoring through the game. At the end of the first period the tally was 4 to 2, and at the end of the second period 7 to 4. Four penalties were handed out during the game, two to each team.

The teams:

Havelock—Goal, Bruce Anderson; defence, B. Laing, T. Heath; forwards, J. Chase, J. Ruttan, K. Nobes; alternates, A. Patterson, B. Buchanan, K. McMullen, M. McCabe, C. McKay, J. Rowat, B. Revoy.

Keene—Goal, J. Lang; defence, G. Sheldon, F. Whalen; forwards, A. Renwick, D. Bethune, J. McCarthy; alternates, K. Edwards, B. Herron, P. Elmhirst.

Matthews Triumphs

NEW YORK, March 2 (AP).—Harry Matthews, boxing's latest sensation, sought a title shot with light heavyweight champion Joey Maxim today following his decisive victory over Irish Bob Murphy. The 28-year-old ex-GI from Seattle and Idaho showed 6,922 fans in Madison Square Garden and television viewers some of the finest boxing seen around here in many years Friday night. There hasn't been a better body puncher in these parts since Jake La Motta was sending them solid about five years ago.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

There's an interesting article in the current issue of Life Magazine on Conny Smythe, the hot-headed and colorful Irish boss of Toronto Maple Leafs in the NHL. But we were particularly interested in the opening paras, concerning Irvin (Ace) Bailey, who helped bring the Petes the senior OHA title in 1926 ere joining the Leafs. It starts off thusly: "The moment before a man gets his brains knocked out — or almost knocked out — is one not easily forgotten. Conny Smythe, president of Toronto Leafs, remembers it as vividly as if it had happened to him. From his bench in Boston Garden he saw his Maple Leafs and the rival Boston Bruins scrambling for the puck.

* * * * * *

"He saw hockey's great 'bad man,' Boston's Eddie Shore, come charging down on Ace Bailey like a locomotive in a Pearl White movie. Smythe tightened up. There was a crash. Ace Bailey catapulted into the air and came down on his head. He lay there bleeding, motionless except for a convulsive twitching of the muscles. After the first stunned silence, one of Smythe's other boys, big Red Horner, skated up to Shore. 'Put your hands up, I'm going to hit you,' he said, and then swung. The blow knocked Shore backwards in a half-flip. He too came down on his head. He lay still in another widening pool of blood. Bedlam broke loose in the Garden.

* * * * * *

So Conny Swung, Too

"As the unconscious players were carried from the ice, Smythe went right with them. So, when a loud-mouth fan blocked his way, Smythe swung on him, putting every one of his 132 pounds behind the blow. The fan's glasses were shattered and more blood flowed. There never was a night like it in bigtime hockey. Smythe was hauled off to the police station. Ace Bailey was rushed to hospital where an emergency operation was performed on his broken skull. Eddie Shore, with seven stitches in his scalp, was hustled off to Bermuda to wait until things cooled down. It was just as well that he was. A man with a hard look in his eye blew into town from Bracebridge, Ont., and began making inquiries. 'I'm Ace Bailey's father,' the man said, calmly pulling a six-shooter out of his pocket; 'where can I find Shore?'" Don't you love that six-shooter stuff?

* * * * * *

To digress for a moment toward the wrestling ring, we note where curly-haired Timothy Geohagen, the strong man from Dublin, is matched in the main bout here Tuesday against Yukon Eric. That should be something to see. The speedy bulldog of an Irisher driving in against the powerful Alaskan who plants his big bare feet on the floor and defies opponents to throw him. Tommy O'Toole, a newcomer up this way, is in the semi-final with Sonny Kurgis. The prelim has a new Frenchy named Pierre LaSalle tackling Jack Wentworth. It'll no doubt draw another hefty crowd.

OHA Playoffs On Tap

Two important OHA playoffs on tap for local puck fans. One tonight at 8.30 in the Arena is the fourth OHA junior "B" semi-final playoff betwixt Lindsay Kin and the IOOF-ers and rates a packed house. Monday eve here sees Kingston Nylons and the Petes resume their series to declare an Allan Cup contender. Mike Rodden writes: "It would be ridiculous to assume that the Petes won't live up to past performances. The pace-setters didn't get that way by loitering and, to their credit, it must be said that they vanquished the Eagles last Wednesday and eliminted a prospective all-Peterborough Allan Cup series which would have attracted capacity crowds with no travelling expenses incurred."

* * * * * *

At this writing we hadn't the final score of the Nylons-Petes' game, but we certainly know the senior "B" score here. 'Twas 8-3 for Belleville Redmen o'er the luckless Eagles, and Wally Bent's hustlers deserved the win. They battled back furiously from a 2-0 deficit early in the second chukker and kept pelting Ross Nicholls with assorted hunks of hot rubber the rest of the way. The Eagles, who have been plagued with injuries nearly all season, were minus three players again last p.m. (apart, of course, from Godfrey and Parnall), as Greenlaw had the flu, Vitarelli was still out with a recent injury and high-scoring Bill Crowley couldn't get off work. They'll have to really get in there Monday in Bella Villa or their chance at group finals will be as slim as a 40-cent steak.

Say DiMaggio, Mize Can't Go Full Season

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 3 —(AP)—Casey Stengel is resigned to the fact that his two veteran sluggers, Joe DiMaggio and Johnny Mize, cannot play through a full season. "I'll settle for 100 games from each of them this year," the New York Yankee manager said yesterday.

Mize is optimistic and believes he can come up to Stengel's expectation. "I'm in shape and 100 games ought to be about right for me," says the big first-baseman who was 38 last January.

DiMag, who had his 36th birthday last November, brushes off any suggestion as to his longevity. "I'm here and I'm in shape," he says. "I'll go as far as I can. I won't try to guess how many games that will be."

PCVS Hoopsters Take Two In The Playoffs

By FRED MAYBEE.

Bev. Goulding's fine junior and senior basketball squads emerged victorious in last night's lakeshore final series with their respective secondary school rivals, Cobourg and Whitby. Both games were decidedly one-sided with the juniors victors by a score of 48-21 and their senior mates lacing the blue and gold Whitby crew in the nightcap by the large total of 72-21. A good crowd of students, parents and members of the collegiate staff and others were in attendance as the boys gave a nifty display.

Bill Stewart, all-round athletic star, led his mates in the fast junior opener. His speedy, accurate passing, receiving and deadly shooting proved a strong factor as he racked up 11 points. Close behind came Bob Boorman with eight points. Murray Grafstein and Jim Hendry had six apiece while Lionel Hempstead collected five. Creighton Johnston sank two baskets, Reg. Fowler one, while Dan Griffin and Dave Langhorne each garnered three points as team-play paid off, in a big way.

PCVS outplayed their rivals from the start and led at half-time 28-6 as their effective attack combined with an equally air-tight defence proved too much for the plucky Cobourg lads. A bright star in their cast however showed in the person of "Birdie" Jack Allan, who alone could penetrate PCVS' defence. Birdie led all the scorers with 17 points in a fine individual showing to score all but four of his team's aggregate.

Northcott Stars

Al Northcott, perennial star of football and basketball, gave a masterful display in the lively senior fixture as he sank 13 baskets and two penalty shots for a total of 28 points to gain individual honors for the night in the scoring column. The work of the team as a whole was the big feature as every member of the squad played his position well and gave his best with Thompson outstanding on attack also with 14 points.

PCVS proved too strong for Whitby and, though they gave their best, the lakeshore boys were never in the ball game, in a scoring way. The locals led by a margin of 32-11 at the half as Thompson and Northcott alone totalled 17 points, including three penalties as the whole team uncorked a dazzling offensive. This they continued in the second part to win going away. Return games of these home and home series, points to count, will be played next week with the winners going into COSSA playdowns. Teams:

Cobourg High: Allan 17, Lingard 2, Round 2, Boswell, MacIntosh, Spalding, Niles.

PCVS Jrs.: Langhorne 3, Fowler 2, Hempstead 5, Boorman 8, Hendry 6, Johnston 4, Grafstein 6, Griffin 3, Stewart 11.

Whitby Seniors: Robertson 2, Campbell, Slessor 1, Moorhouse 12, Lyons 1, Bropghton 2, Zolopa 1, Rowley, Stott 2.

PCVS: Northcott 28, Ash 8, Thompson 14, Brown 4, Frise 9, McIlraith 4, Evans 5, Cranfield, Young.

Laferte In Top Spot At Ski Jumping Trials

REVELSTOKE, B. C., March 3 (CP).—Lucien Laferte sailed from Olympic Hill three times Friday and landed into first place in the Canadian Olympic ski jumping trials here.

The steel-nerved native of Three Rivers, Que., compiled a total of 316.2 points and narrowly beat out Jacques Charland, also of Three Rivers.

Laferte slammed down the new 64-metre hill on his second run for a record leap of 211 feet for the hill. On his first and third he was registered at 203 feet and 193 feet respectively.

Charland was in second place with 312.9 points. He made leaps of 196, 211 and 201.

Nylons Edge Out Petes 4-2 In Chippy Playoff Struggle

KINGSTON, March 3.—Kingston Nylons, playing smartly all the way, turned back the Peterborough Petes by 4 to 2 in Harty Arena last night and levelled the Allan Cup elimination round at one victory each. It was a thrilling duel that these old rivals staged but on the night's play the locals were clearly the superior team. The Petes, who won the opener by 8 to 3 on home ice last Wednesday, wavered during the early stages of the initial period and Nylons sewed up the verdict on shots by Kenny Potts, Bud Aitken and Doug Patterson.

Although productive of only nine penalties, one of these a major to Patterson, chippy tactics were in evidence throughout and interference was rampant by both teams. However, there was nothing chippy about an outbreak that occurred at the 10:52 mark in the last period when Doug Patterson's swinging stick struck Chum Fryia on the ear, inflicted a gash and hospitalized the victim.

An Uproar

As Fryia sank to the ice bedlam broke loose in the arena and on the ice, and goal-keeper Ray Harding rushed two-thirds the length of the ice to attack Patterson. Order was quickly restored and Patterson was handed a major sentence. Over the rest of the journey the visitors had a slight advantage and were full value for the final goal that Horton scored at 15:15.

Jack McKeown, aided by Aitken and Bob Joyce, opened the tallying at the 15:31 mark in the second period and almost immediately trouble occurred behind the Peterborough bench. The police, however stopped that nonsense in record time. Later it was reported that the brilliant Honey Tompkins had been subjected to a bit of verbal abuse.

The game, by far the most exciting of the long season, was witnessed by almost 1,800 fans and only the bleacher seats were unoccupied. The ice was lightning fast and there were enough spills and thrills to fill all demands. Into the bargain Nylons came through with a stellar display and showed no weak shots defensively or on the attack.

Good Goalie

Glynn Udall and Ray Harding tied for goal-keeping laurels and could not be held responsible for the shots that eluded them. Udall, in particular, made several saves that were extraordinary and was almost invincible when the desperate invaders threw caution to the winds in attempting to pull the verdict from the fire during the last 10 minutes.

While the Petes held the dangerous Gerow-Partis-Catlin line in complete scoring subjection, they failed to stop the youthful Aitken-McKeown-Joyce trio and paid the penalty in defeat. Joyce, with three assists, topped the point getters while McKeown and Aitken each scored a goal and had an assist. Kenny Potts and Patterson collected the other markers.

Fryia and Horton were the snipers who beat the agile Udall while G. Leonard drew the lone assist. The local defence was like a stone wall most of the time but did experience trouble in stopping the elusive Tompkins who, although playing on the defence, found time to participate in most of Peterborough's most promising assaults. Defensively Tompkins was also conspicuous and effective, and his checking and clearing prevented Nylons from registering a runaway victory.

Nylons again played without the services of Johnny Armstrong but had one more player in uniform than did the Petes who used only half a dozen alternates.

Petes: Goal, Harding; defence, Horton and Tompkins; centre, G. Leonard; wings, Fryia, J. Mortimer; alternates, Garvey, Dugan, Floyd, Collins, Jopling, E. Leonard.

Nylons: Goal, Udall; defence, Patterson and Plumb; centre, Partis; wings, Gerow and Catlin; alternates, McKeown, Aitken, Joyce, Potts, Harrison, Watts, Murphy.

Referees: Jim Crombie and Bill Holway.

Penalties—None.

Lindsay Rink Gets Eight-End

LINDSAY, March 3.—A Lindsay rink, skipped by the veteran Berf Everson, scored a perfect end, counting 8, in a game in the one week mixed bonspiel against Dr. Ralph Clark of Peterborough. A large crowd followed the final game between these two strong rinks and pounded the glass and cheered when Everson came through with the eight-end and through the game to win the top prize. It is Everson's second victory in two years with the same rink, which comprises: Mrs. Thibadeau (lead), Gordon Devitt (second), Mrs. G. Devitt (vice), and Bert Everson (skip). In two years in this event Everson has won 12 games.

Campbellford Ousts Norwood In The TVL

NORWOOD, March 3 (ENS).—Before 800 home fans Norwood were eased out of the TVL playdowns Friday night by Campbellford. On soft ice Campbellford edged Norwood 5-3 to take the two-out-of-three series two straight.

Two goals in the third period sank Norwood's hopes for continuation. Robinson connected at the six-minute mark and Harrington scored from Robinson four minutes later for Campbellford. They had taken a 2-1 score in the first on goals by Blake and Harrington, Whitnall teaming up with Thompson and Payne for the Norwood goal.

Norwood were tops in scoring in the second period when they outscored Campbellford 2-1 to tie it at three-all. Griffin notched the first from Whitnall, and Gilbert the second from Petersen. Harrington from Blake was the Campbellford marker.

Campbellford: Goal, Laverne; defence, Trumble, Tanner; centre, Blake; wings, Harrington, Pate; alternates, Robinson, Mason, Cole Dooher, Jeffs, MacMillan, Smith, Peake.

Norwood: Goal, Renwick; defence, Fennell, Rogers; centre, Webb; wings, Payne, Thompson; alternates, Whitnell, Ferguson, Gilbert, Williams, Petersen, Griffin, Starke, Wilson.

Schoendienst Signs

ST. LOUIS, March 3—(AP)—Second-baseman Red Schoendienst, one of the last important holdouts in the major leagues, Friday signed his 1951 contract. It was reported he got a $2,000 raise over the $22,000 he made last year. Three Redbirds still are out of the fold. They are pitchers Max Lanier and Howard Pollet and outfielder Harry Lowrey.

Rollins, Sawchuk Chief Candidates For Rookie Prize

By MEL SUFRIN,
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

There has been a lot of speculation lately as to why Toronto Maple Leafs have been using Al Rollins in goal more often than veteran Turk Broda.

Chief reason seems to be that Rollins has been so good that it would be unwise to take him out. But it may also be that a little matter of $1,200—the money that goes with the annual rookie-of-the-year award—has had some influence.

Rollins is a rookie with the lowest average of goals against him so far this season. As such, he is a likely candidate for the Calder Memorial Trophy, awarded each year to the "player selected as the most proficient in his first year of competition in the National Hockey League.

But the Leafs must also realize that the more games a player participates in the better his chance of winning the trophy in the annual poll of sports writers and sportcasters.

In 32 Games

Thus far Rollins has taken part in 32 of Toronto's 58 games and has allowed an average of 1.88 goals in a game. His closest competitor for goalie honors is Terry Sawchuk of Detroit Red Wings, also a rookie. Sawchuk, who has played all 59 Detroit games, has allowed 2.15 goals a game.

Sawchuk was rookie award winner in both the United States Hockey League and American Hockey League, and the Red Wings are pushing him for the hat trick.

Aside from the two goaltenders there are about 18 other rookie players in the league this year who may qualify for the award.

Outstanding among them is Danny Lewicki, Toronto forward, who is tops among the rookie scorers with 16 goals and 18 assists. He's 16th in league scoring.

Other forwards in their first year are Reg Sinclair of New York Rangers who is 41st in league standings with 12 goals and 12 assists; Vic Stasiuk, now with Detroit, 52nd with seven goals and 13 assists; Vern Kaiser, Paul Masnick of Montreal Canadiens and Lorne Ferguson of Boston Bruins.

T. H. Garland Retires As Football Chairman

T. H. G. Garland has decided to retire this spring as chairman of the Peterborough and District Football Association, after serving in that capacity for two years. He has been a first-class soccer referee since 1920, handling games in Scotland, Iraq, India, Western Canada and Ontario, as well as being on the referees' list for the RAF in Kent, Essex, Middlesex and Birks and Bucks. He officiated in inter-county matches, amateur and senior cup games and the Association cup rounds.

Later this year, Mr. Garland plans a visit to the Old Country to renew acquaintances with former associates among professional, amateur and senior football players. Though retiring from the Association here, he will continue as a first-class referee with the Ontario Football Association.

Dutchmen Bow To Bengals But Have Top Scoring Line

By The Canadian Press

Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen lost the final game of the Ontario Hockey Association senior schedule Friday but emerged with the league's top scoring line in Billy Flick, Mickey Roth and Dinny Flanagan.

Bengals took the game 7-4.

Now ranked 1-2-3 in scoring, Flick, Roth and Flanagan fly to Europe next week to bolster Lethbridge Maple Leafs in the world hockey tournament in Paris. They were presented with travelling bags in a mid-ice ceremony Friday night.

Tom Smelle and Harvey Fraser with a pair of goals each led Tigers, Carl Smelle, Paul Miocinovich and Comfort getting the other three. Flick with two and Harvey Jackoin with a single counted for Krauts.

In OHA junior A scraps Barrie Flyers beat Stratford Kroehlers 5-3 to gain top place in the league, and Guelph Biltmores and St. Catharines tied 3-3 in overtime.

Leo Labine notched a pair, Paul Emms, Real Chevrefils and Don Emms registering once each for Flyers. Gord Myles, Bob Armstrong and Chalmers were the Stratford scorers.

Dean Prentice, Ron Murphy and Don Keith were answered by skip Teal's double and Jim Robertson in the Teepees-Biltmores event.

Mercurys Reach Cup Playoffs

OWEN SOUND, March 3—(CP)—Owen Sound Mercurys took command early and held an edge all the way to advance into the Allan Cup hockey playoffs here Friday night. They outskated Stouffville Clippers to post a 10-4 verdict and take the Ontario Hockey Association big seven senior final series four games to one.

The Mercurys took advantage of a first period penalty to Herb Rose to tally twice and they were never headed. They were in the van 2-1 when that period ended and they bumped their margin to 6-2 at the end of the second.

O Jerusalem, Jerusalem! Tragedy And Great Glory

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, DD.

The last journey of Jesus to Jerusalem was made from "the region beyond Jordan," known as Perea, and the Gospel of Mark (also the Gospel of Matthew from the 19th chapter) tells of the coming of Jesus into Judea, toward the final scenes of the Crucifixion and the Resurrection.

A study of the Gospels reveals how very great a part of the story of the life of Jesus deals with the incidents and conversations during that last journey.

The earlier parts of the Gospel story suggest a somewhat leisurely ministry, as Jesus walks through the fields with His disciples, visits the villages, accepts hospitality, mingles with the thronging people, telling the stories that we call the parables.

But now event follows event, incident follows incident, the impact of everything is more intense and the conversations, as recorded by John enter into the very depths of intimacy and mystical relationships of Father, Son and disciples in the fellowship of love.

In the very last week, the Master entered Jerusalem and the Temple. Huge crowds were on hand, sensing the climax of all that He was, and said, and did, and conscious that "His hour had come."

My thought now is of that Holy City to which the Master approached. What deep emotions it must surely quicken in the soul of anyone who considers with any realism its long history of tragedy and glory! Repeatedly besieged, destroyed, rebuilt, dominated at various times by Jewish, Byzantine, Arab, Crusader, and modern Mohammedan occupation, it is still the scene of political, racial, and religious division and strife.

Yet beneath all Jerusalem's tragedy, past and present, is an unextinguishable glory. Hours and scenes of triumph stand above all tragedies of ravage, cruelty, injustice and defeat. And above all are the records of love and devotion, unsurpassed in all the experience of man.

It was an exile in Babylon, who looked to that far-off city, and cried: "If I forget thee, O Jerusalem, let my right hand forget her cunning . . . let my tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth; if I prefer not Jerusalem above my chief joy." There is no patriotism to compare with the patriotism of the saint.

It was the Master himself, who poured out the fullness of that love and devotion for the city whose tragedy was so linked with His own. "And when He was come near, He beheld the city, and wept over it." ' JOrue' and wept over it." "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets and stonest them that are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!"

Was ever love and compassion deeper than that? And the world, like Jerusalem, still refuses that divine appeal, going its own way of violence and strife.

United Church Appeal For New Buildings

The $1,500,000 financial appeal of United Church laymen in Montreal, Toronto, and other Canadian centres, is specifically designed for the purpose of building 150 churches in newly-populated communities where no other United Church at present exists, Rev. Dr. Malcolm C. Macdonald, chairman of the United Church Extension Committee, stated today.

Dr. Macdonald said that "scores of areas have no church buildings at all and no facilities for Sunday school or the church organizations so essential to good community living. Adults and children have no opportunity to worship or receive Christian instruction under church auspices."

He stated that careful surveys have revealed that the great majority of people living in new areas are located too far away from existing churches to attend worship and church organizations. The distance in almost all cases is too great for children to attend Sunday school and youth activities.

The chairman of the extension committee declared that practically all downtown churches are too far away from new housing areas to solve the problem of church shortages in new populated communities. He said that existing churches nearest new housing areas are now taxed to their capacities to accommodate their own people.

Most of the people in new housing areas, Dr. Macdonald said, are made up of young couples, married war veterans, and others who are buying or building their own homes. Their modest incomes are taxed to the limit to maintain their families and provide their homes. They must secure financial assistance to help them build adequate churches for their families and communities.

The 150 new churches and 50 manses are to be built over the next five years, Dr. Macdonald explained. The total sum required for the building extension is $2,288,500. From the Home Mission and United Church reserves, and the Missionary and Maintenance Fund of the church, $788,500 will be derived.

Cornwall Man Praying For Miracle

CORNWALL (CP)—A middle-aged man whom doctor have given up hope of saving lies in bed here praying for a miracle. Alfred Frampton, 53, is one of hundreds of persons in Canada suffering from muscular dystrophy, a peculiar ailment that has baffled scientists for decades.

Hopelessly bed-ridden, Frampton feels that some day science will find a cure for the malady that has shrivelled his physique. Weighing only 100 pounds he is so weak that even raising a spoon of food to his mouth is a great effort.

"I have no strength," he said in an interview. "In 1940, when I worked with the railway I always felt tired when I came home from work. Now I feel tired lying in bed."

Constant Inspiration

His constant inspiration through what he calls the "guinea pig process" has been his wife and five children. A pensioner, he has two married daughter, a son in the Korean special force, another son who served in the Second World War, and his youngest daughter, 17, who has just started to work.

When he came from England 23 years ago he was an ardent cyclist. "I had a wonderful physique. I took exercises to develop my chest and legs. I did not smoke or drink."

A man with a keen intellect, he keeps busy. He draws with school crayons and samples of his work hang on the walls of his bedroom. He is the first Canadian to join the Muscular Dystrophy Association, a United States organization whose objective is to find a cure for the disease.

"I want to live," he said. "When I lie alone in this room, facing the ceiling, I talk constantly to God. He knows my wishes are small. I'd give the world to walk down the street, hear a robin and watch children play."

HEAVY WOOD

The heaviest wood in Canadian timber production is white oak, weight about 49 pounds per cubic foot.

Hydro Rebate 10 Times '49 Payment

More Power Delivered Over Same Lines During Past Year

Hydro-Electric Power Commission' rebate of $55,821.32 was ten times more than the so-called "13th bill" of a year ago, because more power was delivered over the same lines, R. L. Dobbin, manager, explained this week.

The rebate from 1949 was $5,-318.51. The cheque for $55,821.32 that was repaid on the 1950 Peterborough account, is a credit to the electrical department of the Utilities. It is the difference between the progress payments by the Utilities during the year on the basis of interim rates, on the one hand, and the actual cost of power as determined at the end of the year by the Hydro. Usually, this sum has been a credit, but there has been the odd occasion when it was a debit, payable by the Utilities to the Hydro.

Consumption 25 Per Cent More

Mr. Dobbin said that the Hydro power business should be considered on the provincial basis, and not merely locally.

"Consumption of power generally in Ontario was approximately 25% more last year," he said. "Hydro Electric brought new power into delivery from the generating plants it opened. So, there was an increase of power in delivery over the same transmission lines. That reduced the cost per kilowatt hour, because the extra load was carried at approximately the same cost as before, over the same lines. So we get the benefit as sharing in the Hydro business."

Using All Power Developed

Ontario is now using all the new power developed by Hydro, Mr. Dobbin said.

The financial statement received by the Utilities Commission from Hydro on the 1950 operations was as follows, actually for 14 months, ending Dec. 31:

Cost of power purchased $178,-062.74.

Share of operation costs and fixed charges; operating maintenance and administration expenses, $171,062.74.

Interest $149,779.85.

Provision for renewals $35,-043.74.

Provision for frequency standardization $70,655.86.

Provision for contingencies, obsolescence, and amortization of emergency facilities $57,469.29.

Provision for sinking fund $39,-686.93.

Total cost of power $701,881.-64.

Against that sum the Utilities had paid at the interim rates, $757,344.35.

Hydro credit to the Commission in that accounting was $55,462.71, plus interest at 4% from Jan. 1, 1951 to Feb. 28, 1951, in the sum of $358.61.

Total credit from Hydro to Utilities Commission $55,821.32.

Red Cross Appeal Reveals Canada's Strength

"The Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign appeal is democracy in action," G. R. McGregor, president of Trans-Canada Airlines, said Friday night. Mr. McGregor was guest speaker at the opening dinner of the 11th 1951 Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign held at the Canadian General Electric Co. Ltd., Friday night. Approximately 350 campaign workers attended.

"This appeal is not only a demonstration of the fact that in Canada we are free men and women who can face and master problems of every-day living on our own," the speaker contended, "but it also reveals that we have the spiritual resources, the ingenuity, the freedom, even a country for humanitarian purposes."

With these statements, Mr. McGregor was answering the question, "Why can't the state supply the money for these social agencies?" He argued that philanthropy was a personal thing. It requires individual initiative and would be unsuccessful if directed by impersonal government action, which could never fully appreciate the cry of the needy.

"The Good Samaritan lives today, but he wears a pin-stripe suit rather than a flowing robe," he asserted.

Mr. McGregor explained that he had a personal interest in the appeal being made in Peterborough. With reference to his war experiences he listed the many benefits that had been given to servicemen by three of the organizations included in the fund—the Canadian Red Cross, the YMCA and the Salvation Army.

"The well-being of these organizations, the well-being of Peterborough's community, are your well-being," the speaker said.

He also called the community fund, "an experiment in faith. old-fashioned faith that is necessary to make a success of a campaign devoted to helping others and to giving rather than receiving. The kind of faith that inspired the ideal behind the United Nations—the belief that this world can be made a better place in which to live.

Better Life

"This fund, this appeal for a better way of life for Peterborough, is unavoidably tied up with the better way of life we want for the entire world," Mr. McGregor said. "By subscribing to this fund, everyone in this Ontario city can feel that he has done his part, anonymous as it may be, towards the world we want to have."

Remarking that the objective was high, the speaker argued that large donations would be necessary.

Mr. McGregor again referred to the ten agencies included in the fund describing them as "both the pillars and conscience of this city."

"They fight suffering and delinquency, disease and poverty in an intelligent, concentrated way," he concluded. "Their work must go on, or the community will sicken and wane."

"Everyone must give so everyone will benefit."

The speaker was introduced by Ian McRae, chairman of the Industrial Division, and thanked by Mrs. J. P. Watts, chairman of the Women's Division.

Ross Dobbin told the canvassers that since the community fund was started in 1941, it had never failed to reach its objective.

"In the past 10 years the community fund has raised more than $400,000, he said.

Mr. Dobbin introduced the following chairmen of the fund divisions: Ian McRae, Industrial Division; Ben Myers, Industrial Division; Mrs. J. P. Watts, Women's Division; Gordon Matthews chairman of the Special Names Division was absent due to illness. The chairman also introduced R. McInnes, director of public relations of Trans-Canada Air Lines.

Music was provided before the dinner by the Salvation Army Temple Band.

The dinner was sponsored by the Canadian General Electric Co., Ltd.

Faulty Chimney Blamed For $500 Fire

Large crowds of CGE employees Friday noon watched firemen fight a $500 fire in the home of John Hennessy, 93 Rubidge St. A defective "cleanout" on the chimney was responsible for the blaze.

Flames started in the basement of the brick dwelling and raced up the south wall that adjoins the frame service station of Joe Roseborough, but they did not break through into his premises.

Firemen were hampered at first by dense smoke and eventually removed the ridge board at the peak of the roof to allow accumulating gas and hot smoke to escape.

A defective chimney is blamed for the outbreak. In the basement of the house there is a "cleanout" for soot, and it was sealed with a piece of tin rather than the proper covering.

Tin Overheated

When the fire started the piece of tin became overheated and a nearby wooden desk ignited. The flames ate into the south wall and up through the lath, plaster and sheeting into a bedroom and bathroom on the second flor. They passed through a hallway on the first floor.

The fire had a good start before anybody was aware of it. Mr. Hennessy smelled smoke at just about the same time as Mr. Roseborough did in his service station. The two buildings are in the "V" where Rubidge and Park Sts. join.

There was not much damage to furniture as firemen covered it with tarpaulins. But the south wall will have to be rebuilt inside, and there was heavy smoke and some water damage.

Water leaked through the wall and into Mr. Roseborough's premises in a couple of places, and that wall at least will have to be repainted.

Thieves Steal $500 Cash

Thieves walked into a "walk-in" refrigerator at Legion Hall Friday night and stole $500 from the cash register till and cash box which are locked in the refrigerator each night.

Police believe the thieves hid on the upper floor of the Murray Street building and got into the beer storage room by the self-service elevator.

The padlock was broken off the refrigerator door. Of the money, $125 belonged to chief steward Melville Morrow, and the remaining $375 were the receipts from Thursday and Friday night.

The theft was discovered at 8:10 a.m. today by George Croft, the caretaker. He called police.

Investigating the robbery are Det.-Sergt. W. E. Clarke, Identification Officer William Aggas, and PCs Allan Edmison and George H. Moore-Gough.

Red Cross In Lakefield Sponsors Health Program

At the Red Cross baby clinic in Lakefield, a dozen or more children were crying for a reason as old as the hypodermic needle.

They were getting their inoculations for diphtheria.

Not all of them were babies—a group of 42 pre-school and school children from Burleigh Falls were down for their "shots" too. For them, it was the last inoculation, the last trip and probably the last good cry they would have in Lakefield's town hall, where the baby clinic is in session every Wednesday afternoon.

Dr. Hugh Gastle, Lakefield's MOH, was smiling as he swabbed antiseptic on bared arms and jabbed gently with the needle.

Two Assistants

The babies that were there, most of them about four months old, were being deftly undressed and weighed by Red Cross assistants Mrs. Cliff Galvin and Mrs. Roy Farrow.

The babies weren't doing too much crying, they acted, and did what every baby does—scream a little, kick and generally do what babies do, for instance just as they were put on the scales.

The important thing to the head of the baby clinic, Mrs. Ellen Delledonne, wasn't that the shots were being given or that the babies were getting good medical care. It boiled down to the fact that this care could be had in Lakefield.

For a number of years, there was no baby clinic or health program for district schools in Lakefield. Mothers who couldn't afford regular medical care had to take children to Peterborough.

As a result, said Mrs. Delledonne, in many cases the children got no medical care because their families had no way to take them to Peterborough.

Established For 4 Years

Four years ago, Dr. Gastle, who was a relative newcomer to the village, suggested to the Red Cross branch in Lakefield that they do something about it. The Red Cross workers took him up on it and this year, Mrs. Delledonnne is starting her fourth year with the clinic.

Out of a small beginning grew a number of things. The baby clinic and the health program are only two of the jobs the Lakefield Red Cross does.

In addition, there is the loan cupboard, from which equipment, such as a wheelchair, is loaned to persons who need the equipment, but cannot afford it. Incidentally, the wheelchair is the Lakefield branch's most recent purchase.

Too, the Red Cross supervises the village's bathing beach, and provides a school nurse.

The baby clinic is probably the biggest job. District mothers bring in their babies once a month, usually, for weighing and a complete medical and physical checkup. Average attendance for the Wednesday afternoon clinics is 15.

As for the clinic, the babies don't appreciate it, though their mothers do.

74 Claims Wind Up County's Fox Bounty

The county council's $3 bounty on foxes ended March 1. Seventy-four were brought in this week raising the total since the first of the year to 454.

The $25 bounty on wolves continues. But so far this year only six have been brought in.

George Robertson of Peterborough walked out of the county clerk and treasurer's office with a cheque for $48, this week. He did a general cleanout of surrounding townships, shooting six foxes in Smith and five each in Douro and Otonabee.

Fred Clements, South Monaghan, had the most unusual claim. He clubbed his fox to death after a dog had cornered it in a woodpile.

Trenton Men Get 3 Years In Pen

COBOURG, March 3 (ENS).—Gerald Minifie and Russell Phillips, both of Trenton, were sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary when they appeared for sentence Friday before Magistrate R. B. Baxter. The two stole a car owned by Ronald Ferguson on Feb. 16, from where it was parked near the theatre. It was recovered two days later at Carleton Place and the thieves arrested.

While the car was in their possession, they sold a $70 car radio and the spare tire and also damaged the front spring of the automobile.

Phillips said he had trouble holding a job because as soon as his record was learned, he was dismissed. Both men have long records and the magistrate commented that their record was too long to permit other than a three-year sentence.

"The pair of you will end up habitual criminals," the magistrate said, "if you don't call a halt."

Troops Standing By

SYDNEY, Australia, March 3—(Reuters)—Troops are standing by in Australian army camps tonight ready to take over the country's strike-bound harbor and coal industries. Unless waterfront workers end their overtime ban slow-down within a few hours, the government is pledged to impose legislation which will make it a crime to take part in a strike, or incite others to.

CARS COLLIDE

Cars driven by George Sorenson, 39 Argyle St., and Steve Kowalchuk of Toronto, collided Friday on Water St. just north of Murray St. Sorenson was passing Kowalchuk's auto when the accident occurred.

ALDERMAN DOUGLAS MILLER, chairman of the finance committee, Friday night brought down his first budget. The mill rate is 55.5 for public school supporters and 57 for separate school supporters.

Fire Prevention Wins Award For Quaker Oats

Fire Chief George Smith has presented the Quaker Oats Co. with a certificate of merit from the National Fire Protection Association. The Peterborough company came 11th among industries in North American cities and towns for its educational program on fire prevention.

Albert J. Bonney was the chairman of the plant's fire inspection committee during Fire Prevention Week, Oct. 8-14.

The plant had a varied program including a careful check on possible hazards; a drill with the plant fire brigade in putting out both Class "A" and "B" fires that were lighted in the yard; a check on the sprinklers and equipment; posting of special bulletins supplied by the Association; also a radio broadcast to Peterborough district residents giving fire prevention hints.

Padre Jars Legion

Legion Conscription Brief "Stupid"

Members of the Canadian Legion were jarred Friday night when they heard the Rev. Walter J. Gilling describe as "stupid" the recent Legion brief demanding compulsory military service.

The wartime padre made this observation in a short address at the annual dinner of the Sergeants' Mess, held in the Armouries.

"Let the Canadian Legion first set its house in order by seeing that its younger members become members of a local regiment," he said.

Before asking for compulsory military service the Legion should campaign to have its able-bodied membership join the reserve army, he stated.

Have A Duty

"I can't think of anything more stupid than the Canadian Legion brief."

"We are not a bunch of half-witted twits playing at soldiers," he said. "We have a duty to perform and that is to see that young men come and offer their services to the regiment.

"There is an obligation on everyone not a serving member to stir up interest among the young men of the community and convince them they should be serving members of this regiment."

Highlight of the evening was presentation of a silver entree dish to RQMS Gerald Dunn of the administration and training staff who is being posted to Shilo. He has been in Peterborough three years.

The presentation was made by RSM Hugh Davidson on behalf of the 50th HAA, 28th Technical Squadron, the A and T staffs, and honorary members of the Sergeants' Mess.

RQMS Dunn will rejoin his original unit, the 1st Field Regt., RCHA. He leaves Monday.

Battery Sergeant-Major James Brown presided.

4 New Stamps To Be Issued In September

OTTAWA, March 3 (CP)—Four commemorative stamps will be issued in September, it was announced Thursday night by Col. L. J. Hills, director of the post office department's financial services. He was speaking to members of the Ottawa Philatelic Society at their annual banquet.

The first issue will be Sept. 24, to coincide with the International Centennial Philatelic exhibition to be held in Toronto at that time.

The four new stamps will be in denominations of four, five, seven and 15 cents. They will commemorate the 100th anniversary of stamp issuing in Canada and the growth of communications in Canada.

The four-cent stamp will show the growth of railway transportation; the five, the improvements in mail boats; the seven, the development from mail-coach to airmail service.

The 15-cent stamp will be a reproduction of the three-penny "beaver," Canada's first stamp issued in April, 1851.

Stamp designs submitted by Canadian artists on the invitation of the postmaster-general are being examined by a selection committee headed by the Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey, Col. Mills said. The committee's first announcement is expected in April. A $300 prize will go to the artist whose design is accepted.

Mother, 3 Children Flee Burning Home

LEAMINGTON, March 3 — (CP). — Mrs. Irwin Ford of Mersea Township, Thursday escaped with her baby and two other children when fire destroyed their house.

Everything Mr. and Mrs. Ford owned was lost.

When Mrs. Ford saw smoke around the kitchen ceiling near a stovepipe, she rushed outside and found the upper part of the home a mass of flames. Loss was estimated at $3,000.

FIRST SIGN OF SPRING—The battle to open the world's greatest inland port, closed by ice for four month of every year, nears victory as the icebreakers N. B. McLean and the Saurel (background in above aerial photo) plow toward Montreal. The last report had the 'breakers just below Vercheres, 16 miles away, and, expected them in the metropolis by Saturday.

U.S. Steps Up Broadcasts To Reach Reds

By DON SCHWIND

LONDON, March 3—(AP)—American veterans of democracy's three-year radio war with Russia are shaping a powerful new effort to punch Western views through the Soviet noise curtain.

Much of this detail has to stay under secrecy wraps in this bitter war of the ether, but planned expansion this year comes under three main projects:

1. Broadcasts in four more languages
2. An increase in range and power of four European relay stations which boost the American freedom message on its way to Russia and East Europe.
3. Full-scale operation of the new "refugee" station, "Radio Free Europe," in Munich.

Four More Languages

The Voice of America will start broadcasting in the four additional languages — identification still secret—at an undisclosed time this year. It already talks to Europe, Russia, and the Soviet sphere in 27.

So far, the voice of America has four major relay points in Europe. These are in Britain, Munich, Tangiers and Salonika.

These points pick up "voice" transmissions from New York and boost their power high enough to shove them through the veil of racket which Red engineers have thrown around the Soviet Union.

According to a United States expert in London, the U.S. part in the radio war with Russia should be approximately as great as that of the BBC some time during 1951, and might even surpass it.

At present, the BBC fights its part of the battle for the world's mind in 44 languages, 25 of them directed at Europe and the Russian fortress alone.

DUE TO THE ICEBREAKERS approaching the Montreal Harbor, ahead of schedule, ice storage houses are hurrying to harvest their summer stock. The above photo shows three ice-jacks operating a cutting machine which has carved a lake in the middle of the St. Lawrence River.

500 Sportsmen To Attend Show

TORONTO, March 3. — More than 500 sportsmen and lovers of the out-of-doors will travel to Toronto from Peterborough aboard a special train on Saturday, March 10, to see the Canadian National Sportsmen's Show, which will be officially opened by Hon. Harold Scott, Minister of Lands and Forests for Ontario, March 9.

Taking Care Of Floors Adds Greatly To Their Life

Floors have been increasing in decorative importance for many years. Nowadays they're not just something underfoot, never noticed except when they obviously require attention. They'll give you greater satisfaction and longer wear if you keep them in the best of condition at all times.

Concrete basement floors are subject to ruts and cracks, and as a result are not only hazardous but dirt catchers of the worst sort. Especially if you are planning to paint your concrete floor, these ridges and pitted places must be filled in. Shallow holes and depressions can be quickly repaired by a ready-mixed plastic patching material which dries in from two to twelve hours, depending upon the thickness. Clean the area first with a wire brush, then scratch in the patches with a trowel, ring it to the level you want, and smooth if off.

For deeper cracks, dig out all loose concrete with cold chisel or similar tool. Go over area to be patched with a wire brush, then wash out the crack with water. Apply a bonding coat of one of the non-shrinking concrete floor patching compounds. Place small amount in area to be patched. Thin down with a little water and scrub into area with old, stiff-bristle broom. Then fill space with another layer of mixture and work it into the surface. Level and finish with steel trowel.

For a big lift to the dull-looking off-white cement floor, consider a rich burgundy paint job, a deep green, or a black brightened with red border.

Just one word of warning—when painting cement be certain that the paint you use is specially prepared for use on plaster and cement or you may find your work ruined by the burning chemical action of lime in the mortar.

Require Little Attention

Linoleum floors generally require very little attention if kept waxed and polished. However, should area become loosened, it should be recemented immediately. Use an adhesive recommended by the linoleum manufacturer. If the loose spot is near a seam, lift up the edge and wipe the area underneath witha cloth or brush to remove loose matter. Then cut a piece of cardboard with a saw-toothed edge and use it to trowel the paste onto the floor. Replace the linoleum and weight down the spot evenly with a book or heavy object. Allow to dry for three or four hours.

If a blister or loose spot shows up in the centre of the floor, the linoleum should be cut around a design. Proceed as above.

Touching Up Spots

Perhaps your wood floor has merely become worn in spots, due to the wearing off of varnish. There's a "mop-on" type of varnish specially prepared just to touch up these spots.

Volumes have been written about the care and upkeep of floors but one fact applies to all types of flooring. They are all improved by careful waxing and never helped by a soap and water bath. Most of the newer floor polishes clean as they polish, building up a protective coating which takes the wear and saves the surface. Don't bog down on the idea that wax is limited to use on wood alone. Tile, linoleum, terrazzo, brick and cement are all aided by the soft but brilliant luster which only wax can give. Whether you select the old reliable paste waxes or one of the easy to apply self polishing types just remember to apply it carefully and often.

When laying a new wood floor lay the boards a hairline crack apart as a precaution against cracking and swelling. This allows room for expansion and improves the appearance of the floor by defining the outline of each board.

All types of flooring should be laid only over a smooth solid foundation. Sound proofing felt is a wise investment and should be laid over the sub flooring.

Old, badly-worn wooden floors can be sanded and refinished, or replaced with linoleum or composition.

Old floor boards should be examined, and worn or broken pieces cut out and replaced. Squeaky or worn-down stair treads are an annoyance which can be eliminated at very little cost.

A course of instruction in the building and manipulation of puppets will be held at the YWCA March 8-10 inclusive. The course will be sponsored by the Recreation Commission and the YWCA.

George Merton of the Community Programs Branch of the Ontario Department of Education will be the instructor.

Alex Sinclair, recreation commissioner explained that the course will be kept small so that individual instruction will be possible.

Registration can be made at the Recreation Commission office in the city buildings or at the YWCA.

HOUSE No. 707 — Basically this house is a rectangle 38' x 26' 6", topped by a simple hipped roof. Such a design is economical, and equally attractive in brick, frame or stucco. Treatment of the big living room bay and entrance detail could easily be changed to give a variety of exterior effects. Inside we find an appealing room layout, with all five rooms approached by the centre hall. There is no need for cross-room traffic here! The big kitchen is bright and efficient, with lots of space for a dining area. All three bedrooms have ample window openings, but the smallest lacks its own closet. With a full basement, the house contains about 19,800 cubic feet. For working drawings, write Home Building in Canada, 372 Bay St., Toronto.

Truck Damage Fixed At $1,900

Damage to a wrecked truck of the Peterborough District Co-operative Services was assessed at $1,900 by Mr. Justice R. I. Ferguson on Friday, the closing of the Peterborough assizes.

The truck, valued originally at $2,200 was wrecked, and the driver, Edwin Morrow, 26, died on his way to hospital.

An interlocutory judgment was given when Overholt made no defence. And Friday Mr. Justice Ferguson assessed damages at $1,900 and costs of the action.

Must Be Prepared For War In 3 Years

CANBERRA, March 3—(CP)—Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies said Australia must be prepared for war within three years and should gauge her defence plans accordingly.

Say Speaker Inspires Map-Reading

The art of pictorial map-making, which has turned a Toronto housewife into a publisher, was the subject which keenly interested members of the Women's Art Association on Friday afternoon. Casting around for new hobbies, this appealed to those with sketching ability. In fact, it is reported that a past president has done a pictorial map of this city.

Mrs. Derwent Kinton of Toronto is the woman who has successfully marketed her product. Copies of her maps of York and Simcoe counties have been reproduced in quantity and are sold by leading Toronto stores. She has now completed a map of Wentworth county and is working on one of Brant.

She decided to publish her maps because she thought they would be useful to school children and students. However, the adults have seized upon them, as did a number of women at the meeting. When framed they are attractive for over the mantel, and they are ideal for such a spot in the smart summer cottage. Pictorial maps are usually used for advertising and her latest has been sold for this purpose.

This, it appears, is a hobby for those with an enquiring mind and time to go "scouting" around the countryside, hunting up the oldest inhabitant and intriquing his memory to divulge some historic fact that can pictorially mark that particular place. Mrs. Kinton spoke of incidents, some quite amusing, which have occurred during her investigations. Very often she can't secure a picture to copy and sometimes the owner will not allow it to be taken away. One of her Simcoe drawings had to be finished to the last detail under the avid eye of a centurian.

The maps are made to scale but the little drawings on them are not Mrs. Kinton explained. She usually commences by studying the old atlas of the county she is going to map. Some seeming omissions have occurred because these did not contain information now deemed important. She believes this is because people in the olden days were given recognition based on the amount they had paid for their land.

The Simcoe map took her two years to get out. It is based on the history of the Jesuit relations. Of interest is the marking of a Negro slave settlement near Barrie which was created when the Quakers were helping the slaves to escape through an underground tunnel from the States.

The large maps exhibited by Mrs. Kinton are the originals from which the steel engravings for reprinting have been made. She makes them suitable for framing with attractive borders and fill-ins, designed to emphasize the main features of the subject.

Association president Mrs. N. D. Seaton introduced the speaker and later extended the appreciation of members.

The next will be an evening meeting, March 16th at the YWCA with program by the Coventry Singers.

White-Sutherland Nuptials

The wedding was solemnized Wednesday evening in All Saints' Anglican Church by Ven. Archdeacon C. W. Balfour of Murial Dorothy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Sutherland, to John Percival White, son of Mrs. Carrie White RR 3, Peterborough, and the late Percy White.

The music was played by Miss Margaret Flowers and during signing of the register Mrs. A. Spencley sang "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white satin with a richly embroidered yoke to the waist, long fitted sleeves coming to points over her hands and a flowing skirt. Her matching embroidered veil, falling in a train, was gathered to a satin halo studded with seed pearls. She carried a cascade of red roses.

Miss Maxine Johnson as bridesmaid was wearing a mauve taffeta frock and a matching sweetheart headdress and she carried a cascade bouquet of yellow roses. Flower girl Arla Rose wore a dainty gown of yellow nylon taffeta with matching sweetheart headdress aid carried a nosegay of sweet peas and freezia.

Mr. Gordon White attended as groomsman and ushers were Kenneth White and Keith Delahaye.

The reception following was in the Orange Hall where the bride's mother received in a dress of wine crepe with black accessories and wearing a corsage of white carnations. The groom's mother, also receiving, was in grey figured rayon crepe and also wore black accessories and white carnations.

Leaving on a motor trip to points south and east the bride was wearing a smartly tailored grey checked suit with matching accessories and had a corsage of mauve iris.

Mr. and Mrs. White will live in Peterborough.

St. Laurent Says Education Needs Sound Background

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent's education had a humble beginning — in an old tenement house — but out of it grew two great convictions.

One was that no amount of modern educational equipment can replace a wise teacher. The other is that men of different races, creeds and religions can live peaceably together if only there is goodwill.

The prime minister, now 69, tells of this in a statement prepared for Canadian Education Week, March 4-10.

"As a child," recalls Mr. St. Laurent, "I lived in a village in the eastern townships where over 60 years ago the educational opportunities for the then small minority of Roman Catholic children were nothing like those provided at the present."

His mother taught him to read and write and then the local parish priest took over in a school converted out of an "old tenement building where some partitions had been knocked out to make a classroom."

Helped By Protestants

And oddly enough, though it was a Roman Catholic school, it was "partially supported by a grant from the Protestant school commissioners who were, at that time, the only organized public educational authorities in the township."

In this humble place, good luck delivered the prime minister a double gift—two wise teachers.

"During the six years I attended this rather primitive school, I had the good fortune to have two good teachers who had the capacity to excite the curiosity of their pupils and thus make them want to know more about many things.

"Those teachers wisely realized that it was not sufficient to lead us youngsters to the fountain of knowledge; they had to make us want to absorb something from the fountain.

Still True

"I think that is still true of the youngsters today — even though the fountains may be much more ornate and their contents perhaps much more abundant."

The school Mr. St. Laurent attended 60 years ago was at his birthplace at Compton, Que. From there he went to St. Charles College at Sherbrooke, Que., and to Laval University to launch a law career that made him one of the best corporation lawyers in the country before he swept into politics. He has been granted honorary degrees from more than a half-dozen universities.

But that humble beginning still is deeply impressed on the prime minister's mind, for there it was that he learned, not by precept but by example, that "it is possible in our country for people of good will to live and let live without being called upon to sacrifice any of those essentials to which any group desires to hold firm."

Family Fights Make Family Unwilling Victims of Fights

THE JUDGE of a Domestic Relations Court once appointed the children of a quarreling husband and wife as arbiters of their parents' dispute and to keep the peace between them. This was a ruling worthy of Solomon himself in its wisdom, for if anything on earth could shock a crazily angry man and woman, engaged in hurling insults at each other, into sanity and a realization of the crime they were committing it would be to see themselves as they look to their children and to have their children's cold impartial verdict on their conduct.

Dorothy Dix

Strangely enough the children's point of view never seems to occur to the belligerent couples who fight out every difference of opinion to the last bitter round before the horrified eyes of their offspring. They think they have a right to pull off their fights on their own hearthstones and that it doesnt matter that Junior and Mary have to listen to father call mother vile names and mother retaliate by accusing father of half the crimes in the calendar.

As a general thing, these warring parents are not deliberately trying to discredit each other with their children. They are merely giving vent to their own tempers and revenging their own grievances. And they would be genuinely amazed to know that the result of their scrapping is to fill their children with a profound contempt for them both.

They Dont Miss Much

Junior and Mary are not the senseless little dummies, seeing nothing and hearing nothing, that they appear to be as they eat their cereal and orange juice while Mother and Father bawl each other out over the breakfast table. They are taking in every detail of the whole ugly scene. All the criminations and recriminations are registering in their minds and they are feeling sorry for themselves because they have to live in an atmosphere of rancor and because things are never jolly and pleasant at their house as they are at Toms and Sally's, and they are thinking that their parents are giving them a raw deal and dragging them into disputes with which they have nothing to do.

There is not a day that there does not come to this column pitiful and desperate letters from helpelss youngsters who are being ground to pieces between the upper and nether millstones of their parents' tempers. "What can we do to stop our parents from quarreling?" they ask. "They never say a pleasant word to each other. It is always just fighting over everything and saying mean hateful things to each other and accusing each other of doing terrible things. There is never any peace and quiet.

"We love both our mother and father. They are good to us and we dont want to take sides against either. We have a nice home and we could be so happy if only Father and Mother didn't fight all the time." And sometimes a boy or girl will add a pathetic postscript saying: "I have got so nervous over my father and mother quarreling all the time that I can't keep my mind on my books any more and am falling behind in my studies." And yet people with children think their quarrels with their husbands and wives are their own personal affairs!

What these children whom the wise Judge appointed to referee their parents' fights said to them, I do not know, but I can imagine them saying: "Gee, Mom and Pop, have a heart. You brought us into the world without our asking for it and it is up to you to give us a fair chance to grow up into healthy, decent men and women, and we can't do that if we have to live in an atmosphere of hate that poisons us, and have our nerves wrecked by being in a perpetual row. How can we believe in truth and loyalty and high ideals and fine principles when we hear our father and mother accuse each other every day of everything that is low and contemptible?

"Be a sport, Mom. Maybe Dad isn't the Fairy Prince you thought you were marrying, but he is a pretty good scout after all, and he works mighty hard to keep us all so comfortable. Forget the things you don't like about him. Quit nagging him about all of his little ways. Don't always be bringing up all the subjects you know are like a red rag to a mad bull. We can't remember a single quarrel that you and Dad have had, Mom, that you couldn't have sidestepped if you had just gone out of the way to dodge trouble instead of running out to meet it.

"Why don't you use a little of the salesmanship on Mom, Dad, that you do on your customers? Why don't you use the salve-spreader a little instead of the hammer so much? Mom would just purr under your hand if you would stroke her fur the right way.

"There isn't any sense in you and Mom quarreling the way you do. So we, your children, forbid you to do it, and setnence you to be as polite to each other as you would be to strangers."

LITTLE IODINE by Jimmy Hatlo

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Readers' Saturday Column Conducted by Mary Moore

QUESTION: I have read your column with much interest. I have tried several of the recipes. I would like to ask a favor of you now. I have an old cook book... published in 1934, that is the worse for wear at the moment. There was a recipe in it that my family was very fond of and they have been asking me to make it, but when I got the old paper out this recipe has disappeared, so I would be pleased if you or the lady that sent it in would print it again. It was called Yum Yums. I can remember that it had dates, nuts, and egg white spread on top of some kind of batter, but I can't remember what else went into the making of it, so I would be very glad to get it again. Mrs. B. G.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The recipe I am giving you may not call for the precise ingredients your old recipe did, but it is the same type of cookie.

✧ ✧ ✧

Yum Yums

One-half cup butter, ½ cup sugar, 2 egg yolks, 1½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, Topping: 2 egg whites stiffly beaten, 1 cup brown sugar, ½ cup chopped dates, ½ cup chopped nuts.

Cream the butter and add sugar; mix well and add egg yolks. Sift the flour with the baking powder and salt and add it to the first mixture, then add the vanilla. Spread mixture evenly on a buttered pan about 9 x 9 inches. Bake at 350 deg. Fahr. for 15 minutes, then remove from oven and spread over Topping and return to oven and bake at 350 deg. Fahr. until top is golden brown and firm. Cut in bars or squares while warm. A good variation is to use cherries and cocoanut instead of dates and nuts. To make the topping you simply fold the sugar, dates and nuts into the stiffly beaten whites.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: As this is the first time I have written to you I must tell you how much I enjoy your cooking column and how interesting it is.

I hope you can help me with this problem. It is holes or tunnels in plain white cake. Each time I make it I try to follow the recipe explicitly but each time I am disappointed with results.

My mother and two friends have the same trouble, so we will be watching your column for suggestions.

I have been told it is caused by uneven mixing, but can't figure out just were I go wrong. A. J. K.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: When cakes have little tunnels through them the leavening agent is at fault. I will have to give you a recipe for plain white cake to be sure that you are using the exact ingredients. Then you will try the cake according to my ideas and let me know if you produce a cake with even texture and no holes or tunnels.

✧ ✧ ✧

White Cake No. 1

One-half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup milk plus 2 tablespoons, 2 2/3 cups flour (cake flour preferably), 4 teaspoons single action baking powder, 4 egg whites, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Sift the flour, measure it, then sift it with the baking powder and salt three times. Cream the butter for at least 5 minutes or until it is very soft and airy then gradually beat in the sugar until the mixture is light. Sift one quarter of the flour mixture over, pour in one quarter of the milk and with a cutting and lifting motion mix in the flour and milk. Proceed this way until all flour and milk are added. Add vanilla and stiffly beaten egg whites, and cut them in until mixture is evenly mixed—but do not overmix. Line layer cake tins with buttered wax paper. Pour in batter. Bake at 325 deg. Fahr. 40 minutes.

✧ ✧ ✧

Sift flour (using cake flour preferably) and measure 2 cups; add 2 teaspoons double-action baking powder, and ¼ teaspoon salt and sift three times; cream ½ cup butter or best quality shortening or margarine for 10 minutes then slowly cream into it 1 cup sugar. Sift one-third of the flour mixture over then add one-third cup milk (you will use 2/3 cup milk in all). Fold these in carefully until blended then add another one-third of the flour mixture and remaining milk and fold in. Sift over remaining flour add 3 egg whites which are stiffly beaten and 1 teaspoon vanilla and fold until it is just mixed. Bake in layers in paper-lined pans at 375 deg. Fahr. for 25 or 30 minutes or in greased paper-lined pan 8x8x2 inches for 50 minutes.

If these recipes do not give you perfect results write to me and tell me what kind of flour, and baking powder you are using and if you are using exact measurements. Oven should be preheated and top oven turned off at least 5 minutes before cake is put in. Cake should be baked at exact centre of oven.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I find your column very interesting and helpful which prompts this note. Would you please answer. I notice you mention yogurt occasionally and as I find it enjoyable I would like to know the caloric count. I understand it is low, but just how many calories are in ½ cup or 1 cup. I hope you can find out as I can find no record of it anywhere. RUTH D.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: One cup of yogurt contains 165 calories. The caloric content of yogurt is the same as that of whole milk. By one cup 1 mean 8 ounces.

Reporter Stages One-Man Strike Over Banquets

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, March 3 (AP). ——Let's face it, citizens; something must be done about banquets.

In the Spring, Hollywood's fancy heavily turns to banquets. There are banquets for awards, banquets for testimonials, banquets for no apparent reason.

Now I have nothing against a free meal. But for those who must attend banquets and pay good money to do so, I feel I should strike a blow for freedom.

To begin with, you hire a baby sitter (at 50 cents per hour, if you're lucky). You arrive at seven o'clock, the appointed hour. No one is there but the banquet chairman. "Who arrive at a banquet on time?" he laughs gaily. You waste an hour of the sitter's fee and a few dollars at the bar until the guests arrive.

Then comes the food. And what food! The fruit cocktail is warm, the soup cold. Between each course is a 30-minute interval, during which the waiters appear to hold some kind of meeting.

No matter how the main course is advertised, it always turns out to be creamed chicken. But the prize of the evening ic coming — a strawberry parfait. Just as it arrives, the program begins and the goodie is whisked away by a waiter.

Despite the efforts of the program committee to "keep it short," the program always runs two hours over schedule.

All this adds up to an awful evening and something should be done about it. How about a national committee for painless banquets? As honorary chairman, I nominate Dr. Robert Millikan. The scientist gladdened many hearts when he walked out of a civic banquet here a year ago without giving his address. Four hours of speeches were enough, he decided.

What's Right

You don't like something that is shown you in a store.

WRONG: Say how awful you think it is.

RIGHT: Say that it isn't what you want, or that you prefer such and such.

MONTREAL, March 3 (CP).—A French-speaking Montreal theatrical group, Les Compagnons de St. Laurent, today hold the Martha Allan Cup, awarded annually to winners of the Western Quebec Regional Drama Festival.

The adjudication was made by British critic Robert G. Newton Friday night, final night of the five-day festival during which six plays were presented.

Les Compagnons, who opened the festival Monday night, presented "Les Gueux Au Paradis" (The Beggars at the Gates of Heaven), a three-act comedy by the Flemish contemporary playwright, Andre Obey.

Following the presentation, Mr. Newton said the play was "very clearly done and the characters were well contrasted." However, it "lacked emotion somewhat at certain times."

Have Chance at London

Victory in the regional festival gives Les Compagnons an excellent chance of performing in the Dominion Drama Festival to be held at London, Ont., in April.

Best production in the alternate language went to Trinity Players, who staged Joseph Schull's three-act drama, "The Bridge," a play set in France shortly after the German occupation.

The best Canadian play was "Ames Captive," a one-act drama by Yvette Naubert, presented by the French-speaking new Montreal Repertory Theatre.

"Le Misanthrope," by Moliere, put on by Le Trait-D'union had the best actor.

wheat by 1881; Oats production doubled, twice as big a crop as wheat by 1881; Rye increased 6-fold, but still was far behind in total amount; Peas tripled in Peterborough, up 75% in Victoria; Corn increased 4-fold; Buckwheat up 8-fold in Peterborough; but no increase in Victoria; Potatoes about the same in 1881 as in 1871; Turnips up slightly in Peterborough, doubled in Victoria; Hay no change. As the prices of farm products fell 20-50% in depression years, the increased production of various crops listed above probably put no more money into farmers' pockets. Part of the increases can be credited to more crop rotation, including more pasture and natural fertilizer.

In the decade, production of homemade butter rose from 1,481,625 to 2,082,718 lbs. evenly divided between the two counties. Homemade cheese fell from 120,692 to 39,442 lbs. as cheese factories sprang up at many country crosroads, producing for local consumption and for export. Homemade cloth also declined from 105,534 to 29,832 yards as factory cloth and tailor-made clothing replaced the homespun product. On the other hand, the orchards produced 57,282 bu. apples in 1871, and 150,235 bu. in 1881. Maple sugar increased 60% in Peterborough and fell the same percentage in Victoria. Hop production fell from 37,257 to 7,439 lbs. in Peterborough and from 51,289 to 1,1115 lbs. in Victoria, possibly reflecting increased temperance, and less money to buy beer.

Improved Farming Methods

Of the many farmers who improved their farming methods and farms we have unfortunately little record. Capt. James Wallis at his Merino estate near Peterborough raised purebred cattle and sheep, and cultivated orchards. Mossom Boyd on his Big Island farm near Bobcaygeon became interested in improving cattle and horse breeds. Both these gentlemen brought in purebred stock from Britain. James Lickley, who after helping build the Burleigh Road settled at a depot camp on lot 14, con. 6, Burleigh as chief clerk, built up herds of cows and sheep which he loaned out to neighbours. James Trotter, lots 18-19, con. 4, Chandos, started fruit farming in 1872 and won many prizes at fairs. Capt. Thos. Bridgewater settled lots 38-39, con. 13, Anstruther, in 1877 and began breeding prize cattle. The Fifes in Otonabee continued improvement of grain-growing techniques. Even in the north country farmers were using more machines; Joseph Graham of Bobcaygeon, Crown Lands Agent, also advertised for sale "agricultural machines, threshing machines, seed drills, straw-cutters, ploughs, fanning-mills, reapers, etc."

The farmers were beginning to co-operate in the improvement of their position. Besides County Agricultural Societies, by the 1870s there were numerous township societies in north as well as south which held small local fairs and built agricultural halls (e.g. Dummer and Douro Agricultural Society which built a hall at Lakefield 1870). Some of the new cheese factories were set up on a co-operative basis, a neighborhood group agreeing to sell their milk to their own cheese factory, surplus profits being divided among them. In 1875 the counties of Victoria, Peterborough, Durham and Northumberland combined to hold the Midland Central Exhibition, providing a larger more successful exhibition with greater exchange of farming knowledge throughout Central Ontario; the first was held in Peterborough Oct. 1875, then at Port Hope in 1876, at Lindsay in 1877 (The Toronto Globe commented on Oct. 5, 1877 "Lindsay, Oct. 1—The Central Exhibition opens tomorrow with entries one-third more than usual"), at Cobourg in 1878, at Peterborough in 1879, at Port Hope in 1880. A cheque for $7,500 for the establishment of a Lou Gehrig memorial scholarship, was presented to Columbia University Friday by Mel Allen, Yankee radio and television broadcaster.

Hugh King, the Brantford boy with a future riding on his long right arm, will say goodbye to this part of the country early next week as he takes off for Monroe, Louisiana, site of the Oklahoma City Indians' spring training camp. Say Professors At Queen's Demand Raise KINGSTON, March 3 (CP) — The Kingston Whig-Standard says in a newspage story today that it has been told by a reliable source that there is acute dissatisfaction among Queen's University professors and other faculty members over their salary scale.

The story said it is understood that a Queen's faculty association, which is to all intents and purposes a "union"—was formed at a meeting Friday attended by Queen's teaching staff members from all three university faculties—arts, science and medicine. The organization is said to be the first in eastern Canada and it was suggested it may lead to a national body.

The meeting followed a protest meeting two weeks ago from which a letter was sent to the university board of trustees through the principal, Dr. R. C. Wallace, the Whig-Standard said. The letter is reported to have asked immediate increase of $1,000 a year for full professors and proportionate increases for other staff members as a stop-gap measure.

Like Toronto

The letter is said to have urged a salary scale at Queen's comparable to that at the University of Toronto if the local institution were to retain its status as a national university.

The Whig-Standard's informant said that no reply had been received from the board of trustees of which J. M. Macdonnell, Progressive Conservative member of parliament for Toronto Greenwood, is chairman.

(Queen's pays full professors $4,500 to $5,500 annually. A new scale announced recently for the University of Toronto gives full professors a minimum of $6,200.)

The paper reported its informant as saying that the board of trustees granted a $10 monthly cost-of-living bonus last September. Planned to run for three months, it has been extended and is still in force.

Church Club Gives Musical Play

CAMPBELLFORD, March 3—((ENS). — The St. John's Young Adults Club presented their play "Happiness Ahead," on Friday evening in the High School auditorium to a packed house. The play was under the auspices of the Hospital Auxiliary, and all proceeds will go to this fund.

The play was a repeat performance. It was presented on Thursday and Friday evenings of last week and drew record crowds.

The director of the play is George Nicholls. The plot revolved around a dress rehearsal of a choral group, in an outdoor summer setting with the numerous narrative parts between the musical numbers centering around a light love story in which the singers were involved. The sentimental outbursts were heightened by "love potions" supplied by a witch doctor appearing to Julie, the lovelorn maid in the darkened garden in which the choral rehearsal was being held. The complications which resulted from the Witch Doctor's strange product provided the audience with laughs galore. Mrs. George Nicholls presided at the piano.

"Hill Billies"

At the end of the play, which lasted just over an hour, the Campbelford Hill Billies, with George Nicholls at their head, made their appearance and entertained the audience with their "backwoods" talk and their "Ozark Ike" clothes. They consist of George Nicholls, pianist and interlocutor, Bruce Elmhirst, violin, Percy Melville, mouth organ, Sid Hopping, mouth organ, Sam Flint, mouth organ, Cliff Gibson and his slide whistle, Jim Mackie, guitar, Fred Palliser on the drums, Dr. Ross F. Richardson with his accordion, and Ernie Archer, bass.

Mr. Thornton Waters, president of the Young Adults' Club, expressed his thanks of the club members to the audience and director George Nicholls for his untiring efforts in training the cast both in the narrative and the musical parts, and to Mrs. Nicholls who gave a great deal of time at the piano and supported the play in a generous measure. Blood Donor Service Saved Citizens $39,180, One Activity of Red Cross

How does the Canadian Red Cross serve Peterborough?

This question was answered today by Mrs. Fred E. Hooper, president of the local branch in an interview with The Examiner.

"One of Red Cross' most important activities in this community is its blood donor service," Mrs. Hooper stated.

"Did you know that because of this service the Red Cross saved citizens of this community a total of $39,180. "All patients in the Civic and St. Joseph's hospitals requiring blood transfusions get them fre of charge. In other hospitals in Ontario with the exception of Hamilton, patients usually pay $20. to $25. to a professional donor. By multiplying this amount with the number of patients who required transfusions in the two city hospitals during 1950 we arrived at the stated figure," Mrs. Hooper explained.

"How many workers are required to operate this service?"

"The number varies. Three workers do clerical work, two drive cars to bring donors to the clinic and take them home, and three help in the clinic itself in addition to the nurses that are on duty."

No Workers Paid

"Are any of these workers paid?"

"Definitely not. They are all volunteer workers. In fact in the national organization itself only three out of every 100 workers are paid. Nevertheless, this still remains a very expensive service for the Red Cross."

The next Red Cross service that Mrs. Hooper explained was the Loan Cupboard. Included in this loan cupboard are 12 hospital beds, 12 wheel chairs, crutches of all sizes, air cushions, back rests, rubber sheeting and many other types of sick room equipment that are loaned out free of charge.

"The local Red Cross also has a very active visiting committee" Mrs. Hooper said. "During 1950 many sick and shut-ins were visited and small gifts of fruit, flowers and candy were taken. This committee also purchased clothing and Christmas gifts for veterans of this district who were patients in hospitals."

Apsley Outpost Hospital

"One of our branches' biggest projects is the Red Cross outpost hospital at Apsley," Mrs. Hooper continued. "Since World War II, the Peterborough branch has spent nearly $35,000 to rebuild and equip this hospital and continues to pay for repairs and equipment. The nurses are paid and the provisions supplied by the Ontario Division of the Red Cross."

She went on to explain that the hospital at Apsley is only one of 29 outpost hospitals in Ontario that are instrumental in saving many lives each year because of their availability in isolated districts.

To reduce deaths by drowning in the city, the Red Cross offers training for instructors in swimming and water safety. Instructors then conduct similar classes and Red Cross awards are presented to pupils successful in the tests.

Training Instructors

"The Red Cross has also been conducting classes to train instructors to help physically handicapped polio victims and other disabled persons, Mrs. Hooper said. Miss Audrey Hustwitt, swimming instructor at the YWCA has taken this course and is now helping polio victims in the city and district. Three mornings each week Red Cross cars take two local polio victims to the "Y" for this training."

Home nursing and first aid classes are also held in the city by the Red Cross.

"The Canadian Red Cross is a national organization," Mrs. Hooper said. "As such many of its services are operated on a national and provincial level, in the interests of economy."

She explained that those services included disaster relief, services for veterans and dependents, Junior Red Cross services, Women's Work and international relief, Canadian Red Cross Corps, outpost hospitals and nursing stations, health and safety services and travelling dental coaches.

The Canadian Red Cross spent 48 million dollars for food, clothing and medical and hospital supplies sent to the war torn countries in Europe and Asia. Within the past month, the Minister of Defence, Hon. Brooke Claxton announced that the Canadian Red Cross will act as the official agency for getting blood and stockpiling it in established blood banks for both the armed forces and the civilian population.

"Our branch is just one of the 280 branches in Ontario," Mrs. Hooper concluded. "As you can see, we have national and international obligations as well as local responsibilities. It is for these combined services that we need money and are making our appeal through the Red Cross and Community Fund Campaign."

Last year the Peterborough Branch of the Canadian Red Cross received $20,000 from the fund.

Laborer's Son Chief Witness At Murder Trial

ST. THOMAS, March 3 (CP)— The 15-year-old son of the accused is expected to be the principal witness at the murder trial of Lawrence William Jones, 35-year-old farm laborer, charged with killing his common-law wife Ann Evans, 51, last Nov. 20.

The trial opens in Supreme Court here next week before Mr. Justice D. P. J. Kelly.

At the preliminary hearing last December the boy, Lawrence, Jr., testified his father and Mrs. Evans came home to their one-room trailer at Yarmouth Centre three miles east of here, in the early hours of Nov. 20. He said the couple had spent the evening in a city beverage room.

The man and woman got into an argument, he testified, and his father, allegedly drunk, lifted a single-barrelled shot gun and fired a shot through the trailer's ceiling. He reloaded the gun, the boy continued, and fired a second shot directly at Mrs. Evans.

Then the father went to bed with the son and slept the few hours to daybreak when he told the son to go to the city and tell the police Mrs. Evans was dead.

Lawrence dressed, hitchhiked to St. Thomas and went to the police station where he surprised Sgt. Harry McCart with the question:

"What do you do about a murder?"

McCart took the lad's story and notified provincial police who found the woman's body and arrested Jones.

Premier's Hospital Bill Causes Legislature Upset

VICTORIA, BC., March 3 — (CP)—Premier Johnson's hospital bill for treatment after his Quebec car accident Sept. 29 caused a flare-up in the provincial legislature Friday.

C. W. Morrow, coalition member for North Okanagain, was complaining that hospital rates in British Columbia had risen since the hospital insurance scheme was started two years ago.

He said the Quebec rate for the Premier was $6.50 a day, while the rate at Vancouver General Hospital was $13.

Health Minister Turnbull jumped up saying people should get the facts before talking about the insurance scheme.

Premier Johnson said B.C.'s hospital rates were exclusive rate covering all services, not bed alone.

In actual fact, he said, his bill at the Quebec hospital had worked out at $15 a day each for his wife and himself.

The bill for rooms was $102 but the extras, such as X-rays and operating room, came to $138.

Mr. Morrow said he was sorry he didn't have the facts but added that he still wondered if hospital rates would have risen if hospital insurance had not been started.

To Relieve Bad Cough Quickly, Mix This at Home

Here's an old home mixture your mother probably used, and, for real results, it is still a most dependable medicine for distressing coughs.

It's no trouble at all. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups of granulated sugar and one cup of water until dissolved. No cooking is needed. (Or use corn syrup or liquid honey, instead of sugar syrup.) Anyone can do it.

Now put 2½ ounces of Pinex into a 16 oz. bottle, and fill up with syrup. This gives you 16 ounces of really splendid cough medicine—more than you could buy for four times the money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a long time. Children take it without the usual struggle.

This splendid home mixture has a three-fold action. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. This explains why it gives such quick relief.

Pinex is a special compound of proven ingredients, in concentrated form, well known for its quick action on throat irritations. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

Toronto Stock Markets End Week On Upgrade

By BILL DANIELS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Bearish talk could be heard most anywhere on North American stock markets this week but by Friday's close a bullish influence was taking the upper hand.

There were still those who claim, as they have for some time, that a technical reaction is due but others still looked hopefully to higher prices. At any rate the outlook at the week's end seemed brighter than seven days ago.

Monday's trading showed signs of uneasiness. Sales were at their slowest pace in two months as investors, as in preceding week, stayed out of the market to watch the trend. At the cloe, price were on the downward path.

Buying slowed to a trickle Tuesday and prices receded quietly—enough to set them back to Feb. 1 levels.

The decline continued into Wednesday, but a rally began late in the session with buying apparently coming back.

Thursday and Friday the advance continued and picked up speed on Canadian markets, especially Toronto, volume increased after 10 days of contracting. New York turnover, however, was lower with sales moving at their slowest pace in six months.

A Toronto feature was Callinan Flin Flon. It caused considerable excitement in January when in a week's trading it jumped from five cents to $1.06 before dropping back. Thursday and Friday it climbed 13 cents to close at 38 cents after touching a high at 41 cents. The penny issue accounted for about one-fifth of the Toronto volume.

Friday to Friday, Toronto stock exchange indices showed the following changes:

Industrials down .49 at 332.35, golds down 2.94 at 89.90, base metals down .57 at 188.48 and western oils up .65 at 104.64.

Montreal averages showed:

Banks up 0.39 at 32.84, utilities up 0.8 at 90.5, inndustrials down 1.8 at 222.3, combines down 0.9 at 178.4, papers down 13.54 at 752.28 and golds down 2.28 at 10.14.

In New York the Associated Press average of 60 stocks was up 60 cents at $96.

Percy Merritt, inspector of Salvation Army bands for Canada and noted composer of march selections, will be guest conductor at the Salvation Army's monthly musicale Sunday afternoon. He will conduct the band throughout the program which will include some of his compositions. He will also play several euphonium solos.

Dr. Ralph Honey, chairman of the Board of Education, will be the guest chairman. Sunday evening the Peterborough Home and School associations will hold their annual church parade to the temple.

Rehabilitating Blind

LONDON— (CP)— A government department reports that of the 87,000 registerd blind persons in Britain, 11,000 are already in employment or undergoing training. It is thought that another 17,000 blind persons can be added to the working population.

February Shows Some Employment Improvement

Employment statistics for February from the local National Employment office show that conditions are better this year than last in the Peterborough district. William Mellis, manager, said today that on February 28 there were 1,288 men and 286 women registered as unemployed as compared with 1950's 1,221 men and 370 women unemployed. There is no change in the number of local unemployed since last month when 1,574 were out of work.

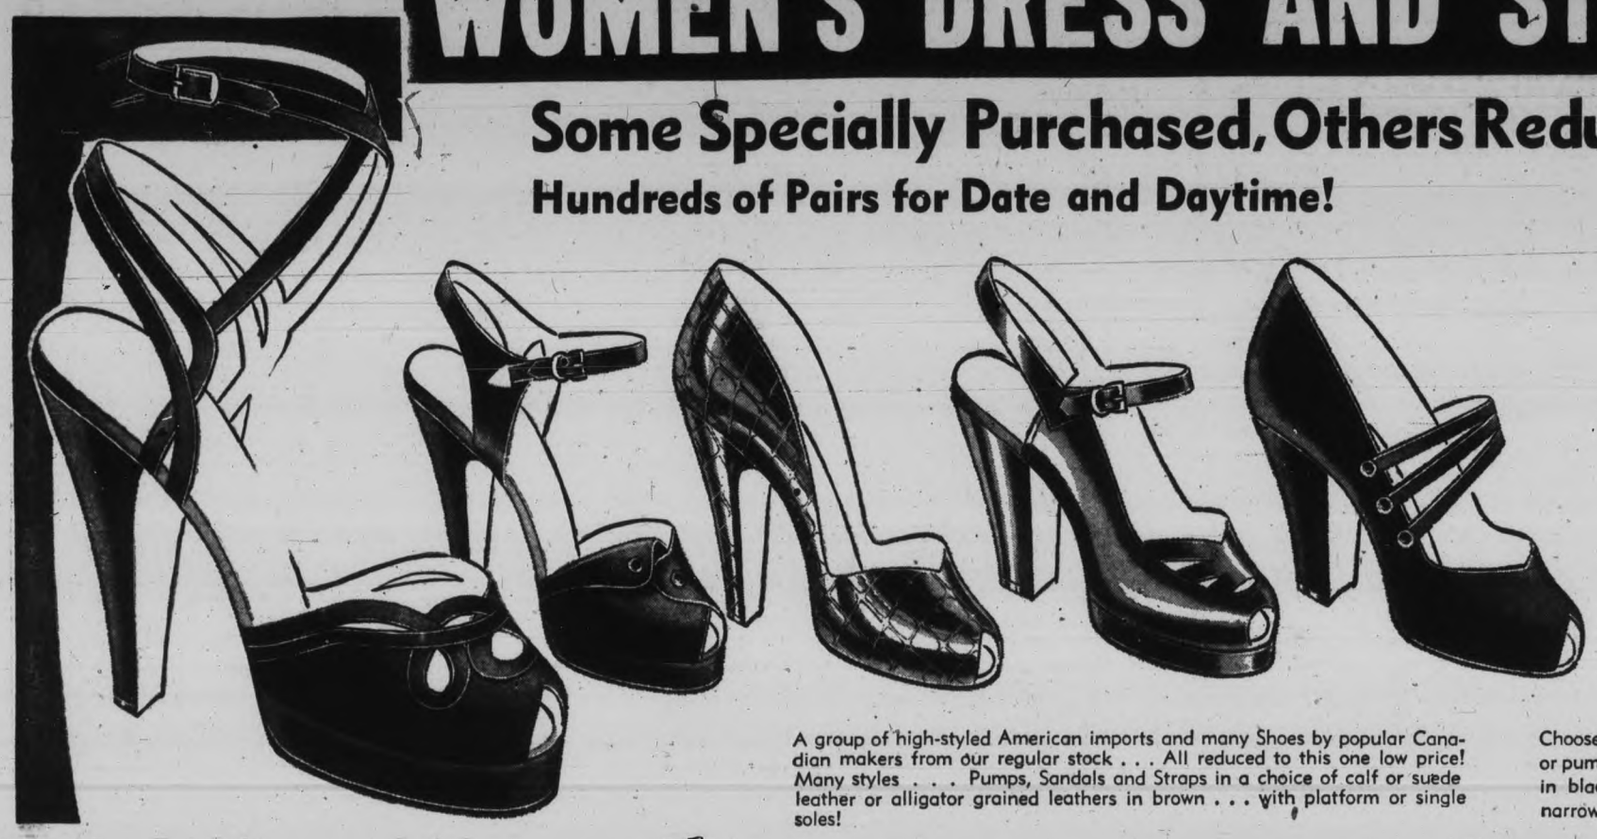
Job opportunities for the men increased in February. Forty-one vacancies were open to men against only 18 last year and 62 in January. The situation fof the women is quite different, less openings available at the end of February than in January. The office had 20 job opportunities as compared with 26 in January and 24 last year.

100 Fewer Draw Claims

Persons on unemployment insurance this year at the end of February were 100 fewer than last year but 42 more than in January. Mr. Mellis said that this year's final February total was 1,500. This figure included 1,216 men and 284 women, 406 out of the total receiving their payments through the mail to the rural areas.

A light winter which has allowed businesses, affected by weather conditions, to remain operating this year has helped the local employment situation. These include most of the construction projects throughout the city which have continued except for the below zero weather days.

Mr. Mellis said that some lumber camps may be laying off early in March with the continuation of mild weather.



Last year with a heavy March snowfall unemployment in the Peterborough area set a winter month record soaring close to the 2,000-mark on claims.

5 Children Lose Lives As Flames Raze Homes

SMASHING INTO A TREE east of Bowmanville on Highway 2, Kenneth Dale, 28, of Ottawa, and formely of Peterborough, was instantly killed Sunday. The only passenger, his wife Grace, not seriously injured, is being treated in Bowmanville hospital. They were en route from Toronto to Peterborough to pick up their daughter Louise, 4, when the accident occurred.

Blame Two Stoves For Disasters In Northern Towns

By The Canadian Press

Fires in Ontario claimed the lives of five small children at Sudbury and Thessalon over the weekend. Two children were burned to death late Sunday night after an oil stove exploded in their one-storey, two-room frame house in Sudbury. The three Thessalon children perished Saturday when flames swept their home. At Sudbury; Denise, 3, and Albert, 19 months, children of Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Labelle, were left asleep shortly after 10:30 p.m. when their mother went to a neighbor's home to borrow a spare key to her house.

The mother said that she had been gone about two minutes when she heard an explosion that sounded like a rifle-shot.

When she returned, she found smoke coming out of every window of the tiny home. The 21-year-old mother, neighbors said, smashed a window with her fist. She had to be pinned against the snow-covered ground to be prevented from entering the flaming building.

The father, 24, had left about one hour before for the Falconbridge smelter where he is employed. The couple had no other children.

Alcide Castonguay, a neighbor, said that the mother screamed, "my children are in that fire. Save my children. Save my children."

He said that it took two men to "drag" the mother away from the scene of the fire to the home of a neighbor.

"The flames were so bad and the smoke so thick, we couldn't do anything," he said.

2 Saved By Boarder

Burned to death in Thessalon were Betty, 3, Bobby, 2, and Linda Marie, 1, children of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Gibson.

Two other children, Jimmy, 6, and his brother Ronald, 4, were thrown from their second-storey bedroom in the inferno by a boarder, Buster Webster, 30.

The mother left the youngsters with the boarder shortly after eight p.m. to do some shopping in a nearby store. She returned in a few minutes to find the five-room, frame house in flames.

She made several heroic attempts to rescue her children before she was carried away from the scene in hysterics. She was in Red Cross hospital today, suffering shock. Her two children are being looked after by neighbors.

Fire Chief Walter Currie said Sunday that an overheated stove at the bottom of the stairway was responsible for the tragedy. All five youngsters were asleep upstairs at the time.

6,000 Reds Driven Out Of Redoubt

Enemy Stronghold Hit On 3 Sides, By US, French Troops

TOKYO, March 5. (AP) — United States infantrymen with heavy artillery support routed an estimated 6,000 North Korean Communists today from a mountain stronghold in Central Korea.

The Communists' gun-bristling stronghold was hit from three sides by the US 7th Division and the US 2nd Division with its French elements.

The Allied punch forced the Reds to flee to a hastily-built new line of resistance to the north.

Col. William Quinn, commander of the attack forces, said: "I'm going to destroy those Reds if they don't check out farther over those hills."

The North Koreans fought sharply from well dug-in positions for a short time before they broke. They were trying to buy time for building up a probable counter-assault on the allies on the central and western fronts.

The Reds were remnants of the North Korean 3rd corps.

The Red redoubt over-run by the Americans is 10 miles northwest of Pangnim and five miles north of the Pangnim-Wonju road.

On the west central front a U.S. tank patrol fought an eight-mile running gun battle with Reds.

The tank patrol from the U.S. 1st cavalry division was peppered with Chinese Communist rifle and machine-gun fire as it moved four miles east from Yongdu on the road to Hoengsong.

On the extreme right of the central front, U.S. 7th division troops jumped ahead 2½ miles—the day's best gain on the front—to within 500 yards of Changpyong. Changpyong controls the highway from the east coast town of Kangnung, where South Korean troops are operating.

Cover All Topics Or No Parley Russians Told

PARIS, March 5 (AP).—Russian and western deputies sat down at a conference table here today after Britain, France and the United States served notice that there won't be any major big-four conference unless the Russians are prepared to talk about problems other than Germany.

The deputies of the four nations met at the Pink Marble Palace (Palais Rose). Their job

PARIS (AP)—Russia today proposed a peace treaty with Germany, withdrawal of Allied troops from that country and reduction of great powers' armed forces as matters for Big Four Foreign Ministers' discussion, an official who attended a deputies conference disclosed.

is to find out whether an agenda can be arranged for the foreign ministers of the four big powers.

Andrei Gromyko, Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister, was the last of the four to arrive. He was unsmiling as he joined U.S. ambassador at large Philip Jessup, Britain's Ernest Davies and France's Alexandre Parodi.

At 10:15 a.m., EST, the four deputies sat down at a round table, with Parodi presiding.

Earlier, Jessup spoke for the three western countries in saying that if the Soviets want to limit the topics for a big-four meeting to Germany, there is little chance the higher-level conference will take place. He told a press conference the three western countries are fully in accord in their views.

Crown Plans To Appeal Edwards Case

Say Judge Incorrect In Directing Verdict of Jury

The crown is going to appeal the verdict of not guilty handed down in the trial of Mrs. Amelia Edwards, Warsaw, charged with motor manslaughter in the death of five-year-old Gary Faiers, Crown Attorney John A. Bradshaw, KC, announced today.

The appeal will be made on the grounds that Mr. Justice Ferguson was incorrect in law in directing the jury to bring in a verdict of not guilty.

The trial was highlighted by the protest of juryman Roy Pitchford against being told to bring in a verdict of not guilty which was against his conscience he said. However, he acknowledged the power of the Justice and complied with the justice's direction.

The child was killed Oct. 14 and Mrs. Edwards was charged with motor manslaughter. She was found not guilty two weeks ago.

Ask UN Recruit Volunteer Army

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., March 5 (AP)—The United States today suggested that the United Nations recruit a volunteer international army to combat aggression anywhere in he world.

Such a "United Nations legion", the U.S. told a meeting of the U.N. collective measures committee—which includes Canada—would supplement units of national armies which it simultaneously asked member countries to assign to the U.N.

Pointing to the struggle against Communist aggression in Korea, the U.S. warned, "the United Nations is engaged in action against aggression at this time; none of us know how soon it may again be called to take similar action."

"The national interest of all countries will be most effectively served by full participation in a universal collection security system under the United Nations."

The U.S. resolution specificially called on U.N. members to earmark units of their armed forces for use by the world organization when needed to put down naked aggression.

Angry Richard, Referee Tussle In Hotel

MONTREAL, March 5 (CP). — Maurice (Rocket) Richard, trigger-tempered scoring ace of Montreal Canadiens, said today that he in effect saw red when he spotted referee Hugh MacLean of the National Hockey League in a New York hotel lobby Sunday morning and scuffled with him.

"But," said Richard, "I don't want to talk too much — they might give me another fine."

In general the Rocket confirmed the story which sports editor Elmer Ferguson sent from New York to the Montreal Herald.

Nobody Hurt

Nobody actually was hurt in the Piccadilly Hotel tangle Sunday morning, according to Ferguson's account. But it was a close thing.

Ferguson said Richard had not slept all night because he was so irate at the misconduct penalty which he figured was undeserved. When he encountered McLean in the hotel lobby he rushed at him "and grabbed him by the neck."

"He was about to deal out summary fistic punishment to the official when Paul Raymond and Cammy Desroches, who are attached to the club, grabbed the Rocket and held him," wrote Ferguson.

"While this went on linesman Jim Primeau rushed in and started throwing punches at Richard. None of these landed on the target. Richard fought to get clean and tackle this assailant but was restrained."

Digs 20 Months To Flee Jail Back In 13 Days

BALTIMORE, March 5 (AP)—A radio jazz band blared out over the prison broadcast system. The brassy music disguised the steady chink, chink, chink of chisel against concrete.

That was 20 months ago.

Joseph Holmes, 39-year-old Maryland negro, was on the first lap of a 70-foot tunnel to freedom—freedom that lasted only 13 days.

He was recaptured Saturday night when he tried a $5 holdup. Today he will be arraigned on "several charges" connected with the wild gunfight that preceded his arrest.

No one was injured in the shooting.

Prison officials are still gasping over his fantastic escape. The story goes like this:

With a nail on the end of a stick he cut a rectangular trap door in the slate floor of his cell by punching tiny holes close together.

That took about 40 days of painstaking work.

Next came 10 inches of concrete. A stolen chisel and hammer, wrapped in cloth to deaden the noise of the pounding, were brought into play. The noisy prison radio helped.

It took about six months to chisel through the concrete. Each piece had to be pulverized and flushed down his cell toilet. There were cell inspections twice each month. Holmes stole cement from the prison workshop to disguise the outlines of his trap door.

Once through the concrete, he dug straight down through dirt for six feet. Using stolen pieces of scrap metal, he angled his tunnel toward the prison wall. Small amounts of dirt were carried each night in old clothing back to his cell where they went down the toilet.

Twenty months after he started digging, Holmes burst through the sod in the prison yard.

With extra clothing in a hand-sewn bag and $152 he made running a numbers game in the prison, Holmes scaled a seven-foot-high fence and dropped into the right—and freedom.

Thirteen days later he was behind bars again.

Mollet Next Candidate

PARIS, March 5 (AP) — France's Socialist party authorized its leader, 45-year-old Guy Mollet, to accept the post of premier in an attempt to resolve this country's government crisis.

Navy Appointment Storm Upsets Eisenhower Plans

LONDON, March 5. (CP)—Gen. Eisenhower has postponed for a week naming the men who will command his European forces under the Atlantic Pact, it was learned authoritatively today. The reason is believed to be the political storm which has blown up in Britain because an United States admiral is to have supreme naval command in the North Atlantic.

The Atlantic Pact supreme commander is said to be eager that his appointments should be acceptable to Winston Churchill's Conservatives as well as to the Labor Government.

He had planned to release the complete command structure of the Atlantic Pact in Europe, with names of all senior officers, early this week. Now it is not expected that the details will not be announced until next week.

Conservative quarters predicted that Winston Churchill — already irate over the Atlantic appointment — will "explode" if British admirals are passed over in the Mediterranean also.

Leaders of British and US Navies were meeting meaawhile to talk over the naval leadership in the Western Mediterranean — and advance speculation already says the command of this North Atlantic defence area will go to an American, Admiral Robert B. Carney.

Carney and his boss, Admiral Forrest Sherman, US chief of naval operations, flew here Sunday after a three-day conference in Paris with Eisenhower.

Sherman talked with Britain's First Lord of the Admiralty, Lord Hall, this morning. Afterwards it was announced that Sherman had cancelled plans to pay courtesy calls on Prime Minister Attlee and Defence Minister Emanuel Shinwell. No reason was given.

Palace Scolds Paper About King's Illness

LONDON, March 5 (Reuters). — Buckingham Palace today scolded a newspaper for saying that doctors fear a recurrence of the leg trouble which laid up the King two years ago.

The Sunday Pictorial said Sunday that the King's attendants were worried that the old ailment, which required an operation, might return. The King has been in bed the last few days with a chill.

Cmdr. Richard Colville, the royal press secretary, said today in a statement that the Pictorial report is "most unreliable and no importance is attached to it by any reasonable person in Britain."

There has been no suggestion of the ailment recurring since the King had an operation to improve the blood circulation in his right foot, he said.

Morocco Revolt Branded False

PARIS, March 5 (AP)—A Foreign Ministry spokesman has branded as "fantastically untrue" reports in the Egyptian press of revolts all over Morocco and charges that the French there shelled praying Moslems.

"This," the spokesman said, "is a calculated campaign of slander and untruths. It is designed to cause trouble and to try to build up the prestige of the Arab League."

Meanwhile, Arab League leaders have been summoned to Cairo to discuss the explosive situation. The meeting of the powerful League, which embraces Egypt, Iraq, Jordan, Lebanon, Saudi Arabia, Syria and Yemen, is scheduled for Saturday.

Egypt's press appeared to be alone with the latest Moroccan casualty stories. News agencies have carried no such reports from Morocco.

But true or not, the atrocity reports have kindled resentment throughout the Moslem world.

Will Revise Occupation Law

BONN, Germany, March 5 — (Reuters)—West Germany's occupation statute will be revised this week, entitling her to set up a foreign ministry and send ambassadors abroad.

The text will be published on Tuesday, but reports from allied quarters today gave an idea of the result of the revision.

This was conditional on the West German government's pre-war and post-war foreign debts, and a promise to share equitably raw materials needed in western defence.

Allied sources said West Germany would have no relations with countries of the Soviet sphere, and no ambassadors accredited to the United States, France and Britain, the three powers maintaining high commissioners in Germany.

West Germans see it as a step towards replacing the occupation statute altogether, and substituting a series of freely-negotiated agreements on the position of the allies in West Germany.

Ex-Czech Ambassador Flees To Britain

LONDON, March 5 (Reuters). —Britain has granted an entry visa to Bohuslav Kratochvil, Czechoslovakia's missing ambassador to India, it was learned here today.

The ambassador, who walked out of his office in New Delhi on Thursday did not return, is expected to travel to London shortly.
